Douglas Smith, who is on the engineering staff of S-A, pleased the young and old with his display of "U" control gas powered models of airplanes.

BOYS SWIM IN MOIRA RIVER

Boys will be boys. Despite the announcement of the City Board of Health that the water of the Moira River is unfit for swimming, a number of youngsters have been noted playing and gambolling in various parts of the stream. Perhaps it's the weather.

SPANIEL PUP IN CITY POUND

A black and white female cocker spaniel found running at large in the city, is in the city pound. The three-months' old pup will be kept for the next 48 hours, then if not claimed, be despatched in the usual manner.

Avoids Hitting Dog but Crashes Into Hydro Pole

Kindness to dumb animals is commendable under almost any circumstances but it can turn out to be costly.

At least that is the feeling of Donald Claus, St. Paul Street, who Monday evening swerved his vehicle to avoid striking a dog and in doing so smashed a hydro pole and caused $200 damage to his car.

Claus was driving up Victoria Ave. when at the William Street intersection he said a dog darted across the road in front of him. He swung his car to the right to avoid striking the dog and clipped the hydro pole.

Berlin Police Forces Unite To Fight Crime

Berlin, July 18 — (AP) — The rival police forces of divided Berlin put aside their political differences today and teamed up to fight crime.

Representatives of the West Berlin homicide squad and two inspectors of the eastern "Peoples Police" agreed to work together on all murder cases.

The action was prompted by the sex slaying of two girls, one six and one 10 years of age, during the last month. There have also been a dozen armed robbery killings recently. Detectives complain east sector criminals hide in the west and vice versa.

Teen-Agers Will Stage Minstrel Show at Camp

The teen-agers in camp at the Moira Lake Boys' Camp are going in for voice improvement this year as well as for improvement of their constitutions.

Since going into camp on the first of the month the boys at the camp have been practising voice faithfully and the result of their efforts will be demonstrated at a camp minstrel show to be staged Wednesday evening starting at eight. Camp members will be divided into groups which will try to excel one another in their minstrel presentation.

It is all in good clean fun and parents of the boys as well as the public are cordially invited to attend. There is no admission and not even the hat will be passed. Moira Lake Camp is sponsored jointly by the Y. M. C. A. and the Rotary Club of Belleville.

POLICE COURT

Inebriates predominated in the city magistrate's court held this morning before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd as no less than six men charged under the Liquor Control Act appeared in court.

Five men were charged with drunkenness, one for second offence. First offenders were assessed the conventional $13 fine and costs or in default ten days in jail, while the second offender will pay $53 or serve one month in jail. Still another man was assessed $13 fine and costs for being in possession of a bottle of wine.

A vagrant who was picked up on Front Street for panhandling was permitted to go after being sentenced to one day in jail dating from the time of his arrest.

A Moira Street woman pleaded guilty to doing wilful damage at a neighbor's house by breaking windows to the value of $20 and was assessed $22 fine and costs with orders to make restitution.

Obituary

LATE JOHN WORRELL

The funeral of John Worrell, late residence, 170 North Front Street, was held Saturday afternoon from the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, Everett St. The service in the chapel and at Belleville Cemetery, was conducted by the Rev. Everett Smith of Christ Church.

The bearers were Mac. Green, Earl Mossman, William Shane, Frank Potter, John Shaw and Arthur Ellis.

The late Mr. Worrell was a member of the Orange Order and the last rites were conducted in the chapel at the funeral home on Friday evening by Master, Lorne L. Goodman, Deputy Master, J. Bentley and Chaplain, G. Mintz, of Benjamin Loyal Orange Lodge No. 274.

LATE DAVID WARDLE

The funeral of David Wardle was held Monday afternoon from his late residence, 177 John Street, to the Salvation Army Citadel, Pinnacle Street, where an impressive service was conducted by Major George Earle, of Oshawa, a former officer in charge of the local corps and a personal friend of the deceased, assisted by the present officer in charge, Major Honeychurch. There was a very large attendance of friends and the floral tributes were beautiful and many in number.

The late Mr. Wardle was bandmaster of the citadel band for 43 years and brought it to a high degree of efficiency. Many bandsmen, in the years he served, received instruction from him, and at the funeral service former members of the band were present from St. Catharines, Montreal, Picton and other places. The citadel band was in attendance at the service and accompanied the cortege from the citadel and along West Bridge Street.

Entombment took place in the mausoleum at Belleville Cemetery. The bearers were James Cordes, Malcolm Parks, Richard Burke, Albert Ayling, Thomas Colclough and Thomas Ruston.

LATE MRS. CLARA A. PRENTICE

Tweed, July 18—The funeral of Mrs. Clara Augusta Prentice, a former resident of Tweed, who died in Ann Arbor, Mich., on Friday last, was held on Monday afternoon to the United Church in Tweed where service was conducted by the Rev. A. L. Sisco.

Interment took place at Victoria cemetery. The bearers were Harry Coulter, Clarence Mouck, Stanley Bateman, Walter Nobes, Graham Mouck and Ralph Irwin.

The late Mrs. Prentice, who was in her 86th year, was born in Hungerford township and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Graham. For many years she resided in Tweed and for the past twenty years she made her home in Ann Arbor, Mich.

Surviving her are one daughter, Miss Bella Prentice, Ann Arbor, Mich., one sister, Mrs. W. H. Barney, Albion, Mich.; three grand children and one great grandchild. Her husband died some years ago.

DAVID WALTER HOLLAND (Madoc)

David Walter Holland, Madoc Village, died in the Belleville General Hospital Monday evening after a brief illness. He was born at St. Helen's, Lancashire, England, 75 years ago. For sixteen years he resided in Toronto and for the past four years he lived in Madoc Village.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Grace Tuller, also three sons and one daughter in England.

Resting at the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, Everett Street, until late Tuesday afternoon, then at his late residence; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

MRS. ISABEL C. COOK

Mrs Isabel Clarke Cook, widow of W. S. Cook, died at her home, 185 Charles Street, Monday evening. She was in failing health for several months.

The late Mrs. Cook had reached the advanced age of 97 years. She was born on Jan. 17th., 1853 at Montrose, Scotland, and was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Scott. At the age of one year she came, with her parents, to Canada and resided in Toronto until her marriage when she came to reside in this city. Since that time she made her home here and held a high place in the regard of many friends old and young. By those near to her and by her intimate friends she will be much missed. She was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Surviving her are one daughter, Mrs. R. B. (Elizabeth) Chadwick and one son, Major W. J. Cook, both of this city; also nine grand children and fourteen great grandchildren. She was the last of her family.

The funeral announcement is made in this edition.

JOHN BUCHANAN (Picton)

Trenton, July 18—The funeral of John Buchanan, who died at his home in Picton on Saturday last, was held Monday afternoon from the Weaver Funeral Home, Trenton, where service was conducted by the Rev. F. C. Beazer, of the Anglican Church at Carrying Place.

Interment took place at Carrying Place Cemetery. The bearers were Vernon Westfall, William Latour, William Hanthorne, Jack Clark, Henry Harris and Gordon Bonter.

The honorary bearers were Harry Latour, Allan Alyea, Arthur Hayes, George Harris, Raymond Church and Harry Oser.

The late Mr. Buchanan was born 81 years ago at Carrying Place and was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Buchanan. For many years he lived at Carrying Place and for the past five years he made his home in Picton. During his active years he was engaged in farming. He was a member of the Church of England and fraternally he was a former member of the Masonic Order.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Arwilda Brown; two sons, John Buchanan, Jr., Picton and William MacDougall, Carrying Place; one daughter, Mrs. Keith (Helen) VanDusen, Picton.

EDWARD STANLEY SHORTT

Edward Stanley Shortt, 32 Donald Street, died in the Belleville General Hospital Monday evening after an illness of two months' duration.

Born in Belleville the late Mr. Shortt was in his 56th. year and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Shortt. All his life was passed in this city and for a considerable time he was in the employ of the Canadian National Railways. He was a veteran of the First Great War.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Elizabeth MacLaren; two daughters, Mrs. Douglas Flindall and Mrs. Robert Strachan; two sons, Ronald and James, all of this city; two brothers, Frank Shortt, Belleville, and George Shortt, Toronto; four sisters, Mrs. William MacMillan, North Bay; Mrs. Albert Eaves, Corbyville; Mrs. Roy MacDonald, Point Anne, and Mrs. Clifford DeShane, Toronto.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

City, District Gave $11,650.86 To Manitoba Flood Relief

Belleville once again responded generously to a humanitarian cause.

Its people, industry, business and professions, and with those of the immediate district hold high their heads wen they review their efforts towards the relief of flood-stricken residents of Winnipeg and other parts of Manitoba.

According to figures released today by Chairman John M. Wood of the Flood Relief Fund here, this city, directly and indirectly contributed $11,650.86 in cash donations.

This is probably a minimum figure, since it is believed that all contributions sent direct to the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund were not reported to the local committee.

Expresses Appreciation

Chairman Wood today expressed his sincere appreciation of the generous response by the city to the appeal. "A great big thank you for a very creditable showing," he said.

He paid direct appreciation to the management of the Ontario Intelligencer for its co-operation from the committee's inception, in the matter of free use of its news columns. The management and staff of radio station CJBQ for its support, and particularly for the sponsoring of the June 4th rally in the Memorial arena. The management of those industries who permitted and arranged donation lists amongst their employees, and to those employees who so generously responded; The principals and staffs of the schools who afforded the opportunity to their pupils to contribute; The I.O.D.E. for their splendid work on tag day; The theatres and stores for displaying collection boxes;. Our rural friends who, through their Neighbors' Aids, Junior Farmers' organizations, and their churches did a fine job; Those organizations, and artistes, who gave of their talents, and time in sponsoring dances and turning the proceeds over to the fund; And finally, to that large army of ordinary citizens who so generously responded to the appeal, and helped swell the fund.

Manitoba Grateful

Direct appreciation of the outstanding efforts of the people of this city came to the Ontario Intelligencer recently in a communication from Mr. Cecil Lamont, honorary national organizer of flood relief. Said Mr. Lamont "The general committee of the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund, and the flood victims whose homes will be restored by the fund wish to express to the Ontario Intelligencer, Belleville,Ont. deep appreciation for all that you have done to assist in enabling the fund to reach its objective. They also ask that you convey deep appreciation to your citizens who have contributed so generously and to those who have worked so diligently in local efforts which will enable the fund to achieve its objective."

Deserving of mention is the fact that every single cent donated by the people of Belleville and district was forwarded to the Relief Fund. Not a penny was deducted for campaign expenses.

Since the general campaign closed on July 15, those desirous of contributing to the fund should do so as soon as possible.

Liberals Will Hold Picnic

Rain or shine, the Liberal Associations of Northumberland and Hastings Counties, will hold a monster picnic tomorrow afternoon, Wednesday, July 19, at Presqu'Ile Point.

Bands, baseball, softball, clowns, free prizes, and a sports program will feature a full day of activity as the Grits of the district mass for fun and frolic.

Every Liberal Club in the two counties will be represented according to reports. Prizes donated for the events include electric tea kettles, bags of flour, hams, toasters, flashlights, canned goods, fishing plugs, clothes hampers, and colored pyrex.

The 6 R.D. baseball team will tangle with Colborne in an exhibition game, while the Trenton Spotless Cleaners' girls softball team will meet Grafton ladies in a softball tilt.

The Trenton band will also be in attendance.

Guests of honor will be treated to dinner in the Presqu'Ile Hotel by manager Grant Quick, while dancing in the pavilion will be featured in the evening.

A special loud speaker system is being installed to keep the crowd informed of the program of events and the results of the various contests.

Should it rain a special program will be arranged in the Presqu'ile pavilion.

Flying Saucer Seen at Windsor

Windsor, July 18 (CP)—A "flying saucer" rode into Windsor, Monday night on the wings of a lightning storm, three Windsor men said today.

A "luminous object" was reported by Charles Walters, who said he saw it hovering above the tree-line about five miles from his home during the brief storm.

"It might be a saucer and it might not," he said. "All three of us saw it, so it wasn't an hallucination".

"It hovered back and forth in the sky for about three minutes, then zoomed straight up and disappeared, leaving a luminous trail."

Many Activities At Moira Camp Feature Life

The largest group of the season to date is now enjoying the healthful experiences at the Moira Lake Y.M.C.A. camp. The final two weeks of camping for boys has just started and will be followed by a period of three weeks for girls.

One of the highlights of the camping program is the weekly supper hike which this week was guided by experienced camper Jack Matthews and supervised by Ken and Mrs. Hansel, Bill MacKenzie and Ken Mara.

The new chapel ground, a project directed by Ken Mara was officially opened, at worship service in which Bill MacKenzie addressed the camp and visitors. Phil Aston, Peter Hart and Doug Walters shared in the service along with members of the orchestra. The Y.M.C.A. as a world enriching movement was the topic at the Sunday service.

Wear Red Ribbon

Non-swimmers wear a red ribbon around their necks at all times to indicate their need for special supervision. It is a great moment when in a special ceremony those who have passed the first test have this ribbon cut by Doug Eaton who also presents ribbons to the field event winners. Most recent swimming attainments were gained by Eric Dies, John Bateman, Dennis Clarke and Ronald McBride.

Jack Doig has been appointed the editor of Moira Lake Moonbeams. This frequent camp publication contains an account of the activities and the individual happenings and accomplishments among campers.

Films have been an important program feature of interest and importance with considerable educational as well as entertainment value to the campers. The three-fold purpose of mind, body and spirit as emphasized in the Y.M.C.A. movement have been well illustrated in the careful selection.

Craft Work

The dining room has been tastefully decorated by paper masks and sketches by the campers under the direction of Bill MacKenzie. These have depicted scenes and characters from "The Loon's Necklace," but one of the many films shown by Mrs. Ken Hansel.

Other craft work has included plastic weaving of lanyards, leashes, bracelets, belts and other items. Leather work is the next stage in craft work being undertaken. Moulding plaster casts is another popular craft. Many ornate figures have been reproduced.

The traditional County Fair was as popular as ever, each camper carrying his responsibility for a side show or a skill game. "The Fun House" and "Seeing the Stars" were perhaps the outstanding shows.

All is now in readiness for the minstrel show on which the campers have been working hard during the past weeks. Ken Mara and Bill MacKenzie have directed the show and the gags and songs are sure to guarantee plenty of entertainment. Parents and friends of the camp are invited to be present on Wednesday evening for the curtain at 8 p.m.

SWEPT OVER FALLS

Niagara Falls, N.Y., July 18.—(AP)—An unidentified man, apparently between 30 and 35 years old, was swept over Niagara Falls today.

His body was not recovered.

Police said the man waded into the water from Green Island above the American Falls. They said the man stepped off into deep water and was swept away before they could reach him.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 18 — (CP) — Steady buying pulled a broad list of market leaders into higher ground on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Key stocks showed the strongest gains following a slow decline yesterday.

Most industrial changes were held to fractions. Papers, refining oils and liquors climbed and utilities and steels brightened quietly.

Base metals opened easier but quickly recovered to show an almost solid list of gains. East Sullivan attracted considerable attention following news of an increased dividend and Anacon Lead and Ascot traded briskly on the upside.

Golds also advanced over a broad front. Seniors gained fractionally and junior producers showed advances ranging up to about 30 cents.

Calves were steady at $28-$29 for choice vealers with common to medium ranging from $20-$27.

Hog prices were not established.

Lambs sold at $32-$33 for good ewes and wethers. Bucks brought $31.50-$32. Good light sheep sold at $13-$15.

Thieves Fail To Break Into Bank Vault

Perth, July 18 — (CP) — Thieves failed in a weekend attempt to break into the vault of the Bank of Nova Scotia here.

Chief Constable E. C. Smith said Monday the thieves forced their way into the bank's washroom through the basement of the adjacent Robert Simpson agency. They attempted to cut through the wall adjoining the washroom to the vault, but gave up after cutting almost two feet through rock without reaching the stone wall of the vault.

Smith said the attempted robbery, discovered Sunday, may have been the work of a gang that has been operating in the Smiths Falls and Merrickville areas of Ontario.

Soldier to Stand Trial for Abducting Girl

Ottawa, July 18—(CP)—Herbert King, 23-year-old soldier stationed at Kingston, Ont., was committed today by Deputy Magistrate Sauve for trial on a charge of abducting a 15-year-old Ottawa girl. No date for the trial was set.

Evidence produced by the crown at the preliminary hearing alleged that King abducted the young girl July 3 against her parents' will and without their knowledge. The crown said King had taken the girl to Montreal where for a period of two weeks he had lived with her in his aunt's home.

The crown, also alleged that King paid the girl's way to Montreal and her expenses there.

King is free on $500 bail.

BODY FOUND BELOW FALLS

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 18 — (CP) — The body of a woman found below the falls in the Niagara River Sunday night was identified today as that of Mrs. Clara E. Adams, 44, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. John A. Werner, a sister, said Mrs. Adams disappeared July 9.

DARK FUTURE FOR ESKIMO

Halifax, July 18. (CP)—White men's culture may in time wipe out the Eskimo and his civilization, a government official said yesterday.

Darrell DeBow, a member of the staff of the Meteorological Service of Canada who spent about four years in Eskimo country, told a service club "the Eskimo hasn't got much of a future."

LIKED JAILHOUSE A BIT TOO MUCH

Freedom was brief but exciting for this monkey who escaped from Toronto pet shop. He nonchallantly sat on front lawns while children fed him candy. But police captured him with a net, put him in jail. He was having such a fine time swinging from bar to bar that police had to capture him a second time, and return him to the pet shop, where he is shown here, properly subdued, in a bird cage. — Central Press Canadian.

Market Prices Stay Unchanged

Fruit again dominated the farmer's market this morning, with red currants and blueberries in plentiful supply. Prices were little changed, on the whole, from Saturday.

Strawberries still hung on, at 35c per quart and red Montmorency cherries remained unchanged at $1.50 for 6 quarts. Blueberry prices were $2.25 and $2.50 for six quarts, with single quarts going at 40c and 50c. Gooseberries were 15c per quart, with a six-quart basket drawing 75c.

On the vegetable market potatoes were 90c a peck, carrots three bunches for 25c, cabbage 10c and 15c, icicle radishes 5c per bunch, onions 10c a bunch. Beans were 15c per quart, two for 25c.

Rhubarb was 10c a bunch, three for a quarter. New potatoes were 90c per peck.

The showing this morning was the best for a Tuesday market in weeks.

Proposes U.S. Put Trillion Dollars In Fight vs Reds

Detroit, July 18—(AP)—President Truman today was asked to propose that the United States invest more than a trillion dollars in a 100-year fight against communism.

Walter Reuther, president of the United Automobile Workers Union (C.I.O.) made the proposal to the oresident.

He advocated it as the country's part of a United Nations worldwide "total peace offensive" intended, Reuther said, to wipe communism off the earth.

Reuther proposed a vast nine-point world-wide program under U.N. sponsorship.

American financial contribution would be at the rate of $13,000,000,000 a year.

The total final investment, after 100 years, would be $1,300,000,000,000—or, as Reuther said, the cost of the last war to the U.S.

WIFE STABBED, HUSBAND CHARGED

Arraigned at Little Current, Ont., on charge of murdering his wife, shown here with him, Jack Galloway, 22, is held in Sudbury jail. Galloway, blood streaming from slashed wrists, staggered to the farm of William Bowerman on Manitoulin Island, a few miles from where his wife had been staying with her sick parents. Police found Mrs. Galloway dead of knife wounds, charged the husband with murder. — Central Press Canadian.

Stroud's Gift Shop Opens NewDisplayRoom

Adding approximately 500 square feet of floor space and providing greatly increased display room for an even wider range of dinnerware and dishes, the new dinnerware and china shop annex at Stroud's Gift Shop was open to the public on Monday.

A great deal of thought and ingenuity has gone into fitting out of the new annex and is providing the expanse of shelving for the attractive display of choice china and dinnerware.

Handsome tiling covers the floor; the shelving and trim is done in light blue and mahogany tones, while pink insulation squares cover the ceiling. Attractive fluorescent lighting displays the chinaware and novelty pieces to best advantage.

Built-in Cupboards

A feature of the new annex is the built-in cupboard space which encircles the room at below table-top height. These cupboards have mahogany toned "slide-back" doors enabling them to be used for either storage or display. Adjustable shelving allows proper display of chinaware of any particular height.

Over 500 different varieties of fancy cups and saucers of almost every imaginable style and hue are displayed as well as complete sets of dinnerware of many of the best known makes.

Among the makes of well-known dinnerware shown is the Minton, Wedgwood, Coalport and Aynsley. As in the past Stroud's will continue to carry silverware and glassware in their main store department.

Sabotage Suspects Hunted in U.K. Dockyard Blasts

Portsmouth, England, July 18 (Reuters)—Naval and military security officers today combined in a countrywide hunt for sabotage suspects in British naval dockyards.

They were working on the theory that last week's explosions in Gosport harbor, Portsmouth—Britain's main naval base—and three reported fresh cases of attempted sabotage on board destroyers, were all part of a large-scale plot.

Incidents so far disclosed concerned only the navy, but the possibility of attempts in other services is being watched.

Aircraft factories are under special surveillance.

Investigating officers are screening all workers at nearby Gosport ammunition dump, the source of the thousands of shell, bombs and depth charges blown up when nine ammunition barges exploded last Friday.

Earlier an admiralty statement said "the possibility of sabotage ...cannot be ruled out."

Naval authorities would not comment but it was understood the investigation cover three recent cases of suspected sabotage in destroyers.

Two of the destroyers are said to have been damaged at Devonport naval base. The third was at sea when the effects of suspected sabotage became evident.

Four other incidents at Devonport have been investigated in the last two years. In December, 1948, six steel bolts were found in the gear box of the light carrier Sydney. In January, 1949, an oil pipe in the steering machinery of a submarine was found blocked with rag. Last May three signal flares were found in the boiler room of the carrier Illustrious. A handful of sand was found last month in the main propelling machinery of a submarine.

The Portsmouth explosion, if it was due to sabotage, must have been the work of trained and skilled men.

FEAR TWO MEN LOST

Hamilton, July 18—(CP)—Fear for the lives of two men who rented a rowboat here last Sunday afternoon and have not been seen since, was expressed today by police and lifesavers.

Mrs. Margaret Askew, told police that the two men one of whom was known at the boathouse by the name of Scotty, rented the boat about 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon presumably to go fishing.

Monday afternoon a resident of Indian Point reported that the boat was floating in the bay upside down.

SOME CRACKPOT'S IDEA

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 18 — (CP)—Within four hours Monday, someone ordered a taxi, a bracelet and five orders of 24 long-stemmed roses—that's 120 roses—and sent them all to councillor A. G. Bridge's home in suburban Stamford township —collect.

Muttered Bridge, crawling out from under: "Some crackpot."

30 Wounded American Soldiers Reported Slain by N. Koreans

An American Command Post in Korea, July 18 — (AP) — Thirty wounded American soldiers were reported tonight to have been shot to death in their litters Sunday night by North Koreans who swarmed across the Kum River.

Two of those reported slain were mortar men who had held their mortar tubes in place by hand until their hands were burned and their arms broken.

This story was told tonight (Moore's dispatch was filed at 11:20 p.m. Tuesday — 7.20 a.m. Tuesday, EDT) by some of the men of the regiment who were in the thickest of Sunday's battle.

The reds' Sunday thrust forced the Americans back to new defence lines north of Taejon, which they still hold tonight.

Sgt. Arnold McKenny, of Newport, Vt., relating the slaying of the wounded, said he was told that those killed included a Roman Catholic chaplain "while he was giving the benediction."

Brabazon May Fly Channel Crossing

London, (CP) — The world's largest airliner may be used to carry holiday crowds from London to Paris for as little as £5 ($15.50) a passenger.

The idea, which so far hasn't got past the suggestion stage, is that the eight-engined, 130-ton Bristol Brabazon I, originally designed to carry 100 persons non-stop from London to New York, should make cross-channel flights instead.

Sponsors of the plan argue that since the Brabazon's operating cost is estimated at about £400 an hour, a 200-seater aircraft could charge as little as £5 return and still show a profit. The present minimum for cross-channel trips is about £10.

These arguments are expected to be resisted by the Bristol Aeroplane Company, which built the Brabazon prototype as a kind of "flying laboratory" to discover uncharted secrets of the air. Present plans call for tests to continue another 18 months, when later versions will be built.

The Brabazon I has been several years in the building. The project will have cost Britain £15,000,000 by 1954. Because of frequent delays in construction, there have been suggestions that the Brabazon would turn out to be the white elephant of British aviation.

Now the critics aren't so sure. The Brabazon came to London for its first demonstration flights in mid-June, and left a trail of superlatives behind it.

Spectators craned from windows and automobiles pulled to a stop as the mammoth plane, whose cabin looks as big as a subway station, circled over the city. In landing at London airport, the Brabazon required less than half the runway.

"She pulled up just like a car", an airport official said.

Although 177 feet long, the plane turned round on the 300-foot runway with room to spare. It became airborne again after a run of only 25 seconds.

"She's indeed a queen of the air," said Sir Miles Thomas, chairman of the B.O.A.C. Supply Minister George Strauss said the liner looked more beautiful in the air "than any other plane I have ever seen."

Viscount Pakenham, minister of Civil Aviation, said the demonstration flights marked an historic occasion, "not only in Britain but in the world."

PAPER ATTACKS WALLACE

New York, July 18 — (AP) — The communist Daily Worker today accused Henry A. Wallace of "shabby jingoism" in his declaration of support for United States and United Nations forces in Korea.

An article by Gil Green, Illinois State chairman of the communist party, declared Wallace "has betrayed the cause of peace and the trust placed in him by millions of common men and women all over the world."

In releasing his statement last Saturday, Wallace indicated he knew it would draw communist fire but didn't care.

Murder-Robbery Charges Face McAuliffe

Simcoe, Ont., July 18—(CP)—Charged with a $22,500 bank robbery and the slaying of two men who tried to apprehend the robber, 32-year-old Joseph Herbert McAuliffe has been ordered to stand trial.

Three witnesses identified McAuliffe at Monday's preliminary hearing as the man who held up the Imperial Bank of Canada branch in Langton, 15 miles southwest of here, June 21. Police say the same man shot down Arthur Lierman, 31, and William Goddyn, 24, with a blast of sub-machine-gun fire as they pursued him by car.

Three bank employees told Magistrate H. P. Innes of identifying McAuliffe in a police lineup Sunday, June 25—the day before the first pictures of the suspect appeared in the press.

Inspector Frank Kelly of the Ontario Provincial Police said McAuliffe was one of 15 men, all wearing helmets and all of approximately the same build, who appeared in the lineup. Nine of 10 witnesses spotted McAuliffe in the lineup.

The prisoner showed no emotion as the three bank employees —accountant Harold Thompson, teller Mrs. Lavona Leadham and manager A. S. Beattie—pointed him out as the bank robber.

An intensive manhunt flushed McAuliffe out of the bush, 10 miles west of Langton, 74 hours after the shooting of Lierman and Goddyn. Most of the money was recovered in the stolen car which the bandit abandoned shortly after the shootings.

'Inexcusable' Action Blamed for Accident

Leamington, July 18 — (CP)— A coroner's jury Monday night found an "inexcusable" action to blame in a Lake Erie lighthouse fire off Point Pelee July 7 which took the lives of two men.

W. A. Moore, 64, lighthouse keeper, and Dowsley Kingston, 42, of Prescott, Ont., a marine signals inspector, died of burns and shock following an explosion and fire which occurred while gasoline was being transferred from the lighthouse tender Grenville.

The jury's report said the presence of an electric motor near gasoline was "inexcusable." Witnesses said the two men were working on the motor in the lighthouse when gasoline exploded.

The jury also said that discipline and supervision of the Grenville's crew was "lax" and recommended stricter safety measures in the transfer of explosive commodities.

The fire, starting at the base of the 75-foot-high tower, gutted the lighthouse, which stands on the southeast shoal off Point Pelee.

IN THE NORTH

Radar gives promise to speed up map-making in Canada, the recent meeting of the Engineering Institute held in Toronto was told by S. Jowett of the Department of Mines and Technical Surveys, and J. L. Rannie, Dominion geologist.

This will save the Dominion time and effort in obtaining elevations for aeronautical charts so necessary for the safety of flying, particularly over the hitherto uncharted areas of the country. Radar is now being developed for the measurement of distances on the earth's surface, making possible accurate maps.

Aeronautical charts depict surface features and must show the elevations of the land over the courses of flight. This is fundamental as the pilot at all times must know the minimum elevation he must fly for safety. To obtain these elevations over long stretches of territory by methods hitherto used by surveyors working entirely on the ground is a very expensive and laborious undertaking, practically prohibitive in certain types of country. A new technique has been developed through the co-operation of the Department of Mines and Technical Surveys with the National Research Council, the Royal Canadian Air Force and the Department of Transport.

The accelerated development of interest in Northern Canada has called for greatly increased production of maps of the large area of the northern part of the Dominion.

The Canadian North is seen by the Hon. R. H. Winters, Federal Minister of Construction and Supply as one of the most promising in natural assets. This vast area of the North-West offers hopes of iron and other minerals, of great value in today's industrial world. This is a far stretch from the time when fur trading was the main business which attracted men to the northern parts but the hunt for mineral wealth is one of the most intense in all history for scientific instruments and modern transportation make it possible to explore and to discover hidden wealth in the rocks and to get it out if it is found.

It may be there will be found there wealth that will stand Canada in good stead in the days-to-be. There is a suggestion of a wealth of power to be developed in those parts. There are hints that the North-West may show oil and natural gas and other resources which will add to the Dominion's wealth. The value in tree growth of the northern part of the world provokes interest.

So the area of this territory may become the source of new wealth beckoning to the enterprising.

The great North-West Territory is no longer a virgin wilderness. It is being developed and may yield enoromous wealth, notes Hamilton Spectator. Canadians in the older parts of Canada would do well to keep their eyes upon it. It is a fine, vigorous land for a young man to carve his future in.

NORSEMEN AS SEAFARERS

Since their history began, Norsemen have been seafarers they still are, preferring in many instances to pit their own skill of hand and eye against the forces of wind and tide, rather than to make full use of modern implements and power. This skill, both inherited and acquired, is part of the very character of Norsemen, whom history now credits with being the first white men to touch the shores of the New World, and who were the first to find a northern way, by sea, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, says The Argonaut.

Thus when a Swedish oceanographic expedition recently set out on a fifteen-month voyage around the world they chose for a vessel the schooner Albatross, which with its traditional complement of sails, is also equipped with a motor, but as it is a training ship, it is probable that in many cases the voyagers will depend on sail alone, thus adding the experience of handling their craft under all conditions to the more minute and particular data consonant with the purpose of this important scientific expedition.

A LONG TIME

75,000,000 years ago there was a giant mosausaur in what is now Manitoba, say the scientists. It had been a reptile whose habitat was the sea and was located under clay near Morden in the southern part of the province. The creature was 25 feet long the tail being almost as long as the body.

Those who used to forecast doom for the world and were evidently pleased to spread their message of destruction, have only to think of this reptile which had developed in that part of the world and had died by some disease or in some tragedy in the long ago. While the world has changed greatly and there are no such creatures on earth today, the earth has lasted that long and seems assured of many years to come.

JUST FOLKS

MIRTH

The lion roars but cannot laugh,
And silent is the strange giraffe.
No matter what the cow may see
Even to smile unmoved is she.
Both bird and beast can rage display
Each in its own instinctive way,
But only man upon the earth
Was given the precious gift of mirth.

All creatures else know pain and fear
And can in some way make them clear.
But only man can laugh to see
How foolish now and then is he
Or for a moment stop to rest
And hide his cares behind a jest,
For who is moved to laughter shows
He has forgotten all his woes.

The first smile on a baby's face
Is watched for as God's touch of grace,
And every loving heart is stirred
When the first chuckle has been heard.
Oh, precious gift of laughter which Makes sad hearts gay and poor men rich,
Drives care away and comforts pain,
Defeats despair and keeps us sane!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A second-hand book dealer of my acquaintance tells me he derives a good deal of entertainment and not a little profit by exploring old books for things left in them by their previous owners.

It is, of course, an ingrained habit of antique book dealers to examine the books that come to them for autographs of the authors. This adds greatly to a book's value. But they find much else. Personal letters that were precious to somebody; clippings by the hundred, on every conceivable subject from feeding canaries to politics; any number of claims tickets for things long forgotten, such as watches at the repair shop or clothes at the cleaners. And now and again some shares of stock, a government bond or even cash money.

Many people have the habit of using books as safety deposit vaults. Especially at this time of year, when they are going away for the summer, householders will hastily stick into a book, on the shelves, something they want to conceal from possible burglars. Then, apparently they forget which book they hid it in . . . . . .

When an elderly man dies, his children as a rule dispose of his library by sending for a bookdealer, and selling the lot. Maybe they select a few of the freshest looking ones as sentimental additions to their own libraries. It is in these sales that the book dealers make the most interesting discoveries. A couple of weeks after one such sale, my friend was excitedly visited by the two sons and three daughters of the deceased, whose library he had bought, but which he had not had time to explore. It seems a note in the old man's will mentioned that he had hidden eight $100 bills in a book in his library. The five heirs and the book dealer got busy and searched the several cartons and boxes containing the old man's library. They found the eight bills in the back of a battered Bible. "But," says my friend, "those five people, on re-examining the books, bought back about a hundred volumes among them, for more than I paid for the whole bunch."

Maybe that was the departed old gentleman's idea.

Heroic Woman Fights Off Savage Sows, Saves Two

Schomberg, Ont., July 18. (CP)—A pitchfork-wielding grandmother, Mrs. John Rainie, 54, probably saved the lives of her daughter-in-law and grandson, Saturday when she drove off two vicious 300-pound sows as they attacked the helpless pair.

Mrs. Reginald Rainie and her son, Jimmie, 3, are in hospital suffering multiple bites to their arms and legs. The mother threw herself across the prostrate form of her son after the enraged sows attacked him and his sister as they walked across the family farmyard.

The sister, Margaret, 6, made the safety of a fence when the pigs rushed them. But Jimmie was hurled to the ground. His screams brought his mother running with a pitchfork.

She tried to drive the animals away but lost the pitchfork. In desperation she threw her body over the boy to protect him.

The mother's screams brought Mrs. John Rainie to the scene. Yelling at the top of her voice, she lunged at the animals and drove them off.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

'OUR LITTLE PLACE'

Y-Cross Ranch, High River, Alta.—We are spending the next three or four days inhaling the atmosphere of the old west and I'd like to give you an idea of its taste.

People who live as we normally do, so close to the neighbors that gossip may be exchanged from one kitchen window to another, are bound to have a little trouble getting used to a spread like Joe Bews' Y-Cross Ranch.

Joe has five thousand acres here across the rolling green foothills of the Rockies, a perfect wedding of mountain and prairie. It's beautiful country. I now go on record that if I had to live away from the ocean this would be the choice.

Whenever Joe speaks of the ranch he invariably calls it "our little place". We dudes from town can't forget that it's the size of a substantial city suburb, a good afternoon's hike from one fence border to the other.

The "yard" includes a river, a creek and several small mountains including Whisky Ridge, named for the early distiller who used to brew his particular poison in a small cabin there and haul it by oxen team to the thirsty pioneers of Calgary.

Joe's ranch is built in a hollow ("build low down", the ranchers say "and walk up for the view") and in the triangle where the Highwood River boiling down from the mountains through steep-walled canyons, is joined by Sullivan's Creek.

The smaller stream is named for John Sullivan who started ranching here some hundred years ago and was killed in 1905 when his horse fell on him. In a tiny graveyard on the hill across the way lie three of John's children who died one tragic winter day of diphtheria.

Rancher's View

About 330 head of fine white-faced Hereford cattle—100-odd cows, 90 calves, 70 yearlings and 70 two-year-olds—graze in the short grass over this scalloped landscape. To Joe Bews' eyes they're always a sight that brings pleasure.

Yesterday Joe took us for a drive in his '47 Chev, turning off the dirt road and bouncing across the open terrain as casually as if it were a four-lane superhighway.

We came to the crest of a hill and he brought the car to a halt. A long slope of grass fell away, bright with the bloom of Indian paint brush and flame-colored tiger lilies, into a copse of cool green poplars. To the south and north there were neat squares of Bromes grass and Timothy, a darker, richer green than the natural landscape. Over the Rockies navy blue storm clouds were piling up in the high summer sky.

Joe's eyes were not on this spectacular and strangely restful vista. He was looking down into a clearing where some of his Herefords stood gazing up at us with that bland, arrogant stare that seems peculiar to range cattle.

Joe is not a man who speaks easily of inner thoughts. Indeed, earlier, I'd sensed that he was a little embarrassed at our breathless reaction to the view. But now I was surprised to hear him putting his reflection into words.

"I'd rather look at a cow than anything else I know," Joe said. "A nice bunch of cattle like that, short coupled and nice and thick, or a fine bunch of fat steers—it's . . . it's lovely!"

We sat looking at all these tenderloin steaks on the hoof, moving slowly now into the poplars, anticipating the storm.

I noticed that the Y-Cross brand was raw over the ribs on the new calves and Joe said they had been branded only a few days ago.

At branding time each ranch plays host to the neighbors ("neighbors" meaning anyone who lives three to 30 miles away) and after the work is done there's beer or a barbecue.

The night before our arrival in fact, there was a branding bee at Bert Sheppard's adjoining TL Ranch. The men branded, dehorned and vaccinated 90 bawling calves in a little over half an hour. Then everyone square-danced in Sheppard's new barn until all hours.

One man, who lives across the Highwood found the stream too high for his horse, tied his clothes on his head and swam across.

All Complete

Not all of this land is owned outright by the Y-Cross. More than 3,500 acres of it is grazing land, leased from the government, for which Joe pays $510 a year. Even so, his two sections of 1,280 acres, at present prices, are worth more than $100,000.

The ranch house itself is a modest building built around what was, originally, a spruce log cabin. Step out from the kitchen through a banging screen door and you can look across the bridged creek gully to the red barn and corral where the horses stand nodding their heads to keep away the flies.

There are 32 ponies and work horses, sheep and chickens and turkeys, two dairy cows, two goats and a pair of pigs. In the machine shed is a new Caterpillar tractor, a truck for hauling horses and hay, a binder and all manner of farm machinery.

Superficially, all this looks like a set for a western romance (as it was in "Northwest Stampede" filmed in the area) or an idealized oil painting (it is exactly that in a canvas by the Dutch painter, Edward Schintz, who lives on a pleasant plateau across the Highwood).

But the finest discovery you can make at the Y-Cross is that it represent a true Canadian tradition and a reflection of many good men like Joe Bews. It's about Joe Bews I'd like to write in my next column.

Patient Killed As Ambulance In Collision

Hull, Que., July 18 — (CP) — An ambulance rushing three persons to hospital after their transport truck overturned, crashed into a truck on the Chelsea highway near here, killing one of the patients and injuring three others.

Dead is Paul Emile Lambert, 28, of Hull, driver of a transport truck. Injured and in hospital here are Andre Piche, 10, Yvon Dufor, radio announcer at radio station CKCH in Hull, and Albert Desrochers of Hull.

The driver of the ambulance, Dobert Durand, 21, of Hull, escaped with a shaking up.

Piche suffered a skull fracture and his condition was described by hospital authorities as critical. Dufor and Desrochers, driver of the truck that collided with the ambulance, suffered cuts, bruises and shock.

Destroyers' Crews Write Letters Home

With the Korea-Bound Canadian Destroyers At Sea, July 18. (CP)—The folks back home should be hearing soon—if they haven't already—from their men aboard the three Canadian destroyers steaming westward to join United Nations forces fighting in Korea.

The men themselves, about 700 of them, got mail from home at Pearl Harbor, first halt in their voyage from Esquimalt, B.C., to the war area. They promptly sat down and wrote return letters which were quickly handled by the United States postal authorities.

The destroyers Cayuga, Sioux, and Athabaskan now are busily engaged in training and in preparations for whatever assignment may be given them.

CABBAGE AND OAKS

The cabbage matures in one summer; the oak, in a lifetime.

It is hard for us to get the Almighty's time schedule into our minds. We are always in a hurry, but the sovereign God who rules over all has been taking His time about everything through the ages. It took millions of years to make the hills and the oceans; millions more to put a deep layer of soil over the earth; and millions more to develop and nurture life thereon. In the tropics we find many plants and trees which grow to a large size in a very short time. But they do not have substance to them. The fast-growing trees are not the kind that can be cut up into long - lasting timber. When things occur quickly in nature, it is come-easy, go-easy.

Get the divine sense of patience and leisure as you agonize over the slow development—of your growing child. Have patience with yourself. Perhaps you seem no stronger morally, no wiser, than you were ten years ago. But you probably are. It takes a long time to grow an oak, a mind, a personality, and a moral character.

POOR MAN'S INSULIN

It should be well known to the 1½ million diabetics, the 72,550 physicians in general practice and the 35 million potential diabetics in the United States that an adequate daily ration or intake of the B complex, particularly thiamine (B1) is essential to maintain the body's capacity to metabolize or use carbohydrate (sugar or starch). Mind, children, this is not a pipe dream or a strange notion of mine. It is just a bit of our newer knowledge of nutrition.

When I told about this function of thiamine thirteen years ago there were then numerous reports in medical literature which warranted the belief that an adequate daily intake of vitamin B complex or just vitamin B1 (thiamine) aided the metabolism or utilization of carbohydrates (sugars and starches). Then a year later Williams and Spies in their book on Vitamin B1 (they were the first to synthesize thiamine) presented plenty of scientific evidence that "thiamine serves as a means of disposal of pyruvic acid and, indirectly, of lactic acid in the normal carbohydrate metabolism." If that is gibberish, never mind —at least it indicates that vitamin B1, aids the metabolism or utilization of carbohydrates.

I said thirteen years ago and I repeat with more assurance now that every doctor should see to it that every diabetic patient and, so far as possible, every potential diabetic get an adequate daily ration of vitamin B complex.

I said then and I repeat now that in many cases diabetecs find that they can keep sugar free or virtually so on a more liberal diet when they take pains to supplement the diet with an optimal daily ration of B complex—that is, at least two or three times as much as nutrition authorities designate as the minimal daily requirement. Moreover, it has been the experience of many diabetics who require a daily dose of insulin that they can reduce the daily dose and maintain the same effect after they have taken an optimal daily ration of B complex for a month or two.

In view of the fact that three times as much vitamin B complex or just B1 (thiamine)as one requires daily to prevent actual manifestations of deficiency disease can do no possible harm in any circumstance, and may do considerable good as a tonic to the digestive tract, a heart tonic or a remedy for chronic leg ache, tenderness and weakness, there can be no valid objection to a daily ration of B complex to supplement the diet.

Let me warn any one who may have a notion to "try it, that an optimal daily ration of B complex is not medicine, and one is unlikely to experience any appreciable benefit of improvement in a "trial" of a week or two. For instance four out of five readers who have reported the insulin-like effect they enjoyed mentioned that the effect first became evident after seven to ten weeks.

Vitamin B complex is food, and an adequate amount of it daily is essential to maintain vite, functional well being, not just for a trial period but throughout life.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Almanacology

I have suffered for years from chronic constipation and of course poisoning of the blood stream. (V. C. S.).

Answer—Evidently you have read too many almanacs and the lurid ads of colon filling stations. There is no "poisoning" associated with the habit you cultivate so assiduously, except the poisoning of your mind by nostrum and quack literature. Send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope for booklet the Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene.

Plain Soap Preferable

I have not read your pamphlet on Pruritus, but I want to help L. M. or any one else suffering from the nerve-shattering condition. Please mention that I obtained complete cure by bathing affected region three or four times a day with a proprietary "antiseptic" solution and lukewarm water. This (proprietary) can be obtained in ten-cent stores. (R. McD.)

Answer—Plain soapy water is preferable to the smelly nostrum as an antiseptic. Pamphlet on Pruritus—itching without apparent cause—available on written request (not a clipping) if you provide stamped envelope bearing your address.

Poison Ivy

Do you have a remedy for ivy poisoning? (P. S. E., R. N.)

Answer — Uh - huh. Send stamped self-addressed envelope for pamphlet on Ivy Poisoning.

SIT STILL

I took a friend across my lake recently. He had never been in a boat, and when it got a little rough and the waves splashed over the front he was terrified. I told him not to fear in the least, that the boat was entirely seaworthy, that I knew how to run my engine, and that if he would sit still, and just have confidence in me, I would land him safely and happily. Of course all went well, and thereafter there was no further fear.

With so many fears in the world, and with so much confusion in world affairs, if we all sit still and do not "rock the boat," putting our confidence in the ones at the helm of state, all will be well, even though serious times are encountered. They have been encountered many times in the history of the world, and the world has come still having weathered the storm.

There is a phrase in the Bible that has always fascinated and comforted me. It is this: "Be still, and know that I am God." There are influences working out in the world about which we know little. If we still sit still, and have confidence and faith, we shall be comforted by the faith and leadership of those in high command.

Washington sat still and prayed, and brought his troops through one of the bitterest experiences in American history. Others have done the same. We can be inspired by such examples and fear not. The free world can be thankful for General MacArthur. He does not get excited. He keeps his head. He is feared by the enemies of freedom because he sits tight upon the lid of a free world, and intends to stay there!

Confidence in character is a wonderful thing. In all the workings of life it never fails. In many an emergency the cool head and calm voice of one individual have saved the lives of many, because he sat still in mind, and spread that confidence and faith to all about him. This faith that we may have is

Compromise Program

Construction of New Public School, Four-Room Addition To High School Agreed on

Trenton, Special — A compromise school expansion program to help relieve the critical shortage of school accommodation in Trenton was agreed upon last night at a meeting of the Board of Education attended by Mayor Couch and two members of council.

Just when the meeting was about to break-up without any agreement being reached, the compromise program was arrived at. Throughout the lengthy discussion, the Board of Education had insisted that the entire million dollar program was essential and produced survey figures to back up their arguments.

Against Full Program

While admitting the seriousness of the existing situation as revealed by the "enlightening survey" carried out by the board, Mr. Couch was adamant in his refusal to go along with the entire program submitted by the Board of Education. Urging the Board to accept council's offer to approve the building of the public school and "hold the high school back until we get out from under the heavy debenture load about 1955". Mayor Couch said the program suggested by the board would "strangle individual home building."

Mayor Couch offered to go even farther and agree to the building of a 12-room public school, as the survey revealed that even if the Board's million dollar program were implemented, there would still be a shortage of six classrooms in 1955. At this point, R. F. McInnes, chairman of the Board of Education, asked the Mayor if he would be agreeable to building the public school and a four-room addition to the high school.

Agrees to Proposal

"That would be far more feasible," replied Mayor Couch, "because by 1954, we will be able to carry it." Earlier in the evening, Mr. Couch had told the meeting that if it were possible to get along with the minimum until the "debenture debt started falling away about 1955, council could keep the mill rate within reasonable limits." In agreeing with Mr. McInnes' compromise proposal, Mr. Couch said "council will not only approve a $300,000 program but will work with the board and go to the Municipal Board to get their approval as soon as possible.

Emphasizing that council would not approve the million dollar program without referring the matter to a vote of the ratepayers, Mayor Couch said. "No ratepayer will object to paying for a $300,000 program when they know they have to have it, but I am certain they would turn down a million dollar program."

The revised building program will be carried out over a period of five years starting as soon as the necessary approval can be obtained from the Department of Education and the Ontario Municipal Board. The initial stage of the program will cost an estimated $300,000 and calls for a new eight-room public school complete with auditorium to be erected east of the river, and a four-room addition to the present high school.

The Board of Education called the meeting Monday night to ask council to approve a $978,000 program which would have included a $720,000 high school to accommodate 600 students.

According to the present program, the 600-student high school will be started in 1954. Construction of the public school will begin as soon as suitable plans can be obtained and council gives its formal approval to the plan. Mayor Couch promised to call a special meeting of council as soon as the resolution passed at the Monday meeting by the Board of Educaton is forwarded to council.

Approval Likely

The Department of Education has given its tentative approval to an expenditure of $216,000 for the public school, and all that is necessary to get the compromise program into operation is to obtain the department's approval for the four-room addition to the high school which is expected to cost about $85,000. J. R. McCarthy who represented the Department of Education at the meeting said, "If figures are presented to justify this expenditure, the department will probably approve it."

Captain W. A .Orr, Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs, told the meeting a million dollar school building program "would be stretching the credit of the municipality." The council has to watch the financial picture of the town and gauge the debenture debt. It is up to them to tell the Board of Education how much the town can afford. Recalling that Trenton "went broke in the late thirties with a debenture debt of $900,000. Capt. Orr asked the meeting "How are you going to carry a debenture debt of $1,700,000 and how are you going to sell your debentures? The best method of judging a town's financial status is can they sell their debentures."

Answers Criticism

Previously a member of the Board of Education criticized council for "lack of foresight" in allowing so many wartime houses to be built because he charged, these residents do not pay their full share of taxes. Mayor Couch answered this criticism by saying, "This was the first step forward to provide homes for people who gave up better homes to come here and defend their country. We are certainly going to use foresight tonight. We are not going to be inveigled into something here tonight that is not in the best interests of Trenton taxpayers.

Capt. Orr said he "did not think the Municipal Board would let the town spend a million dollars for schools unless there was a vote."

The compromise solution was reached immediately after the Board formally requested council to approve the original program and Mayor Couch said "You make your request to council and council will put it to the people. We have only had the taxes we should have for two years and have only enjoyed a good opinion in financial circles for one year. As our debenture debt goes up. we get poorer bids from financial houses for our bonds."

Energetic Club Leads Motormen Up to Ninth

Energetic Club, making their most determined bid for a win this season, threw a scare of giant proportions at Bateman Motors last evening before the Motormen overhauled them in the ninth to eke out a 10-9 win.

The Energetic fielders, playing a "Williams Shift" on the Bateman batters finally had their strategy backfire in the ninth when Jud Semark poked out a single to right field that went for a triple. George Graham then pounded a long one to centre field which was taken by the leftfielder, end man on the swinging outfield. The throwin was cut off in the infield as Graham raced over with the winning run.

Bateman's opened the scoring in the bottom of the second with Callaghan scoring on O'Brien's double after getting a life when the left fielder dropped his long fly.

Heavy Display of Power

Energetic came up with a mighty display of power in the third inning sending fourteen men to the plate to score eight runs on six hits, four walks, and two errors. That was all for Bateman starter Laurie Wright and Ray Hedger came in to relieve with two away. Hedger was nicked for Energetics final run in the fourth with a single and two errors doing the damage. He settled away after that and blanked the Energetics on two hits over the rest of the route, claiming five on strikes and walking two.

Bateman's counted their second run in the fourth, added another in the fifth on a walk, a single and a triple, as some smart fielding, particularly a throw to the plate from left field, cut down the scoring. They added two in the sixth on three errors and a single three in the seventh on a walk, a fielder's choice and Jack Callaghan's mighty home run to right field. Single runs in the eighth and ninth put the game away for Batemans.

Lefty Lou Middleton went all the way on the hill for Energetic Club walking three, striking out four, and giving up 10 hits for ten runs.

Jud Semark with two singles and a triple in five trips led all batters.

Line Up: Energetic Club: Townson 2b; Middleton p; Stickle 3b; Moynes 1b; McMillan cf; Hitchon ss; Bell lf; Outindyke c; Peeler rf.

Bateman Motors: Thompson cf; Hatfield ss; Bone c; Jud Semark 3b; Graham 2b; Callaghan 1b; O'Brien rf; Brown lf; Wright p; replaced by Hedger in 3rd.

Cubs Claw Napanee Lions For 13-4 Win

"Speedy" St. Louis' Belleville Cubs maintained their second place pace in the Belleville and District Baseball League last evening when they handed the Napanee Lions a 13-4 setback in Napanee.

Jack Elliott and Russ Soules with three hits in four trips, and Elder Neilson with two triples and a single in five trips led the 11 hit assault against two Napanee hurlers. Galbraith singled, and Lockyer tripled for the other Belleville hits.

Huffman had two for three for the losers, while Van Vlack and Anstead had two for four.

Youthful "Gabby" Moynes worked the eight inning contest for the Cubs racking up the win. Brady started for the Lions but was shunted out in the fifth for Perry who finished.

British Cabinet Studies Report

London, July 18. (AP)—The British Cabinet, meeting for the second successive day, today studied a report of the latest discussion between Sir David Kelly, ambassador to Moscow, and Andrei Gromyko, Russia's Deputy Foreign Minister, on a Korean Peace.

Gromyko saw Kelly last night in Moscow. A further meeting is expected.

The Foreign Office refused to comment on Kelly's report.

Today's meeting indicated cabinet consideration was urgent. Normally the cabinet meets only on Monday and Thursday.

Fourth American Seized as Link In Spy Ring

New York, July 18 (AP)—The fourth American allegedly linked to the Klaus Fuchs spy ring was seized at his home here by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

He is 32-year-old Julius Rosenberg—a baldish, respectacled engineer, married and father of two children.

The department of justice charged him with conspiracy to commit espionage, and said he had recruited for a cloak-and-dagger Soviet spy apparatus that penetrated United States atomic secrets.

He was arraigned and held in jail in lieu of $100,000 bail for a federal court hearing July 31.

Important Link

"Rosenberg is another important link in the Soviet espionage apparatus," F.B.I. director J. Edgar Hoover said in Washington, where the arrest was announced.

In the last two months the United States government has arrested three other Americans it says were implicated in the spy ring headed by Dr. Klaus Fuchs, the German-born communist sympathizer who worked his way to the top of Britain's atomic program.

Fuchs confessed and now is serving a 14-year prison term in Britain.

The three Americans seized as a result of Fuchs' disclosures were Harry Gold, a Philadelphia biochemist; Alfred Dean Slack, a scientist, of Syracuse, N.Y., and David Greenglass, a New York machinist and former U.S. army sergeant.

War Espionage

All were charged with wartime espionage—a charge that can mean the death penalty.

The F.B.I. announcement said the American-born Rosenberg's part in the ring was the recruiting of Greenglass—then stationed at the atomic bomb laboratories at Los Alamos, N.M.—to work with Gold.

At their first meeting in June, 1945, Hoover said, "Greenglass was paid $500 by Gold, who obtained it from his Soviet superior, Anatoli A. Yakolev, Soviet vice-consul in New York city."

Two Walkerton Boys Suffocate In Wheat Bin

Walkerton, July 18 — (CP)— Two boys were killed in a wheat bin at Knechtels mill Monday. Alvin Frook, 12, and Wayne Rushlow, 11, both of Walkerton, lost their lives when they stepped from the second floor of the mill into a 16-feet-deep wheat bin. They immediately disappeared.

Firemen found the boys wedged into the chute exit hole. Three legs were showing through the hole. Parts of the chute were ripped away, and wheat was taken out. But the boys were dead.

Firemen and hydro workers worked on the bodies for two hours without success.

Coroner Dr. Thomas Sinclair stod suffocation was the cause of death. There will be no inquest.

Bride-to-be Honored by Trousseau Tea

A delightful trousseau tea was held on Saturday afternoon for Miss Margaret Kellar, bride-elect of this month.

Receiving with the bride was her mother, Mrs. George F. Kellar. Miss Amelia Taylor of Toronto, poured tea. Assisting in the tea room were Misses Ruth and Winifred Kellar, sisters of the bride.

Mrs. Robt. Ragsdale showed the trousseau and Miss Betty Kellar, a cousin, opened the door to the guests.

Others assisting were: Miss Jean Greene, and Mrs. Emory Demorest.

WEDDINGS

BONGARD—ANDERSON

Picton.—Cherry Valley United Church was the scene of a lovely wedding at two o'clock on Saturday, July 15, when Berna Pearl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis E. Anderson, Cherry Valley, became the bride of Gerald Verne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Bongard, South Bay. Rev. T. Smith was assisted by Rev. E. V. C. Lewis on conducting the double ring ceremony before the altar which was bright with summer flowers. The bride made a lovely picture in a wedding gown of ivory satin, with Chantilly lace trim, featuring a full skirt with train and buttons down the back, and long pointed sleeves. Her floor-length veil fell from a beaded headdress. She carried white roses and pink carnations.

Miss Anne Anderson was maid of honor for her sister, wearing a floor-length gown of pale blue marquisette with a three-quarter length veil falling from a headdress of flowers. She carried pink and white carnations.

Leland Loney, South Bay, was groomsman, and the ushers were, James Purvis, of Kingston, and Morgan Sills, of Ameliasburg.

Miss Marie Lont, of Ameliasburg, presided at the organ for the traditional wedding music. Previous to the ceremony, Mrs. E. Hineman sang "The Lord's Prayer", and during the signing of the register sang "Because".

The reception was held at Maple Inn, Bloomfield. Pink and white streamers were suspended from a white bell and the table was centred with the wedding cake decorated in pink and silver trim. Summer blooms brightened the rooms.

The bride's mother chose navy blue sheer with pink accessories, and corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother was in pastel blue crepe with lace trim, white accessories and corsage of red roses.

For a trip around Lake Ontario, via Niagara Falls, Buffalo, and other points, the bride donned a dress of pale blue nylon sheer with white accessories. On their return they will reside at South Bay.

Out-of-town guests included—Mr. and Mrs. E. Hineman; Mr. and Mrs. W. Arthur, Miss O. Arthur, Mr. K. Pipher, Mr. and Mrs. J. Purvis, Kingston, Mr. W. Hineman, Toronto, Mr. M. Sills, Miss M. Lont, Ameliasburg, Mrs. A. Cliffe, Mr. J. Cliffe, Lansdowne, Mrs. Jack Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. A. Anderson, Gananoque.

GUNSOLUS—STIRLAND

White hydrangea, blue delphiniums and graceful ferns formed a lovely background for the marriage of Winnifred Norah, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stirland, of Belleville, to Raymond MacFarlane Gunsolus, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Gunsolus, of Madoc, in Bridge St., United Church, on Saturday, July 15, at 2:30 p.m. The Rev. Donald C. Amos, pastor of the church, officiated.

Mr. Alec Gordon, church organist, presided at the console, and Miss Helen Cook, soloist, sang before the ceremony "The Lord's Prayer", and during the signing of the register, "Because".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her floor-length bridal gown of white Swiss eyelet embroidery, featuring a molded bodice with Queen Anteinette collar, long tight-fitting sleeves ending at the wrists in lily points, bouffant skirt. Her shoulder-length veil of silk tulle illusion was caught by a lily-of-the-valley halo. She wore a three-strand necklace of pearls, and carried a cascade bouquet of Esther Reid daisies and blue cornflowers.

Mrs. Fred Stirland, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor, and Miss Ruth Gunsolus, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. Both were in powder blue gowns, identically fashioned of eyelet embroidery. The matron of honor wore a large picture hat with daisy trim, and the bridesmaid a headdress of white daisies. They carried nosegays of Esther Reid daisies.

Mr. Max McGuire, of Belleville, was groomsman, and the ushers, Mr. C. Ethier and Mr. J. Baxter, both of Belleville.

At the reception, which was held at the home of the bride, which was beautifully decorated with pink roses, Regal lilies, and Shasta daisies, the bride's mother, gowned in powder blue silk mesh with black accessories, and corsage of Talisman roses, received the many guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore grey and mauve figured print with white accessories, and corsage of deep-pink roses.

Following the reception, the young couple left for Ottawa, and points east, the bride travelling in a navy ensemble of eyelet embroidery, with navy and white accessories, and corsage of white gardenias. Upon their return they will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, Madoc and Tweed.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was entertained at several showers, which included a kitchen shower given by Mrs. W. Kennedy and Mrs. A. N. Chaplin, at the latter's home; a linen shower given by Mrs. A. E. Wonnacott; and two presentations, one at the home of Mrs. J. Ingram, assisted by Mrs. J. Jordan, when the bride-elect was presented with a coffee table and mirror, and the other at the home of Mrs. L. Lennox when the bridge club made the presentation of an electric teakettle.

The Woman's Association of Bethel United Church held a special meeting on Friday last to celebrate its 25th birthday as an associate of the United Church. Invitations were sent to "the Woman's Association of the Stirling United Church, Marmora United Church, Salem United Church, Wellman's United Church, Mount Pleasant United Church, St. Andrew's Anglican, at Stirling, St. Thomas' Anglican Church at Bonarlaw, and St. Mark's Anglican Church, of Rawdon Township, with members being present from these organizations.

Mrs. Thomas Laycock, president of the Bethel W.A., occupied the chair and welcomed the visitors.

Mrs. Sam Elliott led the devotional, and gave a history of Bethel Woman's Association. Mrs. Donald Heath read the Scripture lesson and Mrs. Walter Warren sang a solo. This was followed by a piano duet by Mrs. Ray Shortt, and Mrs. William Heath. Another piano solo was rendered by Mrs. Harold Elliott, and duet by Mrs. H. C. Vaclavik and Mrs. Donald Heath.

The Rev. G. D. Young, of Marmora United Church, spoke briefly on the significance of the 25th anniversary of the founding of the United Church.

Mrs. H. C. Vaclavik introduced the speaker of the day, Dr. S. R. Laycock, dean of the College of Education, University of Saskatchewan, who gave a concise review on developing "Normal Personality on Children and Adolescents".

Dr. Laycock was born in Marmora, and has been visiting relatives and old friends in the vicinity. He is a past president of the Canadian Federation of Home and School and is a director of the Canadian Mental Health Association, as well as associate editor of "The Parents' Magazine". For seven years, he has conducted the CBC radio series of "School for Parents".

At the close of the meeting, the ladies of Bethel Woman's Association served refreshments.

The appreciative thanks of the visitors were expressed by Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Donohue, of Stirling.

QUEEN VISITS BELFAST

Belfast, Northern Ireland, July 17—(Reuters)— Queen Elizabeth today ended her three-day visit to Northern Ireland with a triumphal tour through the streets of Belfast.

Crowds 10 deep lined the route, and the royal procession was slowed down to walking pace by an onrush of enthusiastic youngsters.

At the city hall, Belfast's oldest flower seller, 70-year-old Mrs. Riana, presented the Queen with a bouquet.

The Queen returned to London by plane.

Mrs. A. Stirland Holds Trousseau Tea In Daughter's Honor

A delightful trousseau tea was held recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Stirland, 243 Albert Street, in honor of their daughter, Miss Winnifred Norah, whose marriage occurred last Saturday.

Receiving at the door were the hostess, Mrs. A. Stirland, Mrs. F. Gunsolus, and the bride-elect.

Those who poured during the afternoon were Mrs. C. D. Crosby, Mrs. G. Wallbridge, Mrs. T. Hallam, Mrs. Diamond, Mrs. Armstrong and Mrs. F. Wilson. Inviting to the tearoom, Mrs. J. E. Marsh, and those who served were the Misses Lois and Dorothy Moorman.

The many beautiful gifts were shown by Miss Ruth Gunsolus, and the trousseau by Mrs. W. Kennedy.

In the evening those who poured were, Mrs. J. Ingram, Mrs. A. E. Wonnacott, Mrs. C. Hyde, and Mrs. A. Curry. Serving were, Mrs. H. Mason, Mrs. Matthews, and Mrs. Jordan, while the Misses Betra and Loreta Fairman invited to the tea room.

The gifts were shown by Mrs. A. N. Chaplin and the trousseau, by Mrs. Fred Stirland.

Miss Jean Conboy Presented With Many Gifts

On Saturday evening, a number of girl friends of Miss Joan Conboy, bride-elect of this month, gathered at the home of Mrs. M. J. Ryan to tender her a cup and saucer shower and Mrs. H. Walkom, president, and Mrs. K. Reid, vice president, presented Joan with a chenille spread and bathroom ensemble on behalf of the Kingston Road United Church W.A. neighbors and friends.

Carol Conboy and Barbara Brundige carried the gifts in a prettily decorated basket.

The evening was spent in "A Musical Romance" contest, music and social get-together.

After the bride-to-be thanked her friends for the beautiful gifts, refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. F. Conboy, Mrs. H. Walkom, Mrs. J. Parrott and Mrs. K. Reid.

Women's Institute

TYENDINAGA EAST W.I.

The Tyendinaga East Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Luther Gaylord, Marysville, last Friday, with an attendance of 25 members and seven visitors. Mrs. Percy Kimmerley, the president, opened the meeting in the usual way and after the business session the following program was given.

This was "Grandmother's Day". The roll call had already been answered with "Memories of Grandmother". The topic was "Modern vs Old Times". Mrs. W. Alexander gave a splendid talk on "Old Times" and Mrs. W. Hunter brought her audience up-to-date on the advantages of "Modern Times".

Mrs. Garry Provins was in charge of the entertainment and called on Mrs. A. Jackson to accompany on the guitar for community singing. Mrs. G. Pringle and Mrs. Fred McFarland amused everyone with two very humorous skits.

Mrs. Harry Sweetnam read the poem, "The Volunteer Organist", and Mrs. Bruce Kimmerley told of changes in grandmother's manners, and ways. Two contests were given and Mrs. Roy Stafford was the winner in the first and Mrs. Geraldine Mowers winner of the second.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses which brought a pleasant afternoon to a close.

Rough Surface Good For Toddler's Feet

London, — (CP) — Pebbles, shingle, gravel, pine needles—any rough surface—are good for babies' feet.

Dr. Margaret Elmslie, speaking at the opening of the National Foot Health Week Exhibition here, said uneven surfaces that are not sharp, stimulate the toddler's foot muscles.

The doctor experimented in nurseries with mattresses of pebbles and broken cork and found that children don't notice the difference. It improves their sense of balance.

"The more babies run about on rough surfaces without shoes from the time they begin to stand, the better for their feet afterwards," she said.

King and Queen Join Margaret In Late Rounds

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP)—The King and Queen are joining Princess Margaret in a round of late nights.

For the first time since the King's illness last year, the royal couple is filling a heavy round of social engagements.

One of the most glittering assemblies took place recently at Hertford House, London, when the King, the Queen and Princess Margaret were guests of honor at the 50th anniversary of the opening of the Wallace Collection.

Brilliant Affair

London newspapers generally hailed the event as one of the most brilliant held in London since King Edward VII, as Prince of Wales, opened the collection to the public. The collection of art treasures was described as the most fabulous ever presented to the British public.

At the foot of a grand staircase, under Lawrence's famous portrait of George IV, the Queen made a lovely picture in a lemon crinoline decorated with hundreds of brilliants that sparkled in the lights and vied with the fire reflected from her diamond tiara and necklace.

The King and Queen made a round of the collection and left shortly after midnight. Princess Margaret stayed to finish the evening.

At Coming-Out Ball

A day or so later at the coming-out ball of 18-year-old Ann Abel Smith, granddaughter of the Earl of Athlone and Princess Alice, the King and Queen led the ball with a foxtrot.

The Queen wore a deep pink crinoline gown trimmed with silver and a necklace and tiara of diamonds and rubies. Princess Margaret wore a white tulle gown with crinoline skirt and a three-quarter-length cape of white ermine.

The ball was held in a Knightsbridge Hotel (Hyde Park). Dancing continued till 3 a.m. During the evening the King asked the orchestra to play one of his favorite tunes, "True to You in My Fashion".

Princess Margaret stayed after her father and mother left and danced with Lord Plunkett, the Duke of Northumberland and the Marquess of Blandford.

Princess Margaret was also guest of honor at a lavish ball given in a Mayfair Hotel by Lady Oakes. She is the widow of Sir Harry Oakes, American born millionaire who acquired most of his wealth in Northern Ontario gold mines.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

If you're the average cook, you burn something once every ten meals, according to the best studies.

Burning or charring food does not mean that you necessarily make it inedible. More often overcooking cripples rather than kills the flavor.

Cook usually have reasonable excuses for burning food. Old-fashioned ovens that can't be regulated, flames that can't be properly adjusted, thin, battered pots and pans that don't distribute heat evenly are all good substantial alibis.

Just being human is perhaps the greatest cause of burning food. Forgetting, overlooking or not knowing are all states of mind that will ruin your roast, char your white sauce and turn your cake into an unsightly crisp.

In the recipe below, a well known Viennese veal dish, care must be exercised not only to prevent burning but to get the best possible blend of flavors. Veal slices are dipped in flour, browned and then cooked with sauted onions and cream. The purpose of dipping the meat in the flour, before browning it, is to give the meat a light golden color as well as to preserve the delicate texture of the meat. If the onions are cooked to a pale golden color, they will have the right flavor. If they are charred, they will have an off taste. Cream, like milk, burns easily. Be sure therefore to simmer the cream slowly.

Veal Cutlets, Vienna Style
4 Servings.

Order 4 veal cutlets weighing 4 ounces each. Cutlets should be cut from leg of veal. Have the butcher pound them with a cleaver to tenderize the meat.

Season veal with salt, pepper and paprika. Dip in flour. Pat off excess flour.

Melt fat to a depth of 1-4 inch in a heavy frying pan. Brown veal cutlets slowly on each side. They should be removed from the fire when they have a light golden color.

In a clean saucepan melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine. Add 1-2 cup onions cut into thinnest possible slices. Simmer slowly until onions turn yellow.

Add 1 cup light cream to pan. Return veal cutlets to pan. Simmer, covered, very slowly over lowest flame until cutlets are tender, 40-50 minutes. Stir occasionally. Add 1 bouillon cube to sauce. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Skim off any fat from sauce. Spoon onions and sauce over veal cutlets. Sprinkle generously with chopped parsley.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Has everything she wants—yet wants to leave husband

When a wife believes that she has fallen in love with another man, is that any reason for her to pick up and leave her husband? Many women apparently think it is. Their idea seems to be that just because they have become interested in someone else, the only thing to do is to follow that interest through to its logical conclusion.

Some women at least, have the good sense to realize that there might be two sides to the matter, and want to consider both sides very carefully before coming to a decision. In such cases, it is fair enough for a woman to write and ask for advice. Involved as she is in the emotional problem, she can hardly look at it in the detached fashion that calm judgment demands, and that someone outside of the situation may be able to bring to it.

What I find hard to understand, however, is a woman who will wirte asking for advice on such a problem and, at the same time, declare in effect that nothing anyone could say would change her mind.

Listen, for instance, to this synopsis of the story which a young woman in her late twenties writes to tell me.

Married for eleven years, and the mother of three children, by her own admission she has everything she can wish. Yet she declares herself to have recently fallen "madly in love" with a young man half a dozen years her junior. For some time she has been making regular, but of course surreptitious, dates with this young man. He has never told her he loves her, yet she seems to believe that he would welcome it if she left her husband for him.

She closes her letter wailing that she doesn't know what to do; then declares that there is no use in my telling her to forget the new boyfriend because she can't do it, which seems to slam the door on any comment I might make.

Since she has written me this letter, however, I shall certainly express an opinion in the matter, even though my viewpoint may be the very one she has asserted will be useless to her.

It is plain silly for anybody to take the position that they can't put a thing like this out of their mind. I am not saying it is easy. I am saying it is far from impossible, if a person sincerely wants to do it.

Obviously, this woman does not wish to do it. If she did, the first thing she would do would be to stop making dates with the man. There is no power on earth except her own wish that forces her into any such course of action, and if she made up her mind once and for all that she would quit seeing the chap, she might be surprised herself to find how soon she would get back to normal. Without encouragement, most romances quickly wither and die.

Since this wife has nothing whatever to complain of in her home life, she would be a very weak and disloyal person to allow a third party to break up her marriage. And there is this to think about, too: The man in question is a young fellow of 21, and no doubt in the somewhat adolescent period of development where it seems extremely sophisticated and glamorous to go out with a married woman. Chances are that if this woman left her husband for him, he would soon tire of the whole thing and be off looking for excitement somewhere else. And then, where would that leave her?

Silk Phantom-Shantung

By PRUNELLA WOOD

A NEW faric, or one so old-fashioned that it is rare again, makes this cool, wing-collared dress for afternoons and little evenings.

The fabric is a sheer silk shantung, the sort which used to make arty book covers and lamp shades in the poetically cultured days of the last century before batik and beads took over; but despite such a fragile past, it makes lovely modern frocks. . . this one by Tigere. It is peppermint red and white, a cool piece with its own slip.

Oust Business Men Lawyer Urges Gals

Johannesburg, (CP)—Miss G. Horwitch, a Johannesburg lawyer, has started a sex war in business.

"Men are incompetent — get their jobs and their salaries, too," she told a meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs recently.

Miss Horwitch said South African women were too diffident about applying for highly-paid, executive positions.

"I told them to have no hesitation."

Male executives are bearing up. A leading business man retorted promptly: "Women will never oust men. They have inferior brains. That has been proved scientifically."

GOOD MANNERS

Too many showers too often take money saved for wedding gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Here's my problem. I'm a secretary in an office, I support myself and also have family financial responsibilities. . . so, very little money is left each week. Now my dearest friend; ever since school days, is being married, and has invited me to be her maid of honor. Everybody loves her . . I don't blame them. . .and she has been given many showers to which I've been invited and to which of course I have each time taken a shower present. So far, so good. . . . but now what shall I do about giving her a wedding present? I should think that a maid of honor would be expected to give a very fine wedding present . . . but I just can't. What'll I do?

Barbara

What'll you do? . . . don't worry. It is obvious that the fact that such a particularly popular girl chose you for such an important position as her maid of honor means that she is very particularly devoted to you, wants your presence, not your presents. Since you and she have known each other so well for so long, she must know about or surmise your financial responsibilities, so I am positive she will expect nothing further from you, will be deeply grateful for the shower presents you gave her. Or perhaps you'll fortunately come across some inexpensive little something of exceptional convenience, some gadget she will find especially useful for, for example, her buffet service.

Business girl makes self-introduction

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I've recently landed a very good position in a business in a large city as style-consultant. One of my duties, a very pleasant one, is to attend professional luncheons of various groups, practically all women guests. Usually the tables seat six or eight, sometimes ten, and usually I don't know any of these women engaged in fields similar to mine. Would it be proper for me, whether I attend alone or with a woman friend in a neighboring office, to introduce myself, or both of us when we are together? I don't want, of course, to seem pushing, but, on the other hand, it does seem to me awkward not to introduce myself and therefore hint the suggestion to the others to introduce themselves. What do you advise?

Emily G.

By all means introduce yourself . . . and urge your companion to introduce herself when you are attending together. I agree with you, that not to do this is awkward, both socially and professionally. Not only should you give your name, but you should add your position and your business affiliation: for example, "I am Emily Graham . . . style consultant in the——Department of the —— Company."

Addressing envelope to married woman in business

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I write to a married woman who is in business or is a professional woman, should I address the envelope to "Mrs. Mary Clark"? Or to "Mrs. John Clark"?

B.

The ideal thing is to find out, if possible, which form of name she uses in her business or professional life, and write that name on the envelope. If this isn't possible, it probably would be more or less safe to address the envelope to "Mrs. Mary Clark". But if I had even the slightest reason to believe she might use her formal name, I'd take a chance an addressing the envelope to "Mrs. John Clark".

His wife urges him not to use "give my regard to"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My wife always razzes me when I use the word "regards", in, for example, "Give my regards to. . . ." or "Best regards to. . ." She insists that this sounds provincial, either spoken or written, as I very often do write it in my business letters. What do you think?

Ben M.

I agree with your wife. "Please remember me to. . ." is so much pleasanter-sounding and meaningful, I think, less bleak than "With regard to . . ." or even "With best regards to. . ." and certainly better than "Give my regard to. . ." "Friendly greetings" and "Cordial greetings" or "Best wishes" are good endings for business letters that needn't be too formal.

Fashion Flashes

PRETTY and practical is the story of this season's beachwear. Nice as a beach coat, is a model cut like a man's shirt, in blue terry cloth, with collar, front panel and cuffs of white pique.

VARIETY rules the dance floor these late nights. Navy net makes a smart, crisply flared, ankle-length formal, with three finely pleated flounces of the fabric at the hem. A very wide corselet midriff is of red velvet, and above it the bodice is formed of two finely pleated ruffled tiers.

MUCH SMARTER, just now, than the printed silk or chiffon scarf is the scarf of solid color, often worn with a flower in matching tone.

EASY-TO-MAKE evening hats can be worked out with veiling and flowers. A cage of white veiling, nose length and crisply flared, is made pretty with scattered and massed red rosebuds clustered in back. A similar idea is worked out in pale pink veiling with violets.

A GOOD CHOICE for sheers, black or white, is the black velvet handbag. A round pin-cushion pouch has a compact-like lid top, lined with a mirror and revealing space for a small compact and lipstick. The top is rimmed with gold metal and has a turn-key lock. Wide velvet handle.

SAILING FANS will like a new shirt to wear with shorts or slacks. It is a "cabana" shirt of blue and white striped ticking, made with a hood and a draw-string waist.

MADOC

Kenneth Wright, Former Resident, Created K.C.

The appointment as King's Counsellor of Kenneth W. Wright, a senior counsel in the Department of the Secretary of State, was announced recently by Justice Minister Stuart Garson.

The new K.C., who is a member of the Ontario Bar, was born in Madoc village, a son of the late David and Mrs. Wright, and received his early education in Madoc public and high schools.

Before joining the Department of the Secretary of State, he served in the Provincial Secretary and Attorneys General Department of Ontario, and was for many years Public Trustee of Ontario, being the first incumbent of that position, on its creation in 1919.

Early in World War II, he was assigned to Vancouver to assist in establishing an office in that city for the Custodian of Enemy Property and was recalled to Ottawa in 1945.

When Newfoundland entered the Dominion in 1949, he was sent to Newfoundland to take over the assets, controlled by the Custodian there, and also set up in St. John's the initial organization of the Citizenship Branch of the Department of State.

Through his long experience from coast to coast in the field of public administration, there are few lawyers more widely known in Canada.

Mrs. Wright is a former Madoc girl, and the family now includes two sons, Douglas Fleming Wright, presently in Chemical Engineering at Queens University, and David Wright, attending Glebe Collegiate, Ottawa.

The creation of King's Counsellors by the Provincial government is an outstanding event and recognizes long and distinguished services in Provincial sphere of government.

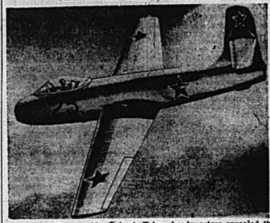
FEW SOVIET JETS OVER KOREA



General Douglas MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters revealed the debut of Soviet-made jet aircraft in the Korean conflict. Headquarters sources took a grave view of the disclosure and said it was fully realized what a serious effect enemy jets might have against the vital airlift of unarmed transport planes of men and material from Japan to South Korea. PICTON

To Recognize Woman's Heroism In Life Saving

Picton— The heroism of Miss Cecelia Folkard of Picton, in rescuing three men trapped in a flaming car which had overturned, is to be recognized. Miss Folkard has been notified that she has been selected as winner of the Dow award for bravery. Her action will be featured in the firm's advertisements on August 7th and will also be related over radio station CKOY on August 11.

Miss Folkard, and old age pension investigator for the district, is the third local person to receive the award since it was instituted. First recipient was Donald Ward who used his boot to extinguish a fire which broke out in his boat, and saved his family by hanging on to rushes in a marsh. The other recipient was Nancy Young, who attempted to save a little boy who was buried in a cave-in.

On Lonely Road

Miss Folkard was driving on a lonely road on highway No. 7 last March. A car passed her. A few minutes later she came across the same car which had overturned after striking a washout, and overturned three times before hitting a tree. Fire had broken out in the car and was spreading to the gas tank. Mis Folkard grabbed a CO 2fire extinguisher bomb, put out the fire under the car, smothered the blaze in the engine with a steamer rug, then released the three men, gave first aid and took them to a nearby camp. Driver of the car was Louis Dekalb of Ohio, along with two school teachers from that State. They had driven from Quebec, through Renfrew, then on No. 7 highway, looking for a cabin.

In 1937, Miss Folkard was cited by Carnegie Institute for saving the lives of two men from drowning in Paudash Lake.

MARMORA

Huckleberry Crop Good, Raspberries Below Average

Marmora — Many residents of this district took advantage of Sunday weather to pick huckleberries. Many cars and a few trucks were seen on No. 7 Highway between Davidson's garage, and one mile west of it.

Many Madoc residents journeyed east to the Kaladar district to return with good pickings. While the huckleberry crop is plentiful news comes from various sources that the raspberry yield will be below the average.

Much Needed New High School Ready In January 1951

Marmora — The erection of Marmora's new High School is a local project, the program of which will be watched with deepest interest by residents in general, especially it is a source of satisfaction to the number who have served on the present and former School Boards, whose efforts to get the much needed school extend back two decades.

On a number of occasions, the Department of Education gave its approval for a new school to be erected, but before action could be taken for some reason or other, the approval was withdrawn to leave the staff trying to function in two buildings some distance apart from each other.

Inadequate Accommodation

The building which was the main one, converted from a double residence into a school of inadequate accommodation, for ever-growing needs, had to be supplemented with a room at Marmora Public School. This in turn necessitated the Marmora Public School Board requisitioning the lower room of the Masonic Hall as a Primary room for the public school.

The new school is to be a one-story building fitted with classrooms and gymnasium, in addition to rooms for shop work, household science, agriculture and laboratory work. It will be of latest design. The area of ground levelled and staked out this past week gives an idea of the fine dimensions. Construction will be expedited so as to have the building in readiness for use in January, 1951.

Claim 'Bearded Mystery Man' Is No Myth

Thessalon, July 18—(CP)—Residents of this district Monday disagreed with a statement by Reeve Edward McDougall of Thessalon township that the "bearded mystery man" alleged to have mutilated cattle is "just a myth, a product of the imagination."

Another mutilated cow was found on the farm of Edward Bigelow near the village of Ansonia, where the mysterious, red haired stranger was first seen crawling "like a bear" in a vegetable garden. Mr. Bigelow found the animal in a pasture at milking time.

Despite a statement by Dr. William Brisbane, veterinary surgeon, that the animal had been mutilated by another cow, district farmers rushed to their homes to guard their stock Saturday night, leaving the usually crowded streets virtually empty.

Reeve McDougall said there had been only one case of mutilation that could be attributed to a human being.

He said police believe it was the work of a drunk since an empty wine bottle was found near the scene.

However, residents point out there is no evidence to connect a second mutilation with a drunken person.

C.W.L. Honors Father Hyland With Lace Surplice

On Sunday morning following mass, the Queensboro subdivision of the Catholic Women's League met to congratulate their pastor, Father Hyland, on the occasion of his 35th anniversary in the Holy Priesthood. Following an address, Father Hyland was presented with a lace surplice for which he thanked the members of the C.W.L. for remembering him on this happy occasion, and wished them continued success in the work of the C.W.L. Father Hyland has been pastor of the parish of Queensboro and Madoc for 13 years.

MARMORA

Public School Has Latest Type Lighting Installed

Marmora — Renovations have been going on at Marmora Public School for the past few weeks. Continuing their lighting program commenced a year ago, the school board has had two more rooms completed with the latest type of blackboard lighting, as well as having fluorescent ceiling lights installed.

This makes four class rooms now complete with most modern light obtainable. The room in which Grades V and VI are taught is being repainted as well as the exterior of the school.

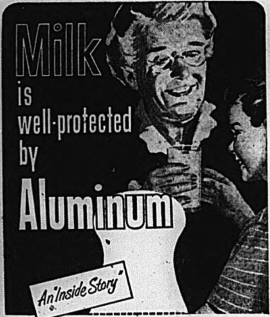
Firemen's Quick Response Saves Blacksmith Shop

Tweed.—What might have been a bad fire occurred at noon on Saturday at Mr. Jack McNaught's blacksmith shop, Tweed. When the men were leaving for the noon hour they noticed fire had started between the partitions and was spreading rapidly. It was only the quick response of the firemen that saved the building.

YEAR'S WORST

In the worst United States disaster of 1946, a pre-dawn fire swept the Winecoff Hotel in Atlanta, Ga., killing over 120 people in December.



1. The nourishing glass of milk from Grandma is the happy ending to this story. It started when Nature put aluminum in the earth itself. That is why this important mineral is right in the milk we drink.

2. And Nature gave aluminum qualities that make it ideal in contact with food. Many milk pails ... many parts of modern milking machines are made of aluminum.

3. From farm to dairy ... from country to city ... rich, wholesome Canadian milk is being increasingly carried in aluminum containers to reach you fresh and pure.

4. And to cap it all, many bottles of milk are protection-sealed with shining aluminum foil tops. Aluminum assures cleanliness for this most sensitive of all foods.

No other material is more "food-friendly" than aluminum. Whenever you see aluminum on the outside of a food or a drink, there's an "inside story" of perfectly protected flavour, quality and purity.

Military Training Compulsory in NZ

Auckland, N.Z., (CP)—New Zealand is the only Commonwealth country except Britain to have peacetime conscription in force. The first drafts of 18-year-old recruits now are finishing 14 weeks' intensive training prior to being posted to the Territorial Force.

New Zealand approved peacetime conscription at a national referendum last year under the Labor Government. The National Party Government fully approves the principle which it advocated long before it took office.

Since November all youths in New Zealand become liable for military service on reaching their 18th birthday. They are then obliged to register and are given a medical examination. Those classified as fit for training are given the option of training with the navy or air force if their qualifications are suitable, but the number required by these two services is comparatively small and the majority of the recruits are drafted for army service.

On completion of their 14 weeks' basic training the recruits are still liable for shorter periods in camp for the next three years and also for weekend and evening parades several times a year.

To achieve the maximum training possible in the short time available the syllabus has been given a "new look". Formal drill has been reduced to a minimum. Recruits are given a pamphlet before entering camp setting out the aims of the course and a general outline of the training and what to expect of camp life. Training lasts all day and extends into the evening on several evenings a week.

The syllabus has been drafted so that indoor training periods can be switched at short notice when weather makes outdoor training impossible. Cadres of officers and N.C.O.'s from the last war have undergone intensive training in how to give the maximum instruction possible in the time available.

Two Windsor Men Held After Fight

Windsor, July 18 (CP)—Two Windsor men today faced charges arising from the alleged stabbing of one Detroit man and robbery of a second in a fight in a hotel here last week.

Roy Campbell was charged Saturday with wounding, also with conducting a disorderly house and, jointly with Donald Fielding, with robbery with violence. They were held for trial July 22 on bail of $5,000 each.

The victim of the stabbing, Charles Cooney, was reported in "fair" condition in hospital here.

His companion, Merlin Bennett, told police he lost $75 during the fight.

Two women, Irene Campbell and Lena Walsh were held for trial July 22 on charges of being inmates of the disorderly house allegedly operated by Campbell. Bail was refused.

Gunman Steals Car And Kills Owner

New York, July 18 — (AP) — A Brooklyn gunman robbed a taxi driver today, stole a car for his getaway, killed the owner and finally escaped after hand-to-hand fight with his unwilling driver.

Police identified the murdered man as William Callaghan, 42.

When the holdup man ran from the taxi he had just robbed and jumped into the machine beside the driver, George Siffri. Callaghan objected. The gunman shot and killed Callaghan with a bullet in the heart. Later, he fled.

Winds Force Liner To Postpone Overhaul

Southampton, England, July 18 (CP)— The 81,000-ton liner Queen Mary will not go into drydock here as part of her usual Summer overhaul, because continuing high winds have forced the owners to abandon the idea of manoeuvring the huge vessel into a confined space.

Her move to the drydock has been postponed three times since last Saturday.

A Cunard Company spokesman said teh Queen Mary will sail for New York Saturday.

In London, the Daily Telegraph said today the Cunard Steamship Company has been warned one of its Queen Liners "might be required" to carry American troops to Korea. The company denied the report as "completely without foundation".

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

BACK AGAIN!

Thoroughly rested from vacations the Batawa baseball squad faces a stiff test here tonight when they meet the league - leading Smith's Falls Royals in a Central Ontario Senior Baseball League tilt at Exhibition Park. The Shoemen now repose peacefully in the cellar along with their Picton cousins, and there is nothing they would like better than to dust off the cocky "Fallers" from Knotty Lee's town come twilighting. The Royals dethroned the slipping Napanee Athletics and have been kings of the COBL roost since. They have strengthened the team considerably since the start of the season, and have been going guns of large calibre of late. With the Shoemen getting a bit tired of looking upwards at the rest of the squads tonight's tussle should be a good sample of diamond pastiming.

The Shoemen pitching staff should be in good condition after the rest from mound duty. Just who Coach Bridgeman will toss in there tonight to stop the rampaging Royals is a matter of conjecture at the moment. It will likely be Gordie Muffit or Art. Wright. The latter stopped the Royals cold in the inaugural meeting of the teams, but your guess is as good as ours as to whom will get the official nod.

NECESSARY HELP!

The grapevine has it that Picton has acquired a lefthander who is supposed to be "some punkins" as a flinger. The new forksider and his battery mate Johnny Dean should give the Spaniards a decided boost as they have been suffering from a decided lack of sufficient pitching material. Frankie Dyer et all have done a right lusty job, but with two or three and sometimes four games a week on deck, they cannot be expected to carry the entire load.

BASEBALL SCHOOL

The Philadelphia Phillies baseball school got away to a good start at the Exhibition Grounds yesterday and today with Phillie coaches Pat Coglan and Dale Jones at the helm. Yesterday some forty-five aspiring youngsters from a wide section of this part of the province, some of them from Toronto, attended the opening session and worked like young horses in the muggy heat. Coglan and Jones do not spare the instructional horses as they are anxious for every youngster to show his diamond wares. The kids responded well to all instructions and got a "kick" out of the footrace staged by way of a spot of diversion. Gary Schreider who finished second in Toronto a week or so ago, showed his heels to the pack, but big Allen Kelleher was breathing down his boyish neck at the finish. The school will continue tomorrow and Thursday from 10 a.m. through three p.m., and it is hoped more youngsters will take advantage of this opportunity to add to their baseball knowledge.

THOSE MEN ARE BACK AGAIN!

Two mighty powerhouses of the wrestling ring will flash into action at Memorial Arena come Friday night, when Yukon Eric, the Pride of Fairbanks, Alaska, sometimes known as the Lumbering Lumberjack will mix muscles with Fred Atkins, the giant Australian. There is no love lost between these two huge types of pachydermia and Friday's tussle should go down in the archives as one of the best seen this season. Atkins is a powerful canny wrestler who does not hesitate to-use whatever is handy, the referee included, to gain his own ends. Yuke on the other hand, ponders slowly about the ring, seeking opportunity and using his massive 56-inch torso to the best advantage. If the ring ropes can stand the strain there should be exciting moments for fandom. Rapid Ray Villmer meets the Senegalese Seeley Samara, a colored lad who knows a lot of the answers, good and bad and in the curtain raiser, popular Warren Bockwinkle will tangle with Frank Sehofra, a newcomer to this city's wrestling circles.

SOMETHING DIFFERENT!

And speaking of wrestling there's a neat bit of screen fare coming up at the Capitol Theatre starting Wednesday through the rest of the week. The film "Night in the City" features that old time wrestling great Count Zbysko who defeated such former topflight grapplers as Strangler Lewis and John Godfrey. Mike Mazurki, another grappler is also in the cast along with comely Gene Tierney. The story revolves around a crooked matchmaker, and there are plenty of wrestling sequences in the film.

THIS FROM PETERBOROUGH'S PERDUE:

"From a New York town comes a July copy of the American Legion Magazine, sent by Stan McBride, who is sweltering off some weight as he holidays over there. The mag has a tale of Casey — remember the mighty Casey who struck out? — getting another chance on a heavenly diamond. He came through and the tale endeth thusly: 'Somewhere in this favored land the clouds begin to form, somewhere winds are howling and somewhere there's a storm; but there's a diamond far above, just within a golden gate, where the shining lights of baseball take their turns up at the plate; and standing up there new, brushing star dust from his suit, is a happy smiling figure—Casey, the new recruit!' "

Cincinnati Reds 'Hottest Team' In Nat. League

By Harold Harrison

Cincinnati, July 18—(AP)—For the first two months of this national league baseball season it looked as if Luke Sewell's theme song would have to be "I'll Never Smile Again."

But the Cincinnati Reds' manager is smiling.

Not even last night's 10-3 setback by New York Giants could dim his optimism. His Reds have been the hottest outfit in the National League for the last month.

June 21 Cincinnati had won only 15 games and had lost 38 for a lowly .238 percentage. They were deep in eighth place, 12 games out of the fifth.

Since that day in Brooklyn—that's where the Reds were playing then—the team has won 18 of 26 for a .692 percentage. They're only three games out of sixth and only 4½ out of fifth. As a matter of fact, they're exactly the same distance from second place now as they were from fifth June 21—12 games.

Didn't Get Breaks

What caused that sudden about-face?

"We've been playing good ball for weeks," said Sewell. "We just didn't get the breaks for a while. Now the younger players have become adjusted. They were straining too hard, maybe."

Aside from a general all-round improvement in the team—pitching, hitting and fielding—two big reasons for the redleg spurt are Ted Kluszewski and Joe Adcock.

Kluszewski, the big first baseman with a lot of potential power, hurt his wrist July 4 and Adcock the rookie, was shoved into the line-up. Now it looks as if it will take dynamite to get him out.

Since becoming a regular, at first base and now in the outfield he has clubbed 22 hits in 50 times at bat for a .440 average and has batted in 13 runs. He has hit in 12 straight games. And his defensive work in the outfield has been terrific.

Kluszewski, since getting back in the line-up last week, has hit .464 and hes pressing the league leaders in runs batted in.

Ewell Blackwell, Kenny Raffensberger and Herman Wehmeier have led the pitching rally.

No Marked Upset In First Round Golf Tourney

By W. R. WHEATLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Saskatoon, July 18 — (CP) — A generous supply of new blood today was injected into the Canadian Amateur Golf championship with arrival at the starting tee of 24 players who sat out yesterday's first round as byes.

Nineteen of the 24 were members of provincial teams which competed Sunday for the Willingdon Cup, retained by Ontario.

As an indication of the expected sharpening of play, 13 erstwhile team performers, now on their own, were drawn in yesterday's first round and 12 of them won.

It was merely a matter of running out the string for such recognized players as Nick Weslock of Windsor, Ont., Jerry Kesselring of Kitchener, Ont., young Bob Hall of Montreal and the Pidlaski brothers of Winnipeg.

What was expected to be a side show turned out to be a main tent circus. Still trying to settle their Sunday tie for the Canadian junior title, Laurie Roland of Vancouver and Doug Silverberg of Red Deer, Alta., battled doggedly through 18 holes of medal play and each finished with a 72, three over par.

Playoff Sets Record

The playoff set a record in itself since the junior championship was established in 1938. A second play-off promptly replaced that.

In the 40 matches of the amateur championship first round, there was no distinct upset.

Weslock, shooting sub-par golf, breezed through to a 7-and-5 victory over Jess Bloom of Hanna, Alta., and cut the pattern for the other better-known Canadian players.

Kesselring romped into a commanding lead over C. Tufts of Saskatoon and ended the match on the 12th, 7 up.

Bob Hall, last year's junior champion, got down to business with some fine iron shots and beat Ross Reibling of Regina two up.

Bill Pidlaski took a 3-and-2 decision from Herb Pinder of Saskatoon. Brother Mike, the giant-killer at Quebec three years ago when he knocked off Skee Riegel of the United States, won easily over another local golfer, William J. Faulkner, 7-and-6.

Only one American is left in this tournament. He is tall, grim-faced Guy Owen of Cutbank, Mont., known in sectional play in the States but never a figure in national competition.

In the starting field of 64 in today's second round match play were a flock of well-known Canadian players, including Bill Mawhinney of Vancouver, Jack Nash of London, Ont., and the veteran Allan Boes of Winnipeg. All had byes yesterday. Dark horses were still scattered through the draw but Weslock remained the heavy favorite.

Roland and Silverberg — who can't straighten out their own argument — went out late in the first round of the amateur and both won. Roland had an easy 7-and-6 win over G. M. Frazer of Saskatoon. Silverberg was carried to the 19th green before he could dispose of G. Richardson, another local boy, by getting down for a birdie four.

Hero One Minute, A 'Bum' the Next, Gavey Wins Game

(By The Canadian Press)

As in all sports, a baseball player can be a hero one night and a bum the next. But sometimes a player's luck turns so often that the fans have difficulty making up their minds.

Take Al Gavey. Brantford Red Sox hurried him to the mound in the ninth inning of their cliff-hanger with Galt Terriers in last night's intercounty senior baseball league game. When he arrived, he had a 4-2 lead with two men on base.

Gavey (the bum) walked Goody Rosen to load the bases. Gavey (the hero) fanned Red Kaiser for the second out. Gavey (the bum) walked Tom Lynett to force in Galt's third run. Then Gavey wound up a hero by whiffing Eddie Klim for the final out.

All of which meant that Alex Martin, who hadn't allowed a run since the first inning, turned out to be the goat for allowing the Sox to tally four times in the opening frame. And Alex Kirkgasser, who was coming apart at the seams when Gavey took over in the ninth, got credit for the victory.

St. Thomas Legionnaires stayed out of the cellar by downing the last-place Guelph Maple Leafs 6-2 behind the steady eight-hit pitching of Dick Long. The Legion jumped on Marty Philp for three runs in the fifth to sew up the game. Johnny Futcher and Joe Biros had three hits apiece for the winners.

Peterborough Marines ended their victory famine decisively in the viaduct major league, by whipping New Toronto Fords 15-4 with a 14-hit assault on three New Toronto pitchers.

A grand slam homer by Don Brown in the fifth inning was the highlight of the Marine's attack.

Surging Brooks Clip Cards Twice and Scramble Race As Pitchers Do About Face

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

What goes with Brooklyn? Is this the big push? Are Burt Shotton's boys ready to take charge?

Baseball fans ask these questions today because the sudden turn-about of Dodger pitching has jumbled the National League race. It's only one game from the Phillies in first to the Dodgers in fourth. Last Thursday night, the Brooks trailed by 5 1-2.

A week ago President Branch Rickey of the Dodgers moaned about the "worst pitching staff collapse I've ever seen". Now his onrushing Brooks have a budding five-game win streak.

In St. Louis, they're convinced the Dodger push is on. So far the Brooks have whipped the Cardinals 11 out of 14, the last seven in a row, including a day-night doubleheader yesterday.

Oddly enough, the Dodgers have been doing it with pitching. Nine of 14 Brooklyn pitchers to face St. Louis have gone all the way—Preacher Roe four times and Don Newcombe three.

Roe Did It Again

Roe did it again last night as the Dodgers crushed Howie Pollet, 7-1, after stumbling to a 6-2 afternoon decision for Don Bankhead.

The Preacher man allowed only five hits for his 11th victory. From the moment Bobby Morgan led off with a first-inning homer, the Dodgers had the game in the bag.

Gil Hodges, who hit his 12th homer in the four-run first inning of the day game, was injured when he tripped over the infield covering in the sixth inning. He retired in the seventh and missed the night work, snapping his string of 328 consecutive games since 1948.

The double Cardinal loss let the idle Phillies, rained out at Chicago, sneak back into first place. Then come St. Louis and Boston tied for second.

Bill Pierro, a rookie from Indianapolis making his first big league appearance, was well on his way to success when Boston hung up a big five in the ninth and dumped Pittsburgh, 8-6.

Ralph Kiner hit his 26th homer, tying Cleveland's Al Rosen for the major league lead.

Jim Hearn, making his first New York start since his purchase from St. Louis a week ago, held Cincinnati to four hits in an easy 10-3 romp. He retired 14 men in order and allowed no hits after the fourth.

Detroit Boosts Lead

Detroit boosted its American League lead to 4 1-2 games by whipping Philadelphia A's in a twilight-night doubleheader. The runner-up New York Yankees played only one game, edging Chicago, 4-3.

Charley Keller's pinch triple, a pinch single by Freddie Hutchinson and Jerry Priddy's timely single, helped the Tigers rally with three in the eighth inning of the 8-6 opener. Hal Newhouser won his 10th over reliefer Carl Scheib. Saul Rogovin, making his third start, went the route for the first time in the 3-1 night game.

Yogi Berra and Hank Bauer, a couple of Yankee cripples returning to action, took care of the White Sox. Although Rookie Ed Ford didn't go all the way, he was around long enough to earn his first major league victory.

Joe Dobson, an afternoon loser, came back to win on relief at night as Boston broke even in a day-night double header with Cleveland. Rosen hit his 26th homer and Joe Gordon smashed five hits, including homer No. 9, in the Indians' 11-6 daytime win.

Dobson came to the rescue of Maurice McDermott in the night game to win his 10th, 7-5.

Third baseman Eddie Yost made a sensational lunging catch of a foul ball to put down a ninth-inning St. Louis threat and save a 3-1 Washington victory.

H. Wilson Gave Yankee Rival Gear Box Info'

(By The Canadian Press)

Harold Wilson figures there's a chance he may have helped Stanley Sayres set the world powerboat record that Wilson has been spending a long time trying to break.

The Ingersoll racer is in Gravenhurst with his temperamental Miss Canada IV for trials. If all goes well, he may make an official bid to break the record of 160.3 miles per hour Sayres set in his Slo-Mo-Shun.

Wilson said that several months ago he received a letter from Sayres asking for details of Miss Canada's gear box. He wrote back with the information.

"It never entered my mind," he said laughingly, "that he would turn out to be the fellow whose record I'm going to break."

Until Sayres set the record, Miss Canada was considered a cinch to break the record of 141.7 set by Sir Malcolm Campbell. Wilson had hit 155 in unofficial trials at Picton last year.

George (Rockabye) Ross, the Cape Breton farm boy who punched his way to fistic attention in the 1945 Cape Breton golden gloves and within two years was middleweight champion of Canada, has announced his retirement.

News of Ross' decision to hang up his gloves for good was revealed in Sydney, N.S., Monday by fight promoter Gus MacLellan.

"I called Ross at his home late last week in an effort to complete arrangements for a Moncton bout with Yvon Durelle," said MacLellan.

"Ross told me before I started however, that it wasn't any use. I've retired."

Crusano, owned and driven by Cecil Champion, of Winchester, Ont., set a trotting record at Thorncliffe raceway in Toronto Monday when he won at a mile in 2.07 4-5. It was the fastest winning race of the gelding's career.

Crusano led every step of the way but was forced to the limit to hold off the closing rush of Dandy J., owned by Lawrence Powers of Clinton, N.Y. Crusano was second choice in the wagering and paid $5.25.

Apart from Crusano's record-shattering trip, the day's outstanding performance was provided by driver Harold Wellwood, from Merlin, Ont., who drove three winners. He won the first race narrowly with Fidelis Hanover, owned by A. P. McNiven, of Ecorse, Michigan, the sixth with Mr. Oakley, owned by Wes Litt, of Stratford, Ont., and the eighth with Victor Henley, also owned by Mr. Litt.

Trials to choose a senior Canadian team for competition against a United States squad at Brookline, Mass., will be held at the Mount Royal Tennis Club in Montreal Wednesday.

Any Canadian of 45 years of age or more is eligible for a berth on the team. Last year, the U.S. team defeated Canada 8-0 in four singles and four doubles matches at Seigniory Club, Que.

The sleek yawl Escapade, only scratch boat in the race, took both the major laurels Monday in the 235-mile Port Huron-to-Mackinac sailing classic.

Not only did the 72-foot Detroit craft sweep across the finish line more than two hours ahead of her nearest pursuer in the fleet of 48 yachts to win on elapsed time. But her scratch time of 25 hours, 47 minutes and 19 seconds held up against all the heavy handicaps posted against her.

That gave skipper Wendell W. Anderson the Ed Mackinac trophy as champion of the fleet as well as the title in the cruising A class.

Sports Roundup

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

New York, July 18—(AP)—It's getting so that it pays to be an "old pro" even in a game like tennis. . . from promoter Bobby Riggs' office comes word that Jack Kramer has been "signed" for the 1950-51 tennis tour (which isn't surprising since Jack is pratically a partner in the deal) and his op- Segura.

That seems to leave Dick Gonzales, who jumped head first into the pro game after winning one United States amateur title, on the outside or in a secondary spot. And if Gussie Moran listens to Riggs' offers, it probably will be outside.

Segura, no great shakes as an amateur player despite his pleasing personality, learned enough as a pro to beat Kramer in the U.S. pro tournament and win his shot at the tour. . . Riggs mentioned Budge Patty, the Wimbledon champion, or the 1950 winner at Forest Hills as a possible opponent for Kramer, but Budge would not be a big attraction unless he won both titles.

Gonzales' best chance of sticking with the tour seems to be that Gussie will refuse to reduce her figure—the $75,000 she's supposed to be asking, we mean. . . Riggs knows a couple of good looking gals will draw better than two guys who can play better tennis but he also knows how to keep the budget balanced.

Montreal Wins Seven of Eight, Challenges Wings

(By The Associated Press)

Montreal Royals, an in-and-out club all season, finally seem to have shaken their early season troubles.

The Royals were a proud first place team in May, a sad fifth in June. Today they're a driving third, challenging for Rochester's lead.

Walt Alston's crew has won three straight and seven of its last eight games. The pitching has been good, the hitting timely.

Last night it was a sub—Jack Lindsey—who came through. The utility third baseman slammed two homers and a single, driving in three runs, to lead the Royals to a 4-1 victory over Buffalo.

Lindsey's swatting enabled Jim Hughes to register his first pitching triumph. Sandy Silverstein suffered his sixth loss.

Rochester went 2½ games ahead of runner-up Baltimore with a 9-8, 10-inning verdict over Toronto. Don Bollweg scooted across with the winning run as catcher Vince Plumbo bobbled a throw from the shortstop.

Bollweg also cracked a three-run homer in the first to help Mike Schultz, fourth Rochester moundsman, to pick up victory No. 3. Steve Ridzik lost, evening his record at 6-6.

Kent Peterson hurled Syracuse to a 4-3 victory over Springfield. The former Cincinnati Red lefty scattered eight hits, issued only one walk.

Sugar Robinson Must Keep Date With Basora

By ORLO ROBERTSON

Scranton, Pa., July 18 (AP) — Sugar Ray Robinson is likely to find himself suspended and fined in Pennsylvania today but whether the National Boxing Association concurs is another question.

Robinson announced yesterday after undergoing a physical check-up by a Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission doctor that he would not go through with a fight against Jose Basora here tomorrow night. The 15-round fight was for the Pennsylvania version of the middleweight crown, held by Robinson along with his world welterweight title.

The slim Harlem Negro said he had a back ache. But Dr. Leonard M. Freda, Commission physician, said he could find nothing wrong with Robinson after sending the boxer through an hour's workout and x-raying his back.

Be Given Heavy Fine

Chairman George Jones, Jr., of the Commission stated before the examination that if Robinson did not show up he would be given the heaviest fine ever assessed a fighter in Pennsylvania, suspended and sued for damages on behalf of the promoter and Basora.

Abe J. Greene of Paterson, N. J., Commissioner of the N. B. A., said Robinson had told him last Saturday he would box Basora anytime after he defends his charity welterweight title against Charlie Fusari in Jersey City Aug. 9 for the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund.

Robinson will not be allowed to fight "anywhere in N. B. A. territory under any circumstances," until he fulfils his contract to fight Basora following his meeting with Fusari, Greene said.

Jones was expected in Scranton today to confer with Dr. Freda, promoters of the fight and Basora before taking any action.

Robinson won the Pennsylvania version of the 160-pound crown by defeating Robert Villemain recently in Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium.

The Canadian Family owes much to . . . Switzerland

A Tribute from Calvert to Canadians of Swiss Descent

THE STRENGTH of a nation stems from the character of its people. Canada owes much of her growth, vitality and the rich quality of its democracy to the blending of racial and cultural heritages from many lands.

Switzerland has contributed many of her sturdy sons, and they have united themselves with other racial groups, to comprise the great Canadian Family.

Among the first Swiss to come to Canada were soldiers who helped Lord Selkirk defend his Red River Colony. These were quickly followed by skilled watch and clock makers and musicians.

Today the names of many Canadians of Swiss descent figure prominently among our artists, musicians, writers and poets, while the unmatched skill of Swiss watchmakers has contributed much to Canada's industry.

Calvert, founder of Canada's first colony at Newfoundland in 1622, was head of the famous Calvert family. Calvert's ideals of democracy, ideals which were perpetuated by his descendants, helped set the pattern for the freedom we now enjoy.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The two don't in the rule for leads will save you many bad moments. The least they will do is tell you what suits not to lead. This tells you which suits are eligible for a lead.

When you determine thus the only suits from which to lead you can choose which is best. How do you decide this? By following the rule for the order of choice of leads.

The two don't are: don't lead a suit bid by opponents; against a suit contract, don't lead away from an ace or a king. From the remaining suits follow the choice in tops, longies, shorts.

By tops is meant any of the three groups of top card leads. One is the top of a sequence. Another is the lead of an ace when you are going to trump that suit. The third is a king lead from A K with others.

Longies refer to long suits. Suits known as long contain more than three cards; that is, four cards or more. Shorts refer to short suits. In this group are all suits of three cards or less.

South and north had bid hearts and diamonds. South finally became the declarer at a four heart contract. It is your opening lead from the west hand shown here:

♥ 9 5 3
♦ Q 8 4
♣ A 7 5 4

Do not lead a heart or a diamond. These suits were bid by your opponents. Do not lead a club. It would be leading away from an ace against a suit contract. This tells you to lead a spade.

From a suit of four cards or more, lead the fourth best. From a suit of three cards or less (a short), lead the highest. So, the correct lead from your hand here is the nine of spades.

You may be wondering what your lead would be if one of your spades was an ace or a king. Or if opponents had also bid spades before they reached the contract of four hearts. The answer to that one is what I will tell you next. It is a honey, honey.

AT THE BELLE

Captain China

A blisteringly-paced sea thriller "Captain China" is showing tonight for the last time at the Belle Theatre.

This action-packed Pine-Thomas production has about everything even the most discriminating moviegoer could ask, from a brilliant cast of six stars including John Payne, Gail Russell, Jeffery Lynn, Lon Chaney, Edgar Bergen and Michael O'Shea, to a story that fairly bristles with excitement.

Payne proves himself an excellent choice for the title role of the rugged, two-fisted skipper who, having lost his stripes for allegedly faulty seamanship, fights bitterly to regain his command and the respect of the girl he loves. In the latter role Gail Russell gives a convincing performance, while Jeffrey Lynn is admirably cast as Captain Brendensen, who assumes Payne's command.

The picture abounds in thrills, two in particular stand out. One is a spectacular typhoon sequence, that is certainly one of the most exciting ever filmed, the other a vicious fist fight between Payne and Chaney.

A varied program of entertaining featurettes precede the feature attraction.

AT THE DRIVE-IN
LOOK FOR THE SILVER LINING

Starring June Haver and Ray Bolger

As its share of summer entertainment Warner Brothers has delved into the career of the musical comedy star Marilyn Miller, and has whipped together a gay, frothy film which boasts Technicolor photography, star names, production values, ever-popular tunes and a journey into the period of Broadway's past. Although the format employed is one used almost since the inception of sound, it is the type of picture which has also proved itself a faithful exhibition standby.

For the marquee June Haver heads the cast, and, as Miss Miller, sings and dances her way through the numbers which made the Broadway star a favorite during and immediately after the First World War. Sharing Miss Haver's spotlight is Ray Bolger as her tutor and advisor who leads her along the arduous path from vaudeville to the big-time and in so doing is given the opportunity to perform expertly accomplished singing and tap-dancing routines which have made him a star on the musical comedy stage. Gordon MacRae, as the husband who brings tragedy into the star's life when he is killed; Charlie Ruggles as her father, and Rosemary DeCamp as the mother, lend competent support.

But the highlight of the picture is the nostalgic and ever-popular songs which include such favorites as the title number written by Jerome Kern and B. G. DeSylva; the Vincent Youmans piece, "Time on My Hands", in which he collaborated with Harold Adamson and Mack Gordon; "Who", "A Kiss in the Dark" and "Sunny", which boasts such authors as Mr. Kern, Victor Herbert and Oscar Hammerstein II.

With the songs the picture also presents a generous slice of the musical hits "Profiles of 1914", "The Big Show of of 1915", "Sally", "Sunny"; and others.

Expert direction by David Butler keeps the picture moving smoothly forward, while the story by Bert Kahmar and Harry Ruby and the screen play by Phoebe and Harry Ephrom and Marian Spitzer has kept intact the anxiety and thrills of staging and starring in a Broadway hit.

AT THE McCARTHY — Dishonor begins at home! Broderick Crawford slaps his son, John Derek, in this scene from Robert Rossen's production of "All The King's Men," at the McCarthy Theatre, starting Wednesday. John Ireland and Anne Seymour also appear in the Columbia picture.

AT THE CAPITOL — Gene Tierney ministers to Richard Widmark's wounds in a tender scene from the 20th. Century-Fox suspense melodrama, "Night and the City," which has been booked into the Capitol Theatre beginning Wednesday, for its first Belleville showing, and features Hugh Marlowe, Googie Withers and Francis L Sulliven.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 18, (AP)—There's an old saying in Hollywood: When you don't know what to make, make a Western. That's certainly true today.

The movie industry seems to be at the crossroads again, hunting for a direction to follow. The cycle of heavy drama won't peddle any more; audiences apparently are shunning anything that sniffs of the psychological. Comedies and musicals always sell when they're good, but it's too hard to find good ones.

A survey of present and future production reveals that between a third and a quarter of the pictures are horse operas, also known as sagebrushers or oaters. Top names which are destined for the wide open spaces include Clark Gable, Gregory Peck, Errol Flynn, John Wayne and Bing Crosby, who will co-star with William (Hopalong) Boyd.

Stars Deny Feud

Ginger Rogers and Joan Davis were reported feuding on the set of "Illegal Bride", but both deny it. Ginger told me she was also supposed to be fighting with Doris Day on another picture. "Doris is one of my best friends," said Ginger.

Joe Ferrer returns to the stage after his long-nosed role in "Cyrano de Bergerac". He'll star in "The Shrike", a new play which he'll produce himself.

Film Shorts

Jack Carson, native of Carman, Man., and Dennis Morgan were discussing a film re-teaming on the golf course. But that doesn't seem possible now that Carson has left Warners and Morgan remains there.

Judy Garland will have a picture ready for her whenever she's able to work again, says Producer Joe Pasternak. But he thinks the distraught actress should spend six months in a sanatorium

Little Benny's Note Book

I was watching ma sewing in her room and wondering if it would be a good idea to ask her for a dime for a chocklit frostybar and all of a sudden she said, Oh drat, oh shaw.

What happened, ma, did you miss a stitch? I said, and she said I practically missed this whole blouse. I've actually gone and stitched the rite sleeve on to the left side. Oh dear, if anybody had told me I could ever of done anything so downrite stupid, I'd of been the ferst to deny it. Oh dear, after all the years I've been sewing, sutch a thing awt to be impossible. I'm positively ashamed of myself, she said.

Aw G, ma, dont worry, lots of smart people do dum things just for a change, I said, and ma said, Not that stupid, I assure you. That takes the ultimate prize, she said.

I bet it dont, ma, I said, I did something even dummer than that this morning, so cheer up. It was raining and you told me to be sure to put on my rubbers. Do you remember, ma? I said, and she said, I certainly do, and I hope you did.

Sure I did, ma, I said. It took me twice as long as usual, and then I discovered why. I'd put them on the wrong feet, and that's why they went on so hard. Jimminies, ma, at least you found out your mistake after you got one sleeve on the wrong side, been too mutch for one of them, because now it's got a split on one side and lets the water in, so probably the other one will hae to suffer too, because what good is just one rubber? I said. that way.

WOMAN KILLED BY BUTCHER KNIFE HUSBAND HELD

Relatives Say Jealousy Cause of Slaying

Little Current, Ont., July 18—(CP) — A 22-year-old woman was stabbed to death Sunday — her second wedding anniversary — and police promptly laid murder charges against her husband.

From eight to 10 wounds were inflicted, probably by a butcher knife, on Mrs. Elma Maud Galloway.

Her husband, John L. Galloway, of Toronto, was charged with murder and remanded to July 24 for preliminary hearing.

Mrs. Galloway was killed in a bedroom of her father's log farmhouse at Tehkumah, 20 miles south of this Manitoulin Island town.

Relatives blamed jealousy for the killing.

They said Mrs. Galloway had come from Toronto to be with her parents and had refused to go back to Toronto with her husband. They added that a recent head injury of Galloway's "probably had something to do with the trouble."

Too Excited to Phone

Galloway ran a quarter of a mile to the home of William Bowerman to phone police after the killing. Bowerman said the man was too excited to put the call through.

The body was found by Mrs. Galloway's mother, Mrs. Sam Armstrong. She said she saw "Elma sort of kneeling beside the bed. I went over and shook her. She gasped and collapsed. Then I saw great pools of blood all over the floor."

Mr. Armstrong said Galloway was "insanely jealous" of his wife and "quarrelled considerably" when Mrs. Galloway danced with other men at dances.

Galloway's sister, Mrs. Joe Bacon, said in Toronto that he recently had been hit behind the ear by an iron casting tossed "in fun" by a fellow worker.

"The night after he got hurt he decided to go up to Manitoulin Island and see Elma. John said he was lonely, that he wanted Elma to come back to Toronto."

Old Army Pay Chest Believed in Swamp

Oshawa, Ont. (CP)— Residents of Oshawa's lakeshore district are wondering if perhaps there is more than mud submerged in the marshes about their homes.

Rumore has it that an old army pay chest containing $140,000 still is in the rotted hull of a British naval sloop destroyed near here more than a century ago.

The sloop, according to the story, was pursued by a United States cutter in the war of 1812, and put in at nearby Guy's Point. There the crew is said to have tossed the chest overboard before abandoning ship.

Although no trace of either the vessel or the chest has been discovered, Oshawans cling to their belief that it is there and that one day someone will find it.

Artificial Insemination of Cattle Rapidly Gains Favor Rotary Told

Artificial insemination, "an advanced science being used in practical agriculture today" was the subject of Dr. Maxwell McLean's talk at Monday's Rotary luncheon. Dr. McLean, a graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College at Guelph, is in charge of the artificial insemination unit on the second line of Sidney.

"Artificial insemination, a comparatively new thing in Ontario or in any country, today is coming into greater favor," Dr. McLean told the Rotarians. In 1949, in the United States, more than three million dairy cattle were serviced artificially in 46 of the 48 states, he said. The service was started there in 1940.

Province Passes Act

In 1947, in an effort to improve the cattle of the province, the provincial government passed the Artificial Insemination Act, to sponsor government - organized units. The province contracted to give grants to the units until such time as the program could support itself.

Since that time, six units have been set up throughout the province, of which the local unit is one. The Belleville unit was created in 1948 to fill in the areas not serviced by units at Kemptville, Maple, Waterloo, Hamilton, and one in Essex county. Local membership at first was 704, with members being limited to farmers having at least a ten-cow herd. Fees were $25, plus a charge of $5 for every cow serviced.

Lower Cost

Purpose of the program, Dr. McLean said, was to provide the "use of better sires at a lower cost." Approximately 1,000 cows are serviced every year from each bull. In the seven months in 1948 that the local unit operated, 4,900 cows were serviced. At that time, lack of skill on the part of inseminators and farmer opposition led to much dissatisfaction, but much of that has been conquered now, Dr. McLean said. The unit serviced 10,400 cows in the six counties in 1949, and hopes to raise the total another three or four thousand this year.

Twelve hundred farmers now belong to the local unit, and Dr. McLean believes that during the next three or four years there should be a great improvement in cattle stock.

The provincial government pays for one-third of the cost of the land and buildings up to $10,000 and one-third of the cost of purchasing the sires up to $600, plus 50c each for each cow conceiving on the first service. These grants continue until the unit is able to carry on by itself. Dr. McLean said that the local unit is almost paying for itself now, and that when the serviced cows total reaches 20,000, it most certainly will be self-supporting.

For Holsteins Only

At present, only Holstein cows are serviced from the Belleville unit, because of the great percentage of Holsteins in the area. The unit has 15 bulls to provide for service, each of which is used once a week.

Present record of the unit is 70 percent conception on first service, Dr. McLean said. Much of this is due to steps taken in the United States and followed here, he added.

The program in the six counties has reached the stage where the unit is now breeding the first of the artificially produced calves, Dr. McLean said. These animals have proved to be superior to the normal run, and the program is thus being justified. Of the three ways for improving a herd—artificial insemination, better management of feed, and weeding out of inferiors—the artificial method has been found to be the best.

Dr. McLean was introduced by Mack Robertson and thanked by Jamieson Bone.

Guests and visiting Rotarians at the luncheon were; guests, Mike David, Toronto and Cliff Barber, Belleville; Rotarians Stan Little, Lorain, Ohio; Albert Farrar, Trenton, Charles Allen, Peterborough, Gerry Farrar, Lloyd Weese and Bob Smithrim, all of Trenton.

'Must Never be Another Battle Of Britain Like Last'

London, July 18 — (Reuters) —Air Chief Marshal Sir Guy Garrod, chairman of the Air League of the British Empire, today criticized the British government for sending latest-type fighter aircraft to its western allies while the state of its own air defences was "worse than alarming."

"In a grave and deteriorating international situation our air defences are seriously deficient," he told a league luncheon in London. "The Royal Air Force and its auxiliaries must be strengthened at any cost and without delay."

"There must never be another 'Battle of Britain' like the last," he said.

SCHUMACHER MAN SHOOTS WIFE, COMMITS SUICIDE

Police Can Find No Motive For Killings

Schumacher, Ont., July 18 — (CP) — The father and mother of a figure-skating family were shot to death Monday in what police called a case of murder and suicide.

Dead are Fernand Belec, 42, and his 38-year-old wife, Therese. Police said they know of no motive for the killings. Neighbors described the Belecs as a model family.

The couple and their two children were keen figure skaters. All four had appeared in ice carnivals sponsored by a local skating club. Their son, Jack, 14, was Northern Ontario Junior Men's single champion in 1948 and 1949. Their daughter, Dorothy, 16, was runner-up for the Northern Ontario Senior Ladies championship

Belec had quit his job as an underground employee at Dome Mines Ltd., last week.

Jack Belec found the bodies in his parents four-room apartment when he returned from a figure-skating class.

Mrs. Belec was lying between the living room and the bedroom, bullet holes in each arm and her face. Belec was lying in the kitchen with a powder-stained bullet hole in his temple and a .22-calibre rifle by his side.

A neighbor said Mrs. Belec had been "whistling and singing" earlier in the day when hanging out laundry behind the two-family apartment building. Another neighbor said: "They lived for the two children and their skating. I never heard them quarreling or fighting."

Police estimated that Mrs. Belec was killed about half an hour after she was seen hanging out the laundry.

Arabian Oil Line Begins Operation by First of Year

Sidon, Lebanon, (AP)— Giant steel storage tanks are mushrooming up just south of this ancient Phoenician town to mark the delivery end of a giant strategic oil pipeline.

The American-owned pipeline is 1,067 miles long and 30 to 31 inches in diameter. It cost more than $200,000,000. Oil will start moving through the line the first of next year. The initial rate is planned at 300,000 barrels a day and the flow later may be increased to 500,000 barrels.

The famous "Big Inch" in the United States when completed in 1943 was 1,254 miles long and delivered 300,000 barrels daily through its 24-inch diameter. It now carries natural gas.

The new pipeline will carry crude oil from the fabulously rich Saudi-Arabian field in the Persian Gulf area to tankers anchored a half-mile off the Lebanese Coast.

Saves Long Haul

The line will save ships a 7,000-mile sea voyage around the vast Arabian Peninsula and through the Suez Canal. It will also save the present 18 cents per barrel canal toll. That's $54,000 a day.

The shortcut bypassing the Suez Canal was talked about during the Second World War when the U.S. government granted export permits for the 323,000 tons of steel required at a time when steel was very much in demand at home.

Military strategy and advice played a big part in this decision, debated before Congressional Committees.

Some strategists, however, would have vetoed the project arguing it would be a ripe plum for Soviet picking in event of war. The line, they said, would be impossible to defend.

Held Up By War

Construction on the eastern part of the line started in late 1947. The western end was held up by the Palestine War in 1948 and the battle to get steel export permits in Washington.

The tank farm here will have 16 tanks with a capacity of 180,000 barrels each. Five already are completed, with three others more than 50 per cent finished. Work has begun on four others.

Four submarine lines have been laid to anchorages a half mile off shore in 50 feet of water.

The line is of 30 and 31 inches diameter, the largest ever used for oil movement.

New desert communities will be set up at the six pumping stations, 180 miles apart, each with about 20 American families and several hundred Arabs.

Large Pumping Capacity

The line is so long and so big that the 36,000 horsepower pumping capacity on eastern end will have to run for two weeks to fill it up for the first time. The line will hold 5,000,000 barrels.

Economists predict total Middle East crude production will exceed 2,000,000 barrels daily by 1953. Total Middle East crude production is already five times what is was in 1945.

Middle East oil is expected to gradually displace western hemisphere oil in European markets.

'CONGREGATION' MEETS

Vatican City, July 18 — (AP)—The Vatican's congregation of rites met today to consider the virtues of Pope Pius X, a step in the process that may lead to his beatification. Pius X, whose name was Giuseppe Sarto, died in 1914, after a reign of 11 years.

Vatican sources said there is a possibility the beatification of Pius X might be one of the closing ceremonies of the 1950 Holy Year.

FORESTS ARE SO DRY

Portland, Ore., July 18 (AP)—How dry are the west's forests?

They're so dry a forest fire started in a river.

It's a fact, a Mt. Hood National forest crew reported. They said a fisherman, apparently assuming he was in a fireproof spot, dropped a cigaret into a log jam in Salmon River.

Fire leaped to shore and began running up a canyon wall before the crew arrived.

THE CAMEO

By Virginia Teale

Reddy made his voice pleasant and calm. "Thanks, Tom, but I couldn't accept that figurine — much as I'd like to."

"You take it, Charlie, that's the Chinese custom. when you admire something in a mandarin's house, you find it all wrapped up and ready for you to take when you go home." Tom picked up one of the soiled rags and draped it around the figurine, "Here you are, all wrapped up for you. Take it home, now, Charlie." He pressed the bundle into Reddy's hands.

Tom obviously was not sane.

He took the figurine. "Many thanks, Tom. I appreciate this very much.

Tom linked an arm through his and began propelling him toward the door. "And now we'll all call it a day, huh, Charlie The party's over, isn't it, Charlie?"

Charlie inclined his head, "The party's over, Tom."

As they approached the door, Reddy's eye was caught by a blue gleam from an open cuboard near the door. He stopped and craned his neck in spite of Tom's tug at his elbow.

"Wat just a minute, Tom!" He yanked his elbow free. "Isn't that another figurine like this one?"

Reddy's teeth clashed together and bit off the rest of the sentence as something of tremendous weight came down on his skull.

When Charlie Reddy opened his eyes once more, his first sensation was one of surprise—that he was still alive, surprise that, apparently, not much time had elapsed, and that Tom O'Neill was still in the workshop with him. His head throbbed with a regularity that paced his heartbeat and sickened him with its monolony and persistence.

Tom was looking down at him with a dull, expressionless face.

"I was going to kill you, Charlie I was going to kill you, Charlie. But I was too tired."

Reddy suddenly felt a surging desire to live. He struggled up onto one elbow and passed his hand exploringly over his face—it was still there. He got to his knees, then, and rested his weight for a moment on his heels. He marshaled his mental forces slowly as he stood up. The light touch, he decided, would be best.

"Lucky for me, Tom," he said thickly. "Glad you were too tired. What happens now?"

Tom shook his head. "I don't know. I was standing here thinking: shall I kill him, too? And then, I said: Tom, you're too tired. Too tired, now."

"You killed Nell and Martin Falter?"

Tom nodded. "Nell and Falter and Andreyvitch." Tears overflowed onto his cheeks, "Poor old Andreyvitch."

"Andrey Yakov isn't dead, Tom."

Tom shook his head sadly, "Yes, he is. Andreyvitch is dead. I did it myself."

Reddy didn't argue. "Why did you kill, Faltar, Tom?"

"Falter was a blackguard, he belonged dead. He took my wife away from me. And he took my money away from me. Almost $15,000 he took away from me. Five hundred dollars a month I paid him. Fifteen thousand dollars and Nellie. And he laughed at me, called me names. A drunkard he called me and a—a silly old man trying to keep a young wife. I'm not old; 48 isn't old."

Tom covered hs face, trying to muffle his coughing sobs.

"Why did you kill Nellie, Tom?" Reddy asked it gently.

Tom bowed his white head like a nonplussed schoolboy. When he looked up, the muscles in his face were twitching:

"I did. didn't I?" he asked childishly, "I did kill Nellie?"

"Yes, you did, Tom," Reddy answered soothingly as he took a cautious step backward toward the cupboard. Without taking his eyes from Tom, he reached down and lifted out the other blue figurine. As soon as he held it in his hands, he felt a surge of excitement. It weighed more than the first one!

Tom was nodding his head. "She didn't love me anymore. She was going to tell the police I killed Martin Falter, she said I would go to jail and she would get all of my money. She knew I killed Martin Falter because she found the—" His staring eyes focused on the blue figurine Reddy cradled n his hands. He shook his head childishly, "No, no, Carlie, put that back. The other one is yours."

Reddy tapped the figurine— it gave a solid, thudding echo.

"Put it back, Charlie," Tom repeated patiently.

Reddy was wrapping it in a square of cheesecloth. "I'd better take this one, Tom. You're being very sensible about everything, you know I'd better take this one along."

"Put it back, Charlie."

Reddy recognized a new tone in Tom's voice. He looked up into the muzzle of a rusty old .45. Tom held the bulk of the heavy gun in a steady hand.

Reddy decided to smile. "Now, Tom," he admonished quietly, you want this all over and done with, don't you? You're tired, Tom, you want to rest now."

O'Neill blinked slowly, then shook his head. "Not in jail. There's no rest in jail. Only black, stinking air. No breeze, no ocean. no sunshine. Nothing but black air and loud voices. Nellie was going to put me in jail, and so I killed Nellie."

Reddy's mind pawed frantically through a jungle of impulses: He discarded the strongest one—that of jumping Tom—the man's hand was too firmly on the trigger! His best bet was to talk quietly and think fast.

"Tom, I'm not going to put you in jail. No one in Dolorosa is going to put you in jail. We'll take you some place sunny and quiet where you can rest."

O'Neill's eyes had begun to burn like brilliant blue neon tubes. He stood motionless. His voice was still unhurried and positive:

"No. I want to go alone. No one will take me anywhere. I know where I want to go. And I'll go alone. Give me my blue lady, Charlie, I'll take her along with me for a little ways."

Reddy held the figurine toward him, "All right, Tom. Here it is, take it."

Tom shook his head, smiling a little. "Go over there, Charlie, and get a sack from the cupboard. Put the blue lady in a sack."

Reddy eyed the cupboard, he could see a pile of burlap on the lowest shelf. He turned as if to obey Tom—as he did, he fumbled the figurine and it fell with a hollow crash on the brick floor. He saw the hand with the gun drop limply to Tom's side as the white-haired man stared down at the fragments. Reddy felt that it was safe to look and what he saw on the floor widened his eyes. He glanced up again warily, but Tom still stood as though hypnotized by the pieces.

Reddy dropped to his knees to examine the stained wadding that had been sealed within the blue lady.

A blast from the pistol reverberated through the room and Reddy heard the sound of shattering pottery behind him. From his crouching position he made a blind tackle at Tom O'Neill's legs and heard Tom grunt as he hit the brick floor. Once more Reddy encountered Tom's astonishing strength as the older man thrashed around beneath him. He grabbed frantically for Tom's right arm.

The gun thundered again. This time Reddy could feel the vibration of its mechanism under his hand—the hand locked around Tom's wrist.

Reddy let go of the suddenly limp muscles. The cold swet of horror began to drain from his pores as, for a second or two he stared down at the red pulp that had been Tom's face.

Backing away he stumbled over the broken figurine and looked down at it stupidly. The blue clay, and what it had concealed, were without significance now. Reddy sagged against the work bench, staring at its untidy collection of objects that, unexplainably, had assumed the mute poignancy of a dead child's toys.

Gradually, a distant pounding seeped into his consciousness. He took note of it numbly—somebody at Tom's front door. A louder sound, now, a splintering, tearing sound.

Chief Peters surged into the room. "Charlie! Did he get you? We heard the shots—" he broke off as his eyes found Tom O'Neill.

Trotter came up behind him, followed by a patrolman.

Peters took off his hat.

"Murder and all that," he mumbled, "but, in some ways, O'Neill was a likeable old boy."

Peters nodded. "Good thing. I mean, good thing he blew his own head off instead of going for you." He pointed to a streak of blood on Reddy's jacket, 'What's that? You get nicked someplace?"

Reddy shook his head and did not look at the stain. "Tom's. We were fighting for the gun."

Peters buttoned his gun into the holster on his hip. "Our friend Yakov came around, finally. He was able to tell us it was Tom who'd clobbered him. Then he told us where to find the letters he'd swiped from Falter's secret box. Remember how we searched the Russian's place? Well, those damn letters were there all the time, tacked to a board behind Hagar Blair's portrait where nobody'd have thought of looking! Trotter told me you went hi-tailing off for someplace and after I read the letters, I figured you'd got wind of Tom and headed up here."

At the hospital the next day, Stephanie, Hagar and Trotter stood at Yakov's bedside. The open locket and an open piece of paper were in Stephanie's hands.

"Ah, yes. Dr. Urich." Yakov drew a deep breath. "Well, it is their own duty. In one respect, I am happy My task is finished."

He turned to Trotter. "To sum up, sir, in what you are pleased to call a nutshell, the paper tells the whereabouts of the remainder of the Orloff jewels—of a value second only to those of the crown, which disappeared shortly after the termination of the Czarist regime."

Hagar glanced at Stephanie triumphantly: "See? This has nothing to do with you at all. The Orloff jewels. And the big clue right here in Dolorosa in your mother's locket!"

When Yakov again began to speak, every eye was on his lips.

"Colonel Serenov, a close friend of the Orloffs, was said to know the whereabouts of the jewels. It was thought that they might have been hidden somewhere until a propitious time for their recovery by what remained of the Duke's family. Colonel Serenov—" he paused and glanced at Stephanie's suddenly white face. "—unfortunately, met with a fatal accident. It was assumed that Madame Serenov, who had fled to America, carried with her the knowledge of where the jewels were hidden. A certain personage, who later was questioned by the new government, suggested that Mme. Serenov's famous cameo locket contained the information that was sought."

Yakov's voice trailed off as he finished with:

"I have merely been searching for information which would enable the Russian treasury to obtain new and much-needed resources. This I did because of certain obligations which remain behind me in the mother country."

"This Dr. Urich probably has 'em all safe and sound at St. Petersburg College!" Hagar decided.

Yakov shook his head. "Dr Urich was—I believe the popular term is, liquidated—in 1939."

Trotter returned his pipe to the leather pouch. "What do you thing is the significance of the special edition of 'The Cherry Orchard mentioned in the paper?"

Yakov gave a slight shrug: "That also, has been wheeling through my mind like a canopied cart. It would be unlikely that there would be a special bound edition of a single play—the work would not be of sufficient importance to occupy an entire edition. I think, perhaps, that this very fact signifies that the book would not be what it appeared. Something which seemed to be an elaborately bound book perhaps the type with a little lock across the pages could inreallity, be something else. A fine little casket in which the Orloff bracelets and rings and brooches and unset gems could rest quite snugly. So? It could quite possibly be that Dr. Urich's special edition of Mr. Cherkov's play would be worth the disproportionate sum of 5,000,000 rubles. Undoubtedly, however, Dr. Urich took care that his fabulous book was safely hidden away before he was brought to trial." Yakov sighed. "The quest will go on, but this time I shall not be among the hunters."

The nurse began to shake down a thermometer: "I'm sorry. but your visitors must go, Mr. Yakov."

Trotter, Hagar and Stephanie began to move quietly to the door.

"Miss Serenov!" Yakov called faintly.

Stephanie turned.

"I ask your pardon, but I cannot think of anyone else who might feel kindly toward Babushka. Would it be possible that you would call at my house and see to my small cat's food and water? Also, that the window where she jumps to the yard is open sufficiently A key to my studio will be found beneath the fifth flower pot on the window ledge."

"I'll be glad to, Mr. Yakov." She hesitated a moment in the doorway as though there were something more she wanted to say.

Hagar fidgeted as Trotter drove them up Crest Drive to the gray-shingled house. When he refused to come inside for a cup of coffee, her face showed frank relief and she bid him an enthusiastic good-by.

ALUMINUM ALCAN The MODERN METAL

Building the home for Wear-Ever 1912

1950 is the fiftieth anniversary of the Wear-Ever line in Canada. These aluminum cooking utensils were introduced here at the beginning of the century. Their popularity grew so rapidly that, by 1912, a new factory was needed to supply the demand. This was built in Toronto. It was the first plant in Canada to make aluminum articles—and this was only a dozen years after the first Canadian smelter had started making aluminum ingots at Shawinigan Falls.

Today Alcan has twelve plants, all of them engaged in the aluminum industry; while more than 1000 independent companies across Canada shape the metal into all sorts of useful forms—from kettles to freight cars.

Wants Congress To Lift Limits On Armed Services

No Price Controls or Rationing Needed as Yet

Washington, July 19 — (AP) — President Truman asked the United States Congress today for a $10,000,000,000 program to provide men and materials for Korean fighting and to guard against any armed aggression elsewhere.

He asked that all legal limits on the size of the armed forces be lifted.

The President laid down his program in a 5,500-word message to the Senate and House of Representatives reporting in detail on what has happened in Korea and why the United States is fighting thousands of miles from home.

No Easy Solution

"The attack upon the Republic of Korea," Truman said, "makes it plain beyond all doubt that the international communist movement is prepared to use armed invasion to conquer independent nations. We must therefore recognize the possibility that armed aggression may take place in other areas."

The President said the course of fighting in Korea shows no easy solution can be expected. The United States was facing well-supplied, well-led forces which have been long trained for aggression.

The free world had made it clear, through the United Nations, that lawless aggression will be met with force. This was the significance of Korea—and "it is a significance whose importance cannot be over-estimated."

Gives Warning

The President said he would not try to predict the course of events, but he is sure that those who hold the power to unleash or withhold armed aggression must realize that more aggression in the world might strain peace to the breaking point.

It was clear that other free countries must step up their common security program. Some would require additional assistance from the U.S.

The President also reported he has empowered Defence Secretary Johnson to call to active duty "as many National Guard units and as many units and individuals of the reserve forces of the army, navy, and air forces as may be required."

The armed services now are limited by law to 2,005,882 men: army 837,000, navy 666,882 and air force 502,000.

At latest report the actual number of men under arms was: army 593,000, navy 451,000 and air force 407,000.

Along with new military measures, Truman proposed partial home front mobilization.

There will be no price controls or rationing now. But the President said he won't hesitate to call for them if sharp price rises make them necessary.

May Request Higher Taxes

Later, he said, there will be a request for higher taxes.

He proposed:

1. That Congress pass legislation now authorizing priorities and allocations for materials needed for national security, to limit use of materials for non-essential purposes, to prevent hoarding, and to requisition or seize materials required for defence.

Priest, Mistaken For Burglar, Killed

Chicago, July 19 —(AP) — A Roman Catholic priest, mistaken for a burglar, was killed by a householder's bullets early today.

The clergyman, dressed in sports clothes, was escorting a woman home through a passageway between houses. He was struck three times in the left shoulder by slugs from a .22 calibre rifle.

The dead priest was identified as the Rev. Kevin Conway, 31. His companion was Margaret Walsh, 25.

John T. O'Malley, deputy chief of detectives, said the shots were fired by Charles Kasper, 30, a die maker, who said he had been worried about burglars since an attempt to enter his house was made nine months ago.

BURNS TO DEATH

Connellsville, Pa., July 19—(AP)—James Baeinger, 8, fell into an incinerator and burned to death yesterday at a garbage plant.

Death Scene Act Scares Wife

Annapolis, Md., July 19. — (AP)—When her husband read her the murder scene from Shakespeare's "Othello" he was not kidding.

He meant to re-enact it, said Mrs. Joyce Hornstein whose divorce was upheld yesterday by the Maryland Court of Appeals.

She told of her husband, Bernard, reading aloud the death scene in a menacing voice.

"Oh banish me my lord, but kill me not" pleads Desdemona.

"Thou art to die," replies Othello and he smothers her with a pillow.

"That's exactly how I am going to do it," threatened Hornstein according to his wife.

She left home that night.

SEE KOREAN AID PLAN STIMULATING TO INDUSTRY

Expansion of Purchases By U.S. in Canada

Ottawa, July 19 —(CP)— Government trade and economic experts today were of the opinion that President Truman's proposed $10,000,000,000 aid-to-Korea program will materially stimulate Canadian industry and lead to an expansion of the United States arms purchasing commitment in Canada.

That commitment now calls for the purchasing by the U.S. of $25,000,000 worth of Canadian defence supplies. One official was confident this amount would be stepped up to meet Mr. Truman's call for an expansion of American armed forces.

Discussions Proceeding

The official said discussions now are going on between the two countries. It is hoped that these discussions will lead to the placing of the first orders under terms of the commitment. Type of goods involved were not disclosed, but it was indicated they may include aircraft, munitions and some specialized service clothing.

"The Americans already know what we can supply and it only remains for them to place firm orders," the official said. "There are no bottlenecks and no serious shortages."

Other officials, commenting on Mr. Truman's request to Congress for partial economic mobilization, said Canada could be assured there would be no reinstitution of wartime controls if Canadians are "sensible" and do not begin hoarding goods.

One government expert expected that some prices in Canada may go up as a result of the war.

"It is very difficult to disentangle Canadian prices from American prices," he said, citing meat prices as an example.

The only major wartime control still remaining with the government is that on rents and this is due to expire in April, 1951.

It was indicated that if an emergency arose. the Prices Board could be put back on a wartime footing with few administrative problems, but before doing so parliament would be consulted.

BEE CAUSES ACCIDENT

South Portland, Me., July 19—(AP)—A bumblebee buzzed a Sherbrooke, Que., motorist yesterday and her automobile hit a fire hydrant. Francine Codere, 4, riding with her mother, Gertrude, was treated at a hospital for a head bruise. The car was badly damaged.

Squadron of RCAF Transport Planes Will be Turned Over To U.N. For Pacific Airlift

Ottawa, July 19. (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent will announce this afternoon that a squadron of R.C.A.F. Transport planes is being turned over to the United Nations for the Trans-Pacific airlift supplying Korea, it was indicated today.

Cabinet is understood to have reached agreement on that point before adjourning at 1 p.m., E.DT., until 3 for lunch.

Other steps arising from the Korean war are also under consideration and are expected to be touched on when Mr. St. Laurent makes an official statement after the Ministers rise this afternoon. One is a strengthening of the Canadian forces.

Cabinet sources said they hardly expect that this afternoon's session will be particularly long. The broad outline of an agree plan and statement was drawn up this morning and the afternoon meeting will complete it.

The transport squadron to go is No. 426, based at Dorval Airport, near Montreal. It flies eight North Star planes, the Canadian-built, four-engined giants that can each carry a load of six tons.

Mr. St. Laurent himself was met by reporters as about 15 ministers filed out of the cabinet chamber shortly before one o'clock. All he would say was that there will be no statement until the full meeting is over.

The ministers met to consider Canada's position in the light of the call by Trygve Lie, United Nations secretary-general, for more military aid in Korea from 52 U.N. members nations and in the light of President Truman's $10,000,000,000 mobilization program for the United States.

Details of both pronouncements were before them.

Canada's reaction is expected to be a meagre echo of the towring American action but it will mean increased expenditures running well into the millions of dollars.

It is expected to step up the strength of the armed forces and to hasten war production.

New Bridgehead Established Under Threat of Typhoon

By LIONEL HUDSON

With the American Amphibious Force, Pohang, Korea, July 19—(Reuters—Protected by American and British naval aircraft, advance units of a United States amphibious force today moved inland after establishing a bridgehead here.

The bridgehead had been consolidated by dawn and more troops were then landed, slipping into a calm bay. They came from ships which discharged hundreds of landing craft fresh from Far East bases.

Their arrival at the beachhead had been speeded to avoid threat of a typoon—dubbed "Flossie" by the naval forces—which is spinning towards Korea.

Unloadings were rushed to let the larger vessels escape to sea before the typhoon hit the coast.

First troops landed at the beachhead were the first cavalry division, veterans of the Manila campaign against the Japanese.

The operations were carried out under a carrier-based fighter umbrella while United States seventh and British warships stood by. An American destroyer which shelled communist positions 40 miles away fired the only shots in anger.

Five miles from the beachhead U.S. air force men are working doggedly to complete an airstrip.

This hitherto lonely and neglected harbor became Korea's busiest port overnight.

Residents of the town were confined to their homes by the south Korean army so that the Americans could move more freely.

There were tense movements during the voyage from Japan when destroyers escorting the convoys made contact with two unidentified submarines.

The main body of vessels were given the alarm on the second day out of Tokyo Bay while an Australian destroyer recorded another "solid ping" on the anti-submarine detector.

An officer said "it is obvious the submarines are not interested in attacking."

Paddling Down the River in Paper Canoe Not so Crazy as It Sounds

Madison, N. J., July 19 (AP)—Have you ever paddled down a river in a paper canoe?

This may sound crazy, but it is as safe as riding in a flat-bottomed rowboat of sturdy wood—and much faster, says John B. Ehrhardt.

He has cruised waters during the past year and a half in his paper canoe named 'Shoshiman, which in the language of the Chippewa Indian means "slipping stick."

Ehrhardt built his slender canoe of paper, modelling it after a paper boat manufactured by Elisha Waters at Troy, N. Y., in the 1870s.

The paper canoe is not as fragile as it would seem. Many layers of ordinary brown kraft wrapping paper and newsboard coated with phenolic resins form a waterproof and durable shell.

Ehrhardt says it is "the only type of seamless construction practicable for the private builder." It is inexpensive, and "an amateur can build it."

Here's the way he describes it:

A paper boat is lightweight, seamless, durable and watertight. A paper boat won't corrode and is easy to repair, since punctures in the shell can be fixed by merely pushing out the dent and gluing two layers of paper over the damage at either side.

The first paper boats built by Waters in the 1800s were made by molding paper over a form and then lifting the paper from the mold and assembling it on a frame which consisted of light spruce inwales and a pair of transverse bulkheads and stem pieces. In those days, the boats were waterproofed with varnish or shellac. They weighed slightly more than 30 pounds and presented a "smooth, seamless, almost friction - proof surface to the water."

Ehrhardt's paper boat is 14 feet long. 26 inches wide and 9 inches deep and weighs 56 pounds. The boat will accommodate two adults and has a capacity of about 500 pounds.

Too Much Loving Cruel Says Wife

Paterson, N. J., July 19 (AP) — Mrs. Leroy Nichols charged her husband with cruelty when she filed suit for divorce here yesterday.

She said he sat her on his lap, embraced her, and kept her from doing her housework.

CONGRESS ASKED FOR WEAPONS TO OUST REDS

Truman Takes Steps To Crush Inflation

Washington, July 19 (AP)—President Truman today calls on congress for weapons to drive communist armies from Korea and crush inflation in the United States.

He also will address Americans in a country-wide broadcast tonight to assure them that their arms will prevail and their home life will not be too seriously jarred, the president's friends reported.

An opening blow at inflation already was struck in an order clamping the brakes on free-and-easy housing credit.

Expansion of the armed forces by perhaps 50 per cent in time.

Controls over soaring consumer credit.

Allocation of war-essential metals, voluntarily if possible but with a backstop of emergency powers.

Good Sense Needed

Good sense on the part of U.S. business men, wage earners and housewives in refraining from panic-buying, hoarding, or using the war an an opportunity for exorbitant price or wage demands.

It was reported the latter theme will be particularly strong in Truman's broadcast speech at 10:30 p.m. EDT.

Officials said in advance that the president, will assure American rank and file that there need be no ration books, price controls, or wage freezes if civilians show patience and restraint. There remained, of course, the possibility of some form of price control later, if necessary, possibly rolling back prices that get out of hand.

Perhaps no portion of Truman's message was more anxiously awaited in American homes than his requests for manpower. Advance reports said he would seek an increase of not less than 220,000 in the authorized strength of the armed forces, which is 2,005,882.

AIR DISASTER ACCIDENT

London, July 19 —(Reuters)—A jury today returned a verdict of accidental death at the inquest on 80 persons who died in the worst-ever civilian air disaster in Wales on March 12.

The aircraft, a Tudor V, plunged to destruction near Llandow airdrome when it was bringing rugby football fans back from an International Wales-Ireland match in Ireland.

Childhood's Colds, Chickenpox May Lead to Cancer Later Says Expert

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

Paris, July 19 — (AP)—Childhood's colds and chickenpox may plant the seeds for maturity's cancer, a foremost expert on viruses reported today.

Dr. Francisco Duran - Reynals of Yale told the Fifth International Cancer Research Congress that the viruses causing such mild diseases may lie dormant in the body for years. Then, he said, something may happen which causes them to blaze up into an entirely new and different activity — cancer.

He said the same effect may come from influenza, polio and other viruses.

Just plain aging, and changes of body tissue as you grow old, might be the thing that lets the sleeping virus change and start a cancer, Dr. Duran - Reynals said. But hormone upsets, x-rays, irritating chemicals, or many other things might cause the change, he added.

Dr. Duran-Reynals developed his theory through experiments on young chickens.

Painting them with the powerful cancer - causing chemical methycholanthrene, he produced tiny yellowish sores that proved to be fowl pox, a disease caused by a virus similar to the virus of chicken-pox or small pox in humans.

Extracts of these yellowish bumps, injected into other chickens, gave them fowl pox.

The painted chickens got worse skin trouble as they grew older. Injected with the male sex hormone, testosterone, many of them developed cancers within 15 days. Extracts from the cancers caused fowl pox — but not cancer — in other chickens.

The pox virus, Dr. Duran-Reynals concluded, almost certainly caused the cancers in the painted chickens. The chemicals had turned the chickens' skin into the right kind of garden sail for the virus seeds to become altered and to induce cancer. When he stopped painting the chickens' skin, the cancer disappeared.

No Red Opposition Encountered When Fresh Troops Land

Taejon Under Artillery Fire as Battle is Resumed

Tokyo, July 19 — (CP) — Red artillery shells screamed into Taejon today in a resumption of the western battle as thousands of fresh United States infantry men plunged into the Korean war on other fronts.

Both Taejon, fomerly a city of 150,000 and an adjacent village were under North Korean communist artillery fire. Elements of the U.S. 24th Division, which fought the reds to a standstill at the Kum River, were still holding the city.

Two fresh U.S. divisions rushed to the Korean war front — the First Cavalry (dismounted) and the 25th. They were whipped into the Korean theatre on 10 days' notice.

Land at Pohang

The First Cavalry was landed at the sleepy little east coast village of Pohang during a 12-hour operation. No opposition was encountered and the troops moved swiftly inland to bolster the eastern sector of the Korean front.

It was not clear immediately how the 24th Division had reached the front, but the outfit was believed to have gone into immediate action. A communique issued here told of fresh toops entering the battle but gave no details.

The amphibious landing of the First Cavalry came as allied planes struck far and wide, heaping heavy damage on the North Korean supply lines. Pack animals were observed moving red supplies, indicating air strikes have crippled communist gasoline supplies.

The amphibious operation was carried out by the U.S. Seventh Fleet.

Force was assembled and transported to the battle zone in only ten days.

Small Port

The First Cavalry landed unopposed at Pohang, a little port 66 miles north of Pusan, important U.S. supply base on the south-east coast.

The new U.S. troops will lift some of the fighting burden from the American 24th Division. The 24th and South Korean troops have been fighting a holding action for days on the rice paddy fields of Western Korea. Elements of the 24th stood today between North Korean invaders, crossing the Kum River, and Taejon, the recently - abandoned emergency capital of the south.

The First Cavalry, actually now an infantry unit, went ashore with artillery, engineering and signal units and mounds of supplies.

The troopers roared inland seven miles or more without meeting the communists. The number of men landed was a military secret.

Guerrilla action had been reported in the area earlier. The last week that a division of North last week that a divsion of North Koreans had landed at Pohang.

Gen. MacArthur's communique announcing the arrival of the fresh divisions in Korea said elements of one "have already entered combat" and that the other would be "committed to action in the very near future."

The 25th could have gone into action at Yechon, 52 miles inland and on the right side of a line heretofore held solely by South Korean troops. Unexplained U.S. artillery fire was reported at Yechon earlier this week.

Defence Lines Unchanged

In the Taejon area, the battered defence lines of the 24th Division "have remained unchanged since yesterday," said MacArthur.

Taejon, the North Koreans have halted. One explanation was that the river crossing cost the reds so many men they were still groggy. Another was that they could not get across many tanks to lead infantrymen.

MacArthur said the South Korean Eighth Division inflicted heavy casualties on the reds in attacks along its front northeast of Taejon.

Other South Korean forces held their positions, MacArthur said.

American jet fighters downed three Russian-made Yak-9 fighters in dogfights near Taejon. The Yaks were caught strafing and bombing U. S. positions.

A Far East Air Forces communique said Allied aircraft damaged six enemy tanks and 55 trucks in close-support attacks by jet fighters.

Fighters and bombers hit five key bridges behind the front.

Carrier-launched jet fighters and bombers spent Tuesday morning covering the American amphibious landing at Pohang When the job was done, they sped north to strike at North Korean key targets.

Planes Cover Landing

These planes came from British and American aircraft carriers off the east coast of Korea.

A second navy carrier group blasted the North Korean key port of Wonsan.

Dog Nips Boy, Boy Bites Dog

Los Angeles, July 19. (AP)—Here's a new arrangement of the "man bites dog" news formula.

Four-year-old Jimmy Binns came to his mother yesterday, sobbing and holding up two fingers. He said that Smokey, his black cocker spaniel, had bitten him.

"He bit me on the finger," cried Jimmy. "So I bit him back and he bit me on the other finger."

Westbound Traffic Diverted To W. Bridge St., Marshall Rd.

To facilitate temporary roadway repairs on Dundas Street West, in front of Albert College, westbound traffic out of the city is being diverted along West Bridge Street and Marshall Road returning to the highway at the Ontario School for the Deaf lane.

Eastbound highway traffic is being allowed to use one half of the roadway while the other half is being repaired.

Lack of Proper Drainage

Lack of proper drainage in the roadbed last Spring resulted in the pavement being badly heaved but as resurfacing of Dundas Street at this point was planned for this year no attempt was made to effect permanent repairs. However, Municipal Board officials have set July 31st as a date for a public hearing to be held in Toronto with respect to the city's application for a dispensation of a vote of the people to proceed with the paving and, unable to delay the work any longer, the local public works department decided to proceed with temporary repairs.

City Engineer Charles Mott stated that a section of the roadway in front of Albert College was being dug out for a distance of roughly 150 feet with tile being laid to effect drainage to Sidney Street. When the one side of the street is completed the other half of the roadway will receive the same treatment.

The work is expected to take at least a week to complete and in the meantime westbound traffic is being diverted.

Winner of Draw Enjoying Two Weeks' Vacation

A dyed-in-the-wool fisherman with fisning experience in Northern Ontario and in Quebec as well as in many states south of the border Mr. J. E. Auseon with his son, Thomas of Canton, Ohio, is enjoying a free two weeks vacation in the Bay of Quinte district.

Mr. Auseon was the winner of the free vacation in a draw sponsored by the Belleville and District Hotelmen's Association which was held last spring at the Cleveland Sportsmen's Show at Cleveland. The Hotelmen's Association with the Belleville Chamber of Commerce and the county of Hastings had a booth at the show.

Guest of Hotels

A member of the postal staff at Canton, Mr. Auseon stayed in the immediate Belleville district for four days and during that time fished in the Bay of Quinte. He has now gone on a fishing trip to the Madoc and Maynooth districts, and will again visit the city before his return home. During his stay he is the guest of hotels in the district.

Despite the fact that his luck at fishing in the Bay was nothing to write home about, Mr. Auseon said he was enjoying his vacation in the Belleville area very much.

MARMORA

J. Laird Found Dead, Left Arm Caught in Rolls

Marmora—John Laird, 65, employee of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company Limited for a total of over thirty years, was found with his left arm caught between steel plate rollers in the boiler shop of the plant about 4.40 p.m. on Tuesday. The discovery was made by James Rice, fellow employee, who happened to be entering that part of the building. Laird was presumably dead when found.

A telephone call was sent to the office of Dr. H. G. Parkin, Marmora, but at the time he was en route to hospital with a patient. Dr. S. R. Beatty of Madoc, next summoned, found life was extinct. Later on instructions from the Crown, an autopsy was performed and an inquest ordered.

Mr. Laird was born in the County of Fermanagh, Ireland, but came with his parents to reside in Campbellford when a boy. He was a veteran of the First World War, and he served overseas with the 21st Battalion, Canadian Infantry. He was a member in turn of the Great War Veterans' Association and Marmora Branch No. 237 Canadian Legion. He enjoyed popularity with his comrades and a host of other friends.

He was a member of the various village bands, which Marmora had from time to time and supported all worthy projects in the community.

Surviving are his wife and one daughter, Mrs. Grace Thomas of Peterborough. Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

Trash Containers Placed for Use Of Carrier Boys

The Ontario Intelligencer today put into use eight large, green, heavy-wire, trash containers at principal stops on their newspaper distribution routes throughout the city.

The containers are being set up for the use of the carrier boys in disposing of the wrappers with which their papers are bound. The general public is also invited to co-operate in keeping the streets clean by using these containers.

Arrangements are being made to have the containers emptied twice weekly.

The new trash receptacles have been placed at the corners of Foster and Dundas Streets; Pine and Lingham; Station Street and Cannifton Road; West Moira and North Front; College and North Front; West Moira and Sidney; Octavia and Catherine; and West Bridge at Goodfellow's store.

Members of Grain Club Make Ottawa Tour

On Monday the members of the South Hastings Grain Club were conducted on a tour of the Parliament Buildings, and Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. At the Experimental Farm the members were shown some of the plant breeding work and it was described to them by specialists. It was pointed out that there were many services available to the farmers and information on their problems can be obtained by simply writing to the Division concerned.

The following boys were on the trip, Robert Bush, Harold Cole, Gerald Cooke, George Cooke, Harvey Homan, Griffin Ketcheson, Robert Mallory, John McComb, Merle Moore, Douglas Morton, Robt. W. Philip, Allan Wallace, Glen Wilson and Owen Whitmore.

The trip was conducted by the staff of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Mr. Harold Detlor, club leader.

FRAUD CHARGE LAID

Toronto, July 19 — (CP) — Police said today that Walter Powell, 41, of Miami, Fla., has been charged with obtaining $10,000 by false pretenses.

Powell was employed as a margin clerk by a Toronto brokerage firm. During 1947 and 1948, police said, he got the money with intent to defraud a group of Toronto business men. They said he was arrested in Miami but declined to give details.

Survey Reveals Possible 8,000 Tourist Cars in City Weekly

It is impossible to realize the scope of the tourist trade in Canada until a traffic count is made. Tuesday afternoon, in two one-hour periods, a total of 261 cars from the United States and provinces in Canada moved through Belleville.

Each car, on an average, contained three or four people, which means that roughly 700 or 800 strangers, some of whom stopped to buy things, moved through the city. The counts were taken on Dundas St. just above Pinnacle St. and on Bridge St. just west of the bridge.

In the first hour on Dundas, 73 American cars moved east, 26 west. At the same time, nine Canadian cars, mostly from Quebec, drove east, with 16 going west. In all, 24 states were represented, and a car from every province in Canada except Newfoundland went through.

The Bridge St. totals were higher. At the stoplight, 86 American vehicles went east, 38 west. At the same time, Canadian cars registered six east and 16 west.

New Yorkers Lead Parade

New Yorkers led the United States parade, with a total of 61 cars. Next in line was Michigan with 29, then Ohio and Pennsylvania tied for third with 28 each. Down the line, it was Illinois, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Indiana. The list ended up with Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Dakota, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia with one apiece.

In the Canadian list, Quebec topped the score with 24 cars, followed by New Brunswick with four, Nova Scotia with three. Alberta and Saskatchewan with two each and British Columbia, Manitoba and Prince Edward Island with one representative.

Many Pause in City

Many of the counted cars stopped at nearby gas stations for fuel, showing what tourist traffic can do for a city. Others parked on the main street to pick up food and to shop for other goods. Many of the 130 per hour, however, moved right through the city.

They came and went in new cars, old ones, fast and slow, with children and without. Furthest from home was probably the Texas traveller, and most novel was a livestock truck from Connecticut.

In addition to the marked strangers, hundreds of Ontario cars went by obviously carrying visitors. Quebecers were moving out of their province by a score of 14 to 10. The New Yorkers, whose nearest way home from Belleville is the Ivy Lea bridge, were going home at a 43 to 18 clip. Most of the older cars in the procession were from New York, while cars from farther points were markedly new.

But new or old, they all help make up the tourist trade, which, taking Tuesday's count as a basis, and using a ten-hour day, means that close to 1,300 visiting cars move through Belleville on No. 2 Highway every day. Weekly, it amounts to more than 8,000 vehicles. Spread that over Canada, and the count is amazing.

Contract for Swimming Pool Filtration Equipment Awarded

The contract for the purchase of filtration equipment to be used in the Kinsmen Community Swimming pool to be built on Dundas Street, has been let to F. S. Bowser and Company, Toronto, it was announced at the regular dinner meeting of the club held at the Hotel Quinte Monday evening.

Contract price for the filtration equipment is $4,856, it was stated. A representative of the firm, Jack Brabazon, was present at the meeting and briefly addressed the club.

With the award of the contract for the filtration equipment blue prints for the layout of the necessary piping will be forwarded to the club and the contract for the concrete work will be let.

Earlier in the year members of the club held an old fashioned bee on several nights and through voluntary effort cleared much of the trees and underbrush from the site of the proposed pool at the south end of the former tourist park. The Diamond Construction Company of this city has offered to dig the excavation for the swimming pool.

Order for Trial 668 Red Agitators Held in W. Berlin

Berlin, July 19 — (AP)—West Berlin authorities today ordered trials against 668 communist agitators arrested yesterday when they tried to obtain signatures to the Soviet propaganda petition for outlawing the atomic bomb.

The West Berlin police grabbed 1,556 men and women who tried to circulate the Russian-inspired petitions in West Berlin. They released 888.

The others will be charged with staging prohibited demonstrations and distributing "illegal propaganda."

POLICE BLOTTER

The reported theft of a silverware service from an apartment at 4 West Moira Street, is being investigated by city police.

Miss Irene Walters of the above address told police that the case of silverware containing service for eight persons disappeared from the apartment on Tuesday during her absence.

The Booth Radio Store, 121 Front Street, reported the theft of a small personal type radio from their display window. The radio was taken from the window some time during the afternoon, it was stated.

Bomb Explodes In Belgian Palace At Laeken

Brussels, Belgium, July 19 — (AP) — A bomb exploded late last night in the wall of the Royal Palace of Laeken where King Leopold is expected to reside on his return to Belgium from exile late this week.

Police gave no details.

The blast blew a hole about one foot square in the thick wall of the palace, now the house of the Queen Mother Elizabeth.

IN MEMORIAM

BODY — In loving memory of Mary Body who passed away on July 19, 1947.

Today recalls sad memories
Of a dear mother gone to rest,
And the one who thinks of her today
Is the one who loved her best.

Lovingly remembered by son Leonard Hamilton. J19

PYMER — In loving memory of my dear mother, Samantha Pymer, who passed away July 19, 1949.

A wonderful mother, woman and aid,
One who was better God never made,
A wonderful worker, so loyal and true;
One in a million, that, mother, was you.
Just in your judgment, always right,
Honest and liberal, ever upright,
Loved by your friends and all you knew,
A wonderful mother, that, mother, was you.

Lovingly remembered by your daughter, Ruth Titterson. J19

Says Peace Basis Must be Withdrawal Of North Koreans

London, July 19 — (CP) — Britain will tell Russia and India that pre-condition of a Korean peace is for the North Koreans to pull back to their own territory.

Official sources reported that the British view, similar to that of the United States, is to be conveyed formally to Moscow and New Delhi in notes today.

The cabinet is expected to meet again tomorrow to frame its answer to the request by Secretary - General Trygve Lie to United Nations members for ground forces for the Korea fighting.

The government was expected to send further instructions to Ambassador Sir David Kelly in Moscow which might lead to another talk between Kelly and Andrei Gromyko, Russia's Deputy Foreign Minister.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 19 — (CP) — Industrials paced a steady advance for a second successive session on the Toronto stock exchange today.

A wide list of leading industrials chalked up gains ranging from fractions to more than a point. Interlisted issues like International Paper, Hiram Walker and Brazilian Traction showed some of the strongest advances. Utilities, papers, steels, refining oils and liquors were in solid upward movements.

Mining issues jumped ahead early in the session but encountered mild downward pressure that held the leaders in check. Anacon Lead, East Sullivan, and Ascot Corp. were briskly traded in base metals. The big four on the board — Consolidated Smelters, International Nickel, Noranda and Hudson Bay — showed gains from fractions to a point. Junior and senior gold producers brightened quietly. Some penny prospects were more active and higher.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, July 19 (CP)—Trade was dull and prices were weaker at the Ontario stockyard this morning. Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle, 380; calves, 200; hogs, 400; sheep and lambs, 120. Left from yesterday were 800 cattle, 400 of which were stockers.

A few weighty steers sold for $30.50 a hundredweight. Good cows were $22-$23 and good bulls were $24-$25.50. Stockers brought $21-24.25.

Calves sold at $28-$29 for choice vealers with common to medium ranging from $18-$27.50.

Grade A hogs were $31.50 and dressed sows were $22.

Lambs sold at $32.50-$33 for good ewes and wethers. Bucks brought $31.50-$32. Good light sheep were $13-$15 with culls selling downwards to $8.

Over 700 of C.N.R. Athletic Assoc. Enjoy Picnic, Contests at Cobourg

Favored with ideal weather conditions, the annual picnic of the Canadian National Railways Athletic Association, held in Cobourg yesterday, went down as one of the most successful in the history o' the organization.

A representative crowd of all branches of the division numbering well over 500 including members, other employees and their families, boarded a special train at nine a.m. and spent the day in Ontario Park arriving back at 8.15 p.m.

The train composed of twelve coaches carried 523 Belleville picnickers to their destination. Stopping at points along the route to pick up other passengers, while those that drove by family automobile swelled the number to over 700.

Attached to the train was a baggage car that carried refreshment and lunch "freight" as well as sports equipment. The train was under the supervision of Mr. Henry Drury.

Not a Dull Moment

There was not a dull moment all day. From the time of arrival until the last person boarded the train for home the picnic ran off in a smooth sequence of sports events, entertainment, dancing and most important of all, dinner and supper.

Softball among teams of the CNRAA featured the lengthy sports program. In the morning the Stores team defeated the Extras while the afternoon game saw the Trainmen best their arch rivals the Firemen in a struggle for diamond supremacy. The games were well played and contributed much to the general enjoyment.

There were races and contests for young and old, men and women and boys and girls. Besides the conventional sprints there were many novelty races, especially for the ladies including the "fat ladies" race, needle-threading, soda biscuit race and others. Comedy highlight was the race in which the ladies fed their male partners soft drinks from a bottle via the nipple method. There was a tug-of-war, a "mystery lady" race; the fat men tried a contest, wheelbarrow races and others.

Clowns Were There

Six clowns garbed in conventional costume rambled through the crowd all day. Their costumes were made and donated by Mrs. Ken Bunnett. A noted feature was that of a prominent member of the committee who strolled through the crowd during the afternoon and distributed his personal gift of 30 pounds of candy.

By way of diversion from the sports program there was dancing in the spacious pavilion, television programs while many disported themselves in the water of Lake Ontario.

Consensus was that the picnic was easily the largest, best arranged and most enjoyable in the history of the CNRAA.

Mr. L. A. Daugherty was chairman of the sports committee. A. G. Meagher assisted by John Knott, headed the picnic committee with Mr. Drury being in charge of train accommodations and refreshments.

Following are the results of the various athletic contests. There were two winners, first and second, in each race.

Girls 5 and under: Paddy Fahey, Sandra Crawford; Boys 5 and under Douglas Reid, Teddy Young; Girls 6-8 years Patsy Finnegan, Muriel Bryon; Boys 6-8 years Raymond Vanalstine, Ronnie Painter; Girls 9-12 years Shirley Hall, Barbara Ethier; Boys 9-12 years Bill Foster, Bobby Devall; Girls 13-16 years Deora Halsey, Ivor Donovan; Boys 13-16 years Lloyd Kellett, Tom Lynch; Clown Race, P. T. Conell, H. Happy; Girls 16 years and over Delores Bradford, Ann Semark; Married Women, Grace Hawkes, Phyllis Brown; Married Men, Wilfred Collins, Don Burr; Boys three-leg race, Earl Kilner, Larry Gerow, Tom Lynch, Neil Donavon; Fat Ladies Race, Mrs. C. Woods, Mrs. D. Robinson; Fat Men's Race, Fred Christopher, Wes. Grey; Coca Cola race, Bert Collins, R. Carmichael; Wheel Barrow race, Phyllis Brown, Bob Deval and Ruby Pointer, Herb Collins; Boys and Girls Wheelbarrow race, Galpin and Deval, Joanne and John Silver; Tag race, Gloria Titterson, Lloyd Kellet; Mystery Lady, Mrs. D. Clarke; Oldest couple, Mr. and Mrs. W. Adams; Softball game, Stores defeated Extras; Softball game, Foremen lost to trainmen; Tug of War, Married vs Single, draw on account of time. Prize one box cigars.

Players Drill Hard at Baseball School

Approximately 20 young baseball players from Belleville and District turned out Wednesday for the third day of the Philadelphia Phillies four day baseball school being held at the Belleville Fair Grounds.

Scouts Dale Jones and Pat Coglan put the players through an intensive infield drill stressing throwing, pivoting, and the subtle art of scooping up ground balls. Inside information on what to do in special situations was imparted.

Following the infield drill outfielders were groomed on the proper way to field. Stress was laid on running and throwing.

Following the instruction periods all candidates were thrown into a game in which they had an opportunity to use the techniques pointed out by the coaches.

The school, which runs nonstop from 10.00 a. m. to 3.00 p.m. closes tomorrow. Any players signed to a Philadelphia contract will have their expenses to the school paid. Announcement of the signing of any players will be made after the school has closed.

Excavations Reveal 300-Year-Old Timbers Jesuit Mission Intact

London, July 19.— (CP) — Students at the University of Western Ontario museum of Indian archaeology have probed into the history of the martyrdom of the Jesuits of Fort Ste. Marie, near Midland.

The summer school of Indian Archaeology led by Wilfred Jury, curator, turned up another building at the Mission, razed by the Jesuits themselves after five missionaries had been martyred. As part of their training in careful excavation, the class dug out the remains of a charred building, 50 feet by 20 feet. Many hours of brushing revealed the timbers of the south wall still intact after three centuries.

PRAIRIE TROUT

Rainbow, brook and lake trout are found in more than 100 Saskatchewan lakes.

Alleged Attacker Held as Suspect In Cattle-Maiming

Thessalon, July 19 — (CP) — A man who allegedly attacked a woman here yesterday is being held by provincial police as the suspected cattle-maiming mystery man who terrified the community for the last week.

Details of the assault are not available.

Police declined to disclose the man's name but said that his actions indicated he might be the mysterious "cave-man" who has been sought by armed posses.

The hunt arose out of a series of incidents in which cattle and horses in the district were maimed or killed when attacked at night. Chunks of flesh had been slashed from them while they were alive.

FALLS FROM WINDOW

Toronto, July 19 — (CP) — Arthur Parker, 50, of Toronto, fell from a downtown hotel room window early today. A roof 30 feet below stopped what might have been a 120-foot fall to the street. He was taken to hospital with a broken leg and internal injuries.

WANTS

2. That all government agencies review their programs with an eye to lessening the demand for services and supplies vital to defence.

3. That taxes be boosted more sharply than he has recommended before in order to combat inflationary pressure.

He said that as soon as necessary studies are finished, he will present Congress a tax program based on the principals that the United States must try to pay for the greatest amount of needed spending out of taxes, and that the tax system must be balanced to distribute its burden fairly.

Check Profiteering

Truman heretofore has urged mainly higher taxes on corporations and on upper bracket incomes.

Today he told Congress that heavier taxes will lessen the need for general economic controls and that a balanced tax program would help check profiteering.

4. That there be further restraints on credit expansion — along lines of curbs he directed yesterday for federally assisted housing when he told the Federal Housing Administration and the Veterans Administration to demand higher down payments and to cut down on building programs generally in order to provide more building materials for defence purposes.

Today he recommended that Congress authorize more controls to curb the expansion of privately-financed real estate credit.

5. That Congress authorize production loan guarantees and direct loans to boost production. The idea is to spend and increase the output of vital materials, products and services for defence.

Mr. Truman closed his message on a confident note:

"We will follow the course we have chosen with courage and with faith, because we carry in our hearts the flame of freedom. We are fighting for liberty and for peace—and with God's blessing we shall succeed."

Influenza Virus Believed Cause Of Three Deaths

Parry Sound, July 19—(CP)—Dr. Charles M. Appleby, medical officer of health in this Georgian Bay town, said Tuesday that what is believed to be an "influenza virus" has caused the death of three children and sent three others to hospital in the last six weeks.

Dr. Appleby said the victims were all between one and three years old. No epidemic is anticipated.

"So far we haven't been able to isolate the culture," he said. "But in the opinion of most medical men here, it is a 'flu virus, carried over from widespread influenza throughout northern Ontario last year."

House Owners May Take Comfort That Investment Now Secure

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

If you bought a house in recent years with the feeling that you were going to lose money on it, you may take some comfort now.

You may have bought it because you had to have a place to live, but with the fear the price of houses might drop. You may have feared the value of your house might fall so much that it would not be worth as much as the mortgage, let alone the total of your mortgage and downpayment.

If you feared this you were not alone. Mortgage companies feared it too; and some observers envisioned thousands of homes being offered for sale and a collapse in the real estate market.

There was, of course, such a possibility and certainly a moderate drop would not have been surprising; but there were several factors which made a precipitate fall improbable.

Different Factors

One factor was that at no time have we been free of the threat of further inflation, of prices going still higher. Another was that with increased population houses were still scarce. A further factor was that even if there were a recession, building costs would go down very slowly. And the overpowering factor was that the cold war, with its high-price influences, gave no promise of ending except in a hot one.

Now, the cold war has warmed up and, in the United States at least, one of the first to be hit is the person who still hasn't a home but who may be thinking of building one. For President Truman, yesterday issued orders to save construction materials for the war effort. Part of the order makes it more difficult to get credit for house-building and degrees higher down-payments.

This hardening of conditions for house builders in the United States comes at a time when in Canada we still are in the midst of steps to make them easier. There is no such word here yet, such as made by President Truman but it will come if the war pace quickens appreciably.

In these circumstances, those who have put their money into houses or real property of almost any kind may congratulate themselves.

If a war economy has to start out from the present high-price level, we have no idea what money may be worth in a few years.

ON NIAGARA RIVER BANK

We wonder how many of the 200,000 people who gathered at Niagara Falls last Sunday to see Major Lloyd Hill attempt his barrel trip were there because they expected to see an accident. It seems more and more people are asking for, and getting, blood thrills than ever before.

Daredevil stunt drivers draw capacity crowds, and even though they kill someone every so often, the citizenry still fights to be in the front row. It was said that during the time that Hill's empty barrel flipped over the Falls on Sunday, there was a definite danger that a few people standing on the riverbank were going to be pushed in by the weight of the anxious watchers behind them.

One reporter said that small children and aged people were trampled in the rush as word spread that Hill had been pulled out of his craft. Again, human life was in danger, not only in the stunting, but in the watching.

Hill's handlers, who forcibly restrained him from completing his plunge, state that they "learned a lot" from putting the empty barrel over the Falls, and that they will be able to use their new knowledge to advantage on Hill's next trip. We had hoped that they would realize the futility of the scheme, and call the whole thing off, but such is not the case. It will be strange indeed if some death does not come from the venture, either within the barrel or on the shore.

SUMMERTIME JOB WITH ANIMALS

We always thought that the life of a university professor was not a rosy one, and now comes positive proof. George J. Keller, who teaches fine arts at Pennsylvania State Teachers' College, has turned to wild animals for relief from students.

Mr. Keller, who admits to a long-standing desire to train wild beasts, has been working with circus animals for twelve years. His is a summertime job, involving the training and mastering of three African lions, three pumas, a jaguar, a leopard, a black panther, and a tiger. Mr. Keller recently arrived in Toronto with his pack.

Also in the retinue are four of his university students. We are pleased to learn that the fearless fine arts man does not contemplate feeding his pupils to the animals. Rather, they are along to act as Mr. Keller's assistants, and to help earn their way through college.

Mr. Keller graciously admits that training animals is different from teaching students, but only to a slight degree. The principal difference, he says, is that the beasts he uses in the acts have a natural enmity towards one another, which must be conquered before an act can emerge. Besides that, the professor modestly agrees that all his animals are natural enemies of man, and that they must be subdued.

Possibly the discipline the professor enforces during school terms is an aid to the training of the beasts, but we shudder to think what his summer work must pass on to his students of the winter. The professor must be literally cracking the whip in lectures.

NEW SLANT ON HITCHHIKERS

During the past few years intensive campaigns have been launched to acquaint motorists with the dangers of picking up hitchhikers. Gory tales have been told about killings, attempted killings, and assaults by knights of the thumb. Motorists were warned to disregard the hikers, so as not to expose themselves to danger.

Now comes a new slant on the problem. A motorist in Prince Edward Island picked up a hitchhiker, who, unknown to the driver, had liquor in his possession. When the car was stopped by an R.C.M.P. constable, the motorist was taken to court on a charge of transportation of illegal liquor. He was convicted and his car confiscated by the court.

All appeals on his part to the courts to regain his automobile were fruitless, because "that is the law."

There is an old saying that goes "Possession is nine points in the law," penned by a man who could not have seen the possibilities of the opposite situation. For here it is completely denied; possession, in this case, was not even one point, and yet the man must do without his means of transportation.

The law, while inflexible in this case, is not unalterable in the long run, we hope. These cases, in which the law is made to appear foolish, are bound to pop up now and again, and the most anyone can do is to hope that he never becomes involved in any such case.

JET AIR-REFUELLING

Progress of aviation goes on apace. There comes word from London that air refuelling tests will soon be made with the De Havilland Comet, the world's finest four-jet airliner. If successful this operation will enable the plane to carry a year-round capacity payload of 14,000 pounds, 40 passengers, plus baggage.

For this it would be necessary to refuel twice on the East-West crossing and once, because of prevailing winds on the west return trip.

JUST FOLKS

GOLFER'S WIFE

I watch for him at eve to see
If up or down his chin will be,
For if at golf he's had success
I know I'll get that hat or dress.
But if a poor game he has had
The time to ask for things is bad.

If one he knows that he can trim
Has better played and beaten him,
Although by just a single hole,
Then his will be a tortured soul.
And if too many putts he took
He will not like the meal I cook.

But when he comes with eager haste
To put his arm about my waist
And gives to me an old-time kiss
That is the chance I mustn't miss!
The things I want I'll surely get.
My golfing man has won a bet.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE BIRDS STILL SING!

I awake early these Summer days, and the chorus of song from the native birds about my island cabin gives me much cause to rejoice and to meditate. No matter what the weather, or the disturbing news in my newspaper, the birds still sing out their happy song.

And the flowers keep blooming, as evidence that their Creator never forgets even them—no matter how humble, or how far from the appreciation of human hearts. Their beauty and fragrance remain. Wild flowers, red, purple, and white, are all dressed in wedding garb. All the way to where I now have retreated, I viewed the mountain laurel in full array, and I know who planted it for my joy and appreciation.

Hopping from branch to branch, in the evergreen trees outside my bedroom window, I watch the tiny creatures of the air, chirping and communicating as the happiest of companions at this wild little island. They give me hope and confidence as I look upon them, and the familiar robins sing their morning and evening compositions in perfect rhythm. They know of no disturbing news. They go about their duties and joys and apparently are content.

The blooms of Springtime are over for the berries, and soon there will be gatherings to pluck the ripened berries on shrub and tree. I lie in my hammock on sunny days and watch the birds' cheerful movements. The birds still sing, always have, and always will, so long as we have an earth.

I take my field glasses and get views of these birds that make them almost akin to me, as I study color, habit, and bird calls. What friendly creatures our birds are! When we feed them they seem so grateful and give out an extra curtain call for our enjoyment. I have often wondered how our most colorful birds think. Do they appreciate the perfect design, and arrangement of their feathered coat? And why are our most colorful birds found in the deep tropics, far from man's sight and appreciation?

Wars may come and wars may go, but the birds still sing. They are full of courage. They are self supporting. Happiness bubbles from each one. How much we can learn from them!

Australia Ponders Vandalism Problem

Sydney, Australia, July 19 —(CP)—Vandals cause thousands of dollars damage each year, destroying telephones, trees, train fittings and park equipment.

Some Australian social workers attempting to explain the vandalism, believe it is a reflection of a deep-rooted antipathy which began with convicts transported to Australia in the late 18th and early 19th centuries.

The Sydney Public Telephone Company has been one of the worst sufferers from the vandal menace. Last year 11,000 telephones were put out of action, company officials said.

Vandals destroyed 1,500 directories, broke 495 dials, wrenched off 1,061 receivers, smashed 376 windows and blocked 5,100 chutes with bent coins or rubbish.

In one municipality, vandals pulled several hundred newly planted ornamental trees out by the roots.

In parks they have smashed fountains and destroyed seats.

Special educational films have been made and shown to children's organizations in an attempt to create a new approach to the problem.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

Rancher's Way

Y-Cross Ranch, High River, Alta., — Several times in the last couple of days, talking with Joe Bews, I found myself thinking of business friends of mine in the city whose badge of success is the duodenal ulcer.

Joe seems to have found both success and a deep contentment, rarely wedded in the city, and found it in the company of cattle. Sort of makes you wonder if the titanic brain work of the big town, and its path to a milk-and-crackers diet, is worth it all.

Joe is a powerfully built man of 44 with sloping shoulders, a long torso and a big-featured face darkened by sun and wind.

But the outstanding feature of Joe Bews is a gentleness that you find only in strong men. A rancher friend of his said to me, "Joe is the nicest doggone guy you will ever meet" and he was a hundred per cent right.

He speaks in a voice as modulated as any I heard in the Welsh Rhondda Valley, where everyone has his head slightly cocked to hear the other fellow. If there were more Joe Bews in the world we'd need fewer guns.

I suspect that such a serene character comes in part from environment. The rancher's life demands a good deal of patience, long hours alone on a pony amid scenery that just naturally make any man a little better man. Whatever it is, it's a shame to use it exclusively on cattle.

With Cattle

The story of Joe's life is all roped up with cattle.

In his younger days when he was sowing some moderately wild oats (he was best-dressed cowboy three years in a row at the High River stampede) he met his vivacious wife, Josephine and cattle played cupid. The farmhouse where Josephine lived was on the route when he drove his beef from the foothills into town. The procedure was to stop at the farm for coffee and that was how the romance began.

His most ambitious holiday was a 10-day trip to Chicago, an expedition on which he was accompanied by a train load of heifers and steers.

The other day, discussing a man with certain shortcomings, Joe observed sadly, "He just doesn't seem to know one cow from another." It was about as harsh a criticism as Joe Bews ever voiced.

His respect for catte is partly aesthetic, partly economic. He has an abiding faith in his Herefords, good times or bad. "Hang on to a cow's tail," he says, "and she'll pull you through every time."

From the time he was able to walk Joe has been at home in the saddle. He's proud that his sons are following in his path. The oldest boy, Billy, who is 12, not only rides as if he were a part of his pony, but can handle Joe's big truck like an expert. Ten-year-old Nora and five-year-old Tommy both have ponies of their own and ride over the range in much the same way as suburban city kids pedal bicycles down the block.

He could sell now at from $25 to $30 an acre (Joe's father, Jimmy, paid $3 an acre in 1909), but, he asks, why sell?

"I can't think of any other life I'd enjoy as much as this," he says, "or any that would be better for the children. I guess I'll retire some day and Billy will take over from me, like I took over from my Dad. I've always loved cattle and horses. Be lost without 'em."

On Your Own

Ranching is anything but an easy life and Joe's days and years follow a firm pattern. The part of the cycle he enjoys best is the spring.

"That's like the start of things," he says. "The snow is gone, the grass is starting to get tall and the little calves are coming. Everything seems right then."

The days begin at dawn and a whopping breakfast of porridge, bacon and eggs, toast and coffee. Joe's first job most mornings is to bring in the horses. A "jingle pony" is kept in the corral and used to round up the others grazing outside. If the day calls for some herding of cattle, he'll use his favorite, "Dandy," an educated bay horse with what Joe calls "cow sense."

In describing his work Joe may mention some unusual event such as the Caesarean operation he permormed recently, saving the calf, but not the mother.

"You have to rely on your own resources most of the time," Joe says, "and I reckon that's a good thing for a man. It's really why I want my kids to grow up on the ranch. There's a lot to be said for city life, I guess, but out here you learn to live by yourself and to take care of yourself and that's good for a man."

I'm inclined to think that's an understatement. Meeting Joe Bews and some of the other cattle men in these parts, my wife and I agree, has been like discovering a lost tribe of well-adjusted men.

Bargains in Mastiffs

Windsor, Ont., July 19—(CP)—The Windsor Humane Society is having a bargain sale on bull mastiffs—28 of the large economy-size dogs to be given to whomever will pay for their board and lodging at the Humane Society's kennels and give them a good home. The dogs aren't just strays. They are full-bred mastiffs whose owner had to give them up when he became sick. Most are six and eight months old.

REGULATIONS TIGHTENED

Cleveland, O., July 18—(AP)—The United States Coast Guard Ninth District tightened regulations on visitors today for security reasons.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

You often see mention of the general public or the average reader. There is a fair case to be made for the claim that there is no such thing. The general public may be five foot seven, and the average reader may wear size eight boots. But beyond such merely physical characteristics, it is pretty hopeless to seek averages in the human species.

Nothing would suit this mechanized age better than some slick slide-rule system for striking averages in all human respects. The clothing trade has been hunting averages for a century. But all you have to do is go into any ready-to-wear department in a big store and see the alterations being chalked up, to realize they haven't got it yet. If an industry as tirelessly ingenious as the clothing trade can't arrive at an average for something as simple as our outward forms, how hopeless is the quest for the average or what it wants. If this were so, what a beautiful, peaceful world this would be.

Sprinkled in amongst mankind is a small number of men and women who know what they think and know what they want. Some of these rise to power and influence as leaders, organizers, owners, managers; others just plug along doggedly amid the rest of us grasshoppers, puzzled and distressed by human frailty and irresponsibility.

Being average is repugnant to human nature.

The people who conduct polls are trying to pin down opinion. Sometimes they are quite good; sometimes equally bad. Industry is attempting to employ what they call "sampling" of the public taste to guide them in what to manufacture. The defect in both these processes is that they assume the public knows what it thinks and knows the general when it comes to our slippery, elusive and fickle minds?

BABY IT'S COLD!
400 BELOW ZERO

Ears freeze, noses redden and folks are mighty glad their homes are insulated when the thermometer drops to zero. But what if it dropped to 400 degrees below zero?

Wherever industrial temperatures reach such depths, extraordinary insulating problems arise. That is one of the reasons the Johns-Manville Insulation Laboratory is constantly developing and testing new insulations. J-M Insulations today span the thermometer from 400 below zero to 3,000 above. Tomorrow's demands will probably exceed these extremes and J-M is keeping up-to-date by research.

If you have an insulation problem in your plant, contact Johns-Manville, 199 Bay St., Toronto, or see your J-M distributor.

PREVENTION AND RELIEF OF PILES

External piles (hemorrhoids), unlike internal piles (hemorrhoids), rarely or never bleed and usually cause a great deal more pain than the internal kind except in the intervals between attacks."

An "attack" of external piles is the common way of saying acute inflammation or acute phlebitis —inflammation of the dilated or enlarged vein or veins that make up the mass of tumor called pile (hemorrhoid).

In the interval between such "attacks" one subject to piles suffers more or less with a sense of weight, fulness dragging and itching. "Itching piles," however, is notoriously unreliable when it is the presumptive diagnosis, because such itching is really due to piles in only a minority of cases. If, as I maintain no matter how a dumb reader may resent it, it is stupid to suffer from piles—in this day of painless and effective ambulant treatment—then it is even—heh, Young Snip, what's the comparative of stupid?—more so to endure itching or, as doctors call it, pruritus in this area and, worse, use remedies purporting to be good for piles without a proper examination to determine whether the itching is due to piles or to something else. This talk is about external piles. For a pamphlet on pruritus (itching anywhere without apparent cause) send stamped self-addressed envelope and no clipping, please. If you can't write probably you can't read or understand what I have to say in the pamphlet.

Acute inflammation of an external pile (hemorrhoid) is essentially acute phlebitis and when the portion of vein or veins of which the pile tumor or mass is made up becomes inflamed the blood in the vein or veins clots. This is medically called thrombosis, the clot is called thrombus. The process is atrociously painful, the pain aggravated by walking and by remaining upright or even sitting. The pain is increased even by a deep breath, sneezing or coughing.

If the victim of such "attack" of external piles is—heh, Young Snip, find me the superlative of stupid, please—this being a free country, he may elect to endure the attack until kindly old Nature effects a cure—and when Nature cures a pile, believe me, that particular pile will never give you any trouble again, though of course any of a dozen others around the orifice may stage a repeat performance from time to time. Nature cures the pile by organizing the clot, shrinking it down gradually with scar tissue and eventually obliterating the vein or veins that formed the pile; or in some cases by carrying the inflammation on to suppuration and abscess. Of course Nature takes plenty of time for such a cure—a week or two perhaps—to achieve what a doctor with a scalpel and a dash of anesthetic could accomplish in two minutes. But on the other hand the doctor might soak you $28.88 for his service whereas Nature marks your account paid when you have lost a week or two of time and suffered outrageously.

In the pamphlet It Is Stupid to Suffer from Piles, available only on written request if you provide stamped self addressed envelope (if you ask for both pamhplets inclose ten cents) I suggest what to do till the doctor comes or while waiting for Natrue to cure the attack.

Some of the measures of relief are equally useful for prevention of attacks. Particularly, keeping off the feet, lying supine or prone with hips higher than shoulders when trouble begins.

An important but much neglected prophylactic principle is cleanliness, scupulous soap and water washing of the perineum and rinsing with cold water after every defecation, plus careful drying and, if there is any irritation, the application of plain talcum powder. Few private homes, even pretentious dwellings equipped with multiple bathrooms and lavatories, have adequate facilities for such cleanliness. Despite the fancy tile, plate glass and shiny metal fitments in our flashy American bathrooms or toilets we are still in the corncob or Sears-Roebuck catalogue age as far as hygiene goes.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Disinfection of Drinking Water

What amount of iodine in well water will make it safe for drinking purposes? (L. M.)

Answer—Only for emergency, not for use day after day, questionable water may be disinfected by putting three drops of Mild Tincture of Iodine in a quart of the water, shaking it up and letting it stand 15 minutes before drinking. Preferable methods for disinfecting water for use throughout a vacation or camping period are given in booklet The Medicine Cupboard—for copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope.

Albumen

Is albumen in the urine serious? How can one get rid of it? (J. A.)

Answer—It may indicate some serious condition. Better leave the question to the judgment of our physician.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THOUGHTS OF YOUTH

About the year 1560, two weather-beaten English sailors used to sit sunning themselves on a dock telling of far-away places and adventures. They did not realize that a youngster who continually played on the dock near them was taking in everything they said. The boy's name was Walter Raleigh, destined to be a great figure in England's chronicle of discoveries.

Children are influenced not so much by what they hear as by what they overhear. Try to teach them something, and they immediately put up all their defences. But they are greatly influenced by the chance remark, the unmediated observation which older people make on persons and situations. The reason why children learn more from their parents than they can possibly learn from the best of teachers in school is, first, because they are with their parents longer than with any teacher, and, second, because their minds are relaxed in the home and often a passing idea, which will later greatly influence them slips into the mind unnoticed.

The old tars talked about the glories of distant lands, and young Walter Raleigh first dreamed of the days when he could go forth to visit them and later laid great plans for English colonial expansion. What he overheard went into the mind of a thoughtful boy to give him purpose, and into his heart to give him courage.

Truck Loaded With Transformer Has Difficult Time at Bridge

Trenton—(Special)—Traffic was tied up for 20 minutes on Dundas Street, Tuesday afternoon, while a transport hauling a large transformer tried to squeeze under the Trent River Bridge.

A long line up of cars and trucks formed up quickly on both sides of the river while the driver inched the transport underneath the overhead beams.

An ambulance with siren screaming managed to slip through the bridge and around the obstructing transport but the rest of the vehicles were obliged to wait in line, until the top of the insulators on the transformer had been screwed off so the load could get under the steel girders of the bridge.

As soon as the traffic started piling up, a group of sidewalk superintendents started to collect and offered a liberal supply of advice to the driver and his helper as to how the load could be taken through.

"Let the air out of your tires. You might as well back off the bridge, you'll never make it anyhow. Take off the oil tank on the top." None of this expert advice was adopted, however, and after removing the top of the insulators on the transformer, the truck proceeded slowly on its way but it was a tight squeeze all the way with only a fraction of an inch clearance.

As the traffic jam was clearing away, the policeman directing traffic was heard to comment, "If there was 15-feet clearance under the bridge, they'd probably build their loads 15-feet 6 inches just to make things difficult."

Chevrolets Gain On Frankford by Edging Wooler 4-3

Trenton — (Special) — After being defeated twice by Hastings last week, Weese Motors slipped back into the win column Monday night by edging Wooler 4 to 3 in a Trent Valley Softball League game at Bayshore Park.

The win boosted the Chevrolets to within a few percentage points of the league leading Frankford Merchants who were idle Monday evening. Meanwhile in the other Trent Valley League game, Hastings was sinking deeper into third place after bowing to Campbellford 5 to 4.

Utility man Joe Scott worked on first base and batted in three of Trenton's four runs. Returning to his hitting form of a couple of weeks ago, Scott connected for a single in the first to score Ernie Curtis and in the last of the eighth he slashed Wooler's two-run lead with a two-run homer.

Scott's performance was matched by his opposite number on the Wooler team, as first baseman Karl Austin also came up with a circuit clout and a pair of singles.

Lead off man for Wooler, Austin slammed his round tripper in the first inning but this initial setback failed to rattle Harry Farr who went the route on the Chevrolet mound giving up seven hits, striking out seven and did not permit any free trips to first.

Barney McColl proved to be the better strike-out artist as he also went the distance for the visitors and held Trenton to seven hits while allowing three walks.

Norm McCue's boys came up with a double play in the top of the eighth, Redcliffe hit a ground ball to third sacker Miron who fielded the drive neatly and fired to Flynn on the Chevrolet second sack, cutting off Karl Austin. Flynn relayed the ball to first in time for the second out.

The garagemen played errorless ball, while Wooler booted four. Left fielder Jefferey, short stop Curtis and catcher Doug. Whitley each hit a double for the Weesemen.

Trenton Man Given 10 Days For Radio Theft

Trenton (Special)—Charged with stealing a radio-phonograph valued at $100 from Breadner Public School, Harry Loveless, 20 Dundas Street East, Trenton, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 10 days in county jail in Trenton Police Court Tuesday afternoon.

According to evidence given by Police Chief Jack Taylor, Loveless who is caretaker of Breadner School hired a taxi to take him to the school and removed the radio phonograph from the principal's office.

After selling the instrument for $20, Loveless used some of the money to buy two bottles of liquor.

Loveless asked for suspended sentence but his request was refused. In passing sentence, Magistrate J. L. Lloyd ordered Loveless to pay back the money to the man who bought the stolen set and also to return the radio-phonograph to its rightful owner.

FIRE CAUSES SLIGHT DAMAGE

Fire which started in the electrical apparatus of a refrigerator, caused an estimated $50 damage to the home of George Benham, 506 Front Street, Tuesday evening.

No one was in the Benham home at the time, and the alarm was turned in by a neighbor who noticed smoke coming out of the window.

LOSES SUIT FOR BURNS

Toronto, July 19—(CP)—Harry Glober, a Port Hope, Ont., tourist camp operator, Monday lost a suit against the Ontario Hydro Commission for unstated damages for severe burns suffered Aug. 17, 1948, when a pole he was using to clean a chimney touched an overhead power line.

Mr. Justice P. E. F. Smily ruled Glober was negligent "because a 20-foot pole should never have been used to clean the chimney."

R.C.A.F. CHANGES — Group Captain J. C. Scott of Bobcaygeon, Ont., top, has been appointed assistant air attache to the Canadian Embassy at Washington, replacing Group Captain Leonard J. Birchall, bottom, St. Catharines, Ont., who has been named station commander at Goose Bay, Labrador. Birchall became world famous as the 'Saviour of Ceylon" when his radio message warned island defenders of the approach of a Japanese invasion fleet. WHITE'S DISTRICT

White's District—Mr. and Mrs. Don Bowers and family were Sunday vistors of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Parker and family of Campbellford.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Nicholson entertained last weekend Mrs. McCarthy of Buffalo, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins, of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Taylor, of Toronto, Mrs. W. Jones, and Mrs. O. Coutts, of Trenton, were Wednesday afternoon callers of Mrs. H. M. Brown.

Mrs. Alfred Kennedy, of Camrose, Alberta, and Mrs. Margaret Anderson of Edmonton, have returned home after holidaying with the former's aunt, Mrs. W. A. Jeffery and Mr. Jeffery.

A welcome is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Lord who have moved into this community from Colborne.

Mrs. George Cotton entertained a number of ladies from this community and from Trenton to a demonstration party of Wear Ever brush products on Tuesday afternoon. At the conclusion Mrs. Cotton assisted by Miss Jean Cotton, served dainty refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Puls and children, also Mrs. F. Puls Sr., of Rochester, were recent Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sandercock.

The many friends of Mrs. Acker will be sorry to learn that she is confined to her bed. All hope that she will soon be around again.

Conservation Officer Urges Public 'To Play the Game' When in Woods

"Conservation is the wise and intelligent use of natural resources," stated Charles Dill, official of the Department of Lands and Forests in an address to the weekly luncheon meeting of the Belleville Kiwanis Club held Tuesday noon.

"Leaving forests to rot is not conservation," the speaker said. "Conservation is the continuous use of all natural resources in such a way that there is always regeneration for future needs."

In stating that fire was the greatest natural enemy of the forests and the wildlife which the forests maintain Mr. Dill urged his listeners to "play the game" when in the woods and to do everything in their power to prevent fires.

"The Department of Lands and Forests is your deputy in the protection of forests and the soil on which they grow," he said.

The speaker outlined the work that is being done by his department in this area.

Following his address Kiwanians were shown a technicolor sound movie on forest management. This picture, produced by the U.S. Forest Service as an instructional film for U.S. Boy Scouts, stressed the importance of forests as a crop, as a source of revenue, a a provider of recreation, and as a cornerstone in national economy.

The speaker was introduced by Fraser Fulton and received the thanks of the club as expressed by Lorne McDougall.

Secretary Mark Vanner acted as chairman of the meeting in the absence of president Taylor Franklin.

New Chest Disease Strikes Fowl

Guelph, July 19—(CP)—An increase in the price of chickens may be in the offing unless a cure can be found for a new chest disease among fowl, the Ontario Veterinary Association was told Tuesday.

Dr. J. B. Leaming of Lederle Laboratories, New York, said the disease—known as air sac—may be a form of bronchitis. It has depleted the flocks of many Canadian breeders.

No satisfactory serium or virus has yet been developed to combat the disease, Dr. Leaming said. Minor success has been experienced with vaccination.

WEDDINGS

LOGUE—BRADSHAW

King Street United Church, Trenton, Ont., was the setting on Saturday evening at 7 o'clock, of a pretty candlelight wedding, when Sylvia Maud, daughter of Councillor and Mrs. W. H. Bradshaw, Trenton, became the bride of Leo Logue, son of Mrs. J. Logue of Point Anne, and the late Mr. J. Logue. The Rev. G. Minielly officiated before a background of tall floral standards and candles.

Mr. Claude Huffman rendered the wedding music including "Sylvia", and Miss Phyllis Huffman, soloist, sang before the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer", and during the signing of the register, "O Perfect Love".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a ballerina-length gown of mauve, imported, eyelet organza over white taffeta. Her picture hat and gloves were of corresponding material, and she wore French latticed pumps. She carried a bouquet of white gladioli centred with a baby-pink rose.

Miss Sheila McDonald, who attended the bride, wore a pale green gown fashioned on similar lines to that of the bride, with matching hat and gloves. She carried a basket effect of yellow gladioli.

Mr. Thomas Farrell, of Belleville, was groomsman, and the ushers were, Mr. Jack Loney and Mr. James Logue, brother of the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlors. The bride's mother, received in a gown of navy nylon sheer with white rose motifs and accessories. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in grey nylon trimmed with lace. The bride's mother wore a corsage of white gladioli with baby rose centre, and the bridegroom's mother, red roses.

For the wedding trip to Lake Placid, the bride wore a navy dress with white flannel topper, white accessories, and corsage of white gladioli with baby-pink rose centre. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Logue will reside in Trenton.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. Bernard Fox, Miss Bernice Bradshaw, Mr. and Mrs. F. Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. G. Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Grills, of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. W. Twining, Miss Shirley Bennett, Mr. Bruce Edwards, Mr. Leonard Horwood, Mr. Morris Volick, Mr. and Mrs. L. Lough, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. MacLaurin, of Point Anne; Mr. Frank Woods, of Frankford; Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Ketcheson, of Foxboro; Mr. and Mrs. W. Logue, also of Foxboro; Mr. and Mrs. H. Young, Mr. J. Logue, of Oshawa; Mr. D. Bradshaw and Mr. W. Bradshaw, of Consecon, Ont.

Rev. and Mrs. Lawson Observe Fiftieth Anniversary

Wooler.—The Rev. F. A. Lawson and Mrs. Lawson observed their fiftieth wedding anniversary on Sunday last at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Henry McColl.

All but one of their eight children were present. Their children are Mrs. H. D. Williams, New York; Mrs. L. W. Brannon, Norfolk, Va., Mrs. Henry McColl, Wooler; Mr. Don Lawson, Bowmanville; Mr. Louis Lawson, Ottawa; Mr. Ralph Lawson, Toronto; Mr. Morris Lawson, Kitchener, and Mr. Newell Lawson, Aultsville. Mr. Louis Lawson was in eastern Quebec on business and unable to be present. Mr. and Mrs. Lawson were married in Minneapolis, Minn.

Following the wedding dinner at noon, a reception was held from two to four when many friends called to extend their congratulations and good wishes.

Mrs. Lawson received in a floor length gown of grey lace with white accessories. She was assisted by her three daughters, Mrs. Williams was gowned in a floor length frock of green, while Mrs. Brannon wore black and Mrs. McColl, navy sheer with white lace trimming. Leila and Donna McColl and Mary Dorland assisted in serving the refreshments.

The bride and groom of fifty years received many gifts and cards from their family and friends, Mr. Don Lawson presenting the family gifts, to which Mr. Lawson replied with a few remarks suitable to the occasion, closing with prayer.

The people of this community extend to the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Lawson their congratulations and best wishes.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

Hash is again hitting the headlines.

A judge recently denied a couple of divorce, in which the husband's chief complaint was that he was served hash every night. In a situation like this the judge should have consulted a cook book rather than a law journal.

He would have discovered that hash does not mean leftover scraps but is merely a term applied to any food that is cut in very small cubes. It may be lobster hash, breast of chicken hash or filet mignon hash.

If the judge were a student of culinary history, he could have explained to the irate husband that three hundred years ago, before the use of the fork, almost all food was served as hash because all people ate with spoons.

He might have explained to the hash maker as well as the hash hater that hash can be rich and light like creamed chicken hash with hollandaise or warm and homey like corned beef hash with poached egg.

No news reports have indicated whether the reunited couple are still eating hash, but the lady in question should bear in mind that any hash will be good as long as it is made up of fresh good food.

Fresh corn and ham are blended with a light cream sauce in the recipe below.

Ham and Corn Hash. Serves 4.

Cook enough fresh corn on cob to make 2 cups of kernels. Use sharp knife to cut corn off cob.

Cut 2 cups of boiled ham into small cubes approximately 1-4 inch thick. Cut 1-2 cup green peppers into small squares.

Melt 2 tablespoons fat in a saucepan. Add green peppers. Simmer slowly until peppers are tender. Remove from flame. Add 2 tablespoons flour, mixing well. Gradually add 1 1-2 cups hot milk stirring until smooth. Return to flame and simmer 5 minutes.

Add ham and corn to sauce and simmer 5 minutes. Add salt and pepper to taste. Pour mixture into a baking dish. Sprinkle with 1-4 cup bread crumbs. Sprinkle with salad oil or melted butter. Sprinkle with paprika.

Place under a moderate broiler flame until crumbs are browned. Canned whole kernel corn or cooked frozen corn may be substituted for fresh if desired.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A jealous fiance make a more jealous husband

Dear Miss Fairfax:

About a year ago, I broke my engagement to a fellow I had gone with for three years. Recently, we went back together.

Now he is even more jealous than before. He accuses me of intimacies with any fellow I ever dated. Lunchtimes he waits outside my office to make sure I don't lunch with any of my business acquaintances. He refuses to let me talk with any of my friends regardless of how many years I have known them. He never takes me anywhere any more because he thinks I want other men to notice me.

I have had an affair with this man and I find it exceedingly hard to break off with him again. How can I make him change his childish ways of thinking? He is 26 now and his ideas are pretty well set. I am 20.

"People think I am foolish to put up with all this, but no one really understands how I feel. I am losing my friends on account of him. I know he has a very bad inferiority complex, and probably being such a bully to me is only his way of trying to show some power. When he is in the presence of others, though, he is a perfect gentleman, and everyone thinks he has a fine personality. Do you think he will always be like this, even after marriage?

B.

Dear B.:

Unless this young man realizes his faulty attitudes and really wants to change them, he certainly will carry them over into marriage. In fact, his jealousy is likely to be intensified after you have become his wife, and it is quite probable that he would attempt to bully you even more.

It is very unfortunate that you allowed yourself to get into a situation where he has such a hold on you, but even so, I think you would be much better off without him, unless, of course, he wants to do something about himself.

Your wisest plan, I believe, would be to tell him that you are not going to put up with his domineering ways any longer; that if he cares enough about you to seek the help of someone who can help him revamp his personality difficulties, you are willing to stick by him, but that otherwise you had better stop seeing each other.

Don't say this unless you mean it, though, because if you do tell him anything like this, and then don't carry it through, you will completely lose any influence you may now still have with him.

Let mother help with a party

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 16, and for some time my parents and I have been disagreeing about my having a party. I feel that when a teen-ager has a party she is entitled to the free run of the house. My mother feels that she should be home. She feels that without a parent present, the party will be rough, and she also think that I would be putting her out because I am ashamed of her.

I think my mother is old-fashioned, and would like your frank and honest opinion about this.

D.

Dear D.:

It will probably surprise you to hear that I think your mother is entirely right in feeling that she should be in the house when her daughter is having a patry. I don't mean for a moment that she should be there to spy on what you are doing, or anything of the kind, but as I look at it, it is only courteous for a girl's mother to be on hand to let her daughter's friends know they are welcome in her house, and her presence gives the whole affair a much happier and more fitting tone.

My suggestion to you would be that you ask your mother if she won't help you plan a party for your friends. I am sure that would please her, and that you and she could have a fine time making the plans together. She can be a lot of help to you if you will only let her, and I know that you will be a much happier girl if you do.

GOOD MANNERS

Groom's mother to give tea in honor of bride-to-be

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son is to be married. I would like to give a tea in honor of the bride. (1) As the hostess, should I have the bride stand beside me, to introduce her? (2) What should I ask the bride's mother to do . . . pour tea, or what? (3) Should I have the mothers of the bridesmaids pour tea, or do something else? (4) Is it correct to invite friends or acquaintances to the tea and then not to the church wedding? (5) What would you suggest serving besides the usual sandwiches, tea, and cakes?

Many Thanks

(1) Yes . . . the bride (or the bride-to-be, as I judge she is, from your fourth question, who is your guest of honor, should stand next to you, so that you may present to her, or introduce to her, each arriving guest. (2) The gracious gesture would be for you to invite the mother of the prospective bride to receive with you and her daughter. Then, after the receiving, she would, I am sure, prefer to mingle with the guests, rather than to be asked to pour tea, where she would be too busy to chat much with the guests. The mother of the birde-to-be is too important a guest at this party to be "anchored" at the tea-table.

(3) I suggest that, to pour tea, you ask some of the friends of the bride-to-be, bridal attendants or not, and perhaps include one or two or three relatives of your family. Best plan is to have two pourers for each hour, or half-hour, of the duration of the tea. (4) The number of guests, you, as representative of the groom's family, put on your list of those to be invited to the wedding, depends entirely on circumstances. If it is to be a very small wedding, perhaps you may only invite members of the families and perhaps also a few intimate friends. Naturally you could not include most of these guests. And in this circumstance, giving this tea is not only a delightful gesture for you to make, but a very practical idea as well.

(5) The threesome—bread-cake-tea—is the usual tea-menu; but if you wish to elaborate this, an excellent way is to serve very special cakes, of one kind or several kinds, as well as, perhaps, some particularly interesting cookies And, for this warm weather, the sandwiches might be cool and cool-looking watercress (or watercress and cream cheese) sandwiches, rolled, made of white and whole-wheat bread. (Part of the watercress may be chopped, for more convenient eating, and part left in small tufts extending from each end.) As an alternative to hot tea, you might offer iced tea, or a cool fruit drink, or iced tea combined with fruits.

Boy's mother, as hostess, should have paid hotel bill

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Several days before the Fourth of July, the mother of a boy friend of mine telephoned to me and invited me to come with him to spend the Fourth at the resort where she was staying at a hotel. We had a wonderful time swimming and so forth, and since there was to be a dance in the evening, she urged us to stay down over night. As I didn't expect any extra expenses, I had very little money with me, and the boy paid my hotel bill. Under these circumstances was this proper, and should I try to pay him back?

Elvira H.

Since his mother was staying at this hotel and since it was she was was assuming the role of hostess by urging you to stay, she should have paid your hotel bill. And in this circumstance, you, as guest, should not pay her back or even have suggested that you pay her back. But if you are sure that the boy paid it, you should certainly try to pay him back.

BEAUTY

Let's have a beauty week!

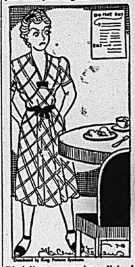
Of course you do your daily good-looks chores. But suppose, for just one week, you put in a little extra effort, spend a little more time than usual. You'll get a big lift, you will feel righteous and, without question, the lady in the mirror will have more smiles for you. When you look in the glass you will be less likely to make faces at yourself and wonder why you have been neglectful. Skin, hair, hands, fingernails and figure all respond, and quickly, to hygienic attentions.

A special intensive drive for all-around-improvement will re-energize the human motors. Feel well and you look well. Keeping in form is the first rule of pulchritude, so let's prepare a program.

If you are a bit overweight and have had a don't-care attitude toward the incipient billows that are gradually developing, make a vow to take tea and coffee clear. Sugar and cream are busy cell builders. A little discipline concerning diet will not only make you appear more youthful, but will be good for your character. You can prove to yourself that you have a will instead of a won't, and will eat what you should. Sweats, starches and fats are your enemies; cut 'em down to the limit. No desserts, except fruit.

If you are underweight, get rid of the idea that you can live and work and thrive on nothing except, perhaps, green salads and pickles. More butter on the bread and quart of rich milk a day.

Every night, for one week, get to bed early. Never later than ten o'clock. Take a warm bath before you tuck yourself between the sheets and, for five minutes before your bath, do torso-twisting exercise. Five minutes of the same when you arise in the morning. Did you say you hate exercise? Then don't grumble if you lose your figure.



Discipline. concerning. diet is good for appearance and character

You are going to brush your hair and massage your scalp. Friction is a tonic to the glorious crown. If you have a shampoo and wave set at your favorite shop, don't tear out of the place until your hair is as dry as a bone, and don't urge the operator to hurry when she is putting on her expert performance.

Don't just cream your complexion at night; work in the emollient. Double your fingers inside your hands and do upward kneading strokes with your knuckles. Blood streams will start hopping. In the morning, you will have such nice coloring that you can skip the rouge compact.

Massage your hands. If your eyebrows are a bit scraggly, weed them along the borders. If your feet hurt and you have a desire to walk on your hands and relieve them, see a specialist. No woman with sore feet can look radiant.

Make Fresher-tasting Jam this Easy, Short-boil Way

Saves ⅔ of your Time. Gives 50% More Jam from your fruit ... Sure Results

For sparkling jams with the delicious flavor and color of fresh fruit, try this short-boil method with CERTO.

CERTO is fruit pectin — the natural jellying substance in fruit — extracted and concentrated for better, surer jam and jelly making. These 5 points, typical of CERTO recipes, explain why CERTO is such a boon.

"CERTO" is a trade-mark owned by General Foods, Ltd.

Point 1 ONE-MINUTE BOIL
CERTO recipes need only a ONE-MINUTE full rolling boil. Right there you save ⅔ of the time needed for old-fashioned long-boiling . . . not to mention the hot, tiring work!

Point 2 2 lbs. FULLY RIPE FRUIT
You use RIPE fruit at the peak of luscious taste and color . . . NOT the under-ripe fruit called for in long-boil recipes. The boil is so short it does not dull the color or spoil the fresh-fruit taste. They stay right in your jam.

Point 3 3 lbs. OF SUGAR
A pound of jam made with CERTO contains no more sugar than a pound made the old, long-boil way.

Point 4 4 ozs. OF CERTO
Adding a half bottle (4 ozs.) of CERTO ensures the correct ratio of fruit pectin to fruit and sugar for a perfect set. CERTO removes the uncertain element from jam making . . . helps all fruits to jell perfectly.

Point 5 5 lbs. OF JAM
Yes! An average of 5 lbs. of jam instead of about 3 the long-boil way! In the short CERTO boil practically no juice wastes away in steam as it does in long boiling. You average 50% more jam from the same amount of fruit.

FOLLOW THE RECIPES EXACTLY—
With CERTO you get 78 kitchen-tested recipes because different fruits need different handling. Be sure to follow EXACTLY the simple instructions for the fruit you are using. You get CERTO at your grocer's.

London Holiday Profitable For Toronto Actor

London, July 19—(CP)—Youthful Don Harron of Toronto took just three days to make his mark in London's entertainment world.

Harron, 25, arrived in Britain on a holiday. First night out, he went to see the London version of "A Streetcar Named Desire" at the Aldwych Theatre.

Next day he called on Bonar Colleano, one of Britain's best-known radio, stage and screen figures. Colleano, an old friend, suggested Harron take over the script-writing job on the Colleano show, "It's a Great Life."

Harron accepted and now collaborates on the program with George Wadmore, an Englishman.

Third day in London, Harron tried out for a part in "Streetcar." He got it. He plays the small but important role of a newsboy who comes to collect money from Blanche Dubois, central character in the play.

Other Canadians

"Streetcar" is practically an all-Canadian vehicle these days. Two other parts are filled by Canadians. Frances Hyland, 22, born in Shaunavon, Sask., and raised in Regina, recently replaced Renee Asherson in the role of Stella sister of Blanche; and Bernard Braden, 33, of Vancouver, plays one of Blanche's suitors.

Writing a radio script and appearing in a play keeps Harron busy.

"I like what I've seen of London, travelling between studios and the theatre," he said, "but that's about all I will see for a while."

He said in a Canadian Press interview that he came here originally with the idea of staying a couple of weeks.

"It was just supposed to be a holiday. But I don't know now—the way things are going I'd like to stay over here two or three years."

Attlee Gives Assurance On U.N. Declaration

London, July 18 — (AP) — Prime Minister Attlee told the House of Commons today that Britain is "doing its best" to support the United Nations Declaration on Korea.

Attlee made the statement when asked to give assurance that the government is doing everything possible to support Prime Minister Nehru of India in mediation attempts.

Cheers greeted the Prime Minister's statement.

When Labor member Emrys Hughes asked for details about Nehru's representations, Attlee replied that the information was confidential.

Britain has given full support to the U. N. Declaration which named the communists of North Korea as aggressors and called for all U. N. members to aid in bringing about a cease-fire.

Earlier today the cabinet, meeting for the second successive day, studied a report on the latest discussions between Sir David Kelly, Ambassador to Moscow and Andrei Gromyko, Russia's Deputy Foreign Minister, on a Korean peace.

Hay Yield Below Average in Ontario

Ottawa, July 19—(CP)—Intermittent rains and poor curing weather have retarded haying operations in Ontario, the Bureau of Statistics reported Tuesday in its periodic summary of crop conditions across Canada.

The Ontario hay yield is still considerably below average and a number of counties are expected to have insufficient hay for winter feed requirements, it added.

Harvesting of winter wheat has started in some counties and yields are expected to vary from above average to slightly below average.

Late-sown crops such as beans, corn and tomatoes are growing well. Early potato digging has started and good yields are being obtained. Crop prospects in northern Ontario have been adversely affected by late seeding.

Crop prospects on the prairie provinces have shown "marked improvement" as a result of heavy rains over the last week, the Bureau reported.

The strawberry harvest is completed in all provinces, with crops below average in all areas except the Annapolis Valley of Nova Scotia.

In Quebec, good rains and warm weather have greatly benefited all crops.

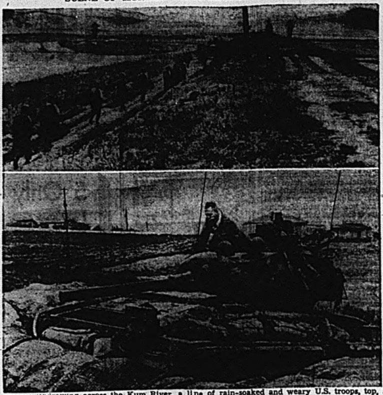
SCENE OF KOREAN WAR'S BLOODIEST BATTLE



After withdrawing across the Kum River, a line of rain-soaked and weary U.S. troops, top, slog through mud just behind a dike on the river's south bank where the North Korean forces massed for their push on Taejon. At bottom, a U.S. tankman sits atop his steel juggernaut, dug in south of the Kum. This area was the scene of the bloodiest battle of the war. — Central Press Canadian.

Menzies' Address On Foreign Policy Of Empire Hailed

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 19 — (CP) — Prime Minister Robert Menzies of Australia came, saw and conquered London— all in one evening.

An audience of 700, including Prime Minister Clement Attlee and Conservative leader Winston Churchill, cheered the Australian Premier's call for an empire foreign policy.

"Our foreign policy, wherever it may be, must always be in complete harmony with our defence policy," Menzies said last night at an Australian Club dinner.

"It is all too true that from time to time we have a foreign policy of one kind and a defence policy of another, forgetting that a powerful foreign policy begets obligations and that a realistic defence policy makes you fit to perform them."

Menzies was received enthusiastically. The Conservative Yorkshire Post said his eloquence exceeded that of Churchill and Attlee, who also spoke.

The Daily Telegraph, also a Conservative paper, said "Marked applause" followed the statement that foreign and defence policies must be harmonized.

The Telegraph concluded that the premier's "peroration was a piece of pure postprandial virtuosity."

Menzies mission here is believed to be one of persuading Britain that Australia deserves a greater share of the sterling area's dollar pool.

$4,570,000 Aid Given Students In Last 11 Years

Ottawa, July 19—(CP)—Financial assistance given deserving Canadian students under terms of dominion - provincial vocational training agreements has amounted to $4,570,000 in the last 11 years, Labor Minister Mitchell announced today.

Federal contributions included $900,000 in outright grants and $670,000 in loans. The provinces contributed about $2,000,000 in grants and $1,000,000 in loans.

The vocational training program is in effect in all provinces, except Newfoundland.

In the fiscal year ended last March 31, the program assisted 2,152 university students and 589 nurses - in - training. Assistance took the form of grants or loans, or a combination of both.

Will Continue Steel Supplies To Canada

Ottawa, July 19 — (CP) — A Trade Department official expressed confidence Tuesday that the United States will continue to supply Canada with her steel requirements, despite the possibility that President Truman may call for priority and allocation controls on the strategic war commodity.

The official showed interest but no alarm in a dispatch from Washington which predicted Mr. Truman would ask Congress today for greater power to meet the Korean crisis, including limited powers of priority and allocation to channel steel and other materials into arms production.

Normally, American steel flows into Canada at the rate of about 1,000,000 tons a year, providing Canada with 25 per cent of her steel requirements. A slow-down in American shipments could cut into Canada's record - breaking $3,700,000,000 1950 capital construction program and in the production of homes and buildings.

"We don't believe the United States will cut down shipments to Canada," the official said. "Nor do we believe that there will be any immediate need for resumption of steel controls in Canada."

Big Chief Southworth Back At Wigwam and Braves Now In Three-Way Top-Slot Tie

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Credit Billy Southworth with the comeback of 1950 whether his Boston Braves win, lose or tie in the National League race.

A year ago Billy was on the verge of a breakdown. In mid-August poor health forced him to leave the dissension - riddled Braves in charge of Coach Johnny Cooney. Many thought he would never come back.

They whispered that his "temporary retirement" would be made permanent during the winter by action of the "three steam-shovels" who own the Braves. But they were wrong.

Back came Southworth to assume command at the winter meetings. With Billy calling the signals, the Braves pulled their big player swap with the New York Giants that brought Sid Gordon, Buddy Kerr and Willard Marshall to Boston.

Flying High

Now his Braves are flying high, in a triple tie with Philadelphia and St. Louis in the sizzling pennant race. It's the first time they have been on top since the opening week of the season.

With Warren Spahn, Johnny Sain and Vern Bickford working in regular turn, Southworth's pitching is on a high plane. The three of them account for 33 of the Braves' 46 wins. In recent weeks, Bob Chipman has looked like a dependable fourth starter.

Spahn did it again yesterday, striking out nine Pirates as he mastered Pittsburgh for the first time this season, 11-3. It was the 11th victory for the 29-year-old southpaw.

Murry Dickson, Vern Law and Jim Walsh yielded 14 hits, including Walker Cooper's 10th homer with two on in the second.

St. Louis turned Ford Frick's league into a triple tie by ending Brooklyn's surge with a 5-3 victory behind Al Brazle's steady seven-hit pitching. The Cards had lost seven in a row to Brooklyn since June 1 until they whipped Erv Palica last night. All five St. Louis runs came in the fourth inning.

Phillies Break Streak

The Phillies got away with a split at Chicago, breaking a five-game losing streak with an 8-3 romp in the second game of a double-header. The Cubs took the opener, 5-2, with the help of Bill Serena's two homers and Paul Minner's seven-hit pitching.

Cincinnati made it nine wins in its last 11 games with a 1-0 verdict over New York Giants on Virgil Stallcup's third - inning homer. Stallcup's homer and an infield single by Ted Kluszewski in the eighth were the only hits off loser Monte Kennedy.

Detroit lost a full game to its American League lead at Boston where the Red Sox outlasted the Tigers, 12-9, in a slugfest marked by Vern Stephen's three - run homer in the first inning. The blow raised Stephens' league - leading R. B. I. total to 95.

As a result of the night loss and New York's afternoon win, the Tigers' lead now measures 3½ games.

Big Jawn Mize hit two homers and added 45 points to his batting average with four hits in New York's 12-1 slaughter of St. Louis. Mize went into the game with a .258 average and came out hitting .303. Tommy Byrne, erratic in his last five starts, walked only two enroute to his 10th win with a six-hitter.

Bob Lemon became the first major leaguer to win 14 games but suffered a hand injury in the process. The Cleveland ace was struck on his right hand by a line drive off Kermit Wahl's bat in the seventh inning of the tribe's 10-2 rout of Philadelphia. It was not believed serious and Lemon will be able to take his regular turn.

Washington jammed all of its six hits off Ray Scarborough, an ex-teammate, into the first two innings of a 5-2 triumph over Chicago. Sandalio Consuegra scattered 10 hits for his fourth win and fourth complete game.

Petes Take Over Second Slot In Lacrosse Loop

Weston, Ont., July 19. (CP)—Peterborough Petes took over sole possession of second place in the Ontario Lacrosse Association on Tuesday night by edging Weston Lions 12-10.

Five goals in the second quarter wrapped up the tilt for the visitors, giving them a 9-5 lead at half-time. The Lions had a 4-1 edge in the final quarter but couldn't catch the winners.

Dugan was the game's top scorer, rapping home five tallies for Peterborough. Ashbee and Vitarelli each counted twice. P. Chard led the Lions with three goals, Venner and Dower each getting a pair.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, July 19 — (AP) — You can forget most of this fuss about Ray Robinson refusing to fight Jose Basora in Scranton, Pa., tonight. There is a chance the guy who will wind up on the spot will be your old target, Jake Lamotta.

It's this way: If Robinson gets through the strenuous program that now calls for a welterweight title bout with Charley Fusari on Aug. 9 and Basora soon afterward, he'll have the opportunity to fight Lamotta for the middleweight title in September.

Ray, you remember, was recognized in Pennsylvania as middleweight champion, and Jake was ordered by the National Boxing Association to fight Robinson within 90 days after his recent victory over Tiberio Mitri - - - "If Robinson wants to fight and if Lamotta doesn't go through with it, we'll pick the next-best contender to meet Robinson and recognize the winner as middleweight champion," N.B.A. commissioner Abe Greene said yesterday.

That way it's up to Jake. The Pennsylvania Commission's ruffled feelings are soothed by a virtual agreement that it was right in stripping Lamotta of the title; New Jersey, Greene's home state, gets the Robinson-Fusari charity fuss; and Ray gets his own way.

Soft Touch

During the recent United States public links golf tournament, N. C. Morris of Denver was assigned to a certain part of the course to make official rulings on any problems that might come up - - - Most of his duties consisted of sitting on a shooting stick in the shade, waiting for something to happen, and that's just what he was doing when an undersized caddie came toiling up a hill, bowed down under the weight of a huge golf bag - - - The kid took one look and scornfully remarked: "Say, bub, you sure do earn your pay easy."

Plays 50 Years, Scores First Hole-in-One

Fairlee, Vt., July 19 (AP) — Herbert Wolff, a Scarsdale, N. Y., lawyer, vacationing here, got a hole-in-one Monday on a 95-yard hole, and said:

"I've been playing golf 50 years and never got a hole in one before. Perhaps I should quit now."

Instead of quitting he went out on another round yesterday — and got another hole-in-one, this time on a 135 - yard hole.

His comment after the second ace in as many days:

"I'll never quit now. I guess I've finally found my eye."

Montrealer May Stage Upset In Golf Tourney

By W. R. WHEATLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Saskatoon Golf and Country Club, July 19 — (CP)—If there's going to be any real upsetting in the Canadian Amateur Golf championship, Bob Hall of Montreal gets first crack at the job today.

The 20-year-old Hall, junior Canadian champion last year, meets 40-year-old Guy Owen of Cutbank, Mont., an experienced tournament player, in one of the early third-round matches.

Owen Barely got through yesterday with an 18-hole victory over Dr. Bob Reid, Saskatchewan amateur champion. The 33-year-old dentist from Prince Albert practically defeated himself at the 18th with a fizzled chip shot that caught the side of the green bank, far away from the pin. Owen's game was none too strong and he was unsteady with his iron shots.

A little farther down in the draw, Notto McKush, veteran tournament player from Winnipeg, tangles with Nick Weslock of Windsor, Ont., who is still rated the man to beat for the title.

McKush yesterday eliminated Nip Ross of Sydney, N. S., 5 and 4. Weslock, Ontario amateur titlist, shot steady sub-par golf to eliminate Alex Turnbull of the home club, also 5 and 4.

Near the end of the draw John Bayrack of Winnipeg comes up against Jerry Kesselring, the consistent sharp-shooter from Kitchener, Ont., who has been playing a bang-up game so far.

Bayrack won 4 and 2 from Ab Flavelle of Saskatoon. Kesselring coasted to a 6-and-4 win over Bus Hillyard of Saskatoon, shooting one under par for the distance.

Point Anne Tennis Club Defeats Bata

The Point Anne Tennis Club moved into a virtual tie for first place in the Bay of Quinte Tennis League last evening when they trounced the Batawa Tennis Club 4-1 in a series of matches played on the Point Anne courts.

Point Anne has amassed 24 points in seven matches while Trenton has collected 25 points in eight matches. The two front runners meet in a crucial series at Point Anne Friday evening.

Results of last night's activity are:

Men's Doubles: J. Paton and A. Machala, Batawa, defeated Maurice Vollick and Ken Haines, 6-2, 6-1.

Lawrence Horwood and Jack MacDonald, Point Anne, downed A. Crevinka and A. Haverlant, 6-3, 6-2.

Ladies' Doubles: Gwyneth Bennett and Ilene Luffman, Point Anne, defeated F. MacDonald and A. Cervinka, 6-3, 6-4.

Mixed Doubles: Hilda Finlan and Perry Everett, Point Anne, downed B. Kelendova and T Dalcas, 6-1, 6-1.

Donalda Everett and Jack Hart, Point Anne, defeated M. Moore and I. Lockhardt, 6-3, 6-2.

Ramsay Paints Win by Default

Ramsay Paints took a 9-0 default game from Stephens-Adamson last evening. The plant men were unable to field a team within the fifteen minute time limit granted by the league and the Painters, fielding their regular team, went through the motions for three pitches for their easiest win of the season.

Stephens Adamson, using a player from the stands then engaged the Paintmen in a seven inning exhibition game which Ramsays won 7-0.

Try this with fruit salads...

Fruit Juice Mayonnaise
⅓ cup Hellmann's Blue Ribbon Real Mayonnaise
½ cup cream, whipped
1 tablespoon fruit juice
2½ tablespoons icing sugar

Because there's no starchy filler, rich Real Mayonnaise can be s-t-r-e-t-c-h-e-d like this: Fold smooth Real Mayonnaise into whipped cream. Add sugar, fruit juice. Makes 1 cup mouth-watering mayonnaise to change a ho-hum fruit salad to an oh-boy summer treat.

This tantalizing fruit salad pepper-upper is just one of the many, many food-flattering ways to use . . .

Hellmann's Blue Ribbon, the double-whipped, really fresh Real Mayonnaise. Try it right away for salads, sandwiches, sauces, soups, sautés.

PLUGGING THE HOLES!

The fun is all over, import fun, that is, for this sometimes unpredictable Central Ontario Baseball League.

It has been a try-and-get-'em season, up until the bars-down-on-imports edict automatically closed on July 15th.

The Smith's Falls Royals, Brockville Memos and Kingston did right well by themselves with the boys who got their mail in other places. Napanee and Batawa stood pat, well, nearly so, on the home brew products while Picton, the baby of the loop, took over some Belleville stars from under the Batawan noses, and at the last moment drafted a pair of strangers.

The Royals, an Ottawa Nationals farm club, boast seven imports, one of the reasons they are perching the loop. Kingston, aided by the Ponies and others are in second slot, while Brockville, Ogdensburg-fed, plus other hired help is down in fifth place.

Napanee who led the league for the first month of the season suddenly slumped to third place while Batawa, idle for two weeks hopped up into fourth place. At the moment Picton are the cellar dwellers.

Playing a packed schedule, Picton and Batawa have suffered from a lack of competent hurlers. But at the same time they have lost more games by one-run margins than any other teams in the league.

The COBL will average between nine and ten games weekly between now and playoff time in late August. It is going to be a severe strain on some hurling staffs.

SIC 'EM!

The boys along the mushball rialto are still discussing the relative merits of the Howe and Hagerman team and Herbert Aloysius Henn's Buckaroos of the Brewery.

Loudest in their mushball muezzins from the local minarets are Mynheer Henn and one Cyrus Algernon Barriage, respectiive master - minds of the squads.

Quoth the "Plymouth Rock" who at the moment is cooling his heels and doing a lot of thinking on vacation: "What are those guys yapping about. We can beat them by three runs, Mallory or no Mallory any time we like."

Quoth the honorable Cy: "What my loquacious master-brewer friend should do, is farm some of those old crocks he has on the payroll, and hire some of these gal players, who at the moment are holidaying. Then perhaps he would have a team."

"Lookit what happened the other night," Cy went on, warming to his subject, and kicking Lindsay's big carcass out of the way, "why the Point Anners had them beaten six ways to Sunday, and it's only their luck that is holding them up."

Retorted La Henn: "Mr. Barriage (things are getting a trifle warmish now with the boys resorting to niceties) does not know what he is talking about. That was a bad game we got out of our systems — and every team has an off night occasionally."

Pied Piper Peaver was neutral. He elevated his nasal appendage when asked his opinion as to which os the better team and snorted, "The Phillies will win the pennant."

Now we were getting somewhere.

Several gentlemen of the bleachers fraternity offered diversified opinions with the teams breaking even on the score.

One however came up with an interesting note. "Why concentrate on these Pipe Fitters and Suds Dispensers. Give a thought Bud to one or two other teams in that section. They can bear watching and perhaps some of these days there will be an upset. Perhaps not so much of an upset as a switch in the smile of Lady Luck."

Methinks the lad has something there.

IT ALL DEPENDS!

The Brockville baseball park is no place for claustrophobic baseball players. But it's a grand spot for a fellow who can hit a ball a couple of inches over the 257 foot distance, for he's guaranteed a home run, but no suit of clothes.

A Brockville writer bemoaned the fact that the aforesaid 257 foot left field fence proved the downfall of the Brockville Memos, just because a Kingston player strode to the plate and lifted the ball over the fence to score three runs.

Says he "In the opinion of many of the fans present, the visitors' home runs would have been easy outs in any other field in the league."

That recalls the old saying "It all depends on whose ox is being gored." We recall covering a baseball game in Brockville when the Batawa Shoemen were leading 2-1 going into the last half of the ninth. Victory it appeared was sure. Then a cocky young fellow named Rickey took his stance, teed off on one of Gordie Muffitt's fast shoots and the ball sailed up and over. Ken Peacock raced over for it and stood under it. You guessed it. It missed the fence by a Brockville mosquito's whisker and two runs came in for an eleventh hour victory.

That too, would have been an easy out in any other park, but from the reception Rickey got from those same fans, and his mates you would think he had poled a homer over the centre field fence in Yankee Stadium to win a world's series. Ah me, 'tis funny things people are.

Breaks World's Four-Heat Record

Saratoga Springs, N.Y., July 19 —(AP)— The world's four-heat record for three-year-old pacers on a half-mile track was bettered at Saratoga Raceway last night.

Dudley Hanover, a rugged colt from the Hayes Fair Acres Stable, Duquoin, Ill., won the $5,000 Sagamore after four gruelling miles.

Dudley Hanover captured the first dash in 2:03 1/5, a world mark in itself; Hal Tryax took the third in 2:03 1/5 and Dudley came back to beat the other two heat winners in 2:04 in the finale.

The elapsed time of 8:12 3/5 far eclipsed the old mark of 8:18 ¾ established here in 1944, when Attorney outlasted Time Table and Eddie Havens.

Rothrock Hurls Four-Hitter Paces Smiths Falls Royals To 7-1 Victory Over Batawa

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Smiths Falls Royals are the current leaders of the Central Ontario Baseball League, and last night they furnished sufficient evidence why they are perched on the top rung of the loop ladder.

In the first place they consolidated their grip on top slot by trouncing the Batawa Shoemen by a 7-1 count and in the second instance they trotted out some nifty pitching, extremely opportune clutch clouting and topped it off with some neat work afield despite the fact they erred three times.

The victory gave the Royals a seasonal won and lost account of 13 and 5 and the Shoemen 6 and ten. Batawa are now in fourth position in the league having risen to that exalted position by merely vacationing and doing nothing from a baseball point of view while Brockville and Picton were kicking the figurative ball around and absorbing defeats from the hands of the first divisioners.

Actually the league standing remained unchanged with Royals, Kingston and Napanee, the first three, followed by the Shoemen, Brockville and Picton.

Good Pitching

Whether the fact was that the batting eyes of the Batawans were still on holiday but they didn't do very much with the southpaw slants of the Royals Dean Rothrock. The elongated gentleman forksided the ball past them for a measly four hits and one run, while his mates were grabbing ten clouts off the offerings of two Bata hurlers.

Rothrock struck out seven, walked four, one on purpose and did not appear to be in any great danger at any stage of the game. He slashed out a clout for himself and the only run scored against him came via his shortstops error.

Art Wright started for the Shoemen and for three innings it was a pitcher duel that appeared to be the forerunner of a tight game. Unfortunately Wright stopped one of Rothrock's fast shoots with his pitching arm elbow in the third, but he gamely carried until the sixth after yielding six hits for three runs and then retired in favor of Willis.

Which was altogether to the Royals liking. The score at that point was 3-1, the Shoemen having scored in the third and the Royals grabbing two in the fourth and one in the fifth. They took to Willis's slants like a kitten to hot milk and by the time the mosquitoes had called it a day had grabbed two doubles, a single and two walks, for four runs.

Willis settled down and yielded but one hit for no runs in the last two innings. The damage was done, and Rothrock coasted in from that point.

Smart Fielding

Smart fielding featured the play of both teams with the Shoemen coming through with two twin killings, one of them on the sensational side. Kapelchuck, Royals fielder, had walked and Stelmark slashed out a single. He was trapped trying to stretch the blow and Bridgeman tabbed him between first and second. Kapelchuck rounded third and streaked for the plate and a quick throw beat him by two feet.

Stelmark was the chief sniper for the Royals with a long right centre homer, a double and single. Muldoon and White also hit doubles. Spencer, Aquino, Watson and Bridgeman were the only successful clouters for the Shoemen all getting singles.

Rapid Ray Villmer, a prime favorite with Belleville wrestling fandom, semi-finals the card at Memorial Arena Friday night in a clash with Seeley Samara, African star. Samara has been going great guns against the big fellows of the ring of late and it will be interesting to see what he can do against the rapid-fire tactics of Villmer. Headlining the card is Yukon Eric, the Alaskan giant who clashes with formidable Fred Atkins, the hardrock from down under. Warren Bockwinkle, a likeable cuss, meets Frank Sehofra a newcomer in the opener.

PREDICAMENT OVER HOTEL

Fort Erie, July 19 — (CP)— Town council has a predicament: It may have to pay for a partially-built main street motel which it doesn't want and can't finish.

John Miller started work on it after obtaining a permit from council. He stopped when the Ontario Highways Department ruled that main street is a part of the approach to the Peace Bridge and part of the Queen Elizabeth Way terminal and that the motel couldn't be built. Miller billed council for $350 already spent on the project.

Wings' Poholsky Top Hurler In Int. League

(By The Associated Press)

Young Tom Poholsky of Rochester Red Wings is well on his way to becoming top pitcher in the international league this season—if St. Louis Cardinals don't grab him.

The 20-year-old hurler, property of the Cards, has posted the most victories in the circuit—12. His steaming fast ball has accounted for 49 strikeouts and four shutouts, also a top mark. Poholsky, a six - foot - three 205-pound righthander, pitched his 13th complete game last night, checking Toronto Maple Leafs 10-1 on eight hits. He walked one and fanned four in winning No. 12 against only two losses.

Last season, he won 14 games for Rochester. He's two behind that now. Pretty good for a guy who joined the club in mid-May.

Del Wilber and Don Richmond helped Poholsky with a couple of three-run homers. The victory enabled the league-leaders to stay 2½ games up on Baltimore, which defeated Jersey City 6-3.

Buffalo jolted Jack Banta and Montreal, 10-4. The Bisons scored 10 runs in the first three innings to deal the former Brooklyn Dodger righty his second setback. Hank Biasati banged a double and triple and Buster Adams two singles and a triple as Rookie Ken Wood scattered seven hits to rack up his fourth triumph.

A five-run fourth inning was enough for Springfield's 8-4 edge over Syracuse. Bill Moisan pitched his sixth victory, scattering six hits. Big Jack Wallaesa's 17th homer—a two-run job in the fourth—helped him.

Dauthuille 8-5 Favorite Over Tuzo Portuguez

Montreal, July 19 (CP) — A chance at the world's middleweight boxing crown beckons Tuzo Portuguez of Costa Rica and Laurent Dauthuille of France. Their battle at Montreal's baseball stadium tonight may draw $50,000 and 15,000 customers.

Portuguez, 22, suffered a sixth-round technical knockout when he met Dauthuille, 26, here less than a month ago. However, the Costa Rican has more experience than the Frenchman and is confident of winning tonight's 10-round main event. Dauthuille, who now lives in Montreal, has 40 wins in 44 professional fights. Portuguez has won 79 of 85.

Portuguez expected to weigh in this afternoon at 158 and Dauthuille to go to the 160-pound weight limit.

The winner of tonight's fray will be in line for a shot at Jake Lamotta's crown. Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champ, said here yesterday that he is considering promoting a fight between Dauthuille—if he is successful tonight—and Sugar Ray Robinson in Las Vegas, Nev., next winter.

Robinson, world welterweight king, has aspirations in the heavier weight classification. Recently he won recognition in Pennsylvania only as the world's 160-pound boss. He is the logical contender for Lamotta's title.

Dauthuille is an 8-5 favorite here tonight.

Lynn Patrick Named Coach Boston Bruins

Boston, July 19—Lynn Patrick, former star and coach of New York Rangers in the National Hockey League today was named Boston Bruins coach.

Bruins' general manager Arthur H. Ross reported Patrick accepted a contract from his home in Victoria, B.C.

Patrick, 38, succeeds George Boucher who coached the Bruins last season.

The new coach is the sixth in the Bruin's 26-year history. Among his predecessors was his uncle, Frank Patrick, who held the post from 1934 to 1936.

Patrick was a star left winger with the Rangers for 10 seasons through 1946. He took over as Rangers' coach in December, 1948.

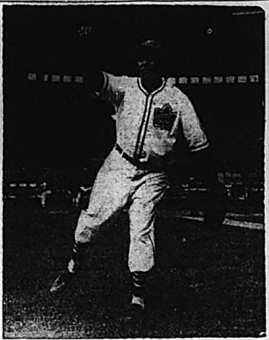
His first full coaching season last year, he swept the Rangers almost to victory in the Stanley Cup play.

Soon after Patrick announced his resignation to take over the hockey interests of his father, Lester Patrick, in Victoria.

Ross declined comment on the terms of Patrick's contract.

SMALL CITY

Winnipeg was inaugurated as a city in 1873, with a population of only 1,664.



Here's Ole Mr. Softball himself, Charlie Justice, perhaps the world's best fastball pitcher who will be here on August 3 at the Fair Grounds where his team, the world champion Tip Top Tailors will clash with a Belleville All-Star squad drawn from the ranks of the Commercial League. Justice is a one-man show in himself and as a diamond entertainer there is none better. He fanned 33 of the world's best softball hitters when his team won the title last year in the United States. The rest of the Tip-Top team are brilliant players in their own right, and softball and other sports fans should not miss this spectacle. The game gets away at eight o'clock.

What's Wrong 'Ere, U.S. Soccer Team Defeats Britain

By The Canadian Press

It's happend sooner than probably anybody thought—or feared.

A boxing show for a television audience only was put on in Baltimore Tuesday night.

The eight bouts were staged in a studio with only a handful of tecnnicians and invited guests watching them in person.

The show made money, too. It didn't cost anything for the fighters because they were amateurs. The sponsor, a brewery, paid the station $1,000 for the hour's air time.

Ken Carter, sales manager of the station, said he plans to continue the amateur shows weekly for television fans only. They are sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic Union.

England's amazing 1-0 loss to the United States in the world soccer tournament was cited in Britain's parliament Tuesday as one reason for the need of a ministry of sports.

J. E. Haire, labor, addressing his plea to Prime Minister Attlee, told the House of Commons the flop in soccer plus the setbacks in golf, tennis, boxing and cricket had put Britain in a blue funk.

Haire said the government, as "a form of social service." should subsidize the training of promising athletes so that Britain can hold up its head again in international competition.

The prime minister took a dim view of the plan.

Dick Metz and Vic Ghezzi, two veteran campaigners on the professional golf circuit, have entered the Canadian open to be played at Royal Montreal Aug. 24-27.

About 40 prospective candidates for the Sarnia Imperials Senior O.R.F.U. football team turned out Tuesday for their initial practice of the 1950-51 season.

"We've got a pretty fair crew," coach Red Douglas said after watching the boys go through their paces. "Perhaps not as fast as last year's team due to the absence of Don Knowles and Eric McKeever, but they look pretty good."

Ottawa Senators of the Quebec Senior Hockey League will play an exhibition game in Ottawa Oct. 7 against Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League.

The world's four-heat record for three-year-old pacers on a half-mile track was bettered at Saratoga raceway Tuesday night.

Dudley Hanover, a rugged colt from the Hayes Fair Acres stable, Duquoin, Ill., won the $5,000 Sagamore after four gruelling miles.

Dudley Hanover captured the first dash in 2:03 1-5. Tassel Hanover won the second in 2.02 1-2, a world mark in itself; Hal Tryax took the third in 2:03 1-5 and Dudley came back to beat the other two heat winners in 2:04 in the finale.

The elapsed time of 8:12 3-5 far eclipsed the old mark of 8:18 3-4 established here in 1944, when Attorney outlasted Time Table and Eddie Havens.

Oro G. Herbert disdainfully tossed away one shoe at the start of the sixth race at Thorncliffe raceway in Toronto Tuesday, and paced on to shatter his own track record for a mile while humiliating seven rivals.

Once again Oro G. Herbert appeared to be such a sure-pop winner that Thorncliffe officials — with the approval of the Ontario Racing Commission — declined to permit wagering on the horse.

Oro G. Herbert threw a shoe just as starter Arthur Witsell sent the field on its way. Despite the fact that he was pacing on one bare foot, Oro G. went the first quarter in 29 3-5 seconds and whizzed the first half in 1.01 4-5. After that he simply coasted home in 2.04 4-5 for the mile.

Tough One-Run Decisions Close But Win Games

(By The Canadian Press)

It's those tough, one-run decisions that count in baseball.

There were two of them in the senior intercounty baseball league Tuesday night. Kitchener Legionnaires dumped the second-place Stratford Nationals 2-1 and St. Thomas Legion edged London Majors 5-4.

The Kitchener game—a mound duel between Bobby Schnurr and Rolly Chalifoux—saw Nationals come from behind a 2-0 deficit to score one run in the eighth and put the tying run on second in the ninth before pinch-hitter Gord McGraw popped out to end the game.

Schnurr, Kitchener's playing-manager, spaced six hits to take down the win. Chalifoux threw a 10-hitter but lost the game in the fifth when Gabby Hormann and Erv Cott singled around an error by George Franko. Cott was leading batter of the night, posting three hits in as many tries.

Soddy Groat paced St. Thomas to their victory over London with a three-run homer in the fifth. He was matched by Timber Dahlberg's three-run circuit clout for Majors in the sixth, but Legion came back in their half of the winning with the winner.

An insignificant error outshone all the long-range clouting. Legion's winning run came home as a result of a bobble by Joe Rossamando in the sixth. Rossamando strove mightily to atone for his miscue, hitting safely three times in a losing game.

Little Rene Bouchard threw a 12-inning six-hitter at Toronto Dover Men's Shops to lead Toronto Simpson Fords to a 6-2 victory in the Viaduct Major League. Bouchard whiffed 13 and was robbed of a shutout by erratic defensive work behind him.

Sugar Robinson Fails to Fight Pays $6,000

Scranton, Pa., July 19. (AP)—It's going to cost Sugar Ray Robinson about $6,000 to get back into the good graces of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission.

Commission Chairman George J. Jones, Jr., yesterday slapped a fine of $1,000 on the slim Harlem Negro and ordered him to reimburse promoter Ernest Gennell for failing to go through with a 15-round defence of the Pennsylvania version of the middleweight title against Jose Basora tonight.

Gennell said he believes his expense is about $5,000. The fight figured to draw a $30,000 gate.

Robinson said he pulled out of the fight because of a lame back. Dr. Leonard M. Freda, Commission physician, said he could find nothing wrong with Sugar Ray's back.

A few hours before Jones took his action, Robinson signed to defend his welterweight crown against Charley Fusari in Jersey City, N.J., August 9, for the benefit of the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund. Robinson will donate all except $1 of his purse to the fund.

The Pennsylvania Commission Chairman also slapped a suspension on Robinson until he fulfils his engagement against Basora but said it will not become effective until after the Basora fight.

"The suspension puts Robinson in a bad spot," said Abe Greene, commissioner of the N.B.A. "He has a possible September fight with middleweight champion Jake Lamotta coming up and he'll have to fight Basora first. That could cause him a lot of trouble."

Neither Robinson nor his manager, George Gainford, could be reached in New York for comment on Jones' edict.

"Waiting for a telephone in BELLEVILLE?"

It takes more than a telephone to connect you with relatives and neighbors in friendly conversation. It takes cable and equipment and time to make the necessary extensions and installations.

In the rapidly-developing County Homes area, we are installing some 3,000 feet of underground and 12,000 feet of aerial cable, and working on extensions which, next spring, will provide service for many more families on our waiting list. We are also making telephone extensions in many other sections of the city, including West Moira St., Station St., and Cannifton Road areas. These jobs require about 8,000 feet of aerial and 5,000 feet of underground cable.

Our effort to meet your needs for more telephones and better service is part of our aim to provide the best possible telephone service for all who want it, when and where they want it.

BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON

The mess that many bridge players get themselves into is often the fault of their ancestors. It comes from old whist rules that were handed down from father to son, from father to son.

One of the old chestnuts goes something like this: When in doubt, lead trump. That, my little cherub, is a laugh. Imagine anybody being in doubt after taking lessons from me.

Nothing you do in bridge should be in doubt. Each act has its purpose. It tells what you have and warns what you lack. Only thus is partner able to co-operate efficiently with you as a pair.

South is declarer at four hearts after he and his partner bid hearts and diamonds. Select your correct opening lead from the west hand shown here:

♠K 5 3
♥9 5 3
♣A 7 5 4

Go through the process of elimination with the two don'ts advised in the rule. One is, don't lead a suit bid by opponents. So, do not lead one of the red suits. Both were bid by declarer and his partner.

The other don't is, don't lead away from an ace or a king against a suit contract. Hearts is a suit contract. You have an ace or a king in each black suit. So, do not lead one of your blacks.

So, there is a rule objection to the lead of any suit your hand contains. And you cannot go home, of course. You must lead something. Then is when you lead a trump.

You do not lead a trump because you are in doubt. You lead a trump because you have an ace or a king in every unbid suit. The lead of a trump by you will impart this information to partner.

Partner simply looks at the dummy hand and his own. He goes hunting for an ace or a king of each unbid suit. Whichever he sees he knows you have the other. He will thus discover which return lead is best. Unless he is a dope, the dope.

Actress Says Scotsmen Not Tight-Fisted

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 19 (AP)—I have learned several things about Scotland from actress Anne Crawford, including why you shouldn't call them Scotchmen.

Miss Crawford, a leading actress of English films, is here for a visit that is partly vacation and partly to promote goodwill for the home-rule campaign in Scotland.

And why do Scotchmen never refer to themselves as Scotchmen, the common term for them in the U.S.?

"It's very simple," she answered. "Scottish describes anything pertaining to Scotland. Scotch is the name of a whisky. Thus a Scotchman is literally a whisky drinker. Which is not exactly true to every Scotsman."

Are Scotchmen Tight-Fisted?

Scotsmen are the greatest publicists in the world," she smiled. "They know those jokes carry the name of Scotland around the world. They know the value of publicity: Why do you think the Loch Ness monster is reported during the tourist season?

"Are Scotsmen really parsimonious? All I can say is that I once did a benefit with Will Fyffe at Aberdeen, where the people are supposed to be the meanest. In one night we raised £14,000 for much-needed infirmaries.

"On the contrary, I think Scotsmen are a very friendly and generous people. They are much friendlier than the English, who are inclined to be standoffish until you get to know them."

Wants Own Personality

The Edinburgh lass is one of the stars of "Trio," the English successor to Somerset Maugham's "Quartet." She was rankling over reviews that called her a combination of Myrna Loy and Merle Oberon. "I want to have a personality of my own," she declared, but she compares favorably to those two glamor girls. She has a patrician face and a cultured voice, which she often raises in the cause of home rule for Scotland.

"That is one of the reasons I am here," she said. "I am trying to stimulate interest among Scotsmen here for our drive to have our own parliament. So far I have found excellent support.

"We have collected 4,000,000 signatures at home for our petition. Funnily enough, a large amount of our support has come from people in England.

AT THE BELLE

"The Asphalt Jungle", story of the City Under The City

A gang of desperate men robbed Pelletier and Co., of a million dollars in jewels last night in one of the most daring and cunningly conceived robberies in this city's crime history.

Gaining access to the store through a manhole which led to a conduit system, the criminals then broke an opening through the rear brick wall of the building to get to the safe. A tool expert cracked the safe and the gang were able to escape with their million dollar loot despite the fact that the store's burglar alarm went off and was heard over the entire block.

Working fiercely against time, the burglars made their getaway just ahead of the police. At the exit they were discovered by Sol Gorse, the night watchman, who drew for his gun. Gorse was knocked to the floor by one of the criminals and in the ensuing mix-up, a member of the gang, believed to be Louis Bellini, was wounded, but escaped with his confederates.

The wounded Louis Bellini is believed to be in hiding, while police are hot on the trail of the other members of the gang.

The above is a fictionized account of what happens in "The Asphalt Jungle", thrill-packed drama opening today at the Belle Theatre with a handpicked cast of M.G.M.'s top character stars.

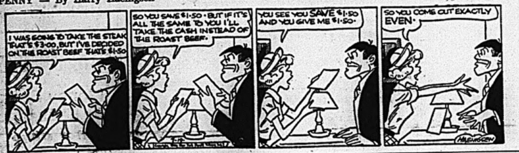
PENNY — By Harry Haenigsen



I WAS GOING TO TAKE THE STEAK THAT'S $3.00, BUT I'VE DECIDED ON THE ROAST BEEF THAT'S $1.50
SO YOU SAVE $1.50 · BUT IF IT'S ALL THE SAME TO YOU I'LL TAKE THE CASH INSTEAD OF THE ROAST BEEF.
YOU SEE YOU SAVE $1.50 AND YOU GIVE ME $1.50.
SO YOU COME OUT EXACTLY EVEN.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was eating her grapefruit diet this morning, saying to pop, Oh dear, William, I must say I'm not looking fallward to this afternoon with any great degree of pleasant anticipation.

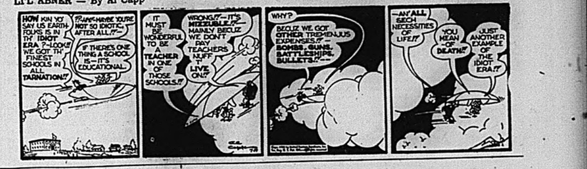
I'm sure you have my simpathy but what's it all about? pop said, and ma said, Maud Hews is out of town, so that leaves the Wensday bridge game without its usual fourth.

Cant you get somebody elts for today? pop said, and ma said, Well yes, that's the paneful part of it, I mean the woman who's filling in for Maud is just too unspeekable for werds. So the remaining 3 of us are simply looking fallward to an afternoon of unalloyed agony, she said.

What's wrong with the woman, for Peet sake? pop said, and ma said, The briefest anser to that question is, there's nuthing rite with her. She's a mizzerable player herself, as slow as mollasses and as dense as a London fog ,and yet if anybody elts makes a minor mistake she delivers herself of a sourcastic horse laff that's simply infuriating. And in the 2nd place I'm almost positive she cheets, because somehow or other she invariably manages to deel herself a sispicious number of high cards. And as a crowning touch she uses some gassly nameless brand of perfume that's apparently known only to herself, and the fumes keep the rest of us from concentrating on our bidding and play, ma said.

How the dooce was she ever able to get into the game in the ferst place? pop said

LI'L ABNER — By Al Capp



HOW KIN YO' SAY US EARTH-FOLKS IS IN TH' IDIOT ERA?—LOOK!! WE GOT TH' FINEST SCHOOLS IN ALL TARNATION!!
??—UM—MAYBE YOU'RE NOT SO IDIOTIC, AFTER ALL!?—
IF THERE'S ONE THING A SCHOOL IS—IT'S EDUCATIONAL.
IT MUST BE WONDERFUL TO BE A TEACHER IN ONE OF THOSE SCHOOLS!!
WRONG!?—IT'S MIZZUBLE!?— MAINLY BECUZ WE DON'T PAY TEACHERS NUFF T' LIVE ON!?
WHY?
BECUZ WE GOT OTHER TREMENJUS EXPENSES!?— BOMBS, GUNS, BATTLESHIPS, BULLETS!?—
—AN' ALL SECH NECESSITIES OF LIFE!?
YOU MEAN —OF DEATH!?
JUST ANOTHER EXAMPLE OF THE IDIOT ERA!?

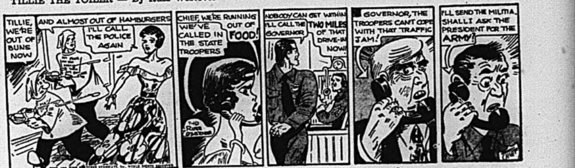
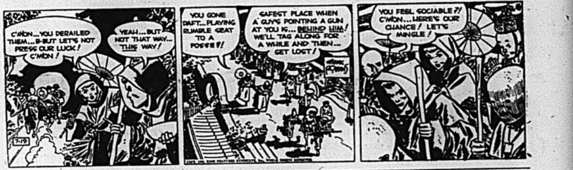
TILLIE THE TOILER — By Russ Westover



TILLIE, WE'RE OUT OF BUNS NOW
AND ALMOST OUT OF HAMBURGERS
I'LL CALL THE POLICE AGAIN
CHIEF, WE'RE RUNNING OUT OF FOOD!
WE'VE CALLED IN THE STATE TROOPERS
NOBODY CAN GET WITHIN TWO MILES OF THAT DRIVE-IN NOW!
I'LL CALL THE GOVERNOR
GOVERNOR, THE TROOPERS CAN'T COPE WITH THAT TRAFFIC JAM!
I'LL SEND THE MILITIA. SHALL I ASK THE PRESIDENT FOR THE ARMY?

JOHNNY HAZARD — By Frank Robbins



C'MON... YOU DERAILED THEM... B-BUT LET'S NOT PRESS OUR LUCK! C'MON!
YEAH... BUT NOT THAT WAY... THIS WAY!

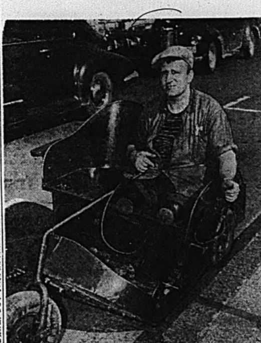
SEEING CANADA



Arthur Coyle of Fredericton, N.B., has been seeing a lot of Canada with his three-wheeled scooter since he lost both legs in a traffic accident 13 years ago. In Halifax after a 20-hour trip from Fredericton, he said his ambition was a coast-to-coast trip. He already has made two trips to Montreal and Toronto — one a 20-day jaunt. — (CP Photo.)

THE CAMEO

By Virginia Teale

"Seems like I've been to Timbuktu," Hagar commented as she slid the key in the lock. "Place'll look to me like its carpeted in gold after being a guest of the city for two days." She swung the door open and heaved an explosive sigh: "Ha! Here we are! Well, what do you say, girl? Isn't it good to be home?"

Stephanie sank down on her favorite hassock. "Poor old Tom O'Neill."

Hagar strode over and stood with her fists on her hips: "Why poor? The man murdered Falter, your aunt, and had a try at Yakov and your own man, Reddy!"

"I feel sorry for anyone who lived with Nellya. I'm sure she was the one who caused it all."

Hagar marched toward the kitchen. "Don't speak ill of the dead," she called back. "How about a cup of coffee?"

Just as Hagar was putting on the teakettle, there was the sound of squealing brakes outside, followed by the slam of a car door.

Reddy stepped in, smiling, and Stephanie flung her arms around his neck.

He laughed down at her: "Easy, baby, easy! Remember my contusions! I'm not supposed to have any excitement for at least a week. After that—we'll get married."

Hagar glanced at them with mock severity. "Never mind the romance—time for that later. You came over here to tell us a story, Reddy. Begin with the letters, the ones Yakov swiped from Falter's place the night of the murder."

Reddy sighed. "That's as good a starting point as any, I guess. Well, the letters were from Nell to Falter, and from another Mrs. O'Neill to Falter."

"Another Mrs. O'Neill!" It came simultaneously from Hagar and Stephanie.

Reddy nodded. "It seems that Tom was not legally divorced from wife No. 4 when he married wife No. 5—Nell. Falter, with his genious for digging up little items like that about people, had got wind of it and was blackmailing Tom. Strange as it may seem, Tom seemed actually in love with Nell, Nell and Falter had convinced him that she'd leave his bed and board if she found out about the bigamy angle."

Hagar snapped her fingers: "So he killed Falter because he was tired of paying blackmail."

"No, it wasn't quite as simple as that. Falter was doing a neat little job of double blackmail. He'd been in correspondence with the other Mrs. O'Neill who was working down in Miami and had convinced her that she could get quite a nice income out of Tom by allowing Martin to handle the affair for her. Falter was getting $500 a month out of Tom and was sending about a third of it to the little lady in Miami."

Hagar shook her head. "I don't get it. Why didn't the Miami girl hold Tom up herself when he left her?"

"According to the letter she wrote Falter, Tom had given her a nice round sum when they called it quits and she had agreed to let him divorce her. But, before he got around to that formality, he met Nell, was completely bowled over and married her without bothering to divorce wife No. 4."

"Okay," Hagar agreed, "I'll buy that. Now, then, you figure Tom killed Martin because he was tired of paying him money and because he was afraid Martin would eventually tell Nell about the Miami affair and Nell would leave him?"

"Not quite. Tom had concealed three things inside that blue ceramic figurine he made at the time of the first murder. One was the murder weapon, which, as Arnold Pfieffer suspected, was this bodkin thing Tom had talked him out of; the second was a bloodstained shirt Tom evidently had worn at the time of the murder; and the third was a crumpled letter Nell had written to Martin when he was out of town on one of his deliberately arranged trips. We found out from Trotter that Falter had pulled that little trick before to get intended victim to write incriminating letters. Anyway, this letter from Nell O'Neill told Falter she intended to divorce Tom, hold him up for a tidy settlement and then elope with Falter.

"Tom and Falter were drinking in Bob's place—they had an argument there. But before that Tom slipped sleeping pills in Falter's drink, so he could go to Falter's studio later and search for the blackmail letters. Tom was mentally and emotionally unbalanced and so when he found this particular letter from Nell, he went into a jealous blackout and stabbed the sleeping Falter. He took that one letter with him to brood over and foolishly left the others on the floor, where Yakov discovered them later."

As she listened to Charlie Reddy explain the mystery, Hagar Blair nodded: "Yakov got there just before I did, I guess. If only I'd been around sooner, I might have got those letters and I wouldn't have gone to jail."

Reddy gave her a grim smile. "No, you'd have gone to the morgue, instead. Tom, after he'd thought the whole thing over, was out after those letters. That's why Yakov got his head broken."

Stephanie shuddered. "How did he know Yakov had the letters?"

"Yakov made the mistake of hunting Tom up at Bob's Place and asking him questions about any papers that might have been in the cameo locket. From this inferences, Tom figured that Yakov had seen the letters and must still have them."

"Speaking of Bob's Place," Hagar put in, "wasn't Tom supposed to be in Bob's back room at the time of the murders?"

"Yes. But he'd fixed it so he could pop out of the little transom-like window whenever his evil genii moved him. Bob thought the window was nailed closed and painted over, but Tom, while he was suposed to be in there sleeping it off at various times, had very cunningly pulled the nails loose and run a sharp knife around the edge of the window, unsealing it. He could put the nails back in place at will and everything would appear tightly closed."

Stephanie's eyes clung to Reddy's face admiringly: "Then Tom really wasn't the drunkard he pretended to be?"

"Tom drank almost constantly, but he could consume a prodigious amount of it and still be capable of functioning pretty adeguately. But, we've figured out that, on several occasions, it suited Tom's purpose to pretend inebriation."

Hagar was staring into space: "It gives me the creeps. Just imagine that white-haired little man up to all that hocus-pocus! Crawling in and out of that window like the devil's trained monkey. How'd he get up to it?"

"Packing boxes in the alley outside; a table, inside. He'd always lock the door of Bob's back room, of course, to make sure no one blundered in and found him gone."

Stephanie tilted her head thoughtfully: "The thing I would most like to know is where the cameo fits in. How did Martin Falter get it?"

Reddy squinted up at the ceiling: Well, at this point, we just have to fit the pieces together and hope we're right. Falter evidently had figured out a way to blackmail Nell. Maybe by threatening to turn the letters over to Tom. She gave him the cameo to keep him quiet. Then, when she found out that Yakov was prepared to offer an outlandish sum for the locket, she decided to make a deal with Falter and keep half of the money for herself. After Falter was murdered, of course, the whole thing became a game of button, button, who's got the cameo."

Hagar jammed her fist under her nose and peered over it at Reddy: "Have you figured out who made that date to meet me at Dana Point? And who it was that bashed me over the head?"

"Andrey Yakov. In his statement to Chief Peters, Yakov said he and Nell had planned to get you out of town so they could search your studio. Nell did the searching."

Hagar stuck out her chin: "Why that misbegotten, mealy-mouthed —" she spluttered helplessly as she seemed to search for a word.

"He did say that he was pained to the heart to strike the charming lady. Also, that he tried to be very gentle."

"Ha! Gentle!" Hagar rubbed the top of her head reminiscently.

Stephanie gave Hagar a look of sympathy, then turned back to Reddy:

"Why did Tom kill Nellya?"

"Tom and Nell had a showdown there apparently. He followed her when she came here to search for the cameo. Yakov told us he arrived at Hagar's just in time to see Tom sneaking away—he concluded Tom killed her, but, according to his old world code, it was a crime passionel, and he decided to keep his mouth shut until things developed a little further."

Hagar again rubbed her head. "Him and his old world code."

There was a short silence. The muted hiss of the gas heater marked the time.

Hagar got to her feet. "Dolorosa'll be quiet enough now to hear the voice of a turtle— the way it should be. Maybe we can all get some work done for a change." She started out toward the kitchen where the smell of strong coffee drifted out. "I've got to get at some carvings of heads in my studio one of these days. I think I'll do Yakov's first—that'll be one way of getting even with him. I'll take it down and present it to him in jail—if he goes to jail."

"He probably won't," Reddy answered.

Hagar rattled cups and saucers. "I'll get back to my sculpting," she called. "Stephanie'll get back to her writing—"

She appeared with the coffee pot: "As long as we're getting all the mysteries unraveled, maybe you'll tell me now what kind of deathless prose you write!"

Stephanie's cheeks colored.

"I write— I write children's stories. I've started a series of books about Trumpy and Tatters."

Reddy looked at her gravely. "And who are Trumpy and Tatters?"

Stephanie stared fixedly at the windows. "A baby elephant and a monkey," she admitted.

He grabbed Stephanie close and buried his laughter in her hair.

"Thank the lord," he chuckled. "I was afraid I might have an Emily Bronte on my hands."

HOUSE HUNTING: "My husband and I live in two rooms, pay high rent. We have no conveniences and very little privacy. We have saved $1,500 cash to apply on a house. Could Central Mortgage and Housing help us? What are N.H.A. terms?"

The National Housing Act was set up for just such people as you. Write or drop in personally to Central Mortgage and Housing headquarters, 395 Fleet Street West, Toronto. You will be assured of sympathetic co-operation there.

TASTE SENSE: "Almost a year ago I lost my sense of taste. The doctor tells me it will come back but I am beginning to despair as the time drags on. I like good food but there is no pleasure eating it now. What hope is there for me?"

Our medical advisers tell us that the sense of taste will return after lying fallow for months. Says our doctor "Keep away from unduly hot beverages or highly spiced food." And whether or not it may seem to you ridiculous, chewing gum vociferously will help you recover your sense of taste.

RECURRENT TONSILS: "I have developed infected tonsils for the second time. My neighbor tells me there is a clinic at some hospital where I could go and have them clipped with a local anaesthetic and little or no bleeding. She tells me you just walk in and walk out. Do you know where this clinic is located?"

Any Out Patients Department of any hospital will give you an examination and will advise you as to your procedure from there on.

FIERCE BATTLE RAGES IN AND AROUND TAEJON

CAPTURE OF A COMMUNIST SNIPER

Shouting that he wants to surrender, a communist North Korean guerrilla (top) tries unsuccessfully to look like an innocent civilian as a U.S. soldier, carbine in readiness, orders him from his hiding place on the Taejon front. The guerrilla fighter (bottom) holds his hands aloft as Pte. Wayne E. Parsons, of Jenkins, Ky., searches him. His weapons were found later, hidden in underbrush. — Central Press Canadian.

Recruiting Drive for 8,000 Men Launched by Canada

Ottawa, July 20 — (CP) — The armed forces today launched a big new recruiting drive for 6,000 to 8,000 men who will, among other things, open the way for expansion of regular air fighter strength to at least four times its present level.

These factors shaped up , as defence headquarters waded into a new phase based on the perils emerging from Korea:

1. The recruiting drive will still adhere to the present tough admission standards but consideration is being given to lowering them if they prevent enough men coming in. In some fields—fighter pilots, for instance — it would be pointless to lower the standards because men below them probably couldn't qualify.

2. Shortage of candidates qualified to be fighter pilots is one of the bars to fighter expansion that should see the number of regular squadrons raised from two to five next year. Five squadrons, an authoritative source said, is not the limit. Eight would quadruple the present setup and this is considered likely.

3. Less than 24 hours after Cabinet decided on expansion, newspapers all across the country carried large ads calling for recruits.

4. Fighter plane production is being "more than doubled" and the orders for the F86 and CF100 jet planes are being increased. Until the three prototypes for the new naval sub-killer are advanced, it would be pointless to order more of those.

5. Army tank and artillery weapons and equipment are in an intermediate stage of development, forestalling orders at this stage. But some army equipment is being purchased.

6. Canada would not produce her own tanks. She would buy them from the U.S.

BREAKS BIG TOE

Kingston, Ont., July 20 (CP)—Rita Sherry of St. Louis, Mo., tried so hard to avoid a collision with another car Wednesday that she broke her big toe when she slammed on her brakes. She didn't make it either—damage to her car was estimated at $250.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS:

Toronto, July 20 (CP)—Synopsis: A disturbance, presently near Buffalo, gave rain to the southern sections of the province last night but it pushed rapidly eastward and the rain moved out of the province by noon today with skies clearing by evening. Patchy clouds and a few light, widely-scattered showers spoiled the generally clear skies in Northern Ontario last night but these will dissipate and allow temperatures to rise a little higher than on Wednesday. Friday will be sunny and warmer throughout the province.

Mom Has Second Set Quadruplets, Dazed Pop Moans 'Never Again'

Cantanzaro, Italy, July 20 — (Reuters)—Marianna Lioi, 32-year-old Italian peasant's wife, gave birth here yesterday to her second set of quadruplets in two years.

All boys, the quads were born in the seventh month of pregnancy. The doctor in charge of Cantanaro hospital said mother and babies were "doing splendidly.".

Mrs. Lioi sighed resignedly when the hospital's obstetrician told her she was the mother of a second set of quads. She murmured, "more work for us."

She works beside her husband all day in the fields in the hard plains of calabria, in the extreme south of Italy, as well as tending house, husband and children.

The father, Domenico Lioi, a gnarled, prematurely-aged man of 40, declared: "Never again."

"How can we live? Can we afford to feed 10 mouths on the money I make?"

The Calabrian peasants, when they have work, earn about 500 lire a day. (At official rates there are 650 lire to the dollar.) Sometimes they work only a few months in the year.

Dr. Giovanni Romaniello, the hospital obstetrician, said he expected the four boys to live, despite their premature birth.

The first set of quads, two boys and two girls now aged two, greeted the announcement of the arrival of a crowd of small brothers with notable lack of enthusiasm.

They were reported to be as healthy as the children of poverty-stricken peasants can be—in other words, delicate when young but strengthening as they grow older.

MILLIONS ADDED TO DEFENCE COSTS BY NEW PROGRAM

Grave Decisions May Lie Ahead--St. Laurent

Ottawa, July 20. (CP)—The Korean war has blown the lid off Canada's defence costs, already at an all-time peacetime high.

Following a Cabinet meeting yesterday, the government authorized an immediate, wide program that will add millions to the defence budget.

And there is no indication that the program of accelerated Canadian defence effort—adding possibly 8,000 men to the regular forces, doubling the production rate of fighter planes and providing additional aid to the United Nations in Korea—represents the end of Canadian military preparations.

However, one significant phrase in a statement issued yesterday by Prime Minister St. Laurent was that "grave decisions may lie ahead".

Historical Documents, Maps Get New Home

Toronto, July 20. (CP)—A new home may be opened this Fall for a $500,000 collection of historical maps and documents tracing the development of Canada and Ontario. The collection will be housed in a new building near the University of Toronto Library. The funds came from Dr. Sidmund Samuel, who also turned over one of the most extensive collections in North America, and the Ontario government.

TWO DRIVERS HELD

Toronto, July 20 — (CP)—Two Toronto transport drivers were arrested early today on a charge of theft and receiving a radio. The radio is believed to have been stolen from the General Motors plant in Oshawa. Police identified the pair as Fred Murray, 41, and Robert Eagen, 29.

Hoodlums May Use Saws Now

Superior, Wis., July 20. (AP)—Vandals will have a hard time carrying away the new barber pole in front of the shop of John Grant and Felix Cross. Young hoodlums have carted off several, even though they weighed up to 200 pounds.

When city workers came to cut down a tree in front of the shop, the barbers asked them to saw it off six feet from the ground. Then they painted on bright red, white and blue stripes.

Said Grant, "I think we have 'em stumped now."

Justice Minister Garson Raps Communist Aggression In Address at Presqu'Ile

Trenton (Staff Special) — Hon. Stuart Garson, Minister of Justice, speaking to a joint Northumberland and South Hastings Liberal picnic at Presqu'Ile Point Wednesday afternoon said, "What is really taking place in the world today, is a war of ideas — a conflict between those who believe in freedom and those who believe in dictatorship."

Mr. Garson had promised to address the joint gathering before a special meeting of the cabinet was called in Ottawa at 11 a.m. Wednesday to "deal with the serious Korean crisis." The Minister of Justice left the cabinet meeting at 1 p.m. and flew to Trenton RCAF Station in a Department of Transport aircraft and flew back to Ottawa last night.

"Appeasement nearly brought us to the brink of ruin before," said Mr. Garson "and this time, when faced with "naked aggression", the United Nations, dedicated to maintaining peace in the world, has employed force to protect the victim of aggression instead of passing resolutions."

"The only alternative method to that adopted by President Truman and the U.N.—that of letting totalitarian states gain control over one free country after another—never got the free countries anywhere. The free countries have learned the hard way, that if they do not stand together, they run the great hazard of falling one by one.

Facing Great Danger

"We are facing great dangers in this conflict between two sets of political and economic ideas. The real issue is which of two methods of production and distribution of wealth is the right method," said Mr. Garson.

"We of the free countries whose ideas are based on Christian humility do not try to impose our ideas on others. But the omniscient communists, thinking they have the supreme quintessence of wisdom and judgment say "this is our idea of how wealth should be created and distributed and in this world, both yours and ours cannot survive'. They have repeatedly stated their intention of establishing the rightness of their opinions by revolutionary methods."

"In this war of ideas, freedom is the greatest weapon," stated the Minister of Justice. "The best way to make this effective is by demonstrating to the great mass of people in the world, that we who believe in freedom have a better time, materially, spiritually and morally, than anyone living in a totalitarian country can possibly have. We who have enjoyed freedom and know its value are under the absolute responsibility of doing everything we can to make our free society work."

World Faces Many Adjustments

Warning that apart altogether from the possibility of any war, the world still faces some great political, financial and economic adjustments, Mr. Garson said that these adjustments were bound to affect a trading nation like Canada which does so much of her business with other lands and is therefore more exposed to conditions in other countries.

Conditions in many of these countries have never been worse, but the present government which led Canada out of the depression has handled the changeover from war to peace in a masterly manner and has provided employment for a million more workers than were employed before the war as well as discharged members of the armed forces and those released from war production.

In meeting this challenge of world conditions, Mr. Garson said he knew of no single step more important "than the achievement of maximum co-operation" between the federal and provincial governments. "There is no alternative to this co-operation," he declared. "Therefore the only alternative open to us is to make our constitution work as well as we can."

Progress in Constitutional Reforms

Terming the constitutional reforms introduced by the federal government last year as the greatest progress in the field of internal constitutional development since confederation, Mr. Garson said that judging by the progress which has been made to date, there are good grounds for expecting that the plenary constitutional conference which will meet in September will achieve some worthwhile results."

Mr. Garson emphasized that the Liberal party has "always stood for provincial rights and many of those rights were won by Sir Oliver Mowatt, Liberal Premier of Ontario, in a series of court actions against the Conservative federal government headed by Sir John A. Macdonald.

Austrian Forced To Remove Sign

Vienna, Austria, July 20—An Austrian who painted a "Hands Off Korea" sign on a Vienna sidewalk was later forced by American military police to remove it with a brick and a bucket of water, the communist "Volksstimme" reported.

American authorities admitted the incident occurred in the American sector of Vienna.

Truman's Mobilization Call Hailed as Historic Move By Western Europe Press

London, July 20. (AP)—Western Europe today hailed President Truman's mobilization call as a historic move in the fight against aggression.

In Britain and a number of other countries the firmness of American policy was hailed as heartening evidence of American unity in the face of dangers.

"This time the reply to menaces is unmistakable," said the Times.

The reaction on the part of the communist press was quite the contrary.

"Say no to America," exclaimed the London Daily Worker. "Not a penny, not a man for MacArthur's war."

But the general chorus was one of acclaim.

"President Truman's latest message to Congress is also a message of hope for the world of free men," said the London Daily Mail.

The Daily Telegraph said: "The men of the Kremlin. . .like Hitler and Mussolini before them . . . .had mistaken the disinclination of the democracies to arm themselves in time of peace as moral decadence, and their forebearance in face of innumerable provocations as evidence of material weakness. . . President Truman has resoundingly dispelled such illusions."

The Conservative Frankfurter Allgemaine Zeitung in West Germany expressed doubt that the $10,000,000,000 asked by the President will be sufficient.

The Leftist France Tireur in Paris said that Stalin, whatever he may have been hoping for in Korea, has achieved "the moral and material mobilization of America."

The French Communist organ L'Humanite published news of the President's message under a headline saying, "Grave threats of Truman against peace",

In Rome, the Conservative Independent Il Messaggero hailed the American step.

ALL-OUT WAR OR UNEASY PEACE SAYS TRUMAN

Decision is Up to Stalin Is Diplomatic Comment

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, July 20. (AP)—President Truman's decision to rally the power of the United States against expanding communist strength puts squarely up to Russia the decision on whether the world is to move toward all-out war or a new, uneasy peace.

Diplomatic authorities here said the next move in the crisis is clearly up to Moscow—now that the President has backed up his stop-aggression policy with initial preparation to fight where necessary.

Truman administration leaders remained hopeful that the Kremlin would heed the President's warning and choose a peaceful course. They did not rule out, however, the possibility that the Kremlin has decided on war and now may unfold a policy to that end.

Amphibious Duck Again at Sea

Halifax, July 20 (CP)—Ben Carlin and his Boston-born wife have put to sea again in their amphibious duck, a converted jeep, and apparently are headed for the Azores, it was learned today.

The couple, who tried the crossing twice already, slipped out of the harbor yesterday without informing authorities.

They hope to sail and drive their half-boat half-car around the world.

The Carlins set out from New York in July, 1948, but after seven days an engine bearing broke. They drifted for 10 days before they were picked up by a tanker and taken to Montreal.

Last September they tried again—this time out of Halifax. They sailed only a short distance out of the harbor and then returned because conditions weren't favorable.

Carlin is a 38-year-old Australian and former major in the Indian army. His wife worked for a time in a law office while awaiting the Atlantic adventure.

Irate Housewives Stop Roadwork

Reading, Pa., July 20. (AP)—A band of broom-wielding housewives halted work on a highway extension— protesting that unloading of loose cement was spreading a grey dust over their washlines, breakfast cereal and even their hair.

They converged on the Reading Company rail yards yesterday, demanding the unloading be stopped.

City Council instructed the contractor to find a new site.

Meanwhile, work on the highway project near Morgantown, Pa., was stopped—no cement.

U.S. Army's King-Sized Bazooka Does Well in First Battlefield Test

Tokyo, July 20—(AP)— The United States army's king-sized bazooka—the new 3.5 inch ground rocket-launcher—knocked out an official seven of seven communist tanks today in its first battlefield test at Taejon, Korea.

Front-line dispatches said an eight tank later was knocked out.

The weapon was manufactured and transported from the United States in only a few days.

The new recoil-less weapon was described as a modern version of the Second World War bazooka except that it is larger and is fired from the shoulder. The old bazooka fired a 2.36-inch rocket.

The new weapon is designed primarily for close fire. But it also can be used against "fortified positions." in covering a specific area its effect is similar to a round from an 81-millimetre mortar, a communique from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said.

The 3.5-inch rocket launcher is a two-piece, smooth-bore weapon of the open-tube type. It is electrically operated. Amunition is approximately 23 inches long and weighs slightly more than eight pounds.

The gunner uses a reflecting sight which enables him to keep focused on targets moving up to 40 miles an hour.

City in Flames As Troops Locked In Bitter Fighting

Enemy Dressed in Civilian Clothes Infiltrates Lines

Tokyo, July 20 —(CP)— American and North Korean troops tonight were engaged in fierce fighting around Taejon, some field dispatches said the key rail and highway junction has been abandoned by its defenders.

Reuters said the last Americans were ordered out of the blazing city at dusk after a day of street fighting in which they took a heavy toll of invading tanks. A communist drive farther west also was reported making progress.

A spokesman at United States Military Headquarters in Korea said the army had lost touch with Gen. William F. Dean, commander of the U.S. 24th Division fighting at Taejon, but added: "That does not mean he is missing."

U. S. troops were credited with knocking out at least 11 of the score or more of tanks which the north Koreans flung against Taejon, which had served as provisional capital of south Korea since the fall of Seoul.

Cling to City

Using a new 3.5 rocket gun capable of piercing the heavy north Korean armor, the Americans clung to the city stubbornly. An American fighter pilot back from a mission to the area described it as "burning like hell."

The communist attack on Taejon began before dawn Thursday. Twenty tanks lumbered out of the darkness, many with infantry perched on their sides.

Bazookas checked the advance, but the ground troops came on. Many of them, dressed as civilians, sneaked into Taejon behind the Americans and began a grim game of hide-and-seek through the rough, unpaved alleys among tightly-shuttered shops and houses.

Official reports from U.S. eighth army headquarters in Korea said the 24th division still held Taejon at the end of a bitter day of fighting.

11 Tanks Knocked Out

A spokesman said U.S. troops knocked out 11 enemy tanks in the area in 24 hours.

He also said north Korean forces on unknown strength were reported in Chonju early Thursday in a drive south along the western side of the Korean peninsula. American planes attacked Chonju and Kumje. This indicated that Kumje also was in enemy hands.

The Chonju-Kumje are is about 40 air miles southwest of fallen Taejon.

A south Korean army spokesman said the enemy entered Yechon on the central front today but later was driven out with 400 casualties.

Yechon is between Hamchang and Andong.

Reuters said the withdrawal was completed when the 34th regiment of the 24th division left the city.

But the latest Red victory was costly.

50 Planes Destroyed

Communist armor suffered heavily as the Americans, aided by a new anti-tank weapon, knocked out at least eight tanks. The Allied air force punished the north Koreans both on the ground and in the air. At least 50 Red planes were destroyed by Allied aircraft in the last two days.

A note of optimism was sounded by Gen. MacArthur, United Nations commander. He said the invaders already have lost their "one great chance" for victory by failing. to knock out south Korea before U.S. forces blunted their drive.

Kenneth Lummiss Sustains Injuries In Car Crash

Kenneth Lummiss, employee of Bonn Motor Sales, was admitted to hospital early today complaining of chest injuries suffered as result of a motor accident just east of Trenton.

Police reported an eastbound car driven by George A. Meyers, R. R. 7 Trenton, had stopped off the pavement to allow a passenger to alight. A following car operated by Gerald McNally, Westport, slowed to pass the Meyers auto, when a third car in which Lummiss and Clarence Johnston were riding crashed into the rear of the McNally auto and then swerved to strike the Meyers car.

Mrs. Meyers was also taken to hospital but was permitted to return home.

New Executive Appointments Made by Bakelite

Announcement is made by the Bakelite Company (Canada) of the appointment of Mr. W. A. Campbell, formerly sales manager of the company, to the position of manager of a newly-formed sales development department.

The new department is designed to seek out new uses in industry for products and processes in the pre-commercial stage and to further their application prior to routine commercial sales.

Mr. Campbell, who has had a long record of experience with the company, is well fitted for this position due to his wide knowledge of all phases of the plastic industry.

The appointment of Mr. F. Perry Wilson as sales manager was also announced, taking the position vacated by the promotion of Mr. Campbell.

WILL OFFICIATE

Montreal, July 20 — (CP) — Col. G. Walter Peacock of Toronto, retired chief secretary of the Salvation Army in Canada, will officiate at a memorial service here July 30 for General Evangeline Booth, former World Commander of the Army, who died in Hartsdale, N.Y., Monday.

Canon Sparling Named Rector Edmonton Cathedral

The Rev. Canon J. Grant Sparling, rector of Christ Church, has accepted the office of Dean of the Diocese of Edmonton and rector of All Saint's Cathedral in the city of Edmonton. The invitation to assume this important post was extended to Canon Sparling by the Lord Bishop of the Edmonton Diocese, a short time ago. He will assume his new office on October 1st., and will have the title of Very Reverend.

Since coming to this city about six years ago, Canon Sparling has done a marvelous work in Christ Church Parish and he also lent his talents and great energy to the furtherance of other worthy undertakings outside his parochial duties. He is a veteran of the First Great War and served as chaplain in Canada during the Second Great War. It was shortly after the close of the last war when he became rector of Christ Church. His parishioners and citizens as a whole regret exceedingly the departure of Canon Sparling from this city.

W. Thompson, Ontario County M.P., Will Contest Liberal Leadership

Trenton — (Special) — Walter Thompson, M.P. for the federal riding of Ontario county, announced at a Liberal picnic at Presqu'Ile Point Wednesday afternoon that he would contest the leadership of the Ontario Liberal party at the Ontario Liberal convention this fall.

Since the resignation of Farquhar Oliver as Ontario Liberal leader early this year, the post has been vacant, with Mr. Oliver carrying on as House leader in the Ontario legislature.

Mr. Thompson was elected to the House of Commons in last federal elections.

Rooms of Three Hotel Guests Entered During Night, $246 in Cash Stolen

Failure of a Toronto salesman to realize it was not his travelling partner looking out his hotel window cost him and his fellow traveller just $173 in cash early this morning.

Minutes later the now fully awake hotel guest investigated a bit more closely and discovered strangers had been in their adjoining hotel rooms at the Queens Hotel and had disappeared with all their cash and an electric razor.

Police believe that the same strangers were also busy at the Hotel Quinte where a guest complained that his hotel room had been entered while he slept and his purse rifled of $73 in cash.

Mr. G. Spratt and Ray Nicholl, Toronto representatives of the same firm, had adjoining rooms at the Queen Hotel and today admitted one of them had gone to bed without locking his door.

Some time before six a.m. two strangers were seen to enter the hotel and go upstairs. Fifteen minutes later they came back down stairs and disappeared outside the hotel.

It is one of these two men whom police believe that the Toronto traveller mistook for his fellow guest looking out the hotel window.

"There definitely appears to be a connection between the two thefts," Police Inspector J. C. Hayes stated today. "Undoubtedly the two thefts were done by the same two men.

Solve Problem Of First Aid In Arctic Area

Montreal, July 20—(CP)—Canada's military medical men have solved the problem of giving first aid under Arctic field conditions except for blood transfusions, Col. J. N. B. Crawford, director-general of the Canadian army medical services, said today.

"We have definitely got the answer to the treatment of casualties under conditions of extreme cold," he told the sixth meeting of the armed forces field medical material group, a tri-nation conference.

Canadians had carried on field research for several years in the matter of treating wounded under extreme temperature conditions.

To give a man a blood transfusion under conditions of extreme cold is one of the things still baffling us," he said. "Under present conditions we have to take a man back into shelter before we can give him a transfusion."

About 150 delegates from the armed services of Britain, the U.S. and Canada are attending the sessions.

Passenger Binds Woman to Tree, Robs Her of $25

Huntsville, July 20 — (CP) — Bound to a tree after her passenger produced a gun on a lonely road, Mrs. Roy Phillips, driver of her husband's taxi, was robbed of $25 last night.

Mrs. Phillips, who freed herself and telephoned police, said a young man she had never seen before ordered a cab for a five-mile trip. In the country, he ordered her to drive along a side road and stop. A confederate appeared and the two bound and robbed her.

One of the men drove away in the taxi, the other in a car parked nearby. The Phillips car was later found intact on a main highway near here.

ARMS SHIPMENT

Windsor, Ont., July 20 (CP)—United States tanks and field artillery, believed to be the first shipment of U.S. arms to enter Canada through Windsor in recent years, rolled through freight yards here Wednesday. JUSTICE MINISTER

Pointing to Dominion-provincial taxation and Trans-Canada Highway agreements with eight provinces as evidence of the ever increasing co-operation between the Dominion and the provinces in the national interest, the Justice Minister said that in six provinces the taxpayers were saved money by Dominion-provincial agreements providing for one police force—the RCMP — which enforces both provincial and federal laws. "In addition, I signed just a few days ago, a new police agreement with the province of Newfoundland and negotiations with the province of British Columbia are proceeding at the present time," said Mr. Garson.

All Governments Must Co-Operate

"To meet the conditions with which the Canadian people and Canadian governments generally are faced it is the duty of all Canadian governments to work together to formulate policies which will continue to assure Canadians of the welfare and prosperity which they have been enjoying during the past several years."

Mr. Garson was introduced by Senator W. A. Fraser and thanked by Leonard Gordon, Colborne, president of the Northumberland Liberal Association. Other speakers were Frank Follwell, M.P., South Hastings, Dr. Fred Robertson, M.P., Northumberland, Walter Thompson, M.P., Ontario and Irving McGaughey, Trenton, president of South Hastings Liberal Association.

Trenton Lions Club band was in attendance during the afternoon and evening, and following an afternoon of sports events, the ladies served a basket lunch on the lawn just east of Presqu'Ile hotel.

Leopold is Voted Back to Throne

Brussels, July 20 — (AP) — King Leopold was voted back to his throne by the Belgian Parliament today.

He has been in exile in Switzerland since the war. The question of bringing him back split Belgium badly for months, with the Socialists particularly being bitterly opposed to his return.

A joint session of both Houses of Parliament, cast 198 affirmative votes for Leopold's return, with most opposition Socialists, Liberals and Communists abstaining in protest. There are 387 members in both houses.

The decision was on legislation to end the regency of Prince Charles, Leopold's brother.

The opposition to Leopold was based in the main on his early surrender to the Germans in 1940 and his marriage in 1945 to a Flemish commoner after the death of his queen.

The abstainers marched from the Chamber before the vote, leaving the pro-king Social Christians to vote Leopold's return. Paul-Henri Spaak, Socialist leader and former premier, said the Social Christians in so doing had accomplished "one of the gravest and most disastrous acts of our history."

Outside the Chamber, the opposition parliament members paraded to the Royal Palace to pay one final tribute to Prince Charles.

Even with all members voting, the Social Christians would have had sufficient strength to carry the day. The final ballot came after eight stormy days of speech-making which climaxed a year of political manoeuvring, a plebiscite, an election, strikes and strife.

After approving the end of the regency and restoration of the king, the Social Christians adopted a tribute to Prince Charles, for having exercised his regency "in a manner which has maintained the prestige of the country and the union of the nation."

Only Parliament could end the regency, the first step necessary for effecting Leopold's return.

Fast-Growing Industry Started by Veteran

Grimsby, July 20 — (CP) — Doug Scott, an R.C.A.F. veteran who started in 1946 with an idea and his gratuities, is the only Canadian manufacturer of split bamboo fly fishing rods. Scott formerly worked for a Grimsby plant, now defunct, which assembled spit bamboo rods brought in ready-cut from the U.S. He has had to move his plant four times to accommodate the demand, and now has a staff of eight working for him.

IN MEMORIAM

REID — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Acile A. Reid who passed away July 20, 1943.

Those whom we love go out of sight
But never out of mind,
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they leave behind.

Ever remembered by wife, daughters Pearl, Marvel, Ruth, sons, Morley and Malcolm. J20

WOOD — In loving memory of a dear brother and son, William (Bill) Wood, who passed away nine years ago today.

There's a road we call Remembrance
Where thoughts and wishes meet,
We take that road in thought today,
For the one we cannot greet,
Dearest Bill as the years depart,
Your memory lives within our heart
With tender love and deep regret,
We who loved you will never forget.

Sadly missed by mother, sisters and brother. J20

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 20 — (CP) — Prices continued their steady upward swing for the third straight session at the Toronto stock exchange today. Key industrial stocks gained strongly from fractions to almost two points. Volume for the first three hours was 1,027,000.

Winnipeg Electric held the spotlight on the industrial board, suddenly jumping $6 to $37.50. Dominion Stores rose 1¼ at 40¼, on news of a proposed four-to-one stock split. Others ahead included C.P.R., Consolidated Paper, Hiram Walker's and Imperial Oil.

Base metals also forged ahead as steady buying boosted Noranda, Hudson Bay and International Smelters. Noranda added 1¼ at 66¾. East Sullivan, a feature of recent sessions, rose 20 cents to $6.70.

The western oil advance was slow and steady. Calgary and Edmonton gained 30 cents at $7.10 and Home Oil and Royalite gained fractions.

Leading junior gold producers chalked up advances ranging to 20 cents in comparatively dull dealings.

Tornadoes Hit Ohio Communities, 20 Injured

Lima, O., July 20. (A)—Tornadoes hit two Ohio communities and a tiny West Texas town yesterday. Some 20 persons were injured adn property damage was heavy.

A child was killed by lightning in a storm that hit near Quitaque, Tex., about 60 miles north of Lubbock. A tornado struck Ropesville, a town of about 1,000 18 miles southwest of Lubbock.

Some 300 homes were damaged and a score of persons hurt in the tornado that swept across Lima, a city of about 50,000. Another twister struck at Van Wert, Ohio, 27 miles west of Lima, damaging several farm buildings.

Tag Ends at Windsor

Windsor, Ont., — (CP) — The tag ends of two spent tornadoes hit this border area last night, bringing winds and heavy rain for a seven-hour period.

No heavy property damage was reported, but power lines were broken in many places when tree branches were blown against them. Power failures affected about one-fifth of the city, with seven primary high-tension wires down.

Grace Hospital was lighted for about two hours by its own generating system.

Most of the city's power was restored by this morning.

The winds and rain storms hit the Ohio towns of Lima and Van Wert late yesterday, injuring at least 38 persons.

The weather office in Windsor said 1½ inches of rain fell during a seven-hour period.

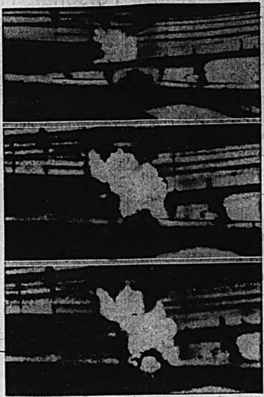
THREE STRIKES AND THE TANK IS OUT



A rocket from a jet fighter is high of the target (top) as a communist tank rolls along a highway in the western sector of the Korean battlefront. A second salvo of rockets (centre) just misses the mark but the third strike by the F-80 scores and the tank (bottom) catches fire and explodes. — Central Press Canadian.

Recall Indian Days at Banff

Banff, Alta., — (CP) — A throwback to the early days of the west, Banff Indian days will unfold July 20-23 before thousands of visitors thronging this mountain resort as they have done since 1889.

Indian tribes — Stonys, Cree, Blackfoot, Saracee and others—will parade through Banff streets. They will wear eagle-feathered headdress and richly beaded deerskin garments, riding horses decked in traitional Indian style. With the braves will be the squaws and papooses.

The three-day program will include trials of skill, folk dances and ancient rites.

Banff Indian days originated in in 1889 when a summer flood stranded four C.P.R. trains and their 600 pasengers at the town.

The isolated group needed entertainment. So Tom Wilson, the man who discovered Lake Louise, went to the Indians camped on the flats at the base of Cascade Mountain and organized horse races for the braves. The trains' pasengers loved the show.

Well-fed, the Indians also were pleased. They returned the following year for more races. Since then Indian days has been the highlight of the summer season at Banff.

NO TAIL ON CALF

Markham, July 20 — (CP) — A Jersey calf without a tail was born on the farm of A. G. Little here, it was reported Wednesday. The calf — normal in other respects — showed no marking where the tail should have been.

CANADA AND WORLD TRADE

Canada, as a world trader and manufacturer, has changed her character since the turn of the century. From "Canada . . . Land of Hope," a publication issued by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, we learn that agriculture has been losing its workers to industry since 1900, and that the overall total employed in industry today far exceeds that in agriculture.

At the beginning of the twentieth century, two of every five workers were in agriculture; that ratio has now dropped to one in every five. At the same time, the ratio for manufacturing has risen from one worker in six in 1901 to one in four today. Much of this, the booklet says, is due to two world wars, which necessarily advanced the need for industry, and only added to Canada's natural industrial expansion.

The growth of industry and the steps to which it can drive itself are illustrated by this country's war production. At the first of the Second World War, aircraft production in Canada amounted to approximately forty planes annually. By 1943, that total had risen to more than 4,000 aircraft per year. From September, 1939, to August, 1944, Canadian manufacturers turned out a billion dollars worth of heavy ammunition and four billion rounds of small ammunition. In addition, this country became, by 1941, the prime supplier of motorized equipment for the Commonwealth.

This industrial growth has aided the establishment of Canada's place in international trade. Even before the war, Canada enjoyed fifth place in world trade, with less than one per cent of the global population. During World War II, this nation rose to third place in world trade.

It seems paradoxical that the chief exports from Canada, in spite of a moving industrial scene, should be mostly natural. Wood and wood products, pulp and paper are the largest single exporting goods. Next in line are products from agriculture and vegetables. Much of this trade has been since the war when relief and rehabilitation of European countries have provided export outlets.

Canada, considered by some the "baby" nation, the land of the snows and the Mounties and not much else, is justifying her position as a global entity through her trade.

TOURISTS GRATEFUL

In a recent letter to the Picton Gazette, four Ohio men praised the treatment they had received as tourists in Canada and particularly in Prince Edward County. They had only one objection to offer—that they were allowed to take only one day's catch of fish back to Ohio.

This restriction, the Ohioans felt, would discourage the visitor traffic in due time, meaning loss in revenue to the operators of resorts and dissatisfaction to the tourists. But there is one more important point not considered.

These men considered that a drive from 500 to 700 miles warranted more than one day's fishing catch to take home. We would ask them to consider the effects of such an order rescinding that rule. They would, in effect, be slitting their own throats and the throats of district operators. The sooner the catch is depleted, the faster our vacationland will deteriorate.

Operators of the Provincial Department of Lands and Forests with regard to restocking of fish are going ahead as fast as possible, but they cannot hope to keep up with the fishermen at the present rate. Expansion of the department is going on, with new methods of raising fingerlings and restocking rivers and lakes being investigated fully.

We are glad, as always, to have our American visitors, but we would ask them to consider both their future and ours in this country. Game laws that are too lax can only destroy what we both have. We have no wish to be Mother Hubbards with a bare cupboard.

DEW

If you have never observed dew attentively, purchase an inexpensive hand lens and add another subject to your nature interests. Each drop of dew on a sunlit morning is a brilliant mirror. The image is upside down, but if you look closely you may see a white cloud or a nearby tree. A long grass blade is frequently a picture of symmetrical beauty with a large dew drop at the blade point and many smaller drops spaced evenly along the edges. A web on the lawn is often an intricate, jewelled pattern of a multitude of tiny, sparkling water drops. Study the leaves of strawberries and the wild clovers; they have beautiful dew arrangements on the knobby points of their serrated foliage.

Go out at dawn on a cool morning; get down on your knees and study one of Nature's most interesting phenomena. It is a part of the intricate system of checks and balances that governs plant life on our planet. — New York Times.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright, 1950, Edgar A. Guest)

GARDEN SPOILER

When Jannie was a child of three,
With eager hands and quick
The first bright blooms she chanced to see
Out in the yard she'd pick.
All heedless of the damage done
To plants on which they grew,
Shouting to mother she would run:
"A nice bouquet for you."

The rose stem is a sturdy thing,
But she had strength to spare
To get the first bud blossoming
Which she discovered there.
Though ruin followed in her wake,
The garden she'd destroy
To pick one flower that she could take
For mamma to enjoy.

No matter what I did or said,
How great the fuss I made,
I could not keep my flower bed
From being disarrayed.
When I insisted she must stop
That flower-picking child,
"Perhaps I'd better call a "cop!"
Said mother as she smiled.

Now, Janet has a garden gay
With roses of her own,
And a little boy who tears away
The first bright blossoms grown.
"Daddy," she says, "he picks them all!
How can I make him stop?"
"Mother," I say, "when you were small,
Suggested: "Call a cop!"

50 YEARS AGO

July 20th., 1900

Mr. S. G. Chant, formerly with R. Templeton and Company, druggists, has accepted a position with a wholesale drug house in Toronto.

The Baptist Sunday School picnic to Twelve O'Clock Point today was largely attended.

Some very good catches of black bass are being made in the bay and also in the river above Corbyville. In the bay near Nigger Island the bass are biting freely.

Mr. George Brocker of Chicago, Ill., is visiting relatives here.

BENEATH THE SURFACE

There is nothing more terrible than the tossing of the sea in a storm. Yet, everyone who looks upon this terrifying scene is conscious of the fact that the agitation is wholly on the surface. Twenty fathoms down there is a great calm. The lower depths of the ocean are never disturbed by even the fiercest storm.

It is well to remember this and apply this truth in just such a time as now. The nations of the earth are being lashed furiously by one of the most terrifying storms that ever swept the earth. Yet, dreadful as this is, we can be sure that twenty fathoms down there is a great calm. The hatred which men of one country have for those of another is superficial compared with the extent to which these men, at the deeper levels of their lives, love the same things—home, friends, peace. And we can be sure that beneath the agitation of man's motives today, there are deep, calm purposes of God which will not be changed by this or any other agitation about power politics or economic systems. Twenty-five years from now this whole picture will probably change, and it will be remembered only as a bad dream. But men will still be singing "Hallelula; the Lord our God, the Almighty, reigneth."

It is well for us to remember when the storm blows the fiercest that there are certain depths in the life of God and man which no storm can ever disturb.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DON'T SCOLD!

There is one individual that none of us likes to encounter — the habitual scold. Nothing ever seems to be going right with such a one, so he tries to pass on his disgust or dissatisfaction. He buries his possible initiative and usefulness and tries to get followers — but he rarely does. People avoid him and dislike to meet him at any time.

Sad to relate, such an individual is often found in a family. He is usually the non-producer! He finds fault with others. He gives the impression that he can do any job better than the next fellow, but never does. He just scolds and nags.

There is the business scold, who makes a big fuss about minor errors, thus discouraging an otherwise willing worker. He gives no encouragement, when just that would oil up everything and create a sunny day out of a dark one. Many an otherwise fine worker is lost to a scolder who might have had an enthusiastic co-operator.

A child should be taught, not scolded. Children are sensitive individuals and keenly feel the cutting words driven their way through scolding. Don'ts have no place in the training of a child. Tell them what to do, correcting them kindly, when in error. Even a dog understands the value of kindness and helpful correction.

Many a boy has left home because of persistent scolding. Encouragement is what this world needs more than almost anything else. And it is so easy to give, and the results are often miraculous. Even the persistent scolder resents being scolded!

I know of a famous man who was scolded so greatly at his home that he left it. He became wealthy and influential in his city that he had adopted. That incident always saddened him, but it made him more tolerant toward others, and his kindliness was felt all about him among his hundreds of helpers in the many successes that he created through his courage and ability.

Don't scold back! Silence is a wonderful antidote. It never fails.

Personal Health Talks

CARE OF THE CHILD'S TEETH

At the age of two years the baby should have twenty teeth, which normally erupt or are cut as follows:

Four central incisors at 6 to 8 months, the lowers first.

Four lateral incisors at 7 to 9 months.

Four cuspids (canines) at 17 to 18 months.

Four first molars at 14 to 16 months.

Four second molars at the age of 18 to 24 months.

The child does not get the first permanent teeth (central incisors) until the age of 7 years (six to eight years) as a rule.

Whatever quaint notions people, doctors and even dentists today may still harbor in regard to the care or neglect of the temporary or "milk" or "baby" teeth, notions handed down by ignorant forebears, there is no longer any excuse for failing to have immediate care, advice and treatment by the dentist for decay, irregularity, injury to or loss of the so called "baby" teeth.

Sometimes parents mistake the permanent first molar, which the child gets at the age of six to eight years, for a "baby" tooth and fail to have proper dental treatment if the tooth decays or is injured or lost by accident, because they think it will soon be replaced by a new tooth. This is a mistake which may have unhappy consequences. The permanent first molar is the "keystone" of the dental arch—it is important in determining the alignment of the permanent teeth. Therefore decay in this tooth, should have immediate treatment by the dentist.

Neglect of decay in the "baby" teeth, that is failure to have cavities filled by the dentist before the cavities become too large, can no longer be justified on the crude assumption that the "baby" teeth will be lost in a few years anyway and replaced by the permanent teeth. If the temporary teeth are decayed, so will the permanent teeth decay before the last (third) molars, the so-called wisdom teeth" erupt.

On the other hand, if the "baby" teeth are preserved in good condition by prompt filling of cavities by the dentist and by good nutrition in infancy and childhood—a matter about which the family physician is best qualified to advise—the child has the advantage of a sound base for the development of the permanent teeth and a normal jaw and facial form or contour.

The second set, permanent teeth erupt as follows:

Four central incisors, 7 to 8 years.

Four lateral incisors, 7 to 8 years.

Four cuspids (canine teeth), 12 to 13 years.

Four first premolars (bicuspids), 10 to 11 years.

Four second molars, 11 to 12 years.

Third or last molars (wisdom teeth), 17 to 25 years.

In a survey of a large group of people some years ago it was found that from one to all four of the last molars (wisdom teeth) are missing in half of all adults over 25 years of age. From faulty development, nutritional deficiency, neglect of needed repairs of carious teeth in childhood and insufficient use of the jaws and teeth for mastication of natural food, the jaw and facial development does not provide sufficient room for the eruption of the third molars.

Some persons with defective jaw and face development suffer merely the physical inferiority associated with the defect.

Others suffer a good deal of trouble from neuralgia or other untoward effects of impacted wisdom teeth—that is, third molars that are so crowded they can't erupt, but the buried roots just irritate the jaw tissues. Only by surgical exhumation of the buried root or roots can the trouble be relieved.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Not Hereditary

My parents died with tuberculosis when I was a small child. I seem to be in perfect health now. X-rays I have had taken show no sign of it. Have heard people say it will attack me later. Is that true? (Mrs. M. M.)

Answer—If one or both parents have tuberculosis when a child is born of course the child is likely to catch it unless immediately removed from close association with the disease. But if the child escapes infection in infancy or childhood, there is no reason why he or she should develop the disease later in life. However, you are likely to contract tuberculosis as any one else is if you are exposed to the disease repeatedly or over a considerable period. I assume the X-rays were interpreted by your physician and the radiologist — your remark that you had the X-rays taken suggests that you may have messed around with a charlatan.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Personality—if not character—usually shows in the appearance of a man or woman. A bad-tempered person looks bad-tempered. A good-natured person radiates good nature. It is not merely a matter of facial expression. The eyes, the shape of jaw and mouth, even the carriage of the shoulders and other parts of the body, afford impressions of the personality within.

This gives rise to an interesting question: does the personality shape the body? Or does the body shape the personality? Does a man with an evil character slowly exude evil into his limbs and lineaments, until he looks evil? Or is a man born with the evil look and his character becomes evil as a consequence?

There can be no doubt that a lazy person usually looks lazy because the lazy charcter has conveyed to the body the obvious consequences of laziness. In the same way, an energetic person exhibits in the very shape and carriage of the body the vigorous spirit within.

But it goes a lot deeper than this. From a person's external appearance you can often read deeply into personality; into such things as honesty, dependability, stubbornness, irresponsibility, trustfulness, suspicion, greed. And all this before they have uttered a word, or relaxed a single facial expression. After thirty-five years as a newspaperman, I claim to be able to spot a gossip on sight. Male or female. It may be merely a delusion in me; but having made my living by obtaining information for publication from others, a certain intuition developes with regard to which of ten people in a room is the one who will spill the beans most readily.

The bean-spillers are of no particular type, neither blond nor brunette, neither fat nor lean, neither bright-eyed nor dull-eyed. They reveal themslves by a sort of psychic quiver. There is more to appearances than meets the eye.

MILLIONS

The statement, on the heels of the $10,000,000,000 United States mobilization program, said:

1. Canada will not send any ground troops to Korea "at this stage".

2. The government will immediately consider Canadian participation in any United Nations plan to recruit an international force for the Far East war. Such a step—the proposal is under study at Lake Success—would be submitted to parliament for approval of any Canadian participation.

3. The R.C.A.F.'s No. 426 Transport Squadron, based at Montreal and equipped with four-engined North Stars, will poin engined North Stars, will join will not take part in the actual fighting.

4. All three forces are to ignore the present manpower ceilings an- bring their regular units to fighting strength. Present strength is about 47,000 men.

No official estimate of the cost of the program has been given. Senior officials said last night that it may take weeks to determine it. However, some officials indicated it may lift Canada's record defence budget for this year from the $425,000,000 approved by parliament to more than $500,000,000.

State of Finances

Should the tense international situation continue, or worsen, the resultant boost in Canada's defence spending will probably mean some form of increased taxation. Finance Minister Abbott forecast a surplus of about $20,000,000 for the current fiscal year and that amount could be quickly eaten up by the new defence measures.

Any proposal to increase taxes probably will not be considered much before the budget is brought down next spring.

In his 650-word statement, Mr. St. Laurent described the communist aggression in Korea "a breach in the outer defences of the free world."

"We are increasing immediately our defence efforts and expenditure. We are also giving consideration to further measures of aid by this country to our North Atlantic partners.

"Grave decisions may lie ahead. . . ."

Halifax — (CP) — Ranking naval, army and RCAF officers here today awaited instructions from Ottawa following Prime Minister St. Laurent's announcement that Canada will step up its defence program and enlist another 8,000 men in the three services.

Announcement that an additional destroyer and minesweeping fleet led to speculation about which of the reserve ships will be re-commissioned. Local air force officials had no comment on Ottawa reports that the RCAF will establish a new auxiliary radar unit here.

Army spokesmen said the move to bring Canada's active force combat units up to full strength will have no effect in the Eastern Command, except in recruiting men.

WEDDINGS

POST—HOPKINS

A quiet wedding was solemnized on Monday, July 17, at 7:30 p.m., in Christ Church, Belleville, by the Rev. Canon J. Grant Sparling, when Violet Lorraine, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. E. Hopkins, of Belleville, was united in marriage to Joseph A. Post, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Post.

The bride was becomingly gowned in a pale blue lace-trimmed frock with white accessories and corsage of red roses, and attended by her sister, Miss Winnie Hopkins, who wore navy blue sheer, with white accessories and corsage of pink roses.

Mr. Oscar Post, of Belleville, and brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman.

Following the reception, which was held at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. L. D. A. Hopkins and Mrs. Hopkins, Belleville, the young couple left for Niagara Falls, and points west. Upon their return, they will reside in Rednersville, Ont.

YOUNG—WRIGHT

A pretty choral wedding was held recently in St. Stephen's Anglican Church, Toronto, when Mary Louise, daughter of Mrs. G. G. Wright, and the late Rev. G. G. Wright, was united in marriage to Wilfred George Young, of Liverpool, Nova Scotia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Young, of Cornerbrook, Newfoundland. The Rev. Canon P. J. Dykes, uncle of the bride, assisted by the Rev. Canon J. E. Ward, officiated before an altar of pink peonies.

Mr. Coutts, church organist, rendered the wedding music, and the choir, of which the bride is a member, favored with suitable vocal selections.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. William G. Wright, was charming in her bridal gown of white eyelet and organdy, featuring a molded bodice and floor length bouffant skirt. Her fingertip veil was held in place by a matching halo-hat. She wore matching mitts and carried a shower bouquet of white gladioli and white gardenias.

Miss Ruth Wright, of Niagara Falls, Ontario, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, becomingly gowned in frosted organdy over pink taffeta, with matching halo-hat and mitts, and carrying a Colonial bouquet of pink roses and gypsophelia.

Miss Nora Carey, of Toronto, was gowned similarly to that of the maid of honor, but in frosted organdy over pale green taffeta, with matching halo-hat and mitts, and carrying a bouquet of similar flowers.

Mr. Austin Noyes, of Toronto, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Gordon Watkin, of Belleville, and Mr. Glen Olgivie, of Merrickville, Ont.

Following the reception, which was held in the garden of the Sisters of St. John the Divine, the young couple left for a wedding trip through the Rideau Lakes, the bride travelling in a green ensemble with black accessories, and corsage of white gardenias. They will reside in Liverpool, Nova Scotia, upon their return.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa and Merrickville, Ont.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was honored by a presentation from the staff of the Gairdner Company, Toronto; also a hosiery shower by her aunt and cousin, Mrs. G. A. Brayley and Miss Kay Brayley, of Toronto, and by a kitchen shower, given by her room-mates.

Seeks Shangri-La, How About Hubby?

London, July 19 — Mrs. Liza Monks, 31-year-old mother of five young children, believes another world war is inevitable and is determined she and her family will not be within rocket range when it comes.

"Escapism," she says, "is the only way out."

So, backing up her creed, she is trying to interest a group of similarly-minded people to pull up stakes and strike off for some quiet spot far removed from the world's powder kegs. She would prefer to settle down where the climate is kind and the living agreeable.

"It is so stupid to allow another war to happen," Mrs. Monks said. "You know, if there was a real scare I am sure more people would fall in with my idea. And if enough people were to go away it might prevent war."

Asked what Mr. Monks thought about the plan, Mrs. Monks said: "I haven't discussed it with him. I don't quite know what he would think about all this."

Little Toques Seen In Fall Hat Show

Paris, July 20. (AP)—Narrow little toques and shallow cloche hats, worn straight on the head or even tilted over the forehead, were displayed yesterday in a Fall hat show by French modiste Maud Roser.

Many had things resembling dented chimney pots rising from their crowns. Others had brims that hugged the crown and jutted out in front to form a shovel-like peak. This last variety was tied to the head with thick cord or ribbon.

Another style shown by Roser had a high crown, squashed down to nearly fit the head and tucked into a narrow peak in front.

She uses a lot of feather trimming and makes whole toques of grey, white or shell-pink feathers tipped with gold lacquer.

The most unusual trimming was a white-feathered bird perched on a snow-covered branch which speared an olive-green felt toque.

ELDORADO

Mrs. S. R. Beatty Guest Speaker At Combined W.I.'s

Eldorado—The July meeting of Eldorado and Bannockburn Women's Institute was held on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Bateman with 18 members, eight visitors, and several children present.

Mrs. Russel Empey opened the meeting. The roll call was answered by a childish prank, which was varied and amusing.

The business and correspondence were dealt with. Several cards of thanks were read. It was decided that reminders be sent out regarding the insurance.

Mrs. George Palmer, acting convener for Mrs. Jas. Bailey, opened the program on "Child Welfare" with a musical selection by Miss Marie Palmer.

Guest Speaker

Mrs. Beatty of Madoc, was guest speaker and gave an interesting and instructive talk on "Child Welfare." The motto "Better a house all littered with toys than one deprived of these." "Pleasure and Joys" was given by Mrs. Birrell Bateman.

Mrs. Beryle Carman read "Doesn't Anyone Like Kids?" telling of the trying experiences some children have. "Current Events" were given by Miss Irma Carman, and a reading on "Nurse Clarke" composer of "There's a Bluebird on my Window Sill." was read by Marie Palmer. Miss Clarke has donated $50 royalties from the song to the Vancouver hospital. Marie played and sang the song. "Children's Minds" was given by Mrs. Russel Empey. A demonstration on making a drinking cup from a tin can was given by Mrs. George Palmer. Other useful hints were given by several members.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants, and a social half hour enjoyed by all.

I.O.D.E. Takes Possession of Royal Rug

New York, July 20—(CP) — Mrs. W. R. Walton, representative of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, yesterday took possession of Queen Mary's carpet on behalf of the organization.

The carpet was presented by Sir Francis Evans, Britain's consul-general in New York at a ceremony at La Guardia airport.

The I.O.D.E. purchased the carpet for $100,000.

Now! Proof that BRUSHING TEETH RIGHT AFTER EATING WITH COLGATE DENTAL CREAM HELPS PREVENT TOOTH DECAY!

2 Years' research by LEADING UNIVERSITIES proves that test groups brushing teeth right after eating with Colgate Dental Cream showed amazing reduction in tooth decay!

Research shows that decay is caused by mouth acids which are at their worst after meals. When you brush your teeth with Colgate's right after eating, you help remove mouth acids before they can harm enamel.

Under the direction of eminent dental authorities, one group of college men and women always brushed their teeth with Colgate Dental Cream right after eating—while another group followed their usual dental care. The average of the group using Colgate's as directed, and using Colgate's exclusively, was a startling reduction in the number of new cavities—far less tooth decay. The other group developed new cavities at a much higher rate.

FURTHER PROOF FROM SCHOOL CHILDREN

Leading Canadian dentists examined and directed over 8,000 school children in corrective dental habits. In addition to diet changes where required, the children were asked to brush their teeth after each meal.

The results! 16% fewer children with tooth decay! . . . Cavities dropped from an average of 5 per child to just over 3! . . . 53% more children received dental care that prevented either loss of teeth or serious dental troubles later in life! . . . The number of children with no defects—increased by 200%!

HELP YOUR CHILDREN AVOID TOOTH DECAY!

Insist that your children always brush their teeth right after eating with Colgate Dental Cream. They'll love Colgate's delicious double-minty flavor, so it's easy to get them to use Colgate's correctly.

CLEANS YOUR BREATH AS IT CLEANS YOUR TEETH!

Scientific tests prove that in 7 out of 10 cases, Colgate's instantly stops bad breath that originates in the mouth! Colgate's active penetrating foam gets into hidden crevices between teeth—helps clean out decaying food particles—stops stagnant saliva odors—removes the cause of much bad breath!

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her invalid mother is a problem

How much consideration a domineering invalid should be shown in regard to his or her attitude toward the romance of a son or daughter is a question that seems to confront a good many young people.

Here is a young man of 24, in love with a girl the same age, whose mother, he says, is old, ill and opposed to him because he is not a professional man. Just how he earns his living, he does not say; but evidently the mother considers his field of work below the standards she has set for her daughter's husband. The girl herself is teaching.

"I am not in a position to marry at the present time," this chap writes, "and she would have to wait a year or two. I love her and she loves me, but I am afraid of causing serious trouble at her home. She says that if we were to marry, her brother would have to give her away, because she does not believe her father would. She has one brother and two sisters, all adults, and we all get along swell. Neither her mother nor her father has ever met me." The young man then adds that, "We both know that if we continue to see each other, the inevitable will happen."

The first question that come to my mind in reading this letter is, why has the young man never met the girl's parents? Have they refused to met him? A second question is, why could not the girl continue her teaching for another year or so, if they were to marry? Does the educational system of which she is a part prohibit women teachers from continuuing to work after marriage? Still a third question is, why must "the inevitable" happen? Because they have both made up their minds to that, as the letter seems to suggest?

Let's leave those three questions for a moment and go on to the main point, which obviously is, would this young couple be justified in acting against the mother's wishes?

My own opinion is, if they are both quite certain that they wish to marry, that, at their age, is all that really matters. It is not as though they were two adolescents on a teen-age emotional spree. They are quite old enough to know what they want, having presumably gone through the preliminary superficial love affairs that are part of growing up.

If a parent is not sufficiently mature and well-balanced emotionally to allow sons and daughters lives of their own, then I believe such children should free themselves from parental domination. Naturally, this girl would be reluctant to leave her ailing mother. But if the mother is not dependent on her care, she has a perfect right to do so.

I think, if possible, the young man who is the centre of the controversy should have a talk with the girl's father, and try to make him see reason; obviously it would be useless to discuss anything with the mother. If the father cannot be persuaded out of his opposition, then I think the girl, her brother, her sisters and the young man himself should have a heart-to-heart talk about the whole problem. Since the brother and sisters are so sympathetic with the young man, their point of view would undoubtedly be helpful.

If the two decide to marry, however, I would feel that they should do so as soon as possible. In a situation like this, delay only keeps everybody concerned in a ferment. The best thing is to settle things definitely as soon as possible, and surely, if finances stand in the way, any young woman intelligent enough to be a teacher could find something to do to help out after marriage, even though she had to give up her present teaching job.

As for this business of "the inevitable", that is pure nonsense. Difficult as it is for two people very much in love to abide by the conventions, they certainly can do so if they have will power and common sense.

BEAUTY

There's glamor in the make-up box

The time has come when it is natural for a girl to use artifice—if one can indulge in a paradox. When the merry evening is on, and one is all dolled up in one's prettiest and best, one is anxious to increase the drawing power of the facial premises. Not that a girl doesn't want to look gay and pretty in the daytime—she does. But with soft lighting effects, she can be a bit more lavish with the intriguing toiletries that create the gardenia look, the synthetic blush, the rosy lips. She can darken her eyelashes, make her eyes look wide and sparkling, carry the romantic touch.

She can make her eyes look wide and sparkling

She should do all that with the skill of an artist. If she is not careful about the details of make-up, she will appear lithographic and her boy friends won't like that. They want a girl to look cute, never conspicuous. A little artifice works wonders; too much is fatal to appearance.

When you are about to make yourself a new face, condition the skin. You can't make a success of self-portrait-painting if you have just used soap and water, which is likely to leave the skin surface dry. Smooth on a velvety type of foundation cosmetic, or use a light cream, wiping most of it away.

Your powder should be slightly darker than your skin. If you are doubtful about what shade is precisely right, patronize a make-up bar; you will find one in almost any large department store. There are open containers; you can experiment to your heart's desire, and the attendant will give you authoritative counsel.

Start powdering on your neck. If you dip the pad in the powder and wham it on your nose, it will get more than beauty laws permit.

If nature has short-changed you on coloring, you will use a rouge. While orange-red will be pleasing in the daytime, especially if you have become a sun-kissed golden girl, it is not desirable for use at night. Electric lights have a tendency to drain the red from the orange. A delicate pinky-pink is a happy choice for blondes and brunettes. Avoid carmine; it is too theatrical.

Place the pad just under the eye, sweep out to the temple, come down just above the centre of the cheek, then back to starting point. Keep a special pad for blending powder and rouge.

Of lipsticks you will have a wide choice; which one you select depends not only upon the color of your skin, but the color of your eyes and hair. Good taste and your mirror will direct you.

Don't fail to use your eyebrow brush on brows and lashes. If you use mascara, have two brushes. Dip one in water, pass it over the mascara and apply with upward strokes. Use the dry brush several minutes later to separate the silky fuzzers.

MARSH HILL W.M.S.

The July meeting of Marsh Hill W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. E. B. Finkle with nine members present. The president, Mrs. Grace Bartindale, was in the chair and presided over the business portion of the meeting.

Plans were made for a tea, bazaar and Baby Band party to be held on Aug. 1st., on Mrs. Bartindale's lawn. Two new members have been added to the Baby Band.

As the members joined Holloway Street W.M.S. in June to celebrate the 25th anniversary, roll call was taken for June and July.

The meeting was turned over to Mrs. E. B. Finkle, who had prepared an interesting program, based on the work of the past 25 years. Mrs. Ben Bleecker spoke regarding the first and the present moderator of the United Church. Miss Mae Currie gave a brief message from the first and present president of the Dominion Board W.M.S. Mrs. Allyn Finkle advised of the number of missionaries appointed since Union, with special mention of the most recent ones. Mrs. Fred Campbell spoke on "Our Missionary Scholarship". Mrs. B. Finkle on "Home Missions, Then and Now" and Mrs. Bartindale on the "School for Leaders".

Mrs. Frank Finkle read the list of presidents since union. They are Mrs. C. Vanderwater, Mrs. B. R. Searles, Mrs. J. Frederick, Mrs. B. Mitts, Mrs. F. Campbell, Mrs. B. Bleecker, Mrs. E. B. Finkle, Mrs W Lindenfield, and Mrs Bartindale.

Memorial Service

A memorial service for the 16 members deceased during the past 25 years was conducted by Mrs. Lindenfield and Miss Mae Currie, when roses were placed in a crystal vase as each name was read. The service included a few brief remarks regarding the services rendered by the deceased, the hymn "For All the Saints Who From Their Labors Rest", was used and a prayer.

The hostess was assisted by Mrs. Allyn Finkle in serving refreshments.

WOOLER

Mrs. K. Faul Gives Talk on Recent Trip to West Coast

Wooler.—Mrs. Herman Morrow, 1st vice president presided at the July meeting of the Women's Institute on Wednesday evening. The meeting held at the home of Mrs. Elgin McMaster, opened in the usual manner. Mrs. A. G. Austin acting as accompanist.

The roll call "How to make our meetings more interesting so as to increase membership was responded to by many giving helpful suggestions, and several items of business were discussed, one being the chartering of a bus to go to Toronto Fair.

Mrs. Wilson had arranged the following program, a piano solo by Mattie Bull and a vocal solo by Mrs. Don McIntosh.

The guest speaker was Mrs. K. Faul, chairman of the Belleville Area, who gave a most interesting address on her recent trip to Victoria, B.C., and San Francisco, Calif.

Refreshments were served to the 34 members and visitors by Mrs. Neil Nelson, Mrs. Clarence McMaster and Mrs. Robt. Walker.

15 DEATH SENTENCES

Berlin, July 19—(AP)—An east German court today imposed 15 death sentences on former Nazi storm troopers for a week-long reign of terror 17 years ago in suburban Kopenick.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

One of the summer's most delicate dishes is named after a poisonous snake.

Aspic, a light cold gelatin dish, was named by French chefs after the asp because of the latter's cold skin. The word was not accurately chosen. An aspic is cold, but it dissolves at a warm breath. It shimmies, but doesn't coil. It cools gently without any sudden chill terror.

Gelatin is the base of all aspics. A tablespoon of plain unflavored gelatin will jell one pint of liquid food such as clear soup, tomato or fruit juice. Hot sauces, mayonnaise or egg whites may be some of the ingredients in as aspic that are also jelled.

Aspics are usually prepared in molds, and then removed from the molds just before serving. If you add such solid foods as fruits, vegetables or meats to your aspic, you should wait until the gelatin mixture has become partly thickened so that the pieces of food will not fall to the bottom of the mold.

If you don't have gelatin molds, ordinary custard cups or tea cups will do just as well.

The main steps in making an aspic are: (a) soften unflavored gelatin in cold water; (b) dissolve gelatin in or over hot liquid; (c) pour mixture into wet mold or molds; (4) place in refrigerator until firm; (e) unmold just before serving.

Pineapple and Celery Aspic.
6 Servings

Soften 1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin by placing in 1-2 cup cold water for 3 minutes. Add 1 cup hot chicken broth, fresh or canned. Add 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 1-4 cup sugar and 1-4 teaspoon salt. Stir to dissolve all ingredients.

Turn mixture into bowl, and place in refrigerator.

Cut in 1-2 inch squares 1-2 cup celery. Drain 3-4 cup crushed canned pineapple.

As soon as gelatin mixture shows signs of thickening around edges, and is sirupy looking, add celery and pineapple.

Rinse 6 individual molds or 1 large mold in cold water. Turn gelatin mixture into molds. Return to refrigerator until gelatin is firm.

To unmold, loosen edge of aspic with a small sharp knife. Then dip mold almost to rim in warm water for a few seconds. Invert mold over serving plates and shake gently to loosen.

Iran Will Not Become Second Korea Say Observers

Tehran, July 20—(AP)— Iran will not be another Korea.

That's the opinion of seasoned observers throughly familiar with the situation in this oil-rich country south of the Caspian Sea, which has a 2,000-mile common border with the U.S.S.R.

These informants argue Iran is in danger of invasion from the north only if Russia decides on all-out war.

A blitz through Iran to seize the great oil fields on the Persian gulf—a vital strategic prize—then might be in order. But these observers express belief the Soviet could not justify—even with twisted propaganda — any local aggression.

Border Unchanged

Unlike north and south Korea, the present Iranian-Soviet border has been unchanged for years.

There are some small groups now in Russia who might conceivably form the nucleus of a "people's front liberation army." Observers say these are too small, however, to matter much.

The Russians now have under their protection a number of kurds from Iraq. Some of the kurds (wild tribesmen) have demanded in the past a kurdish republic in northwest Iran, northern Iraq and Syria and part of Turkey.

Immediately after the last war the Russians attempted to foster a kurdish people's republic, but it collapsed after a few months.

Russia also controls refugees of the short-lived Azerbaijan province.

Strong Iranian resistance, backed by the United States and the United Nations, forced the communist leaders there to flee.

Iran's border has been remarkably clear of "shooting" incidents for the last six months although tension still exists in Iran's northern provinces.

Both the Soviet and Iran maintain strong border garrisons. every now and then there are reports of Soviet troop movements.

The Soviet opened an exchange of notes with Iran several months ago complaining about Iranian planes for aerial photography in northern Iran in connection with oil exploration.

Iran has replied it considers its search for oil purely an internal matter. It made a big impression to the Russian protest, however, by backing down on plans for aerial photography in "regions contiguous to the land frontiers of the USSR"

Two Sailors Miss Birthdays On Pacific Trip

With the Korea-Bound Canadian Destroyers, July 21 (CP) —Two sailors missed their birthdays and another his wedding anniversary because there was no July 19 aboard the three Canadian destroyers heading for Korean action.

The warships crossed the International Date Line in the Pacific and dropped a full day from the calendar.

The ships are nearing Kwajalien, U.S. naval base, where they will refuel. It is about a week by sea from Japan.

The lost day was forfeited with a certain amount of regret by ordinary seamen Wilfred Beck of Alert Bay, B.C., and Merle Evans of Welland, Ont. Beck, serving in the Sioux and Evans, in the Cayuga, would have celebrated their 19th birthdays on the missing date.

PO. Norman F. Bond of the Sioux was only too well aware of a sixth wedding anniversary to be celebrated by his wife, in Victoria, on the lost day.

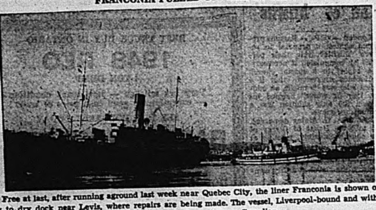
FRANCONIA PULLED OFF HER ROOST



Free at last, after running aground last week near Quebec City, the liner Franconia is shown on its way to dry dock near Levis, where repairs are being made. The vessel, Liverpool-bound and with 800 passengers aboard, ran into some island rocks. — Central Press Canadian.

CNR Introduces Deluxe Coach

Montreal, July 20 — A new deluxe railway coach for first class passengers was introduced into service by the Canadian National Railways. The first of an order of 25, the car left Central Station on its inaugural run to Ottawa.

Prior to entering service, the new equipment with its modern innovations was inspected by Donald Gordon, chairman and president; S. F. Pringle, vice-president of operation; O. A. Trudeau, assistant general passenger traffic manager, and other company officers.

Spacious Lounge Rooms

Many of the conveniences that in the past have been associated only with sleeping cars are now standard equipment to the coach passengers as the result of successful adoption of new features and facilities in these coaches. A new development is the spacious lounge room at each end for men and women with adjacent toilet facilities. They have dental bowls, stainless steel washing basins with concealed fittings, full length mirrors and alcove lounge seats. The women's lounge also has a winged mirror vanity dressing table and boudoir seat and the men's is equipped with electric razor outlets.

The need for increased smoking facilities is recognized in the division of the cars. They are separated into two compartments, one, for the smokers, seating 28 and the other seating 32. Etched glass partitions divide the two compartments to provide an air of spaciousness.

Air Conditioning

The air conditioning system operates automatically without requiring attention from the train crew, as do the ventilating and heating systems. Special controls maintain temperatures in any part of the car within a maximum range of two degrees. In addition to the ceiling lights, there are reading lights over each seat that are fitted with special focusing lens to eliminate eye strain and can be individually controlled.

The cars are all steel, heavily insulated, and use fabreeka and rubber to deaden sound. Six wheel trucks with longer wheel base give then a smoother roll, and the windows, exceeding five feet in width, allow a full view of the passing terrain. In the passageway at each end is a new type water cooler that has a small light attached to illuminate the outlet and a purifier to ensure clean, sparkling water.

Two Color Schemes

Two interior color schemes are used. One group of cars has blue upholstered seats with a matching shade on the wainscotting below the windows, a ceiling of cream, the panels finished in delicate tones of gray and the passageway wall in Dubonnet. The second group has seats of Dubonnet shade, medium and light smoke grey in panels and ceiling while the centre and end partitions and passageways are in blue. The marboleum flooring matches the rest of the cars in color.

All seats are the "Sleepy Hollow" type that recline and revolve are upholstered with soft rubber cushions have ajustable footrests and are numbered so that, if desired, advance reservations may be made. The cars are being built by Canadian Car and Foundry.

Bodies of 17 Victims Given Mass Cremation

New Delhi, India, July 19 (AP) — The bodies of 17 victims of a crashed Kashmir - bound plane, charred beyond recognition, will be given a mass cremation today. Among them is Brig. H. H. Angle of Kelowna, B. C., who was chief United Nations Military Observer in Kashmir.

The Indian government said the cremation was ordered held at Pathankot, near the scene of the crash Monday, after consultation with Canadian, American and Belgian diplomats in New Delhi.

Of 22 persons aboard, the bodies of 20 were recovered. Only three — all Indians — were identified.

A plane carrying representatives of the government, army and diplomatic corps is attempting to reach Pathankot in time for the ceremony.

TAEJON GIVEN UP

"Our hold upon the southern part of Korea represents a secure base," MacArthur said. "We are there to stay."

The Red drive on Taejon, deserted former south Korean provisional capital, was the first attack in force from their early-won ground south of the Kum River.

Heavy Tank Losses

Field dispatches said the first seven Red tanks rumbling toward Taejon were picked off one after another by new ground-fired rockets. The 3.5-inchers are a recoil-less weapon brought into action for the first time.

Later, an eighth army tank was reported knocked out.

There was no indication how many tanks the invaders had got across the Kum.

But at least four more rolled on Taejon. Four American jet planes wrecked two of these with rockets and drove the others to cover. American artillery and planes concentrated fire on them.

Pilots reported four big fires burning in Taejon shortly after noon. They apparently were caused by shells lobbed into the city. A correspondent Leif Erickson said some Red artillery appeared to be southwest of Taejon. This would mean the Reds have cut deep on the west flank.

Move Into Position

As the Reds lashed at Taejon, two reinforcing American divisions—the First Cavalry (mechanized) and the 25th Infantry—moved into position for expected new Red pushes toward the southeast tip of Korea.

But the first phase of the Korean campaign is over, MacArthur said in a special communique.

"We are now in Korea in force, and with God's help we are there to stay until the constitutional authority of the republic (of Korea) is fully restored," he said.

An operational communique reported South Korean troops had attacked Reds in the vicinity of Yongdok on the east coast, about 25 miles north Pohang. The First Cavalry division landed at Pohang two days ago.

Front dispatches said Yongdok had fallen to the communists after several days of bitter fighting.

Fighting Near Kunsan.

The communique said South Korean marines were fighting near Kunsan, on the west coast 45 miles southwest of Taejon. An earlier communique said Red troops had seized Iri, 12 miles inland.

In the air war Allied planes caught the North Korean air force crawling back to airfields long vacant. In the last three days the Allies destroyed 47 communist planes on the ground and three in the air. The toll may be higher.

(Washington reported an even higher Red loss. The U.S. defence department said 60 North Korean planes were destroyed Tuesday alone.)

All but three of the 50 Red planes that far east air forces said were knocked out Tuesday and Wednesday were caught on the ground at fields that had been deserted for days. There was no explanation of the sudden reappearance of enemy planes.

TRUMAN ADVISERS

Meanwhile, the United States and its Allies in the Atlantic pact are beginning to build their military strength.

Truman said yesterday that talks already are under way with the other 11 Atlantic Treaty members, including Canada, on increasing weapons production. He promised additional American help in this effort.

Beyond the problem of speeding up the defence preparations of the west lie other questions of making effective use of available manpower and industrial production.

Perhaps the most difficult of these is the question of whether to make use of German manpower. Some western military leaders have long felt that it was essential to get a large number of western Germans under arms.

Diplomatic officials said this matter has not yet come up for any top-level policy decision. However, it now seems probable it will be taken up by the British, American and French Foreign Ministers when they meet in New York in September.

A related question is whether the western powers should begin to make use of Germany's great industrial capacity for turning out materials needed by the western armies.

Officials Pleased With Stand

State department officials appeared grimly pleased with the firm stand which the United States now has taken in backing up its policies with action. Still, they are somewhat concerned over U.S. propaganda and diplomatic positions in relation to the exchanges of "peace" notes among India's Prime Minister Nehru, Prime Minister Stalin of Russia and State Secretary Dean Acheson.

Stalin appeared to have scored a propaganda if not a diplomatic triumph as a result of these exchanges which were concluded yesterday. Acheson rejected the idea of bringing communist China into the United Nations as a means of persuading Russia to return to U.N. agencies.

The effect of the exchange seems to be to put Nehru, an Asian leader of great influence, on the side of Stalin and against the United States on this issue. The United States must now attempt to convince the people of Asia that the real interest of peace can only be served by fighting aggression and not by compromising with it.

MISSION TO MALAYA

Canberra, July 19 — (AP) — Arthur Fadden, Australia's acting prime minister said today a military mission will accompany the squadron of R.A.A.F. bombers leaving for Malaya soon to study the campaign against Guerillas there.

Parsons Protest Ban of 'Misfits'

London — (CP) — Parsons protested against a proposal to remove "misfits" from their parishes by compulsion if necessary

A report to a special church conference suggested that if a priest who was "a misfit, an oddity, lazy or worse" harmed his parish, the only solution was a compulsory move.

Rev. J A. G. Ainley demurred. He told the House of Clergy of the church assembly, meeting at Westminster, that he hopes the time will never come when the Christian ministry will be brought down to the "level of a City company."

"Is a man to go to his bishop and say he has lost the sense of his vocation? Is the bishop to go to the man? Or is the church council to tell the vicar?"

No action was taken after the chairman noted that the proposal had merely been "received, not approved."

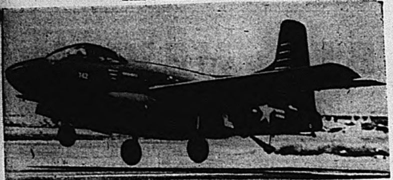
THIS PLANE HAS CAT'S EYES



Versatile and deadly with just finger-tip pressure on the controls, this newest U.S. jet fighter is shown going through manoeuvres that ranged from straight and level flight that stood it on its tail. is the navy's F3d Skynight. The plane is a 600-mile-an-our speeder, bristling with guns and radar. It operates above 40,000-feet and carries a crew of two. Radar enables it to seek out and destroy planes in the air in fog or darkness. — Central Press Canadian.

British M.P.'s Fear 1951 Census Might Betray Women's Secrets

London, July 20 — (CP) — Fears that next year's British census would betray women's secrets worried the House of Commons.

John Hay, Conservative Member for Henley, termed the forthcoming country-wide quiz a "grand snoop" and said some of the questions women would be asked were "downright impertinent."

Other opposition members objected to census-takers asking women under 50, who had married more than once, on what date they were married the first time.

Hay drew a protest from the government bench when he argued that people would object strongly if asked whether they were more fertile after their second marriage.

Arthur Blenkinsop, Parliamentary Secretary to the Health Ministry, challenged Hay to saw what question asked such information. Hay replied that while there was none that asked that question in so many words, there was one which had that intent.

All the questions in the census, Blenkinsop said in closing debate, have been asked before either in Britain or in North America. A motion to approve the census was accepted without a division.

Smithereens

Sir Waldron Smithers, one of the real "characters" of the Commons, is being teased by a group of journalism students at a Regent Street institute.

Sir Waldron, a true-blue Conservative, has asked more than 15,000 questions in his parliamentary career, almost all about things which he deems as danger to the existing order.

The students of journalism, worried that the Conservative member for Orpington may be running out of questions, have thought up some new ones for him. Some samples:

"In order to make foreign tourists in this country feel at home . . . would it not be a pleasant gesture to allow them to drive on the right-hand side of the road?"

"Is any plan in progress to provide two-tier platforms for double-decker trains?"

"Would the minister state how many red-bearded road members have registered as vegetarians?"

Father Acquitted After Statement Of Crippled Son

New York, July 20—(AP)—Eight-year-old Donald Conway, his left leg encased in a plaster cast, was lifted to a Felony Court bench beside Magistrate Frederick L. Strong.

His father, Martin, 39, stood before the bench.

"At whom are you waving?" Magistrate Strong asked the boy.

"At my daddy," said Donald.

The father accused of throwing his son out a second storey window last July 3, began to cry.

"I fell out the window," the boy said. "My daddy was asleep." When the boy was picked up from the sidewalk police said the youngster told them his father got angry at him and threw him out.

After other witnesses failed to produce evidence substantiating the charge, the Magistrate acquitted Conway, saying:

"There were only two humans in that room. But God also was there. If you did throw your son from that window you will pay for it in the end."

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

NEW COWGIRL

Y-Cross Ranch, High River, Alta.—Here are some footnotes on our stopover in the foothills:

This has been a wonderful experience for our Judy, whose riding experience was hitherto limited to Saturday morning trots around a sawdust ring.

She now has temporary custody of a mild-mannered, black mare name of "Molly" and, with the help of Nora Bews, also 10, she's rapidly learning to handle her steed in open country. The method being to set a course and let "Molly" go her own sweet way.

Tomorrow is the day of the annual High River Rodeo. The youngsters here on the ranch look forward to it with as much excitment as to Christmas. Most of today was spent washing and polishing the saddles and harness and trying on the new clothes. The whole family will be riding in the parade. A mighty handsome group they make, too.

Nearly every town in Alberta of any size has its own personal rodeo, far more important to the country people than the big Calgary show.

One of the surprising aspects of ranch life is that two men, Joe Bews and his hired man, George should be the entire "staff" for an operation covering 5000 acres.

George, a slim fellow of 24, is an interesting case. A year ago he was making Ford engine blocks in Sarnia, Ontario. All he knew about the west was what he saw in cowboy movies. Seems that a girl said "no" and George decided to head for other parts. Now he's at home in the saddle and determined to roam no more.

There's no isolation among these ranchers.

Last night we were guests of Dick Machin at his nearby dude ranch. As we drove up to the picturesque ranch house we could see the folks on the porch. It was a beautiful night, the sky filled with stars and a moon over the Rockies and pleasantly cool after a warm day.

I had the feeling of being in another world and another and perhaps happier age. But when we neared the porch and could hear the conversation I was back in the uncertain present.

They were discussing Korea.

A favorite topic of discussion in these parts is the miracle of the Chinook winds, a warm, soft breeze that can change winter into summer in a few hours. One rancher told us of going to bed last winter at 40 below zero and waking to find the snow melting on the roof.

That bright moon last night, by the way, gave us our first hearing of coyotes in full voice, howling at the moon. Their mournful chorus died out, however, when a new and mysterious sound came out of the west: Trans-Canada Airlines night flight passing directly overhead.

Ranchers have a philosophic and sensible attitude about the certain fate of their cattle.

One told me, "One way or another, you get to know every one and I sometimes hate to see the poor devils go. But what the hell? We grow 'em to eat. They're put on this earth to feed us and that's that. It always annoys me when city people suggest I'm hard-hearted about it. I wonder if they ever stop before biting into a good steak and think about it."

On the Y-Cross this attitude broke down in the case of Minnie, the pig. Minnie had a personality, was loved by the kids and Joe Bews finally gave her away rather than resort to the usual slaughter.

"It wouldn't have mattered, anyway," he says. "Nobody could have eaten Minnie."

We heard here, too, of the boy who doesn't eat lamb. Seems he had a pet lamb that finally got too big and was sent off to get the axe. The kid has resolutely refused to touch the meat since then.

Considering the fact that the nearest neighbor is three miles away there's a surprising amount of social life.

Monday night Joe and his wife danced until near-dawn after a branding bee. Next day they were away to Calgary for a wedding. Day after that Joe was pall-bearer at a funeral in High River.

There's always somebody "dropping in". Yesterday it was the game warden with a truck load of fine looking cut-throat trout to be released in the small streams that rush into the Highwood River.

There's rarely a dull moment around a ranch.

Coming back here into the foothills, I was congratulating myself on getting into country far from the beaten track. But from the moment we arrived we kept getting reminded that another chronicler had been this way in the person of John "Mr. Canada" Fisher. There's a boy who really gets around.

And about that gigantic hill we must ascend to get our trailer out of this Shangri-la. We're being towed out tomorrow by truck.

Miss Canada Tests Likely Next Week

Gravenhurst, Ont., July 20 — (CP) — A full-dress trial for Miss Canada IV, Canada's hope for world's speedboat record, probably will not take place until next week, Charlie Volker, mechanic in charge of the boat, said today.

Earlier it had been expected that Harold Wilson of Ingersoll, Ont., owner and driver of Miss Canada, would make a test this week.

"We are still working on the propellor," Volker said, "and don't know yet whether it will stand up to the speeds required."

In addition to the steel propellor, the boat is being fitted with a new steel rudder.

Pope Grants Special Audience With Canadian

Rome, July 20 — (Reuters)—Pope Pius granted a special audience Wednesday in his summer Palace Castel Gandolfo, near Rome, to Alexander Gordon Sampson, for 18 years a director of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association

The Pope, who showed great interest in Canada, gave Sampson a papal benediction "for Canada and the Canadian people."

Sampson, formerly general manager and national advertising manager of the Halifax Chronicle and Star, is president of one of Canada's main wine-producing companies. He was studying the European wine industry before returning to Canada to campaign for a reform in the dominion's drinking habits, he said.

"Our trouble is not that we drink too much but that many of us drink the wrong quantities at the wrong time, in the wrong places," Sampson told reporters.

"Heavy consumption of alcohol without food, for instance, has given Canadians a reputation for over-indulgence."

Farm Woodlot Valuable Asset Says Official

Montreal, July 20 — (CP) — Farmers should take more care of the old family woodlot.

At least, that's the view of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

The woodlot produces a crop just like other crops, says a chamber report released today and prepared by G. C. Cunningham and J. B. Prince of the federal department of Resources and development.

"Under sound principles of forestry management and practice, the farm woodlot can produce some of the finest timber in the world, with annual yields running up to a cord or more per acre."

New products being made from wood include plastics, linoleum, unbreakable dolls and other products. Waste material coming from these operations can be used in many ways.

"Lack of interest in the care of woodlands is a serious problem that should concern the whole community."

MEAT PACT WITH AUSTRALIA

London, July 10—(AP)— The London Star says today Britain will soon announce a new long-term meat pact with Australia.

Officials of the British Food Ministry and the Australian Meat Board would say only that discussions are under way.

Inquiry Into British Marriage And Divorce Laws Asked by Group

London, July 20—(CP)—Britain's first inquiry into marriage and divorce laws since the First World War is demanded by 104 members of parliament.

Legislators of all parties, hoping to ease the hidden heartbreak implicit in 20,000 separation orders issued each year, are among those supporting a motion to appoint a royal commission.

The motion is in the name of Marcus Lipton, Labor member for the London constituency of Brixton. As wartime head of a government department, Lipton was called on to advise in more than 50,000 divorce applications.

Last May, he led a movement in the House of Commons against what he called "kiss-and-run" husbands who deserted their wives and skipped off to the Republic of Ireland to escape paying maintenance.

One of the evils which members would like to end is that whereby husbands and wives parted by separation and maintenance orders have no power to remarry. As a result, reformers contend, some 200,000 men and women in Britain are living together outside marriage.

One solution proposed by some members is that a petition for divorce should be permissable when parties have lived apart for two years and are unlikely to resume married life.

The reason for reluctance sometimes was that parties regarded an appearance in a divorce court as an "unbearable social disgrace." Therefore, Shaw wrote, "should not divorce of the separated be made both compulsory and secret so far as the names of the parties are concerned?"

Three Eskimos Are Flown 1,400 Miles to Hospital

Montreal, July 20 — (CP) — Two Eskimo women and an Eskimo child are in the Indian hospital at nearby Caughnawaga today after a 1,400-mile non-stop flight in an RCAF Lancaster from Frobisher Bay on Baffin Island in the Northwest Territories.

The RCAF made a special trip from Greenwood, N. S., into the northland to bring the three here for medical treatment. They arrived yesterday.

Hospital authorities would not reveal the nature of the illness. The flight from Frobisher Bay took seven hours and 44 minutes.

Their singing has drawn special interest from the high school age group.

SPORTSMANSHIP IN "CANADA UNLIMITED"

It was 1938. On the old Welland Canal, four Regina oarsmen trained vigorously for the Canadian Henley Regatta. The odds were all against them for they lacked an experienced coach . . . and had trained on a shallow, man-made Regina Lake during the great Prairie drought.

On the Henley's first day the quartet scored an upset by winning the junior four-oared event. The experts goggled . . . but the best was yet to come. Showing the Regatta's finest burst of speed, in the senior fours the westerners outstroked champion oarsmen from Canada and the U.S., and walked away with the prized Dominion championship.

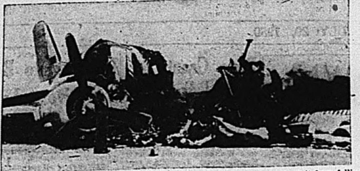
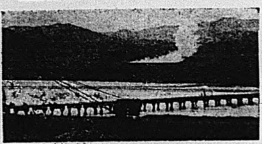
U.S. FORCES DESTROY EQUIPMENT IN RETREAT



An American C-47 is shown after it was destroyed by its crew to prevent it from falling into enemy hands after the landing gear failed in take-off with no repair facilities available. Losses in U.S. equipment have been serious as they retreated southward. — Central Press Canadian.

THEY'LL SEE THIS AGAIN ON RETURN TRIP



A red shell burst from a gun concealed in the hills, sends up a puff of smoke from the north shore of the Kum River. This picture was made while the south bank of the river was still in U.S. hands. Some Yanks took cover at the south end of the bridge, while others took cover beneath the crane in centre photo. Before retreating, American forces destroyed the bridge, in an effort to slow up the red drive. — Central Press Canadian.

It's So Easy ...Make Raspberry Jam the Short-Boil Way

1 THIS RECIPE GIVES YOU 50% MORE JAM FROM SAME AMOUNT OF FRUIT

First crush 2 quarts of fully ripe berries (Yes! RIPE fruit — not the under-ripe fruit called for in old-fashioned recipes). Measure 4 cups of prepared fruit and 6½ cups of sugar into large saucepan. Mix well. Bring to full, rolling boil over high heat. Stir constantly before and while boiling.

2 BOIL HARD ONE MINUTE ONLY SAVE TWO-THIRDS OF YOUR TIME

Yes! Boil one minute only by the clock . . . too short a time to dull the natural color or spoil the fresh-fruit taste. Remove from heat. Stir in half-bottle of CERTO Fruit Pectin. Stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes to cool slightly and prevent floating fruit. Ladle into glasses and paraffin quickly.

3 10 GLASSES OF SPARKLING JAM WITH FRESH-FRUIT TASTE, COLOR

In the short one-minute boil practically no juice wastes away in steam. So you get about 10 glasses instead of the 6 you'd expect from old-fashioned, long boiling. CERTO helps all fruits to jell perfectly . . . gives an average yield of 50% more jam or jelly from the same amount of fruit.

4 CERTO RECIPES GIVE SURE RESULTS IF SIMPLE DIRECTIONS FOLLOWED

With CERTO you get 78 kitchen-tested recipes — a separate one for each fruit because different fruits need different handling. If you follow the simple directions EXACTLY you'll have success whatever fruit you use. So why not make several kinds of jam and jelly for those long winter months? Get CERTO at your grocer's.

CERTO is fruit pectin — the natural jellying substance in fruit — extracted and concentrated for easier, quicker, better jam and jelly making.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

It was the cool of the evening and the floodlights in Exhibition Park showed yellowish against the setting sun. On the diamond two teams were going through their paces.

Two baseball oldtimers sat in the second row, sucking pipes, swatting mosquitoes, and commenting generally on what was going on in front of them. The roar of the crowd did not bother them, nor was its volume so great as to prevent their conversation being overheard by nearby benchwarmers.

"Y'know, John" quoth one greythatch, "I've been hearing a lot about how the good old teams of the Central Ontario Baseball League would stack up against the present-day edition. I've seen quite a number of games this year, and last year too, and I've formed my opinion."

"And what's that?" asked his friend.

"Not to give you a short answer, but it is this. That any resemblance of this year's squads to those of the old Grand Trunks and teams of that era is purely accidental."

"Hmmm" grunted his friend, "that's a strong statement".

Sniffing an argument, the other flared for a second, then said quietly, "Do you mean to tell me that any of these teams we've seen play here could match the Indian, Jack Oulette, the Goyers, Mills, Blakelys, Weirs, Caseys and others?"

"No, I don't" ccame the reply.

"Then waddya mean 'strong statement?' "

"Calm down, you old warhorse, what I meant was that it was a strong overstatement. These laddybucks are not in the same class with the teams that brought championships to this city in the twenties."

That appeared to settle that argument, and the two cronies setled down to watch the game.

Finally the greythatch spoke.

"I see by the Peterborough paper where the baseball boys up there are having some sort of a guessing contest as to what players formed the strongest team to represent that city in the COBL in those good old days. You remember Al. Heckman, Maxie Swanston, Abbie Rose, Chuck Kearns and that gang who used to pester us at times?"

His friend smiled. "Do I? They were the good old days when you had to shout to hear yourself think in the grandstand; the bleachers were packed, and more grandmothers died on opening day than the rest of the year. Yep, wish those days were back again."

"I saw where the newspaper fella up there picked Heckman and Whitehouse as pitchers, Maxie Swanston behind the plate, Harrison, Kingdon and Murphy in the infield and in the outer pastures Burton, Foley and Kearns. Not a bad team at that. Don't know as I could do much better as far as the Petes are concerned, but some of the local lads up that way have other opinions, and the suggestion is growing into quite a contest. Tell me the oldtimers are quite interested in the idea and are sending in their selections."

"Not a bad idea. We could usually beat the best they had, but they won the odd game from the grand old gang that represented this town."

HAVING A LOTTA FUN!

We'll leave the old timers to their memories and reminiscences at this point with the remark that what they said regarding the pleasant pastime our sportswriting friend Cec Perdue of the Peterborough writing family has started, is true. He started the ball rolling with his own selection, and being a sportswriter, immediately found his opinion in disagreement with those "on the outside". He is receiving different selections from fans of those days and it makes pleasant reading for the people who supported and enjoyed baseball then.

WHY NOT?

In passing it might not be a good second hand idea for Belleville fandom of the days when COBL teams from this city were bringing home senior championship bacon.

Not being around these parts when the famous Grand Trunks and later the Nationals were meeting and generally defeating the best the province had, we are in no position to make a selection. But this column will welcome any all-star selection that is sent in. We have heard arguments pro and con regarding the best team Belleville produced so it should make interesting reading. So send along your idea of the best senior team that represented this city in the Central Ontario Baseball League in the roaring twenties, before and after. If possible give reasons why you select each player for his position.

DOTS AND FLASHES

According to an advertisemen placed in this newspaper today, Cannifton meets the Napanee team in a Belleville District Baseball League game in the Fair Grounds tonight. Both teams are in the lower division of the league standing and both will be battling for a win. Tomorrow night, according to schedule, Sixardee will be the guests of Point Anne on the Pointers diamond . . . Tonight Batawa goes to Kingston for a COBL fixture, and Napanee will be here against the Shoemen on Saturday night . . . Stewart Warner and Howe and Hagerman are scheduled for the Alemite Field in a 6:30 Commercial "A" softball tilt tonight, while Bakelite takes on Bateman Motors tomorrow night...

Stan Musial's Hitting Spree Bounces Climbing Cardinals Into Nat. League First Place

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Stan Musial on a 23-game hitting spree. Enos Slaughter in baseball's big six. No wonder the bounce-back St. Louis Cardinals today lead the National League.

Breaking out of a three - way tie for first place with a double rcut of New York Giants, the Cards took charge of the race yesterday.

The Giants, beaten 12 times in their last 15 games, were unable to provide even token resistance for the rebounding Cards. It was 18-4 in a day game and 10-3 at night in a combined 30-hit attack that routed Larry Hansen and Sheldon Jones in the early innings.

Beaten three in a row by Brooklyn earlier in the week, the Cards' cause looked dark. Now they're back in control with three consecutive pitching gems by the southpaw trio of Al Brazle, Max Lanier and Harry Brecheen.

Lanier worked over the Giants in the day game. When the Cards piled up a 16-1 edge in seven innings, he retired to rest his sore toe. Brecheen went all the way in the evening romp.

Stretches String

Musial stretched his hitting string with a double in the afternoon and two singles at night but the big guns were Slaughter and Del Rice. Enos had six hits, three in each, driving home four. Rice hoisted a homer, triple, double and single to drive in six. Rice, Slaughter, Red Schoendienst and Eddie Miller hit homers in the day game.

The Phillies, one of three tied for the lead yesterday morning, dropped a peg by splitting two with Pittsburgh. Granny Hamner's 11th-inning homer with a man on won the opener 3-2 but the Pirates grabbed the second 4-2 on rookie Bill MacDonald's five-hit pitching.

Johnny Klippstein won his first big league game and hit his first homer for Chicago in its 11-3 romp over Boston Braves. The loss dropped the Braves out of a first-place tie. Roy Smalley hit his 15th homer, a double and single to back up Lippstein's 11-hit job.

Mize Hits Five

Brooklyn's scheduled twilight-night doubleheader at Cincinnati was washed out until tonight.

With Johnny Mize leading the parade, New York Yankees cut another half game off Detroit's American League lead. The Tigers, 9-5 winners over Boston, row sport a three-game margin over the Yankees who whipped St. Louis twice, 16-1 and 4-3.

The burly first baseman, ticketed for the Pacific Coast League two weeks ago, continued his amazing batting surge with five hits in six trips, including a game-winning homer off Ned Garver in the eighth inning of the second game.

Red Rolfe, saving his pitchers for the big series with New York gave Dizzy Trout his first start since June 22 and got away with a victory over the Red Sox.

Bobby Doerr chased Trout with a two-run homer in the eighth and Vic Wertz nicked rookie Willard Nixon, the Boston starter, for his 15th homer with nobody on in the fifth. Doerr's homer cut the Tigers' lead to 6-3 but they added three more in the ninth on four walks and Johnny Lipon's two-run single.

Bobby Feller made win No. 201, a neat four-hit shutout of Philadelphia. Joe Gordon's 10th homer, off Dick Fowler of Toronto with a man on in the 8th, wrapped up the decision for Cleveland, now 5½ games behind Detroit in third place.

Washington whipped their old teammate, Ray Scarborough, for the second night in a row, 5-4, on Sam Dente's infield single with two out in the 10th inning. Dente's hit scored Irv Noren.

Golf Title Road May be Tough For Weslock

By W. R. WHEATLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Saskatoon Golf and Country Club, July 20—(CP)—There was a perceptible weakening today in the chorus that has been chanting "it's all Weslock" since the Canadian Amateur Golf Championship opened Monday.

Nick, the brilliant Detroit-Windsor player, still ruled favorite but a little band of doubting Thomases hushed their voices after a look-see at Yesterday's two blistering rounds.

There was a wealth of golfing talent left for today's quarter-finals, which were split down the middle in a strictly east-versus-west all-Canadian show.

The west was headed by Bill Mawhinney of Vancouver. The black-haired youngster has come through every round in the same strong fashion as Weslock. Behind him the west has three experienced players—Allan Boes of Winnipeg, Hugh Morrison of Vancouver and Vern Mohs of Edmonton.

East Opposition Strong

The east seemed to offer just as strong opposition. Jerry Kesselring of Kitchener, Ont., like Mawhinney a former Canadian junior champion, has been playing consistently good golf through this tournament.

Then there was 19-year-old Bob Hall of Montreal, last year's junior champion, who supplied the long-looked for upset yesterday in bouncing out the lone American threat, Guy Owen of Cut Bank, Mont.

The east also offers surprising Don Doe of Granby, Que., who has methodically marched to the quarter-finals without any fuss or flurry.

The draw pitted Mohs against Hall, Morrison against Weslock, Mawhinney against Doe and Boes against Kesselring.

With that line-up, no one cared to predict the semi-finalists.

Hall supplied the fireworks yesterday by winning 2-1 over both Owen and Glen Gray of Edmonton, who is no newcomer to the amateur.

Weslock had two comparatively-easy rounds, though his 4 and 2 win over Otto McKush of Winnipeg was his closest margin so far. In the afternoon he polished off Johnny Peirson of Montreal, 5 and 4.

Mawhinney was still nursing a sore thumb from which he pulled a stitch while making a drive, but it seemed no handicap. He won 4 and 2 over Hamilton Drever of Edmonton and 5 and 4 over Don Gardner of Winnipeg.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, July 20 — (AP) — Apparently there's nothing a city slicker likes as much as being rooked by his country cousins - - Look how they go for circuses, carnivals, vacations in uncomfortable, mosquito-infested, expensive resorts—and the Hambletonian - - - The thought is inspired by the fact that the 25th Hambletonian stake will be raced at Goshen, N.Y., in a few weeks and Bill Cane has had to add 3,500 more seats to his sprawling grandstands.

These seats will be occupied mostly by New Yorkers who will take a long, hot trip into the country, pay a stiff admission price and stiffer prices for food and drinks they could get reasonably by staying at home or visiting Goshen when there's no racing - - - They'll shove one another around, fight to get down their money at the inadequate mutuel windows - - - They'll be sneered at by the natives - - - They'll see a great race; and they'll take home an unforgettable experience.

The Corn Was Corny

There weren't 3,500 people on hand when the Hambletonian was inaugurated at Syracuse in 1926 although harness-racing followers never had heard of anything like the $73,451 purse offered for that initial running - - - Trotting races were no novelty there or at Lexington, Ky., where the event barely existed until Bill Cane took over and moved it to Goshen in 1930 and told city folks about the "corntassel derby."

The city folks began coming to Goshen to see what it was all about and coming back because they liked what they saw - - - In a few years you could mention names like Greyhound, Shirley Hanover, Lord Jim or Peter Astra without drawing blank looks, and people could tell you about the driving records of Ben White (he has won four Hambletonians), Tom Berry, Sep Palin, Doc Parshall, Henry Thomas and the like - - - - White likely will be after his fifth triumph this year and Berry, Fred Egan, both two-time winners, will be in there against him - - - And if you care about the Hambletonian being the richest of all trotting events the purse is expected to hit an all-time high of about $85,000.

Who Gets Whom? Grid Stars Sign With Two Teams

(By The Canadian Press)

Jackie Stewart and Earl Valiquette, the two footballers who signed one contract too many, aren't out of the wood yet.

Stewart, a high-scoring backfielder with Hamilton Tigers of the Ontario Rugby Football Union last season, and Valiquette, ace lineman for Hamilton Wildcats of the Interprovincial Union, have committed themselves to play both for Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Canada League and Hamilton Tiger-cats, the new Interprovincial entry.

Just when it appeared that Stewart and Valiquette would stay in Hamilton, manager Al Anderson of the Eskimos telephoned them Wednesday, threatening to bar them from Canadian football unless they reach Edmonton by Sunday.

Tiger-cat officials insist with equal belligerence that the pair will be held to their Hamilton contracts.

Track men from Hamilton's Olympic Club Wednesday night set a Canadian junior record for the 440-yard relay.

The four-man team of Tom Little, Ross Coates, Dave Joyce and Don McFarlane cracked the old mark of 44.5 seconds with a sizzling 44.1 clocking at a Hamilton meet.

Philadelphia Athletics announced the outright sale of third baseman Bob Dillinger to Pittsburgh Pirates Wednesday night. The price was not disclosed.

Dillinger, purchased from St. Louis Browns for $100,000 at the winter Major League meeting, will report to the Pirates immediately.

Dyke Volo, owned by Lucien Lachapelle, of Sorel, Que., and driven by Henri Larochelle, set a trotting record at Toronto's Thorncliffe raceway Wednesday, negotiating a mile in 2.07 1/5.

Silver Lee won the Supertest Pacing Stake at Tillsonburg Wednesday from one of the largest and best fields ever to contest the event. The grey filly, owned and trained by Bill Timlinson of Glencoe, captured the elimination heat and then came back with a second and first in the final event to take the major portion of the $4,900 purse and the Supertest Trophy.

Tom Cooper, son of the late "Pops" Cooper, will head an entry list from the United States and Southern Ontario into Hamilton's international speed boat regatta Aug. 5.

Canadian entries have been received from Toronto, Hamilton, Fort Erie, St. Catharines, Brockville, Chippawa and Niagara Falls.

Smiths Falls Edges Batawa In Overtime

Smith Falls, July 20—(CP)—Ed Muldoon's lusty triple and a smartly-executed squeeze play allowed Smiths Falls Royals to edge out a 10-inning 5-4 victory over Batawa Shoemen Wednesday night in a central Ontario baseball league contest. The win boosted Royals lead over the second-place Kingston Leafs to seven full games.

Two mighty wrestling personages will come to grips when Yukon Eric, the Alaska lumberjack, takes on Fred Atkins, the Australian power-house, on Friday night at the Memorial Arena. Eric has a remarkable record behind him and, backed up by his tremendous physique, he shapes up as an opponent who might put the arrogant Atkins in his place. The 250-pound Atkins has usually had quite an edge over his opponents to date because of his rock-ribbed frame, size and unorthodox tactics. However, in this test with Yukon, it will be the Aussie himself who will be outweighed. On top of that, Yukon Eric is probably stronger than the iron-clad Atkins. Besides which, Eric is experienced in the rough-and-tumble tactics of the north woods, so if Atkins elects to mix it, he'll find Eric a willing opponent.

Dauthuille KO's Tuzo Portuguez In Third Round

Montreal, July 20 (CP)—Laurent Dauthuille appeared today to be headed for a crack at Jake Lamotta's middleweight crown.

The husky Frenchman flattened Tuzo Portuguez of Costa Rica at 1:08 of the third round in a 10-round bout at Montreal's baseball stadium last night before a disappointing crowd of 8,000 which contributed a gross gate of $29,862.

Dauthuille weighed 158½. Portuguez 162¾. The 22-year-old Costa Rican was 2½ pounds over the 160 limit and Dauthuille's managers protested to the Montreal Boxing Commission before the fight.

The fight started at a slow pace in the first round as Portuguez adopted a low, crouching style which kept him out of range of Dauthuille's long-range artillery. But suddenly, after two rounds of inactivity, 26-year-old Dauthuille opened up and caught his cat-like opponent with a bruising right to the jaw, Portuguez went down on his knees but got up at once. The Frenchman closed in and dropped the helpless Rican with a dozen powerful rights to the head.

Portuguez, who has won 79 of 86 fights, jumped to his feet after being counted out. He required no assistance on leaving the ring.

Maxie Waxman, Dauthuille's United States manager, said after the fight that he will issue a challenge for a title bout with Lamotta. He said that if Lamotta refuses to meet Dauthuille he will seek Sugar Ray Robinson, world welterweight king, as next opponent for his fighter.

Chairman Eddie Egan of the New York Boxing Commission said he thinks Dauthuille "has the qualifications to meet Lamotta" and that his commission would sanction such a match.

Pirates Acquire Third Baseman For $100,000

Pittsburgh, July 20 — (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates began a new era today by writing a cheque for approximately $100,000 to acquire third baseman Bob Dillinger from the American League's Philadelphia Athletics.

Dillinger's purchase came a few hours after banker Frank McKinney of Indianapolis sold his share of the last-place Pirates to two partners — John Galbreath, a Columbus real estate man, and Tom Johnson, Pittsburgh attorney.

Galbreath, who not only became principle stockholder of the Bucs but president as well, left little doubt that he will try to bring a pennant winner to Pittsburgh. After yesterday's transaction, Galbreath said:

"I'm interested in only one thing, a winning club in Pittsburgh. To that end, we will do whatever is necessary."

Although the Dillinger deal had been pending some time it didn't take long for Galbreath to dispatch general manager Roy Hamey to Philadelphia where he concluded the transaction last night.

Manager Billy Meyer of the Pirates was elated at Dillinger's purchase. He said rookie third baseman Danny O'Connell, brought up only recently from Indianapolis of the American Association, might be tried at shortstop.

Dillinger has been hitting around the .310 mark this year, gained with 110 hits in 355 times at bat. He led the American League in triples with nine.

A Pirate spokesman declared "there may be other deals before the season is out."

With McKinney at the helm, the Bucs have spent an estimated $5,000,000 on a five-year pennant plan since their $2,000,000 original investment in 1946.

Leafs Still Tumbling Down, Lose Another

By The Associated Press

Jim Prendergast, veteran left-hander, and his Syracuse Chiefs' teammates are probably wondering today how a healthy Hank Edwards would perform.

Edwards was sent to Springfield Cubs recently by the parent Chicago Cubs on 24-hour option, although he was hitting .367, because he was plagued by injuries and illness.

Last night Prendergast had the Cubs beaten 3-1 on five hits going into the ninth when the roof caved in.

Prendergast issued his first walk of the game to Ransom Jackson and Edwards followed with a 360-foot home run to tie the score.

The Cubs then proceeded to score two more runs on a walk, single and Dutch Mele's three-base error on Bob Talbot's long belt to right to win the game 5-3.

Meanwhile, the pace-setting Rochester Red Wings turned back Toronto Maple Leafs, 5-3, to protect their 2 1-2 game lead over the runner-up Baltimore Orioles. The Orioles swamped Jersey City Giants 8-1.

The Wings collected only five hits but one was a three-run homer by Ed Neitopski, back in the line-up after a three-week spell on the bench for not hitting.

Veteran Clyde King pitched Montreal Royals to an 8-2 triumph over Buffalo Bisons. The Royals pounded two Buffalo pitchers for 15 hits with Rockey Bridges, Johnny Walaj and Toby Atwell leading the way with three each.

Amputee Team Wins Ball Game

New York, July 20—(AP)—A team of amputee United States war veterans last night won a nine-inning baseball game from Al Schacht's Broadway-Hollywood All-stars at the polo grounds 7-6.

Some 15,000 cheering fans saw the winners, each member of which had lost a leg or an arm, prove that they can get around swiftly and capably. They demonstrated their ability to field and hit sharply.

The game was sponsored by the National Amputation Foundation, a non-profit membership corporation.

Scoreless Tie Hurling Duel To Continue

By The Canadian Press

Niagara District Senior League fans will wait a long time before they see another pitching duel like the Niagara Falls-St. Catharines game Wednesday night.

The boys might be playing yet if they hadn't decided to call the whole thing off at the end of nine and try again tonight to break their scoreless tie.

Sunny Hicks, St. Kitts outfielder-turned-pitcher tied up with Fords' mound ace Juggs Rufrano to mark up goose eggs with monotonous regularity in a game in which only nine hits were recorded, five off Hicks and four off Rufrano.

At Welland, the league-leading Stokes shaded West Seneca 9-5 with reliable Danny Patakfalvi coming through with an eight-hit twirling chore. The youthful Welland pitcher shaded righthander Ted Coates of West Seneca.

Alex Bollyard, Welland outfielder, was the hitting star of the game with four hits in four trips to bat, driving in three runs.

TOM GARD'S NOTE BOOK

One of the most distressing scenes at this time of year is a lawn burned to a crisp. True, some home owners are able to keep their lawns green throughout the summer but they are in the minority. Soil fertility is as important in this struggle to keep grass green as the amount of water applied. People who make a lawn on a two-inch layer of good soil are only asking for trouble. Money spent to prepare a deep seed bed before the seed is sown will save heavy annual payments for fertilisers in the years to come. A friend of mine placed a two-inch layer of peat under six inches of rich top soil and has never had to worry about watering his lawn. In case you are struggling with a poor lawn, you will find the lawn spike illustrated a valuable asset.

Garden Tables

I visited a classmate of mine last week who had just moved out to the wide open spaces. I envy all the room he will have to employ his gardening skill. The thing that really caught my eye was a huge mill stone he plans to mount on a cement base for a garden table. This relic of the past will still be giving service generations hence. Much smaller stones can be procured and used equally well. Also illustrated is a wooden table built on a barrel; you will find it easy to make. One of the most effective garden tables I have ever seen was made from the marble top of an old-fashioned tea-room table placed on a 12 inch cement drainage tile, partially buried in the ground to make it solid. The whole thing had not cost a cent to assemble as the table top was rescued from a dump and, unbeknown to the proper authorities, the township contributed the tile.

Garden Fences

A fence can be a friendly thing as I have just found out. My neighbour and I have finally taken time to sit down and plan the building of a new one between us. Now that we have progressed past the nodding acquaintance stage, I'm certain we will be spending many hours together.

The Kibitzer

Elva Tyme treats my bridge rules like she does her children. She loves them. But she worries about them, too. Every so often she stops to concern herself with what may happen to them.

Against a suit bid the rule is: With an ace or king in each unbid suit, lead a trump. This appeals to her. But then she comes up with the thought: What if I also have the king and one more trump?

The answer is that the lead is then a suit that dummy has bid if you have no ace or king in it. When you lead such a suit, what should partner learn from it? Figure this out with me.

A trump lead says you have ace or king in each unbid suit. So, what excuse could you have for leading a bid side suit? Only that you fear leading a trump that may cause you to lose the king.

South ends in four hearts after north had also bid diamonds. You have the west hand shown here:

♠K 8 4 2
♥K 7
♦9 6 3
♣K 6 5 2

What is your correct opening lead? Consider first the don'ts: Don't lead a suit bid by opponents; don't lead away from an ace or a king in a suit contract. Look over your suits.

Both red suits had been bid by opponents. Do not lead either. Your spade suit has a king in it. Refrain from leading such a suit. Your club suit has a king in it. Refrain from leading such a suit.

There is thus an objection to each suit. And since you must lead something, prefer to lead a trump. But if you lead a trump from such a holding as you now have, it may lose a trick for your side.

So, lead the other bid suit. This will give your partner needed information. He will know you have the king of trump. Also the king or ace in each suit that has not been bid.

Not always will such a lead be best. But it is better than floundering. When you flounder, partner may think you are a poor fish.

Quinte Tennis Club Defeats Point Anne

The Quinte Tennis Club, using a squad of juniors and intermediates, last evening trounced Point Anne five matches to one in an Intermediate Tennis League tournament at the Quinte Club.

Results of the matches are:—

MARMORA

Marmora, July 20 (Special)—At Marmora town hall on Wednesday at 10.30 a.m. a preliminary inquest was held in the death of John Laird at Deloro on Tuesday afternoon. The coroner Dr. S. R. Beatty of Madoc empanelled a jury composed of William Forestell, foreman, Joseph Darrah, Gordon Phillips, Edward Post and Nathan Mumby.

S. Sandham gave evidence of seeing deceased following the accident. The inquest was adjourned until 5 p.m. Monday, July 24th.

The funeral will be held on Friday leaving his late residence at 1.30 p.m. for service at St. Paul's Church, under auspices of Marmora Branch 237 Canadian Legion with the chaplain of the Branch Rural Dean J. M. Brownlie officiating. Interment will take place in Little Lake cemetery, Peterborough.

RECALL RESERVISTS

Washington, July 20 — (AP)—The United States Defence Department announced Wednesday the army and air force will begin immediately recalling a limited number of reservists to active duty. The navy also will start immediately a "selective recall" of reserves, the announcement said.

Mackenzie's Column: No Compromise With Aggressors U.S. Attitude

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The United States wants peace in Korea but has no intention of sacrificing principles and engaging in any horse-deal with Russia to achieve it.

That, I take it, is the real significance of Washington's polite but firm response to the efforts of Prime Minister Nehru of India to mediate the Korean crisis. Out the window is the idea (approved by Prime Minister Stalin) that communist China's admission to the United Nations be made a preliminary to negotiating peace in Korea.

There's only one acceptable qualification for peace negotiations. That is for the aggressors to cease fire and withdraw within their own borders. Then the issue isn't one between Russia and the U. S. but between Russia and the U.N.

U.S. Determined.

In short, the U. S. is standing pat on its determination to meet communist aggression wherever it shows itself, and fight it to a finish. There is to be no compromise.

Ample backing for that sweeping statement is to be found in President Truman's call on Congress yesterday for a $10,000,000,000 program to provide men and material for the Korean conflict and to guard against armed aggression anywhere else.

As so often happens, Stalin is wearing a halo of peace in his ostensible willingness to negotiate the Korean war if the U. N. will evict nationalist China and admit communist China to membership. In view of this let's take a look at just what red China's membership means to Russia.

The main gain would be in prestige for the communist bloc. That would be considerable in the peace organization and might be far reaching in Asia.

We mustn't forget that while China now is a stricken country potentially she is one of the world's great powers.

The eviction of nationalist China and the election of communist China in the U. N. certainly would boost the stock of communism in many Asiatic eyes.

So if Russia could temporarily abandon the Korean venture and thereby gain international recognition of China, it would be a good swap for Moscow. She always could return to the Korean attack at an opportune moment.

STIRLING

Rev. A. E. Baker Addresses St. Paul's Women's Association

Stirling—The July meeting of St. Paul's United Church Women's Association was held in the church parlors on Tuesday afternoon with a good attendance.

The meeting opened in the usual manner. The W.A. accepted the invitation to attend Scott's Church anniversary union afternoon service and supper, on Wednesday, September 13th.

The secretary was advised to write letters of appreciation and thanks to Mrs. R. A. Patterson for her untiring work as secretary pro tem during the past months, also to Mrs. Morley Davidson and Mrs. G. Dobbs of Belleville.

The program was in charge of Mrs. J. L. Good.

The guest speaker the Rev. A. E. Baker, gave an outstanding patriotic address and reminded all that the Dominion of Canada was born 83 years ago on July 1st. Mrs. Sid Williams read the scripture lesson, Psalm 72, followed by prayer by Mrs. Ford. Two readings were given by Misses Marlene Carlisle and Janet Reynolds. Misses Catherine, Joan and Grace Heasman favored the W.A. with the patriotic song "Land of Glad Tomorrow" accompanied at the piano by Mrs. G. Heasman, also Misses Helen and Joan Stapley with a duet "America the Beautiful" accompanied at the piano by the pianist, Mrs. H. West.

The committee in charge served refreshments.

A vote of thanks to the guest speaker, the soloists, readers and to all those responsible for the excellent program and refreshments was voiced by Mrs. P. Utman.

CRETAN IDEA

Bull-fighting is said to have originated in Crete, ancient land of the Minotaur.

Hunted and running for his life across the breadth of London is Richard Widmark, portrayed here as a man on the run, in a dramatic scene from the Twentieth Century-Fox suspense melodrama "Night and the City," now showing at the Capitol Theatre for its first Belleville showing. Gene Tierney is co-starred.

Wm. Gargan, Success in TV, Envy of Actors Out of Job, Says TV Creates Own Stars

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 20 — (AP) — This week the most popular actor in Hollywood is an amiable Irishman named William Gargan.

Wherever he goes, Gargan is buttonholed by his fellow actors, many of whom haven't worked for a year or two. They want to know what to do about television.

"I tell them to jump right into it," said Bill. "I've always said that an actor out of work is no better than anybody on skid row. He's just a guy without a job."

Gargan is a guy with a job — 44 weeks, without options, as Martin Kane on TV and radio. Thus he is the envy of his fellow craftsmen and an oracle for them.

"Look — for 17 years I made a good living out here," he says. "I was never a star; my name appeared above the title in a picture, but I always got featured billing in the big ones."

Now's the Payoff

In 1949 a friend urged him to take a look at the TV set-up in New York. Gargan did. He now is taking his first vacation in 18 months.

"Naturally, I didn't make much money the first season," he admitted. "But now television is beginning to pay off. And the Hollywood names had better get into it soon. Because TV is creating its own stars.

"A few years ago, I used to figure the name Gargan meant a quarter-million dollars on a movie marquee. Somebody like Gary Cooper would mean perhaps $5,000,000. Cooper may be worth that today, but I wouldn't say there were more than ten other stars whose names mean anything at the box-office.

"The mountain (TV) isn't going to come to Mahomed (film stars). It will have to be the other way round."

MRS. ROSE MOTZ DIES

Kitchener, July 19. (CP)—Mrs. Rose Motz, 75, widow of W. J. Motz and president of the Kitchener-Waterloo Record, died in the hospital Tuesday after three weeks' illness. Funeral will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday at St. Mary's Church. Interment will be in Mount Hope Cemetery.

Little Benny's Note Book

This afternoon ma telefoned more people to come to come to our house tomorrow nite for the serprise party she is going to give for pop's berthday, and I said, G, ma, suppose pop guesses you're going to give him a serprise party?

There's no danger, ma said. He doesn't even remember that tomorrow is his berthday, and I've taken good care not to remind him, so that will make it a dubble serprise, she said.

And after supper pop was tihnking to himself and ma said, A penny for your thawts, William.

Dont be so reckless with your money, pop said. I was just thinking how vain and conceeted I am.

Why William, you're nuthing of hte sort anything of the kind, ma said. If you gave yourself half the credit you reserve, you'd sti be an unusually modest man, she said, and pop said, How little yuo know me. I'm an egotistical, self sattisfied, ostentatious, puffed up cuss. Why, at this very moment I'm sitting here with the pretentious thawt that somebody elts in this big house besides myself mite of remembered that I've got a berthday coming up tomorrow, he said.

Well of all the contrary men, ma said. It's the ferst time in years I haven't had to remind you of yonr own berthday, she said, and pop said, Yee gods, the woman not only forgets my berthday, but she tries to cover up by claiming I have no rite

The result being pop apologized and gave her a kiss.

Was Rundown; Suffered With Gas, Dizzy Spells

Easily Tired, Nerves On Edge, Couldn't Sleep Well. Took Short Treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound and Now She Enjoys Grand Relief.

If you feel tired, wornout and nervous, if bowels are constipated and you suffer with indigestion, gas, sour acidity and heartburn; if you have dizzy feelings, headaches and cannot get sound restful sleep at night take a short treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound and like many other local men and women you may find that this medicine may be just what you need to make you feel like yourself again.

Here, for example, is the fine experience of Mrs. Charles Diltz, 21 Curtis Street, St. Thomas, Ontario, as reported only a short while ago.

"I was feeling in a rundown condition. I was extremely nervous, often couldn't get to sleep at night and I used to feel so tired that everything seemed an effort to me. My digestion was very poor. I suffered with gas and dizzy, light-headed feelings.

"I heard so much praise given Syntona that I finally decided to get some and this medicine has made me feel so much better that I would recommend it to anyone as a grand tonic. Instead of being tired-out I now have energy to spare and my nerves are relaxed, so I sleep well and arise mornings feeling rested and refreshed. I am able to eat my meals without suffering from gas afterwards and I haven't had any trouble with dizziness since I first began taking this medicine. I think it's wonderful and highly recommend it."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST. Find out how it will help you too.

RAWDON

Dr. S. R. Laycock Of Sask. University Addresses Bethel W.A.

Rawdon.—Bethel Women's Association entertained nine organizations at the church on Friday afternoon with a good attendance. The church was resplendent with lovely summer blooms.

Mrs. Thomas Laycock, president of Bethel W.A., presided and welcomed the guests.

Mrs. S. J. Elliott gave a resume of the history of Bethel W.A., for the 25 years of Union, and a lovely basket of flowers were placed in memory of all deceased members.

Mrs. Walter Warren sang a solo and Mrs. R. Shortt and Mrs. W. Heath contributed a piano duet.

Guest Speaker

Mrs. H. C. Vaclavik introduced the guest speaker, Dr. S. R. Laycock, a professor in the University of Saskatchewan, who gave a splendid educational address on "Child Welfare".

Mrs. Harold Elliott delighted with instrumental music, Mrs. Don Heath and Mrs. H. C. Vaclavik sang a lovely duet. A silver collection was taken after which members of the W.A. served a salad plate, cookies and tarts, and all enjoyed a social half hour.

MARSH HILL

Marsh Hall.—Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Lough of Fort Erie, visited the former's father, Mr. Frank Lough, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Miller, of Belleville, called Saturday afternoon on Mrs. Robt. Campbell, and Mrs. Frank Finkle.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sharp of Peterborough, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Coulter.

Mr. and Mrs. Boulter Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Johnston, Janet and Allan, of Harold, were Sunday evening callers of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Finkle.

Mr. J. Shibley of Toronto, was a weekend guest at the home of Col. Roscoe Vanderwater.

CHIEF PLEADS GUILTY

Hull, Que., July 20 — (CP) — Frederic Marengere, a former police chief of Hull, pleaded guilty in court Wednesday to a charge of reckless driving and was fined $35 and costs. Marengere was arrested Tuesday after a highway accident in which two persons were injured.

Sidney Junior Farmer Groups Win Track, Field Events at Picnic

Showing a clean pair of heels to their opposition in track and field events, Sidney township junior farmers and farmerettes carried off top honors in the annual Hastings County Junior Farmers picnic held Wednesday at the Stirling fair grounds.

Rawdon township won the boys' softball honors outslugging the boys from Sidney 15-11 on an abbreviated five-inning evening game to take the championship Madoc won the girls' softball honors by defeating Sidney 10-7

Although losing out in the softball finals Sidney amassed a total of 37 points in the day's events. Madoc was second with 32 points; Rawdon was third with 23 points and Thurlow fourth with 18. Hungerford juniors were able to garner but eight points in the day's events.

Thurlow Juniors Hosts

Thurlow Juniors were hosts for the picnic and field day and operated the booth on the grounds and also sponsored the evening dance at the Stirling Community Hall where the Starlighters orchestra from Trenton RCAF provided the music. Two hundred and fifteen juniors from the southern part of the county attended the field day.

In winning the boys' softball championship Rawdon ended two years supremacy on the part of Sidney. Madoc girls, however, repeated their last year's performance in defeating Sidney.

With five teams competing Hungerford received a bye in the softball tournament. Sidney and Rawdon tied 2-2 in the original draw, while Madoc downed Thurlow 16-1. Rawdon then went on to beat Hungerford 8-0. In the semi-finals Sidney beat out Madoc 5-4 and then lost out to Rawdon in the finals.

The teams:

Rawdon: Lanigan, Finch, McInroy, Sills, Zufelt, Faulkner, Richardson, Graham and Morgan.

Sidney: W. Harder ss; A. Harry 2b; D. Harry c; Waite cf; May rf; M. Harder lf; G. Harry 3b; Marshall 1b Edmondson and Burkitt p.

In the girls' softball Madoc downed Thurlow girls 14-9, then eked out a close 9-8 victory over Rawdon and went on to defeat Sidney 10-7 in the finals. Sidney downed Hungerford 16-11 before bowing to the victorious Madoc nine.

Madoc: M. Parks 1b; D. Holmes c; D. Rollins cf; B. Wartman p; V. Rollins 2b; E. McCoy rf; J. Bailey and B. Chapman 3b; J. Chapman ss; R. Bailey and C. Fox lf.

Sidney: R. Harder 3b; J. Armstrong 1b; N. Harder ss; A. Armstrong cf; Joyce Morris rf; June Meyers 2b; E. Sine p and K. Mulvihill lf.

Track events: Boys, 100 yard dash, Fred Edmondson, Bob Burkitt and Ted Aikens; 220 yards, Cecil Grills, Ted Aikens and Manley Mitchell; running broad jump, Lynn McCoy, Cecil Grills and Grant Richardson; high jump, J. Lanigan, G. Richardson and B. Zufelt.

Girls: 75 yards, Mona Swan, June Meyers and Kay Homan; running broad jump, Shirley Elliott, Kay Homan and June Meyers; high jump, June Meyers Shirley Elliott, Marilyn Parks; softball throw, Adeline McCoy, J. Armstrong and Donna Rollins.

The first three winners in the track and field events as well as the winning softball teams will be eligible to participate in the district junior farmers' field day to be held July 28th at the Ontario School for the Deaf in Belleville.

CROFTON

Crofton—Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Munro and Keith called on Mr. and Mrs. M. B. and Mrs. J. E. Moran, on Monday evening.

Mrs. Eugene Rorabeck, of Upper Crofton, was a guest of her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. B. Jones, on Sunday.

The Burr neighborhood, about 49 families, held their annual picnic on Sunday at Luke's summer resort.

Master Wayne Morrison, of Belleville, is spending this week with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Bongard, of Pleasant Bay, were callers at the home farm on Wednesday and also called on Mrs. Eugene Rarabeck at Upper Crofton.

OIL MAY ENRICH TRIBE

Edmonton, July 20 — (CP) — A tribe of about 230 Cree Indians who live on the Winterburn Reserve nine miles west of Edmonton, soon may become the richest Indians in Canada. Imperiol Oil Limited is drilling a wildcat well on the reserve which oilmen say has good chances of producing.

FOOT MISERY

When feet burn, sting, itch and shoes feel as if they were cutting right into the flesh, get a bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil and rub well on feet and ankles morning and night for a few days.

A real discovery for thousands who have found blessed relief. Moone's Emerald Oil is easy and pleasant to use—it does not stain. Economical—money back if not satisfied. Doyle's Drug Store and good druggists everywhere.

FALSE TEETH

That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

Life was never such FUN before!

Now she's sought after, invited everywhere, enriched with the glow of health that excites admiration. What a difference from that pale, listless, anemic, lonely girl. You too can be happy, peppy, popular. If you always feel tired, run-down—do what happy thousands now do, take Dr. Williams Pink Pills. See if within 30 days, a richer, redder blood doesn't make you a new person, with more bounding energy, better color, new radiance. Start today! Get back "in the pink" with

Pt. Anne Drubs Napanee Lions By 16-8 Score

Scoring in every inning, the Point Anne Cementmen blasted the Napanee Lions 16-8 last evening in a Belleville and District Baseball League game at Point Anne.

The visitors struck for four runs in the top of the first frame chasing starter Jack Green. Bob Bennett came in with two away and went through to the sixth allowing three hits and one run. In the sixth the Lions clawed out for three runs on three walks, a single and an error, and Perry came in to retire the side.

The Cementmen, after striking for two in each of the first and third, one in each of the second and fifth, and three in the fourth, sandbagged the helpless Lions with a seven run rally in the sixth to put the game out of reach.

Napanee Lions: Huffman rf; Switzer 3b; Ansette lf; Denison ss; Holmes 2b; Vick 1b; Leary cf; Fish c; Robinson p, replaced by Barker in 4th.

Point Anne Cementmen—Bradshaw cf; Gilmour 3b; M. Green lf; Buchanan 1b; Lewis ss; P. Green c; Bennett rf; D. Hull 2b; J. Green p, relieved by Bob Bennett in 1st, relieved by Perry in sixth.

Protest Upheld Crawford Metals Forfeit Game

The ineligibility of Lloyd Faulkner cost Crawford Metals their 9-8 overtime victory over Belleville Motor Car, the Commercial Softball League executive ruled last evening.

The game played last Friday evening, dumped the motormen out of the unbeaten class in the B section of the league. It was later discovered that Faulkner, who pitched the entire game for the Metals and had a great part in their victory was not signed to play in Commercial League. The use of an illegal player automatically cost the Crawford team the game.

Crawford manager Sid Speigel informed the league that his team is in desperate need of a pitcher and that it was this need which forced him to use Faukner in Friday's game.

The rival managers when polled by the executive stated that they had no objection to the use of Faulkner in future games. However, an automatic league regulation resulted in the forfeit of the game to Belleville Mercuries because of the players' ineligibility and the fact that rival managers had not given their consent to his inclusion in the Crawford lineup at the time of the game.

Boy Fractures Both Arms in Tractor Accident

Dropping twelve feet when he drove his father's farm tractor out through the side of the barn west of Rossmore, John Kennedy aged 12, son of Dr. E. G. Kennedy and Mrs. Kennedy of this city, on Wednesday afternoon suffered fractures to both arms.

The young lad had volunteered to drive his father's tractor from the barn floor and in starting the machine had it in now gear instead of reverse. The tractor shot ahead and crashed through the side of the barn a projecting scantling brushing the boy from the seat.

The boy fell 12 feet to the ground while the tractor turned over, fell on its top and was badly damaged. The lad is resting in Belleville General Hospital where his arm fractures were reduced.

Speedster Flips In Gold Cup Speedboat Trials

Detroit, July 20 — (AP)—Off to a spectacular start and with one boat mechanic in a hospital, the Gold Cup speedboat trials rocked into their second day today.

Horace Dodge's twin-engined Delphine X flipped over on a test run on the Detroit River yesterday, hurling out pilot Wild Bill Cantrell and two mechanics.

One mechanic, Walter Kabe, suffered a fractured leg and internal injuries. He remained under treatment in Jennings Memorial Hospital today.

Cantrell was discharged from the hospital after treatment for cuts and minor internal injuries. The second mechanic, Bob Petz was unhurt.

Earlier Cantrell qualified My Sweetie for Saturday's race with a high average of 89.108 for three laps of the three-mile course.

My Sweetie is the defending Gold Cup champion and Cantrell is the defending driver. Barring complications, he intends to race Saturday.

$16,000 HOSPITAL GRANT

Toronto, July 19 — (CP) — A $16,000 grant to Kingston General Hospital was announced today by the Ontario government.

Coupled with a $65,000 grant made last year, it will be used for construction of a four-storey addition to the hospital and for alteration of interne quarters.

The addition will provide 81 more beds, government officials said.

SCOHARIE

Scoharie—Mrs. Harvey Davison spent Sunday and Monday with her sister, Mrs. James Matthie and Mr. Matthie.

Mrs. Herb Mitchell, Belleville, came for her aunt, Mrs. Lewis Cleave and took her to her home for a visit. When they came back, they enjoyed a drive by way of Wellington, and called on Will Smith.

The many friends here are glad that Mrs. Harold Walters is gaining nicely after her recent operation. They are sorry Mrs. Angus Waltes suffered a heart attack. All hope they will be much better soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Taylor were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Kleinsteuber, Picton.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hanna and boys have enjoyed camp meeting at Orland, the last two Sundays.

Keith Hanna spent Sunday with his friend, Jack Laundry.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Johnson and baby, Nancy, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hutton.

Sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Norton, and sons in the loss of mother and grandmother. This grand old lady would have soon been 97 years old if she had lived. She had been quite smart until just recently.

AMERICANS TAKE UP NEW DEFENCE POSITIONS

"IN KOREA TO STAY" — MacARTHUR

"We are in Korea to stay," are the words of Gen. MacArthur putting an end to statements that the U.S. is contemplating withdrawal from Korea and planning later invasion. This is one of the most recent photos taken of the United Nations commander in the Far East. — Central Press Canadian.

RCAF Gathering Its Flock Of North Stars From Far Reaches of World for Airlift

Ottawa, July 21 — (CP) — The R.C.A.F.'s No. 426 transport squadron was gathering in its flock of North Stars from the reaches of the world today while operations experts met in Ottawa to lay final plans for its movement into the trans-Pacific airlift for Korea.

Defence Minister Claxton said last night the squadron will leave in the next day or so.

One of the four-engined giants with a crew of 20 — ground and air — was beating its way home from a three-week training flight that took it as far as Cairo. It was in Trinidad today and due back at the home base at Dorval Airport, near Montreal, tomorrow.

Other North Stars have flown down from the northland, from Goose Bay and the Yukon in gathering up the loose ends of their regular transport runs that now will be interrupted.

At R.C.A.F. headquarters, Wing Cmdr. C. H. Mussells, squadron chief, and other operation experts were due back from Washington today with details of plans to fit the squadron into the United Nations airlift from the Pacific coast to Japan.

Churchill Does Not Believe War Imminent

Bath, England, July 21 (CP)— Winston Churchill said yesterday he does not think a great war is imminent.

The wartime Prime Minister expressed belief that American firmness will forestall a major conflict.

"But I am sure of this," he said in an address, "if there were any weakness or division in the English-speaking world, if it were not for the great and courageous championship of the cause of freedom by the mighty United States, if outside the iron curtain there were not strong and loyal supporters of the maintenance of peace, there could be no limit to the miseries which the whole world would have to undergo."

Churchill spoke to 1,500 persons who attended a ceremony at which the freedom of the ancient city of Bath was conferred on him.

"I greatly welcome the action of the United States and I am sure they will find in our island and the array of commonwealths and states gathered around it real allies and faithful friends," he said.

"It is hard that when only five years have passed we should find the dark shadows hanging over the progress of mankind, the famous institution of the United Nations divided, rent and harassed in its work — but still courageously performing its task."

"But I do not think myself that greater war is imminent."

WEATHER SYNOPSIS:

Toronto, July 21 (CP)—Synopsis: Ontario holidayers experienced a chilly night as temperatures sank close to the forty mark in Muskoka, but sunny skies will force the mercury to at least seventy five throughout the province today.

Saturday will be sunny and pleasantly warm most of the day but clouds and scattered showers or thundershowers will advance slowly into the western portion of the province later in the day.

WINS BY ONE VOTE

Paris, July 21. (AP)—Premier Rene Plevin's middle-of-the-road coalition cabinet won a one-vote victory in the National Assembly today during a debate on appropriations for war veterans.

The count was 292 to 291.

CONTROLS MAY COME IN U.S. IF PRICES RISE

Excess Profits Tax Proposals Suggested

Washington, July 21 — (AP)— The possibility of price - wage controls in the United States was discussed today by Truman administration officials. Congressmen also demanded action to take the profits out of the Korean War.

Most of these demands came in the form of proposals for early enactment of an Excess Profits tax aimed at profiteering.

But one administration official who declined to be quoted by name told a reporter that unless there is a drop in rapidly - increasing prices, controls of that nature may not be far away.

President Truman left the road open in his Wednesday message to Congress to call later for such curbs on the U. S. economy but they were omitted from the administration's defence production bill.

Some Republicans complained that the powers requested by the president are too broad. Some Democrats said they don't want Congress to vote authority in the bill for the government to go into competition with private business.

Meantime, the government — disturbed by increases in prices and evidence of consumer hoarding — is working on a report to convince the public it need not fear food shortages because of the Korean War.

The report, being drafted by the Agriculture Department, will be made public Saturday night.

Repeated official assurances that food supplies are plentiful were said by officials to have slowed down, but not stopped, the heavy consumer buying of sugar, canned goods and other non-perishable foods.

The report is expected to say that, on the basis of present conditions, there is no valid reason for a higher general level of food prices during the next six months.

Starts to Pull Up Lobster Trap, Up Comes Sub

Saint John, N.B., July 21 — George Tiner, 62, started to pull up one of his lobster traps—but it was a submarine that appeared.

The trap now is lying on the ocean floor off Chance Point Harbor near here, and "as far as I'm concerned, it can stay there," the startled lobster fisherman said Thursday.

He said the submarine appeared in dense fog and then crash-dived almost immediately. A naval intelligence officer at Halifax said United States submarines are on exercises off here but none was repored in the Chance Harbor area.

Suggestions for A-Bomb In Korea Viewed Dimly

Washington, July 21—(AP) — The United States armed forces, for purely military reasons, take a dim view of suggestions that use of the atomic bomb might quickly end the Korean War.

Military officials question whether the A-bomb could produce results in Korea — where there are few good targets for a mass-destruction weapon—sufficient to justify dipping into the U.S. atomic arsenal which is limited in size.

To make profitable such use of a weapon so expensive in terms of material, manpower and money would require that thousands or tens of thousands of enemy troops be concentrated in an area a mile or less in radius.

Such concentrations of North Korean troops do not exist. At the front, they are deployed along a straggling line. There are no ports where masses of their men and equipment might pile up. At some points there are rail or highway junctions, but North Korean troops flow through these points rather than congest in large numbers.

Even if it were decided to use atomic bombs against enemy forces deployed at the battle zone, the terrain would pose a stiff problem.

The front — like most all of Korea— is mountainous country, with ridges and valleys cutting across the landscape. The effect of an atomic bomb is drastically reduced by such terrain because the ridges shield areas from the blast.

The use of A-bombs against strategic targets—the centres of war production—is deemed equally impractical, simply because there are almost no targets of strategic importance in communist North Korea.

Should some A-bombs be withdrawn from the arsenal and used anyway?

That raises the question of how many A-bombs are available. There never has been any announcement.

One unofficial guess came from Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, who was director of the Los Alamos, N.M., laboratory when the first A-bombs were made. He said in 1946 that in peacetime 200 A-bombs could be completed in "maybe a little over a year." By intensive effort, he thought, the United States could "accumulate 1,000 bombs" in two years. Perhaps the figure is somewhere between these two estimates.

Housewives Budget Hit

Steady Rise in Recent Meat Prices Expected to End Soon

(By The Canadian Press)

A steady rise in meat prices during the last several months is hitting the housewife's budget.

However, the rise will end temporarily in the next few weeks with a normal seasonal dip, packers said today.

The increase —in most cities about 20 a pound for the better cuts of beef — has caused a drop in demand and turned housewives to substitutes.

The price boost is attributed to the United States market which has taken all exports since the embargo on shipment of Canadian beef and cattle was lifted in August, 1948.

The American market has absorbed 91.5 per cent more Canadian beef cattle and imported 9,000,000 more pounds of dressed meat than last year.

Will Rise Again Later

A meat marketing official said that after a seasonal drop the rise in meat prices likely will be resumed as demand from the U.S. mounts. The tense international situation may also contribute to a rise. War fears tend to increase the price of commodities such as grains which, in turn, brings higher prices for cattle.

The drop in demand in Montreal has caused some butchers there to stop stocking higher-priced cuts of beef and lamb. Porterhouse steaks cost $1.20 a pound in Montreal this week, an increase of 25 cents from the price last January.

Pork prices also have been affected but the rise has not been as sharp as for beef. The average increase for pork products, such as sausage, shoulder, loin and breakfast bacon, has been about 10 cents a pound since January.

The present price for sausage ranges from a high of 55 cents a pound in Moncton to 47 cents in Vancouver where the increase in the last six months has been only two cents.

Sharp Rise in Toronto

The sharpest beef-price increase was in Toronto. An official of a large grocery chain said Porterhouse and sirloin steak cuts were selling for 99 cents a pound, an increase of 30 cents in six months. Rump roast cuts are 92 cents a pound, up 27 cents; and prime rib roast 72 cents a pound, up 15 cents.

There has been little change in beef prices in Moncton. Porterhouse steak and sirloin steak there costs 90 cents a pound, an increase of one cent for the former and two cents for the latter. Rump roast rose from 75 cents to 80 and prime ribs remained at 65 cents.

Missing U.S. General Famous For His Heroism Under Fire on Battlefield

A U.S. Command Post in Korea, July 21 (AP)—Fellow soldiers today held firm hope that Maj.-Gen. William F. Dean, unreported nearly 24 hours in the thick of the Taejon fighting, "will get out."

But fear for his safety grew by the hour. The front-line fighting commander of the United States 24th infantry division was last reported leading a bazooka team fighting off north Korean tanks.

Deans staff tried to reassure themselves with this declaration: "The general can take care of himself. He may have to walk, but he'll get out!"

The communist tanks moved on Taejon at dawn Thursday. They circled around and around the American command post, firing as they went.

Cpl. Ralph Vargason said he last saw Dean "running a bazooka (rocket launcher) team just before the roof fell in.

"He was doing a damned good job of it too. I saw him holding a bazooka shell in each hand. And after our guys knocked out that tank I saw him walk up and measure the bore of an enemy tank while it was still on fire. He said it was a .75."

Another story of Dean's heroism under close fire came from Pte. Alfred Vessels, 18, Stanton, Tex., who told how teen-age American soldiers fought and knocked out red tanks under Dean's personal leadership.

Dean had a record of fearless fighting. Both in the Second World War and in the Korean war he exposed himself to enemy fire to lead his men.

Pleads Guilty To Spy Charges, Awaits Sentence

Philadelphia, July 21 (AP) — Harry Gold pleaded guilty to espionage charges Thursday and was committed to prison to await sentencing.

He could receive the death penalty for turning over United States atomic secrets to Russia. But that is considered unlikely.

The short, stubby research chemist stood stiffly before the bar to hear two indictments against him. Asked how he pleaded, Gold said in clear, firm tones: "Guilty."

The indictments accused him of conspiracy to commit espionage and of 11 other acts of transmitting information to a potential enemy. Gold, unmarried 39-year-old Philadelphian, admitted he acted as go-between in delivering secrets to Dr. Klaus Fuchs, German-born British scientist and an admitted spy.

Ragtime Kid Dies, Music Inspired Service's Poem

Seattle, July 20 — (AP) — The Ragtime Kid is dead.

Hartley Claude Myrick, Sr., 65, the "kid that handled the music box" in Robert Service's famous poem, "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," died in a hospital Monday night after a long illness

Myrick, a Seattle resident since 1916, was a sourdough of the Yukon gold rush at the age of 13 and played the first piano ever brought to Skagway.

Myrick frequently recountered how in 1907, at the age of 17, he was playing the piano in Whitehorse, Yukon, where "a bunch of the boys were whooping it up in the Malemute saloon."

Service, who made his name as a poet during the Yukon gold rush days, has told how the shouting and music in the place inspired the first line of his poem. Later he built up the verses with the story of a shooting.

The nickname of "The Ragtime Kid" stuck to Myrick the rest of his years. He did well in business here until the 1929 crash, then later re-established himself.

UNEMPLOYMENT DOWN 15,800 IN TWO WEEKS

Increase in Exports, Construction Factors

Ottawa, July 21 — (CP) — Registered unemployed in Canada dropped from 220,400 to 204,600 in the two weeks from June 15 to June 29, the Labor Department reported yesterday.

The 15,80 0drop in registrations at National Employment Service office reflected increased seasonal activity in construction, agriculture and transportation, and a heavy demand for many Canadian products in the United States.

By regions, the number of registered unemployed at June 29; (June 15 totals in brackets).

Newfoundland 16,900 (19,400); Maritimes 23,600 (27,700); Quebec 62,500 (68,100); Ontario 48,200 (49,300); Prairies 28,300 (30,800); Pacific region 25,100 (25,100).

As employment in construction and agriculture moved steadily upward, experienced farm help remained scare in many sections of eastern Canada, and a shortage of skilled construction tradesmen continued, particularly in the larger centres.

The substantial increase in exports to the United States, said the department, helped maintain high employment in industries such as metal mining and pulp and paper. A larger summer cut of pulpwood logs resulted in increased woods employment in both the Maritimes and Quebec.

Employment also increased in some heavy iron and steel plants in Quebec, though many employees of leather and rubber plants were still working short-time.

The department forecast that in Newfoundland the cod fishery will equal that of last year, while employment in pulp cutting may exceed the levels it attained before last year's slump.

In the Maritimes heavy demand for lumber both in Canada and the U.S. has greatly increased employment in the lumbering and sawmilling industries.

Employment has increased in the heavy iron and steel plants of Quebec, while in Ontario construction and agriculture are both experiencing a shortage of workers.

KILLED BY BULLDOZER

Goulais Bay, Ont., July 21 — (CP)—John Karalash, 39, was crushed to death today when a bulldozer he was operating toppled over a steep bank. Karalash, father of three, was using the bulldozer to push edgings and waste from a lumber mill into a gulley at this village 22 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie.

YOUTH FAILS IN REQUEST

Oshawa, July 21—(CP)—Magistrate Frank Ebbs today turned down the request of Bruce Wild, 16, of Toronto, to be sent to Guelph reformatory, "because I know some of the fellows there."

He sentenced him to a year in Brampton Training School for stealing $35 from his employer, Fred Funnel, a farmer.

Red Forces Fail To Follow Up Conquest of Taejon

East Coast Offensive Started by Allied Troops

Tokyo, July 22 — (Saturday) — (AP) — The battered United States 24th Division was reported holding high ground southeast of burning Taejon early today, blocking the advance of the North Korean communist forces.

Field dispatches said the communists failed to follow up aggressively their conquest of Taejon which fell after a fierce two-day battle.

Allied troops Friday began an offensive on Korea's east coast against communist-held Yongdok after the big guns of two cruisers, one British, one American, softened up the town, said a Reuters field dispatch by Roy Macartney.

(Yongdok is 25 miles north of Pohang where the United States 1st. Cavalry Division landed a few days ago.

(Before the smoke of fires started by the sea bombardment had drifted away, the soldiers went into the attack, MacArtney said. But a U.S. Eighth Army spokesman did not disclose whether they were South Korean or American troops.)

No Communique Issued

General MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters did not issue its usual midnight communique on the Korean fighting, saying, "there has been no change in the situation."

Soldier and airmen reports after the bitter Taejon battle said the reds used four tanks with American white-star markings in sneak attacks. All four were reported knocked out, two each by the infantry and air force.

Superior numbers of communist tanks, infantrymen and guerrillas won control of Taejon after two days of fierce and costly attack.

But that victory cost them at least 12 tanks—all knocked out by new U.S. 3.5 inch rocket-launcher —and others damaged.

No Attacks Launched

Late in the day, they had failed to launch an expected attack on strong new U.S. defence positions in hills four miles southeast of Taejon. Apparently, said Associated Press field correspondent William R. Moore, the reds "are without tanks now" and are awaiting new armor.

The whereabout of Maj.-Gen. William F. Dean, commander of the 24th Infantry Division, still was not known at a U.S. command post. Dean, last seen in the thick battle Thursday night passing ammunition to a bazooka team, personally led the attacks against communist tank columns.

Friday morning, less than 12 hours after Taejon was given up, American artillery was trained on mountains where bands of reds were reported infiltrating.

Presumably, the reds were beginning to repeat their familiar pattern: strike around the flank of the American front at supporting positions in the rear.

However, Moore reported, no new attack had been launched by late Friday.

Time for Consolidation

It will take time, he said, for the reds to bring in new armor. The Americans destroyed bridges, tunnels, rail lines and highways as they withdrew.

And the Far East Air Forces, in a communique, indicated new tanks may require some time getting to the Taejon area. It said 500-ton B 29 bombing of Seoul Sunday had damaged rail yards and lines so heavily as to "prevent rail movements to the southern battle lines for some time."

A relief column was trying t reach Taejon to rescue the missing Gen. Dean. Late reports were that the column was unable t break through to the city whos normal population is about 150,000.

Interpreter Slips Through

The general's Korean interpreter slipped through the North Korean encirclement shortly befor dawn today, reaching the American lines. He said Dean fough like any of his officers and me through yesterday's grim battl directing the deployment of bazookas and rocket-launchers t fight communist tanks and al helping to evacuate the wounded.

Balancing the withdrawal Taejon, allied naval guns destroyed the communist communication centre of Yongdok on the ea coast. Yongdok is 25 miles nort of the beachhead established o Wednesday by the mechaniz First Cavalry Division.

Progress of the First Caval and the 25th infantry divisions which landed earlier this week was not reported in Gen. MacArthur's communique.

"No Special Significance

MacArthur said the loss of Taejon has "no special significanc from the military point of vie Advanced American headquarte and the provisional government South Korea had moved from city several days ago.

Do Not Assess Economic Affects Things Not so Bad as Some Think

By FORBES RHUDE

(Canadian Press Business Editor)

The Wall Street Journal carries a bit of advice worth considering. It says: "Don't watch the old rat holes".

It is warning against running here and there, trying to protect yourself in the future by guarding against exactly the same things that happened in the past. It says in part:

A handful of people have rushed out to buy automobile tires. They were scarce in the last war. Remember? Some housewives have hurried to the grocery to lay in a supply of sugar. Recall the rationing? And a few women, we were told, have been buying up some extra nylons.

There has been a rush by some people to put in orders for new automobiles. Yet if passenger car production were cut back 25 per cent from today's level we could still have 6,000,000 new ones a year, second only to this year's prospective output record. . . .

To sugar growers in Cuba and Puerto Rico it must seem amusing; they're trying to dig out from under surpluses. Tire makers already are saying: "Don't get excited; look at all the synethic we can produce. . . .

What must be remembered is that our economic machine has undergone some evolutions in the past decade. In 1942 we were very short of tankers to carry oil; but now there's a surplus of them.

Steel capacity is more than a fifth larger than ten years ago. Thousands of miles of pipelines have been built to improve internal transportation. And for a decade almost every kind of industry has been adding to its plant capacity. . . .

Meantime, these people trying to assess the economic affects might try this: Don't watch only the old rat holes. You're more likely to find him coming out of a new one.

Releasing Pigeon Trapped in Vacant House Offers Some Difficulties

The work of a humane society officer has a great many angles. Just ask city pound keeper Thomas Thorn.

Today the local police department received several calls from residents in the Ridley Ave. district stating that a neighbor family had gone off on their holidays and that a pigeon was trapped in the house. Would the police department do something about it.

The department would "providing we can get permission to enter the house."

So Mr. Thorn was notified. From a neighbor friend he secured permission to enter the house and the pigeon was caught and then given its liberty outside the house.

Just how the pigeon happened to be left inside the house when the family went away on holidays was not explained. It was suggested that one of the children may have hed the pigeon in the basement and left it there without telling the parents.

Neighbors saw the bird flying around inside the windows and fearing it would starve to death before the family's return raised the alarm.

Man Wanted In Toronto Already in Jail

It isn't often a request from another city for the arrest of a man finds the wanted person already in the police cells. But just this occurred in the city today.

Early this morning a resident on Dundas Street, East, reported that three men were fighting on the street. Five minutes later the three men were apprehended and lodged in the cells.

One of the men, Gerald Connors, Toronto, was charged with disorderly conduct, while the other two men, Earl Connors, Water Street, and Lorne Sanford, South Front Street, were charged with being drunk.

Twenty minutes later police received a call from the Toronto Police Department asking that Lorne Sanford be apprehended—the charge, theft of $150 in the Queen City.

Toronto police will send an escort for Sanford today.

Six Sea Cadets Will Drop in On 'Brothers in Blue'

Six Sea Cadets from R. C. S. C. C. "Victory" of Montreal are expected any day to drop in and visit with their "brothers in blue" of R. C. S. C. C. Quinte. The six Montreal cadets are not coming by bus, by train, by plane, or by ox cart. No sir, they are coming by whaler.

Equipped with their own tents and camping gear, they are cruising to Toronto. The scenic Quinte route, comfortably sheltered, provides a convenient passage for them by means of which they can meet the large local corps. Belleville is one of their many stops on the way to Toronto.

Cutting of Fall Wheat Will be General Next Week

Cutting of fall wheat in the Bay of Quinte district will be general by the beginning of next week, it is stated in the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. In many instances a better than average crop is being reported.

Excellent rains are expected to carry spring grains through satisfactority while corn is making an excellent growth. The demand for suitable farm help still exceeds the supply.

In Prince Edward county recent rains have been of great benefit, paticularly to the pastures. The hay crop has been about three quarters completed with great numbers of farmers using balers to minimize labor.

Canning factories are expected to be completing their packs of peas within the next few days. Yields have varied greatly and have averaged below normal.

The tomato crop looks particularly promising since recent rains.

Gets Too Far Out, Battles Current For Seven Hours

Montreal, July 21—(CP)—After battling a strong St. Lawrence River current for seven hours, 19-year-old Yves Charlebois today vowed to swim closer to shore in the future.

He got too far out yesterday and after darkness fell, gave himself up as lost but by grasping department of transport buoys which dot the channel, saved his strength until he could swim ashore at Point Aux Trembles, four miles down river. That was around 11 p.m., seven hours after he set out swimming.

Carpenters Get Higher Wages, Shorter Hours

Result of a new agreement signed Wednesday evening carpenters in the city and immediate district will receive $1.40 per hour, it was announced today by Belleville and District Builders Exchange.

The new agreement signed with the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, Local 572, goes into effect Monday, July 24th and calls for a 40-hour week with approximately the same take-home pay as under the previous agreement. Under the previous agreement carpenters received $1.25 per hour for a 44-hour week.

Weekly wage for carpenters under the new agreement will be $56, while at the former rate they received $55 for a 44-hour week. All other terms of the previous agreement remain unchanged.

The area in which the new carpenters' rate will be effective includes Belleville and a five-mile radius of the city. The new agreement remains in effect until December 31st., 1951.

Boy Scouts Have Most Successful Summer Camp

The Belleville Boy Scouts recently returned home from their composite summer camp at Jarvis Lake. The boys were in the best of spirits on arrival, this being proven by joyous singing all the way from Madoc.

The camp this year was under the leadership of Eric Smith (Camp Chief), Harry Smith (Camp Scouter) and Kenneth Moore (Camp Scouter).

Outdoor scouting this season was at its best when the boys took part in rough overnight hiking, day hiking, pioneering, sports, swimming, badge work and many other interesting events. The boys successfully coincided with each other as only Scouts can do in all these activities.

Every year there are prizes given to the more outstanding boys in camp. This is a token of reward that they cherish very dearly.

This year the following boys received awards:

Most outstandig patrol leader Owls (P. L. H. Mowers, G. Putman, A. Thomas B. Carmichael, J. Houston and J. Graham).

Most outstanding patrol leader, Robert Owen.

Most oustanding patrol leader under a handicap, Howard Mowers.

Most outstanding all round scout, Richard Moore.

Most outstanding observer of the scout laws, John Young.

Most useful boy, Robert Waite.

Most outstanding hiker, Robert Gilham.

Most outstanding fisherman, Gerald Putman (an 18" black bass).

Most progress made in scout tests, Gary Little.

The camp leaders thank the Belleville Boy Scout local association, the district commissioner, merchants and all who helped make this camp possible for the boys.

MARMORA

Frank Labin, Miami, Florida Makes Good Catch

Marmora, —Frank Labin, of Miami, Fla., returned to Wanganui Lodge, last week end for a second time this season, this time accompanied by his brother, Michael Labin, of Buffalo, N.Y. As on his previous visit he had a good catch of fish, but this time from Beaver Creek waters. The catch included two four and a half pound bass and a six pound pickerel.

FAMOUS CARPET

This is the $100,000 carpet that Queen Mary took eight years to make, shown on its arrival at Toronto's Malton Airport from New York. The Queen Mother offered the carpet for sale to help the British dollar shortage and the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire plans a drive to raise at least $100,000 for it from the Canadian people. The carpet will be displayed at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto in August and later in the National Art Gallery at Ottawa. — CP Photo.)

Hasty Pees at Petawawa Undergo Stiff Training

Petawawa, July 21—Drenching rain during one of the worst storms of the summer marked the beginning of this week's training at Petawawa Military Camp but in no way dampened the spirits of the more than 1000 Reserve Force officers and men who arrived here over the week-end.

Over 40 units from Ontario, Quebec, the Maritimes and Newfoundland, representing nearly every corps in the army, began the strenuous, week's intensive training first thing Monday morning under the guidance of hardened, sun-bronzed Active Force instructors. And until their departure next Sunday the Reservists will have little opportunity to become bored.

The six training wings of the camp, the largest in Canada, provide a wide range of courses for every corps including driving and maintenance of tanks and other vehicles, wireless instruction, gunnery, bridge building, intelligence, NCOs and officers qualifying, tactics, and of course, recruit training for the first year men.

Varied Training

All of the instruction offers the maximum of practical work with a minimum of lectures. Tankmen have ample opportunity to practice their skill at piloting the rumbling Shermans over the sand dunes and through the scrub timber of the training areas, keeping contact and receiving orders by wireless and firing at targets on the range. Artillery men get their fill of shooting during the week as they operate their 25-pounders and big 5.5 mediums, and pound targets indicated to them by the tiny Auster aircraft specially designed for air observation.

Members of the Hastings & Prince Edward Regt., Belleville, Ont. now in training at Petawawa are: Lt.-Col. J. M. Porritt; Majs. A. B. Bradley F. M. Burtt, W. L. Graydon MC, and W. R. Walters; Capts. Moscow-Press, Radio Give Top Play To Truman Message

Moscow, July 21—(AP)—Moscow's press and radio gave top play today to President Truman's message to Congress and declared it proved the United States is laying the groundwork for a third World War.

The report, carried in a Tass dispatch from Washington, said "Truman admits the United States is strengthening its preparations for war, both in Europe and on the American continent."

"In his message," Tass said, "Truman tries to picture United States aggression in Korea as 'a peace mission of the U.S.A.'

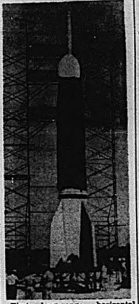
CARRIER FOR ATOM BOMB?



First long-range horizontal rocket test is made ready at Cocoa, Fla., proving ground for firing of a 45-foot V-2 which carries a 15-foot "Wac Corporal" rocket. The plan: the V-2 zooms skyward, then levels off in horizontal flight over the Atlantic, launching the "Wac Corporal" when it reaches maximum speed. The smaller rocket flies on under its own power. Officers at the base said the rocket could carry "any known explosive," which, presumably, includes the atom bomb. — Central Press Canadian.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 21 — (CP) — Prices dipped slightly over a broad list of market leaders in trading on the Toronto stock exchange today. The market started slowly and mild pressure appeared following three days of strong advances. Volume for the first three hours was 683,000 shares.

Losses were held to fractions in industrials. Winnipeg Electric, a strong gainer yesterday, dipped a point at 35½. Scarfe Paint was down ¾ at a new low of 13¼.

Western oils showed the widest losses. Foothills dropped 30 cents at $4.50. Royalite lost ¼ at 11¾.

Base metals, strong gainers in recent sessions, showed a handful of small losses in key stocks. Consolidated Smelters, International Nickel and Quemont eased fractionally while Waite Amulet and Steep Rock pushed higher.

Leading junior gold producers showed losses ranging up to 15 cents.

Over 125 Senior Children Attend Swim Classes

Popularity of the eight city playgrounds operated by the Belleville Recreation Committee and supervised by the Y.M.C.A. is evidenced by the enrollment and attendance at the end of the first two complete weeks of operation. Over 1,300 children have been regularly enrolled and in addition about half this number have participated without enrolling. Average daily registered attendance amounted to over 700 youngsters which number does not attempt to include casual visitors. Many parents and adults have been visiting the grounds as observers.

Most popular of all activities for the older boys and girls is, of course, softball. Several teams have been developed into organized leagues, with keen rivalry in evidence. Volleyball is also a popular game. Horseshoe tournaments are being conducted at all three senior playgrounds. Thanks to the generosity of golf enthusiasts who answered the call for discarded clubs, miniature golf is also being played on home-made courses by an enthusiastic group.

Each week supervised swimming at the Y.M.C.A. is provided for the senior children with an attendance of over 125 being registered. Separate periods have been allotted for the exclusive use of each of the senior playgrounds.

Quieter past-times are also provided in the form of sketching, clay modelling, paper construction, coloring, bead-work, circle games, story-telling and picnics. The equipment and sand boxes find constant use.

Supervisors meetings are held regularly at the Y.M.C.A. for training purposes, exchange of ideas and program planning.

Results so far would indicate that the support given by citizens of Belleville to the development of playgrounds has been a worthy investment for our future citizens. The interest and advice as well as the financial support will be welcome by the Recreation Committee at any time. Contribution can be made to the Bank of Montreal or the Ontario Intelligencer.

Moira Lake Minstrels Entertain Group

The Moira Lake minstrels of the Y.M.C.A. camp entertained a group of parents, friends and campers on Wednesday night in a fast moving, original production directed by Bill MacKenzie and Ken Mara. Songs, skits and stunts were well received by appreciative onlookers who were kept in an uproarious mood by the antics of the boys. Interlocuor for the occasion was Bill MacKenzie and Ken Mara improvised at the piano.

End men who kept things lively with their gags and dances were Bill Schillinger, Jimmy Lewis, Bill Yeotes and Phil Aston. A vocal solo by Ron McBride, who is equally versatile at the piano, was another feature. The funnel gag by Phil Aston, Bill Schillinger and John Marshall and the Indian skit by Jack Doig, Barry Kells and Peter Hart caused roars of laughter. A favorite with the boys, "Mitch" the camp cook entertained in several accordian numbers. End men performed square dances to some of his old time renditions.

Doug Eaton led the boys in several versions of camp songs, much to the amusement of everyone. Schillinger and MacKenzie in Jolson songs delighted the audience. The Madoc horse race found Pedro coming into his first important use in the camp as a winner, led by his master Bill Deacon.

Parents too had their part in the program. Mrs. D. Campbell, Mrs. G. A. Freeman, Mrs. Jack Marshall and Mrs. G. Wright formed a melodic quartet for one number and Fred Symons, Dr. Jack Marshall and Donald Dies sang a trio.

An exhibition of handicraft work was on display in the hall and inlcuded lanyards, leashes, drawings, sketches, mask work and plaques.

A treat for the camp was ice cream from Mrs. Jack Marshall.

MEET AFTER 36 YEARS

Windsor, July 1 — (CP) — Three brothers lived within 100 miles of each other for the last 36 years, without getting together for a reunion. Yesterday they all met in Windsor.

They are Jack Itter, 89, of Windsor, Herbert Itter, 79, of Bay City, Mich., and Melchi Itter, 77, of Saginaw, Mich. The last time the trio was together was at Bay City, in 1914.

Canada's Economic Position Not Ready For Revaluation With U.S. Dollar Says Report

Montreal, July 21 (CP)—Revaluation of the Canadian dollar to parity with the United States dollar might prove premature now but much can be said for a flexible rate responsive to changing conditions. The Bank of Montreal suggests today in its latest business review.

The review, comparing Canadian merchandise trade for the first five months of 1950 and 1949, notes an "almost spectacular" reduction of Canada's adverse trade balance with the United States and its surplus in trade with the United Kingdom.

That gives cause for satisfaction, the review says. But the progress toward balance in overseas trade was largely effected by reducing exports to traditionally important markets.

Would Reduce Exports

The bank says a higher value for Canada's dollar would probably have little or no effect on the volume of Canadian goods moving to the U.S. but could be expected to reduce exports overseas.

On the other hand, a return to parity would automatically cut the price of all other currencies to the Canadian importer.

"The immediate consequence, therefore, could be an increase in imports from both dollar and sterling areas, a deterioration in our already raher precariously-poised, over-all balance of international payments and, conceivably, an increased reliance on import controls as contrasted with the present relaxation of these barriers to trade."

The bank says that import costs are a major factor in the domestic price level although not the only facto. Parity would immediately cut import costs but they would again advance if prices in other countries continued to rise.

Full protection against a long upturn in foreign prices might even mean placing the Canadian dollar at a premium in terms of U.S. Funds.

Hold Parity in Reserve

The review says such a policy hardly fits the reality of Canada's trading position. It would seem wise to hold the return to parity in reserve, as an emergency measure for use if external prices rise acutely and if it can be done without seriously damaging external trade.

It may well be, the statement concludes, that thought now should be given to the international monetary fund permitting any member a measure of day-to-day flexibility in exchange rates to allow corrective forces to work automatically.

Immigrant Dies, Crippled Son, 16, Carries on Plans

Halifax, July 21 — (CP) — Pieter Hansen, Netherlands baker, planned a new life for his family on an Alberta farm. Now, his one-armed son of 16 will carry out those plans.

The 43-year-old prospective farmer died of heart failure Tuesday en route to Canada with his wife and five children. He was one of 600 Dutch immigrants who arrived here yesterday on the liner Volendam en route to the west.

News of the death quickly circulated throughout the ship. Immigrants, United States tourists, college students and crew members gathered a collection for the widow and her family.

On arrival at Halifax, the son assumed the family responsibility by looking after the luggage and making travel arrangements in broken English.

A message from Mrs. Hansen, thanking the passengers and crew, was left on the ship's bulletin board.

Pieter Hansen will be buried at Red Deer, Alta., where his family will settle as planned.

LEOPOLD TO RETURN HOME

Geneva, July 21 — (AP) — King Leopold III of Belguim will leave his home in exile here Saturday to return to his throne after 10 years away. The time of his departure will be governed by an international motorcycle race being run past the only exit from his Swiss estate.

PROTECTION OF WILD LIFE

It was with a certain tinge of regret that we read an account of a New Zealand wild goose hunt reported in the paper last week. "Down Under" gunners now flush the birds with an airplane which ranges back and forth behind the flocks driving them over areas heavily speckled with repeating shotguns. The account also stated that a deft pilot could, in the course of a busy afternoon, drive the same flock back and forth over the same gunners several times with the obvious result that the hunters, if you will excuse the expression, loaded their bags with geese while the goose population became rather badly depleted.

This mechanized slaughter is hardly in keeping with the tradition of the great hunters who used to give game every chance. Some of the old time hunters, having become so proficient in shooting geese with shotguns, were alleged to have resorted to bows and arrows, and mastering this form of attack became so subtle as to swim out under the flocks, seize the birds by the feet and drown them humanely, without disturbing the other birds. How can you acquire a reputation as a hunter when all you have to do to get a bird is to be able to wield a knife and fork?

Gone apparently are the days when intrepid souls stood up to stampeding elephants for no other reason than to get tusks for the manufacture of billiard balls. The rapid advance of science, in making cheaper billiard balls from sawdust and coal tar by synthetic processes, has made life safer for the hunter and in so doing has robbed man of lots of excitement.

Where are the gallant souls who offered themselves as living bait to the crocodiles so that authentic crocodile leather bags could be had for the lady of fashion? They are propably assistant attendants at the many farms where the reptiles are scientifically raised on balanced diets, therapeutically treated for colds in the head and marked Grade A by college trained technicians when they reach their prime.

This modern method of exterminating wild life has to its credit the obliteration of the passenger pigeon, which, f history can be believed, was a great nuisance about a hundred years ago. It has also reduced the whooping crane population to approximately twenty-six and has left bird watchers in such a sad state that an expectant whooper, listraught by scientific observation with telescopes, news camera men, and other busybodies, broke their hearts recently by killing whooping crane number 27, prematurely nicknamed Rusty by the press of 20 million otherwise sane people.

Down in Newfoundland science has come to the fore n the herring industry. A new method of sucking herring ut of the sea by huge pumps, scaling them in a separator ox, and depositing them, "untouched by human hands" n the deep freeze, has been developed. The scales are aved because they are in great demand in costume jewelery industry, and to quote trade papers, "are almost as aluable as the herring themselves."

This kind of fishing, of course, will never deplete the cean's supply of herring, because after all how much of he Atlantic can you put through a pressure pump in ten ears? This is probably the only time in history when wild fe, if you would call a herring wild, has had an even reak.

The danger in all this is that exasperated troutless en might begin dredging streams with pumps in a chance o break even. A while ago dynamite was not considered oo harsh a way to clear out a fish hole and in the long run sh pumps are less noisy.

With the use of radar to spot schools of fish, airplanes o waylay geese, and pumps to ensnare herring it becomes bvious just what marvelous new things "sportsmen" can xpect in the future. Maybe even atomic bombs for bass.

All this may take a little of the old time zip out of unting but after all "a bird in hand etc." And just think ow many more hands we are all going to need by the time odern methods make hunting and fishing as easy as shooting sitting ducks."

Heigh Ho for sport!

ONCE MORE A FAN

I almost forgotten the name and the face
f the man on our losing team playing first base.
he player at second I couldn't recall.
oday if you'd ask me I'd tell you them all.
didn't like baseball when seventh we ran,
ut now the team's winning
I'm back as a fan.

y cheers are for heroes, not fellows who lose.
r errors and strike outs I've nothing but boos.
ough baseball's a game that
I loved as a boy,
As a man only victories I can enjoy.
Now, ask me who's hitting and tell you I can,
For since the team's winning
I'm back as a fan.

Though a cheer might have heartened some youngster

With no chance for the pennant
why go there to cheer?
I'm all for success. I hold victory sweet,
And I haven't much heart for the sting of defeat.
But loyal I've been since the season began,
For now the team's winning
I'm back as a fan.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

On my way to my Nova Scotia island retreat, I ran into a group of weekly newspaper editors, representing forty American states. I talked with many of these intelligent and interesting editors, and it took me back to my youth, where the weekly newspaper office held particular fascination for me. It was in them that my first smell of printer's ink got me!

People are apt to ignore the influence of these papers that represent the smaller communities, but they exert a powerful influence on American life, as well as in other countries where they are published. These editors have scund ideas and publish papers that are read, not merely skimmed, as so many of the larger publications are.

The weekly newspaper is the weekly Bible of information to every member of its subscribing number. It stays on the family table until the next issue is received. And its subscribers treat it as a friend. They talk frankly to it, and enter with a whole heart into all that it advocates for the public good. It can well be called the family mouthpiece.

I was brought up on many of these excellent weekly publications, and was given my first demonstration of "printer's lice" in one of them, by a kindly, somewhat roguish compositor! They are a friendly lot, these editors, and men of high character. Many a worker on them has graduated to notable places on the larger dailies, and I am sure that they often think back in a nostalgic manner to those other days.

The backbone of every nation is its small towns and villages where these weekly newspapers circulate. They do not make a great deal of money, as a rule, but they demonstrate to their readers the higher values of life. Many of these newspapers often have a difficult time to keep going in times such as we now experience, but they always seem to have that extra courage and resourcefulness that do not fail them.

The weekly newspaper is an honored institution, and may its influence and usefulness never be erased!

TOO OLD FOR TENNIS

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

BRONC RIDER

High River, Alta.—On his first ride the kid was up on a bronc named Box Car and he looked like a gladiator. It was an exciting thing to watch. A man in the stands behind me said "The kid can ride anything."

The bronc was big, black and mean. He came out of the narrow chute in a spineless arc and he leaped like that, jack-knifed in the air, six times, before he fell.

I thought for a minute that the rider would be under him, but he was clear, landing in the dust as lightly and gracefully as a ballet dancer.

The bronc staggered to its feet and was off, lashing his hind hooves in the air, and the kid walked back to the corral in the stiff-legged, deliberate way of the professional cowpuncher.

I looked him up in the program. His name was Red McDowell, from Thermopolis, Wyoming. The program noted that he was the leading 1950 money winner in the Canadian circuit of small rodeos.

An hour later I strolled over behind the chutes and watched him as he prepared to go out on a steer.

They were having a tough time with the animal. He would leap up in an agony of fright and anger and twist about in the stall. The kid was poised above him, his high, pointed boots braced against the bars of the chute.

In the shadow of the dirty, sweat-stained Stetson the butt of a cigarette hung from his lips. He seemed unaware of 1,400 pounds of explosive beef beneath him. The handlers were cussing and whacking the steer across the nose, but the kid looked almost bored.

Then a flat voice came from around the cigarette. "Let's get out of here."

The chute gate swung back and they were out in the arena. I could not see the ride, but the sound of the crowd was unmistakeable. The kid had stayed on again.

Slowing Down

Until then I'd thought I'd do a piece about High River's Rodeo and Annual Fair in general terms.

There was a real flavor to it, an authenticity that had been missing in bigger rodeos I'd seen before. It was pleasant to sit in the open stands with families in from the ranches and farms and look across the rodeo grounds at the big grain elevators, maroon and silver, and the prairie beyond.

But I found myself wondering about the kid and so I made some enquiries, found that he was staying at an auto camp at the edge of town, and drove out there.

A dusty sedan with Wyoming plates was parked in front of one of the small bungalows. I rapped on the screen door and a voice said to come in.

I thought at first I had the wrong place.

The figure on the bed, lying limp with arms outstretched, was like a boy's. The big hat lay on the bureau and the high boots had been kicked off. Only the kid's marmalade-colored hair seemed to fit. He looked about 17, which is five years younger than he is. There was the small of sweat and zinc ointment in the room.

He never lifted his head from the pillow. He looked at me with his watery green eyes when I introduced myself and said: "I'm so damned tired. That black horse was a hard horse to ride. It was a damned mean horse to ride and then the ride don't count, because it fell."

"The steer was no bed of roses, either," I said.

"Steers are most always the toughest," Red said. "No two steers are alike. You just get on there and wonder what it's gonna do to you."

He reached over and lifted a bottle of beer from under the bed and took a big swig. It was hard to think of him as the man who had given such a magnificent ride earlier in the day.

"It seems to take a lot out of you," I said.

"Tenseness," the kid said. "I get all tied up in knots waiting for the ride and then afterwards I get this let down. I oughta go and have a shower, but I think I'll rest awhile. Gotta pull out to night for the rodeo down to Medicine Hat."

Many Hot Towns

We sat for awhile, talking, and Red told me how he got into his strange and dangerous profession. He was brought up on ranches in the hills of Wyoming and seemed to have a natural ability at breaking horses. When he was 17 he entered a rodeo, did well and decided to go on the circuit as a professional.

It is, he confessed, a bewildering and exhausting life, and, of course, a lonely one, too. In the movement from town to dusty town, his acquaintanceship is pretty largely limited to a long line of outlaw horses with such names as Crazy Blaze, Hitler, Come Late, Meat Axe, Big Dick, Soon Down and Big Feet.

His season begins in the early spring in Denver, ends in November at San Francisco. If he's had a good year he may earn as much as $8,000. He travels light with only a small suitcase and the battered saddle that is his work bench, thrown in the back of the sedan.

When I asked him if there was any secret to his performance (he looks about as athletic as I do) he said: "I dunno. I just made up my mind I'm gonna stay up there whatever the ornery critter does. It's like a personal thing 'twixt me and the horse".

And the future?

"Well, sometimes the broncs decide that. Lot o' the boys don't hit it lucky and get crippled up, But if I keep goin' right I'd like to get me a little ranch in Wyomin' and grow me a long white beard."

Grim Procession Of Reports Afloat In East Europe

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press News Analyst

Red skullduggery of some sort is at work in always mysterious fiery Balkans.

It is anybody's guess whether this presages armed conflict in southeastern Europe or is merely a war of nerves. However, it seems to be working up to a climax rapidly, and it has the United Nations and the foreign offices of the democracies anxious.

For many weeks now eastern Europe has been seething with reports of provocative incidents. These nave been aimed mostly at Premier Tito's Yugoslavia.

Macedonian Frontier

One of the most arresting of this grim procession of reports came out of Turkey a few days ago. This was that there was growing Russianization of Bulgarian military forces and that there were increasing troop movements on the Macedonian frontier.

Naturally speculation among observers in Istanbul turned on the question of whether the Bulgarians were getting set to conquer Yugoslav and Greek Macedonia and unite it with the Bulgarian Macedonia.

This thought fits in with the current warning from the United Nations Balkan committee, reporting from Switzerland, that the Russian-led cominform may be plannng an attack on Greece.

For one thing, such an operation would create another great conflagration for the United States and the other western allies to deal with. It would compel them to divide their military energy between the Asiatic upheaval and Europe.

However, that isn't the whole story. If a Bulgarian attack on Greek and Yugoslav Macedonia were successful, it would be a serious territorial loss to Greece and Yugoslavia, as well as a blow to prestige. It not only would add to Bulgaria's size and strength but would give her direct access to the Aegean Sea.

Of course no overlordship would be acceptable to the Macedonians. Still, one would suppose that they would rather be united under one overlord than be split up among three, as at present. On that basis they might even give their support to a Bulgarian military operation which would unite them.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

LEARNING TO WALK

A little boy is learning to walk. Very unsteadily he proceeds from one piece of furniture to another. And all the time his disposition is to get down on his knees and creep. It is evidently much easier for him to creep, and certainly he goes faster than he can walk at the present time.

Psychologists tell us that we are constantly reverting into childhood dispositions. The creeping child is a case in point. It is much easier to get down on the floor and creep, and apparently one can make better time that way. It takes effort, attention, and co-ordination to learn to walk. But once we have learned to walk, we can walk and run faster than anybody could ever creep. But it takes a long time for the child to learn this.

We adults lapse back into creeping when we want special attention paid to us; when we depend upon other people; when we resist our natural tendency to grow up and mature. These dispositions are called infantilisms. Many people six feet tall are still emotional creepers. They just won't stand up on their feet and walk. Most pathetic of all, they believe, as does the baby, that there is more satisfaction in creeping than in walking. That is because they have never stuck to it until they learned how to walk—or in other words, until they became emotionally mature.

IODIN IS FOOD

A reader remarks that when he asked his doctor whether he (presumably the reader, but I suggest it might have applied to the doctor as well) should take the iodin ration, the doctor had a fit! The doctor declared that the iodin ration had almost killed one of his patients. He said the iodin accumulates in the body and is very bad for the system. I can assure the reader and the rest of the world that the doctor who believes or tries to make others believe that iodin may "accumulate" in body or system when child or adult takes the iodin ration I recommend is obviously confusing medicinal iodine with the essential, nutritive or food iodin.

Of course the element iodine is the same whether in medicine or food. Its effects are the same whether in organic (animal or vegetable) or mineral form. Webster spells it with the final e but also without the final e and the pronunciation as though it was spelled iodin. So, when I spell it iodine I refer to the medicine; but when I refer to the food I spell it iodin.

That iodin is food in the fullest sense of the world should be manifest when you define food: "Nutritive material absorbed or taken into the body or an organism which serves for purposes of growth, work or repair and for the maintenance of the vital processes."

Thus an "organism"—you, for instance—may subsist or live or work (function) for only a limited time or only inefficiently on a diet that is deficient in any of the elements or nutritive materials required to maintain the vital processes. As we have learned in the past thirty years, adequate daily rations or allowances of certain minerals and vitamins, as well as protein, carbohydrate (starch and sugar) and fat, are essential "for purposes of growth, work or repair and for the maintenance of the vital processes."

Now I submit all this is elementary physiology, and the doctor who "had a fit" when the patient asked about the iodin ration betrayed a petty spirit which is too common in the medical profession today. It is the same spirit as that which prompts many an eager operator to brand the modern ambulant treatment as "no good" or "dangerous" when some luckless customer evinces unwillingness to be lured into the hospital for hemorrhoidectomy or that ancient and honorable dissection called herniotomy.

I keep telling you poor gullible geeks that the office injection (ambulant) treatment for internal piles is as likely to cure or give satisfactory results as the radical hospital operation is, and the office injection (ambulant) treatment for rupture (breach, hernia) is as likely to cure or give satisfactory results as the radical hospital operation is. Neither of these ambulant methods gives the patient as much discomfort or pain as the radical old fashioned method does. Neither causes any loss of time (and pay) at work. Neither is as dangerous as the hospital operation. If and when any physician, surgeon or specialist of standing chooses to question any of these assertions openly or honestly or publicly, I am prepared to corroborate every assertion with documentary evidence and the expert opinions of recognized authorities.

The doctor who declared that "the iodin ration had almost killed one of his patients" would probably have status epilepticus if he would simmer down long enough to learn that an adequate daily ration of iodin for man, woman or child is not more than one gets in an ordinary serving of codfish, salmon (fresh or canned) or other fish or shellfish from the sea.

The pamphlet The Iodin Ration available on written request (no clipping, please) if you provide self-addressed stamped envelope, deals only with the nutritional iodin which every man, woman or child must get in one way or another—in food, in drinking water or as a supplement to the daily diet—to maintain vite.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Doctor Shouldn't Say That

Our two children—5½ and 7 both wet the bed Doctor say it is tonsils and as soon as they are removed the bed-wetting will stop. (Mrs. McA. A.)

Answer—If that's the reason for removing the children's tonsils, my advice is don't. Send stamped self-addressed envelope fgor pamphlet on the Bed-Wetting Habit. A doctor cannot promise that removal of tonsils will bring about any desired result—the best an honest doctor can do is to hope it will.

Answer — No.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Farmers are kicking themselves all across the country. It seems that in the last war, there was a powerful drive for scrap metals of all sorts. And one rich source of iron and steel lay in the fields of Canada's farmers where, in neglected fence corners, old farm implements lay idly rusting.

The farmers, shaken out of their normal good sense by the shocks of war, cheerfully assented to the collection and removal of these old eye-sores from their fence corners, sheds and back of the barns. Some of them even went so far as to drag the busted old implements to town, in the heat of salvage drives.

But now, with summer on, the harvest looming and the labor of the farm rising to its peak, where does a farmer go for a bolt? Or a brace? Or a wheel? Where his father and his grandfather went before him, and where he should be able to go: down to the fence corner of the back twenty, where some old implement lay abandoned, a source of spare parts for a hundred occasions.

We city slickers have always thought those old implements were useless encumbrances. So, in the heat of war, did the farmers. But they were no such thing. They were property, however rusted, however leaning, or half sunk into the soil. And a very special sort of property whenever a bolt or a brace or a bar breaks now in the midst of the harvest. Instead of walking across a field, the farmer now has to leave his work and drive into town, to one of those tidy shops with spare parts in labelled bins. Sure he can get what he wants. But it doesn't ever fit quite so well as would some old rusty piece taken from that reservoir of spare parts that used to lie back there, in the south-west corner. . .

A national emergency is some thing every man should share. Patriotism is a noble sentiment. A good farmer can be recognized by the condition of his implements. But a real farmer likes to have a little junk lying about, handy.

BELGIAN PUBLIC SUBSCRIBES TO U.S. MEMORIAL

The Belgian people dedicated a memorial, erected by public subscription, to U.S. troops who fell at Bastogne during World War II. The memorial, 200 feet long and 40 feet high is in the shape of a star. Detachments of American, Belgian, French, Dutch and British troops are shown in a march past the memorial after the religious and opening ceremonies. — Central Press Canadian.

Salesmen Say Summer Styles Have Plenty of Pep, But are Not Too Flashy

Trenton, (Special.)—What does the typical Mr., Mrs. and Miss Trenton go for in summer sports clothes and holiday togs? In order to obtain a satisfactory answer to this timely question, a poll of Trenton men's and ladies' wear stores was conducted on Thursday afternoon.

In general, male Trentonians strike a happy medium in choosing summer haberdashery. They like "pep" in their clothes but at the same time they are not inclined to go overboard in the other direction and buy anything really spectacular. One clothing salesman explained it this way. "Women are style creators, they want to have something entirely different, but men are afraid of pioneering a style, because they are afraid of appearing strikingly different."

At this point, a travelling salesman who was standing nearby in the store, volunteered that he was introducing something entirely different in Canada this summer. Ah, thought this skeptical reporter here is a publicity wise character with an idea as new as milady's last year Easter bonnet. But sure enough, he did have something quite unique.

Demonstrates New Idea

Removing a snappy summer straw hat, the salesman unhooked the attractive sand colored band, unwound it and held it in front of his necktie which was of the same colored material. With this ensemble, he said, hooking the band back around the brim, you have several hat bands and matching ties. Each morning when you wear a different necktie, you twirl the corresponding hat band around your head piece and there you are."

In sports shirts, the trend is definitely toward plain shades and bright colored "T" shirts are in popular demand right now, too. Several salesmen agreed that there is a definite shift toward brighter colors and Trenton men particularly are becoming more and more "style and color conscious".

"Today, middle aged men are buying brightly colored ties that 15 years ago men of their age would not have thought of wearing under any circumstances," said one of Trenton's leading men's wear merchants. Another stated that 95 per cent of all ties bought in his store are purchased by women who really go for bright colors, so the trend is toward even flashier cravats.

What do Ladies Choose

On venturing into a ladies fashion shop to ask the same questions about women's taste in summer styles, it was discovered that women are influenced by entirely different considerations than men. While men want their outfits to blend with those of their friends and other men about town, women are always looking for an entirely new eye catching creation that will set them apart from the crowd.

Women are not very much concerned with what this year's summer togs will look like next year because they expect to buy all new finery each season anyway.

The manager of a women's wear shop said, "Women are more concerned with price than quality. They hesitate to buy a garment in the medium low price range, because they are afraid it's cheap. But put a $25 price tag on a $12.98 dress and they will buy it.

Summer Shoe Tastes Change

In summer shoes, Air Force City citizens seem to prefer the medium price range because they only expect them to last one season. said a shoe salesman. Miss and Mrs. Trenton are choosing wedge heeled sandals while leather sandals are beginning to catch on with the men for the first time this season, according to local shoe dealers.

Turning to the topic of women's bathing suits, a subject in itself — it was found that the strapless, one-piece variety is most popular with Trenton mermaids. Which fact had already been surmised from casual observations at summer resorts in the vicinity.

Individual taste is one factor running right through the local fashion scene, for as one Dundas Street merchant said, "The old Indian summed it up when he said 'If everybody wanted the same thing, they would all want my squaw.' What is true of wives is apparently also true of taste in summer clothing."

Screen Workers In Plants Having Defence Contracts

Ottawa, July 21 — (CP) — An official of Canadian Commercial Corporation — the government agency which places defence contracts — confirmed Thursday that the Corporation is given the names of all employees working on secret defence orders.

The Corporation then turns the names over to the R. C. M. P. for investigation.

"This is a regular procedure," the official said, commenting on a Toronto dispatch which said several employees of a Toronto factory working on defence contracts had been dismissed after security screenings.

Both the Canadian Commercial Corporation and the R. C. M. P. declined comment. An R.C.M.P. official, however, said the force had been carrying out security screenings in various government and associated departments for some time.

Canadian Leads 100 Qualifiers For King's Prize

Bisley Camp, Surrey, England, July 21 — (CP) — CQMS. J. A. Draper of South Porcupine, Ont., today led 100 qualifiers in the second stage of the King's Prize with a score of 144 at the National Rifle Association meet.

Shooting in heavy rain, Draper took a two-point lead over RSM. D. Hale of the British Army Small Arms School.

The other three Canadian qualifiers for the second stage also reached the finals: Cpl. J. H. Blais, Montreal, 141; Maj. Eric Cowan, Montreal and Ottawa, 140; and S. Sgt. M. Ostergaard, Calgary, 137.

Among the famed marksmen in the final is Manchester's "shooting parson," Rev. C. W. Lewis, who tallied 137. The only woman who ever won the King's Prize— in 1930 — and the only woman to reach this year's final is Marjorie Foster. She scored 140.

In the MacKinnon Long-range Empire team shoot, a heavy rain failed to stop the contest but a difficult cross-wind made accurate shooting hard.

The Canadian entries started badly and at the end of the 900-yard section the Canadian team was seventh among the eight teams. The scores: England 541, Ireland 536, Scotland 533, Southern Rhodesia 532, Wales 531, West Indies 515, Canada 501 and Channel Islands 480.

Maj. R. D. McLeod of Toronto posted the best Canadian score— 49.

One Good Turn Deserves Another Thinks Governor

Halifax, July 21 — (CP) — A Halifax constable got an invitation to the New Hampshire State House Thursday and the Governor of the state got off scot free on a parking violation.

It happened this way: Governor Sherman Adams, touring the province, parked his car in a restricted spot in front of Province House.

The constable placed a ticket in the windshield — not an ordinary one but a "tourist ticket" telling the car owner he had violated the law but that it would be overlooked as he was a visitor.

Governor Adams came along. "Any time you're in New Hampshire and get a parking ticket, come up and see me at the State House," he told the constable, "I'll fix the ticket for you."

Big Norfolk Show Held First Time on Royal Estate

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Sandringham, England, (CP)— The Queen gave the King a prize at an agricultural show here.

She presented her husband, who has always been an ardent farmer, with a silver challenge cup as owner of the four best red poll cattle.

The occasion was the Royal Norfolk Agricultural show, held for the first time in its 103 years on the Royal estate at Sandringham.

Several prizes went into the Royal coffers, including the championship for red poll cows and three first prizes for a six-year-old cow, four-year-old cow and a two-year-old bull.

The Royal exhibit of Essex pigs brought a reserve prize, and a display of blooms from Sandringham Gardens won the gold medal.

The two-day show had good weather and attendance numbered about 70,000. The King, the Queen and Princess Margaret spent six hours each day touring the show.

The King showed much interest in the machinery exhibits and watched the farriers at work, while the Queen and Princess Margaret visited the goats, poultry, rabbits and pigeons.

No formality or fixed timetable attended the Royal visits. The King preferred to wander at leisure like any other farmer or country squire.

Like his father and grandfather before him, he is fond of farming, and talks crops and shooting with the best of them.

However short his Sandringham visits, he always makes the fullest tour of his farms and estate that time will permit. During his absence, monthly reports are sent him, giving full details of crops, stock and milk production.

Three Kings, all farmers, have changed the face of Sandringham. Bought by Edward VII as a large sandy tract fit only for rabbits, it is now a well-wooded, well - cultivated agricultural estate run on sound commercial lines.

"I have walked and waded over these marshes for more than forty years, bleak and foggy and cold as they sometimes can be, but I derive real satisfaction when I see these rich lands producing fine crops for the nation's larder" said the King.

SO THIS IS OTTAWA—OR COULD IT BE VENICE?

A sudden cloudburst overtaxed Ottawa's sewer system, had many streets looking like Venice. It was fine for children, however, who had convenient wading pools instead of dry pavements. Even some mothers, as shown here, could be seen wading. — Central Press Canadian.

'Name Your Car' Auto Theft Ring Out of Business

New York, July 21 — (CP) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation says it has put out of business an auto theft ring which supplied its "customers" with the particular kinds of cars they wanted. Ralph Pepin, 25, of Montreal, was among five men arrested, the F.B.I. said yesterday.

The bureau said more than 50 automobiles were stolen here during the past year, resulting in a loss to owners of more than $100,000.

The ring had "salesmen," the F.B.I. said, who took "orders" on the east coast for desired models, while other gang members stole them.

The average selling price was $900 per car, bringing a "profit" to the ring of about $45,000 for the year, the F.B.I. said.

Farewell and Presentation

Last Sunday evening, a farewell party and presentation was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A.J. Davis, Foster Avenue, by the Y's Men's Club, and their wives, in honor of the Reverend Donald C. Amos and Mrs. Amos, who are leaving the city in the near future for Leaside, Ont., where Mr. Amos will, later in the Fall, assume the duties of pastor of the new Leaside United Church.

Following the presentation, an informal get-together was enjoyed with refreshments being served, Mrs. Gerald Hyde presiding at the tea table.

WEDDINGS

FLYNN—BARRETT

Summer flowers in white and pastel tints made a charming background for the marriage on Saturday, July 15th at 10 a.m., in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, of Margaret Helen Theresa, daughter of Mrs. Helen Barrett, Belleville, and the late Mr. Harold Barrett, to William John Terrance Flynn, of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen B. Flynn. The Rev. Father Buckley officiated.

Miss Dorothy Grant, organist, provided the wedding music, and the soloist was Mr. Robert Flurey.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. John Barrett, was lovely in her bridal gown of soft white, slipper satin fashioned with a fitted basque, long tight sleeves, and a portrait neckline, accented with scalloped edging of gardenia lace below the sheer yoke. The flared skirt featured a draped bustle and a deep flounce about the hemline, which was gathered to a band of the lace. The back extended to a sweeping train. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion fell from a bonnet brim and she carried a white, pearl prayerbook, the gift of the bridegroom, on which rested a white gardenia, with graceful streamers of stephanotis.

Miss Doreen Jones, of Belleville, was maid of honor, gowned in pale yellow taffeta, with gloves and bonnet of matching taffeta lined with tulle. She carried a nosegay of green carnations.

Miss Gladys Keough, of Belleville, was bridesmaid, gowned similarly to that of the maid of honor, but in a contrasting shade of pale green taffeta and carried a nosegay of yellow carnations.

Mr. Joseph Barrett, of Belleville, brother of the bride, was groomsman, and Mr. William Barrett, and brother of the bride, and Mr. John Fennell, both of Belleville, were ushers.

The wedding reception was held at the bride's home on Grove Street, where the guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing powder blue with pink accessories and corsage of Butterfly roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore navy blue with hat and accessories of chartreuse and corsage of Butterfly roses.

Following the reception, the happy couple left for Grand Bend, Ont., London and other points west, the bride travelling in a turquoise ensemble of gabardine with white accessories and corsage of white gardenias.

Out-of-town guests were present from Montreal, Windsor, Preston, Toronto, and London.

ALLORE—ROBERTSON

St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, Campbellford, was the scene of Wednesday, July 19, at 10 a.m. of a pretty wedding when Margaret Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Donald Robertson, of Campbellford, became the bride of Dr. Robert Laughlin Walter Allore, of St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Allore, of Belleville, Ont. The Rev. Father J. J. McCarthy, of Douro, Ont., cousin of the bride, officiated. The church was beautifully decorated with white lilies.

Miss Marie Crossen provided the wedding music and Mr. Robert Flurey, of Belleville, was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the radiant bride wore a lovely gown of blush, slipper satin with fitted basque fashioned with sheer yoke and guipure lace appliqued from shoulder to waist, merging into a front panel. The sleeves were long and tight-fitting, ending with matching lace at the wrists. The gathered skirt was draped into a circular train. Her long veil of tulle illusion fell from a halo headdress and carried a crescent bouquet of orchids and sweetpeas.

Miss Patricia Robertson, of Campbellford, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Miss Mary Jean Allore, of Belleville, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Patricia Kennedy, of Toronto, were bridesmaids, gowned alike in heavenly blue nylon with side panels trimmed with blue eyelet lace, matching short gloves, and winged calots with eyelet brim. They carried cascade bouquets of roses.

Mr. Douglas Green, of Belleville, was groomsman, and Dr. Arthur Dunn of Toronto, and Mr. John Funnell, of Belleville, were ushers.

The reception was held at the home of the bride, where the bride's mother, wearing a gown of pale blue lace with navy accessories, and corsage of sweetpeas, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, in a flower-mist-rose gown, with navy accessories and corsage of roses and blue batchelor buttons, received the guests.

For travelling to Quebec City, the bride chose a brown and white two-piece silk dress with matching accessories, pale yellow straw hat with flower brim and corsage of pale blue orchids. Upon their return, Dr. and Mrs. Allore will reside in Toronto, where he is taking post-graduate studies at St. Michael's Hospital.

Out-of-town guests were from Belleville, Marmora, Hastings, Tweed, Toronto, Montreal, Windsor, Battle Creek, Mich., Port Hope, London, Leamington, Pembroke, and Rochester, N.Y.

MURRAY—DEACON

Marmora. — Beautifully decorated with snapdragon, delphinium and hydrangea, Sacred Heart Church, Marmora, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday, July 19, at 10 a.m., when Reta Elizabeth Deacon, daughter of Mrs. Harry Deacon, of Marmora, and the late Mr. Deacon, became the bride, of Joseph Murray, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Murray. The marriage was performed and the Nuptial Mass was celebrated by the Rev. J. A. O'Neill. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Hugh Brady. Mrs. James McGrath sang Schubert's "Ave Maria", and the Very Rev. H. J. Farrell, former pastor of Sacred Heart Church sang "Panis Angelicus". The choir rendered the hymn "O Sacred Heart".

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Harry Dunlay, the bride was becomingly gowned in lime green nylon marquisette over orchid taffeta, with matching headdress. She carried a bouquet of white roses and mauve sweetpeas.

Miss Mary Murray, New York, sister of the bridegroom, wore a gown of yellow organdy over taffeta, with Milan hat, and carried a bouquet of white roses and sweetpeas.

Little Sharon Baker, of Pembroke, cousin of the bride, was flower girl quaintly dressed in yellow and mauve hoop skirt and poke bonnet. She carried a nosegay of roses and sweetpeas.

James McGrath, cousin of the bridegroom, was best man and the ushers were Forrest Dennis and Floyd Loveless.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, where Mrs. Deacon received, wearing a gown of black and pink silk crepe, with matching hat and accessories.

Later the bride and groom left for a trip to Quebec, the bride wearing a brown silk ensemble with matching hat and accessories. On their return they will reside in Marmora.

Out-of-town guests included, the Very Rev. H. J. Farrell, Perth; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Baker and Sharon, Pembroke; Miss G. Maynard, Guelph; Mrs. James Hodge, Oakville; Mrs. Gordon Bond, Kingston; Miss Marion Ketcheson and Mrs. J. P. Marrin, Toronto; Mrs. Eleanor Morse, Rochester, N.Y., Miss Mary Murray, New York; Mr. Vern Fuller, Peterborough; Miss Elizabeth Gladney, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Shannona and Miss Betty McGee, Stirling.

Food and Fashion Show Up Together For Ad Campaign

New York, July 21—(AP)—The food processor is muscling in in women's haute-couture—fashions, to you. It's not a matter of calories and curves, either—but of dreaming up a new color and new styles from the skin out, or from hat to shoe.

A mattress maker and a brewer have joined hands with a beauty contest—the question of curves isn't mentioned here either.

Fabric mills are coming out forthrightly for health—especially if you seek health by buying swimming suits.

And the jewelry makers have sighted a great need and prepared to fill it—a longer necklace to go with the new horseshoe neckline. Also, they're bringing out an above-the-elbow bracelet designed especially, as the jewelry industry council says, for "the upper arm which has been left suddenly bare."

General Foods Corp. is the one which is launching a new color called "sanka" for women's wear. Sanka, a General Foods product, is coffee with the caffein extracted.

In the fond hope that America's womenfolk will all take to wearing "rich dark brown, just off black" this fall, General Foods has lined up an impressive list of top-flight French and American fashion designers, hat makers, furriers, shoe makers, lingerie, blouse, stocking, negligee, trousseau, glove, handbag and perfume makers, and a list of textile houses. They've turned out new sanka designs in their specialties.

New Color Liked

The new color was unveiled at a fashion show for the edification of some 150 fashion editors of newspapers from all parts of the country, here for a week's haute-couture soree as guests of the New York Dress Institute. The girls seemed to like sanka brown all right as it was paraded down a runway after being draped around some of New York's most gorgeous models.

Another style that caught the eye was a dress with sanka pantaloons recommended by the designer "for television evenings when guests sometimes have to sit on the floor."

The perfume people are already working hard to promote wider use of their products. They've formed a Fragrances Foundation, Inc.—since they prefer the word "fragrance" to "scent"—and are gunning for $50,000 for a promotion fund from members.

As for the beauty queen and the beer and mattress—the contest is for the title of Mrs. America. Among those sponsoring state contests a brewery is back of the quest for Mrs. Missouri. Among those contracting to use Mrs. America's name and photograph in their promotion campaigns is the Simmons Co., makers of beautyrest mattress. The why and wherefore of the tie-up will probably appear later in the ads.

Women's Activities

PLAINFIELD W.M.S.

Plainfield—The Plainfield Women's Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. Wesley Bradshaw on Tuesday with an attendance of 22 adults and 2 children.

Mrs. Arthur Hall, president, opened the meeting with a poem "By Still Waters". Mrs. Clarence Hall, in charge of the devotional had for her theme, "Joy is the Grace We Give to God". Mrs. Don Hall read several passages from the Bible, and Mrs. Hall closed this part with a reading "My Father's World." Mrs. Bradshaw gave a report on the flower fund.

Mrs. Garnet Denyes reported $7.50 sent away for the Mission Band. "White Elephants" a temperance reading was given by Mrs. Hazard.

Moved by Mrs. Harrison that a clothespin bag be made and sent to each home in which each one can put their donation to missions.

Mrs. Marshall, group leader, opened her part with a hymn, followed with a few words on "Korea." Mrs. Harrison continued on Korea with a map she had drawn showing and explaining the different positions and layout of the cities where the war is now going on, making it much more understandable.

Mrs. Emerson read of Miss Rose's trip through the mountains; a lovely duet was given by Misses Shirley and Joan Kerr; and a reading, "Two Religions", was read by Mrs. Don Hall. A missionary story was well given by Mrs. Garnet Denyes, and a quiz on the Bible was held by Mrs. Marshall. Mrs. W. Sills closed the meeting.

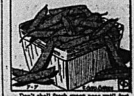
Barbara A. Meiklejohn, Springbrook, receives her Grade VIII certificate with honors, having completed the required theory recently.

Wife Preservers



Don't shell fresh green peas until just before they are to be cooked. You thus save their full nutritive value which is lost if the peas are left soaking in water for a time.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

Rice eaters may be surprised to learn that among the thousands of varieties of rice grown there are many colors including gold and black. In the United States, there is a color line against any rice that isn't pure white. Brown rice and wild rice are unsuccessful minorities.

In sultry summer weather rice dishes are substantial but not heavy or fatty. When cold dinner menus become a bore, as they usually do, serve a light warm rice casserole.

Rice and crab meat casserole, recipe below, is a combination of cooked foods that will not turn your kitchen into a fiery furnace. For real speed, minute rice may be used instead of the regular brands. The crab meat may be bought freshly cooked from your fish dealer, or you may use frozen or canned crab meat. This kind of casserole may be assembled hours before dinner time, and then reheated in a moderate oven for 20-25 minutes. Or, all the ingredients may be turned into a double boiler and reheated just before serving.

In place of crab meat, tunafish, salmon or any seafood may be substituted.

Rice and Crab Meat Casserole Serves 4.

Wash 1 cup rice in cold water, changing water and draining until water is clear.

Place rice with 2 cups of water and 1 teaspoon salt in a heavy saucepan fitted with tight lid. Bring water to a boil. Turn flame as low as possible. Cover rice with lid and cook without stirring until rice is tender. Cooking time will vary with size and quality of rice, but usually takes from 15-20 minutes. Remove lid for a minute or two before turning off flame so that rice can steam dry.

Open an eight ounce can of crab meat or buy 1-2 pound of freshly cooked crab meat. Remove all pieces of cartilage. Break crab meat into small flakes.

In a mixing bowl combine rice, crab meat, 2 tablespoons grated onion, 1-4 cup canned pimientos cut into 1-2 inch squares, 1 cup canned or cooked fresh peas and salt and pepper to taste.

Grate enough process pimiento cheese or swiss cheese to fill 1 cup, loosely packed. Mix cheese with rice. Turn mixture into a greased casserole. Bake in a moderate oven 375 degrees or until ingredients are hot and cheese has melted.

Heat 1 can undiluted cream of celery soup with 1-2 cup milk or cream. Pass sauce at table with crab meat casserole.

STEPPING OUT?

Then you should look your best. This is easy when you send your clothes to us to be dry cleaned. Then you can feel assured you always look neat and smart.

BEAUTY

Shapely head a quality of beauty

With straight hair, or locks carrying only a hint of undulations, and with the cap cut, you've got to have a well-shaped head on your shoulders. It is surprising how heads vary in contour. They can be long, short, flat on the top, or flat at the back. The hair stylist takes a bird's-eye view before he ever takes scissors in hand.

The present madness for cropped hair reminds the oldsters of the time when pigtails came before the bar of beauty justice and were condemned. Before that fatal hour the glorious crown was rated entirely by volume and length. The floors of beauty shops were covered with drifts of hair. You could wade through them. They were swept up by the bushel.

The men raised a howl. There were family fight aplenty. But some of the optimistic males smiled knowingly and said the bob was just a passing fad, that "when the men wanted the women to grow hair again," the sweet things would do it.

At the present time, everything is hunky-dory. You can have short locks, shoulder-length tresses, even longer ones to coil into a chignon at the nape line.

For the short-haired contingent, the trim is three-fourths of the coiffure formula. The three-inch petal effect is a honey, and you can't beat it. The beauties among us can get away with plain effects, but the run-of-the-mill damsels require fluff and ringlets, no doubt about it. You just swish the comb through your airy-fairy hair and there it is! You look cherubic. It is the happy mode for the young lady who has time at her heels, who is always in a hurry.

The average women may fancy that she is doing well by herself if her locks are beautifully arranged, but there is more than that to hairdressing. The contour of the head must be taken into consideration, also the relationship between the hair-do and the features.

She should regard the rear of her head. It is best to do that when she has just had a shampoo and her hair is wet. Let her comb it down sleekly, close to the scalp. If her head bulges at the back, she must avoid fluff there; if it is flat, it should be built out with ringleted ends.

Unless the features are exceptionally pleasing and regular, she should avoid the centre part that gives accent to them.

The popularity of the bang is heartening. It is a blessing to the high-brow, imparting youthful appearance and an air of chic.

Green faille lounging pajamas.

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

A BEAUTIFULLY handled two-piece pajama suit is suggested for terrace dining or for evenings at home watching television broadcasts. The fabric is emerald green tissue faille with a vivid touch of color provided by a purple suede belt. The top is a separate surplice draped blouse tied on each shoulder. The trousers have slit pockets at the hips, harem cut at the foot and a deep pleat at either side of the front.

Keeping Food Fresh Needs Some Care

By KEY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 21—(CP)—Keeping food fresh is about the biggest hot-weather headache there is—particulary for the girl who lives alone in a small flat or apartment and with nothing between her and the temperature but an ice-box.

About the only way to avoid heavy food wastage is to buy in as small quantities as possible.

Even this doesn't prevent butter from melting away, milk from going sour, when the ice disappears hours before the next delivery is due.

Keep Milk Chilled

It may be possible to save enough milk for the morning coffee by putting the bottle in a sauce-pan of cold water over night.

However—to play safe—it's a good idea to keep a supply of condensed milk on hand.

In any case milk should be taken into the house as soon after delivery as possible and the bottle and cap should be washed in cold running water before opening or putting away.

The milk also should be kept covered as it readily absorbs odors from other foods and it should be returned to the ice-box as soon as the amount has been removed.

Fruits such as berries, cherries and plums should be placed on the ice without washing and as soon as received from the market.

Fresh uncooked meat should be removed immediately from the wrapping paper, wiped with a damp cloth, placed on a platter, then covered with waxed paper.

If the meat is left in the wrapping paper it quickly becomes dark.

For Egg Storage

Eggs should be stored in the ice-box in a wire basket. To keep whites after eggs have been broken and separated, place them in a glass jar, cover, and keep cool.

Egg yolks should be covered with water or milk and placed in a covered jar.

The tendency of lettuce to brown at the edges may be reduced by keeping it wrapped in a damp towel until used.

Never throw out sour milk as it can be mighty useful in making tea-biscuits and even in cornmeal muffins.

Cornmeal muffins—ingredients: one egg (beaten); one cup sour milk and one-half teaspoon each of soda and salt; one-quarter teaspoon cream of tartar; 1½ cups corn meal; two teaspoons hot grease.

Beat well and pour into heated greased muffin-pans and bake in a quick oven.

GOOD MANNERS

Correct dress for wedding party at evening church wedding in summer

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

These are the preliminary plans for the attire for my daughter's wedding in the last part of August; an evening church wedding, semi-formal. Bride: trainless gown; fingertip veil; bridal bouquet. Bridal attendants: long gowns of dinner-dress type; headdresses; bouquets. The mothers: long dinner dresses; gloves; corsages. Groom, best man, ushers: white dinner jackets; black tuxedo trousers; black bow ties. Is this plan correct?—B. H.

Yes. (Remember, however, that in most churches, it is required that women wear headdresses of some kind. . . for an evening wedding the mothers sometimes wear a small wisp of an evening hat, perhaps of lace or tulle or similar material.)

Oyster forks

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have just received a present of a set of oyster forks. Are they used for eating oysters, as their name implies? Or may they be used for eating fruit cocktails, which I very often serve?

Marion B.

Oyster forks are not only used for eating oysters, but for clams, and for all kinds of shellfish cocktails, crabmeat, lobster, shrimp and the popular combination "seafood cocktail." It is also used (sometimes in combination with a larger fork) for eating boiled or broiled lobster, very convenient for extracting the pieces of lobster from the claws. The oyster fork should not be served with fruit cocktails . . for these, the teaspoon is correct because more convenient.

Simple party for mother to meet her friends

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother is coming to visit me for several weeks this summer! She lives in a distant city, and knows none of my friends here. What is the correct procedure to get her acquainted with my friends here: to take her to call on them, or to ask them to call on her?—S. B.

Don't do either. The graceful way is for you to give a simple tea for your mother, and invite your friends to come to meet her. Or if you prefer, to give a party for both men and women, give a buffet luncheon or supper on either Saturday or Sunday evening.

Don't write "no presents" on formal wedding nivitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For quite a few years I have worked in a large company, where I have had much responsibility and therefore have come to know many of my co-workers. I am devoted to them, and want very much to have them come to my church wedding. However, I would be very sorry if they felt that this invitation would mean that I expected them to give me wedding presents. So would it be against all the rules of etiquette if I wrote "No presents" on the wedding invitations? —A. H. M.

It would, I think, look most strange and really discourteous to have "No presents" written on a formal invitation . . .so this I don't advise. However, I completely understand your warm-hearted and friendly wish to invite your co-workers, and I suggest that you invite them verbally so that you can make your request: for example, "I want very much to have you come to my wedding on (day, date) at the ——church, at four o'clock. Please do come . . . and please do promise me too that you will not send me a present."

The half sleeves are also cuffed. This is a fine choice for the commuter.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her mother-in-law poisons her husband's mind

Miss Fairfax:

A few weeks ago my mother-in-law said unpleasant things about me to my husband. Of course they are not true, but since then my husband hasn't trusted me out of his sight. He even thinks I have some man come to see me while he is at work.

I love him so much, and want him to love and trust me, but my mother-in-law must be telling him things every chance she gets. She objected to our marriage on the ground that we were too young. Now we have two children and I am going to have another, but I am afraid to tell my husband because he doesn't trust me.

Please tell me how I can make my husband trust me again.

J. K.

Dear J. K.:

I assume that the reason your husband thinks you are entertaining some man while he is at work is because your mother-in-law has put such ideas in his head. Are you quite certain you have given her absolutely no reason to suspect something of the kind might be going on?

Of course, I realize that if your mother-in-law is antagonistic toward you it is quite possible that she might try to influence your husband against you. Still, if you are conducting yourself exactly as you should, it is a little hard to understand where she would get such ideas.

In any case, especially with this child coming along, you are indeed in a very unhappy situation. I should think it might be a good idea if you talked to someone experienced in solving family problems, and see if you can't be helped to work out some solution in this matter. If you would like to do this, and will send me a stamped addressed envelope, I will be glad to give you the name and address of a place you can go to discuss your trouble.

Her boss is 38; she's 17 and thinks she loves him

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17, and deeply in love with my boss, who is 38. He is a widower with two boys of 12 and 14. He has met my parents several times, and though they are polite to him, they don't approve of him. They think I am too young to be tied down with an older man and his two sons. They threaten to throw me out if we marry.

I love John, and don't want to give him up. He has never told me that he loved me, but actions speak louder than words, don't you think? Please advise me what to do.

A. M.

Dear A.M.:

I certainly do think that actions speak louder than words, and because of this, as well as for a great many other reasons, I think you had better get yourself another job and another boss in a hurry!

It is hardly likely that this man has any serious romantic feelings for you, and if he does, then you certainly should not be around him. Any man of 38 who would think of a girl of 17 in anything but a fatherly way has something wrong with him.

Your parents are entirely correct in their disapproval of this situation, and I urgently advise you to listen to them.

Public Worries Over Britain's Defence Plans, Still Remembers 1939

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London — (CP) — The gravity of the internationl situation with its ever-present menace of a Third World War is causing growing concern in many quarters about Britain's own defences.

The questions being asked are similar to those posed during the critical period that preceded Hitler's march into Poland in September, 1939.

Qualified authorities have been telling an anxious public that the communist aggression in Korea is unlikely to plunge the present generation into another major war. But the man-in-the-street has not forgotten the shattering let-down of Neville Chamberlain's "peace in our time" assurance before the German blitzkrieg engulfed Europe more than 10 years ago. The average Briton wants to be sure the government, in consultation with other units of the Commonwealth, is ready to meet the challenge of aggression and that her armed strength is equal to her commitments.

Preparedness Campaign

The Conservative Daily Mail, leading the campaign for aggressive preparedness, recalls the devastation of a blasted Britain from 1940 onwards because the country was inadequately armed in 1939

"Two World Wars," the paper says, "should have taught us the peril of following our armed forces to run down. But has it? Enormous sums are being spent in defence, but are they being laid out to the best advantage?"

In the case of need, it asks, could Britain field a well-trained, highly mechanized force, supplied with modern weapons and equipment?

"If the answer is "No" — as we believe it will be — the government should act at once, even though it means more money for arms and less for false teeth."

The public has heard much about collective security and the North Atlantic Alliance as deterrents to potential aggressors. And the taxpayer has been told that £ 780,000,000 ($2,418,000,000) would be required this year to meet the needs of the army, navy and air force.

Atomic Bomb Spectre

But in the background looms the spectre of the atom and hydrogen bombs and other new weapons that have increased man's power of destruction to an extent that stuns the imagination.

The average citizen has reason to believe that Britain and her allies have an edge in the atomic armaments race. However, he knows that Russia has made progress in this field—more rapid than at one time seemed likely.

Some authorities state there is no certainty that the new weapons will ever be used should war come. They point to the example of gas and germ warfare that could have been employed with deadly effects in the Second World War.

Meanwhile, a recruiting campaign has been under way for volunteers in the older-age groups to serve as a home defence force. They are being trained by experts who went to Hiroshima and Nagasaki to study the effects of the atom bombs on these Japanese cities and people who lived in them. The call was for a minimum force of 150,000, but fewer than 40,000 have enrolled to date.

The government has been taken to task for lack of aggressiveness in furthering this phase of the defence program. Its critics charge that the public has been given no information about air-raid shelters or other protection against atomic or rocket missiles, about dispersal and evacuation or signals to be adopted to warn the populace of danger.

Similar complaints were heard during the tense months that preceded the outbreak of the last war.

Too Much Hush-Hush

Claiming there is far too much "hush-hush" in dealing with the defence preparation generally, opposition members in the House of Commons have waged a persistent campaign for a secret session of parliament to discuss the situation. The pleas have been rejected by the government on the grounds that such discussion, without wartime controls, might endanger national security.

On this point the Daily Mail commented editorially:

"Gloom and despondency about the present situation are as needless as they are foolish. But it would be even worse to behave like ostriches. The world is passing through a highly-dangerous period. The best hope of warding off the worst that could appen is to be ready for it."

Committee Probes Strike Troubled Dock District

London — (Reuters) — Five men, meeting behind closed doors have begun an investigation of the world's port and the habits of its 27,000 dockers, stevedores and lightermen.

The British government has asked them to find out why the Port of London has been the most strike-troubled sector of British industry in the last five years.

Several earlier, unofficial investigations have suggested possible explanations. The two most popular have been:

1. That communists have infiltrated into the port, obtained key positions in the trade unions and brought the workers under their influence.

2. That the mammoth trade union which organizes a majority of the port workers has lost touch with the rank and file, does not adequately represent their interests and so drives them to unofficial action.

General Denials

British communists deny the first suggestions. The trade union denies the second.

The five men who have to sift the evidence and try to reach an objective conclusion are: Sir Frederick Leggett, a former high official at the Ministry of Labor; A. M. Holbein, vice-president of the Federation of Civil Engineering Contractors; G. H. Bagnall, a former trade official who now is an industrial administrator; Sir Robert Hyde, founder of the Industrial Welfare Society, and Sir Wilfrid Garrett, a former chief inspector of factories.

They held their first meeting at the end of May and their report is not likely to be published for some months yet.

Port employers, trade union officials and government-appointed administrators are expected to give evidence before the committee of enquiry.

Canadian Ships

Representatives of an unofficial port workers' committee which has led several strikes in the port in opposition to the official union have demanded the right to be heard. But it is not yet known whether they will be admitted.

Biggest dispute since the war occurred last summer, when the port was brought to a standstill by the refusal of dockers to work Canadian ships which they regarded as "black" — that is, the subject of a trade union dispute.

Government and trade union spokesmen denied the ships were "black," said trouble on board was due to a domestic feud in Canada between the communist-led Canadian Seamen's Union and the rival International Seafarers' Union sponsored by the American Federation of Labor.

Interesting Reports Expected

Observers agree that one of the most interesting parts of the committee's report will be that concerned with the role of the Transport and General Workers' Union which, with 1,300,000 members, is one of the world's largest trade unions outside of Soviet Russia. About 20,000 of the 27,000 workers in the port of London belong to it.

Ernest Bevin, now foreign secretary, built up the Transport and General Workers' Union almost from scratch and led it through most of its biggest struggles.

In 1940, when Winston Churchill formed a coalition government Mr. Bevin moved from the union to the Ministry of Labor.

The new U.S. front on higher ground is a better location for fighting a delayed action, MacArthur said in a communique.

The United Nations commander said "heavy infiltration tactics by guerrillas who outflanked the American army units, and co-ordinating infantry-tank assaults forced the withdrawal."

A spokesman at Eighth Army headquarters in Korea said the withdrawal was "planned - - - and not a precipitous flight."

Yongdok was destroyed by gunfire from two cruisers, one British and one American. It was knocked out Wednesday evening and night.

Vice-Admiral Charles T. Joy, commander of Naval Forces in the Far East, said the cruisers' guns started large fires in the red-occupied town with smoke still visible from the ships after 12 hours.

Yongdok may be an objective of the First Cavalry Division.

Bad weather hampered allied air action, but more than 100 sorties were flown. U.S. jets shot down two Yak-9 fighters near Taejon. Three red planes were knocked down there yesterday.

Superforts roamed over North Korea and dropped more than 160 tons of high explosives on five major targets—airfields and bridges.

Yak planes attacked superforts near Seoul but were driven off by the bombers' gunners. Two of the American planes were damaged in the Seoul area, but both returned safely.

The Far East Air Forces reported that superfortresses have brought rail traffic through Seoul almost to a standstill.

Detailed analysis of reconnaissance photographs shows heavy damage to repair and assembly shops and a sharply reduced communist ability "to replace their rapidly decreasing supply of rolling stock."

MacArthur's communique said a South Korean regiment on the central front recaptured Yechon, 40 miles north of the main U.S. supply line from Pusan.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

Godly Men in Ungodly Times

By ROY L. SMITH

It is one of the rather remarkable mysteries of history that every great crisis has produced its great leader.

Such an ungodly time had come in the life of the Hebrews. The people had been settled in the Promised Land but a short time. No stable government had been organized. They had come out of the wilderness without a royal family, and with no great political leaders For a brief period of time they had followed the leadership of Joshua and Caleb, two strong characters trained by Moses, but with their passing the mantle of authority fell on no one.

The little land of Palestine was the one fertile strip of country along the east end of the Mediterranean, completely surrounded by sea and desert. As a consequence it was always being fought for The Hebrews had wrested it from the Canaanites, and now the Philistines were fighting the Hebrews for a foothold. For almost a hundred years the contest went on.

The Hebrews fought at a great disadvantage because they were not organized. Each tribe fought its own battle quite independent of any help it might get from the other tribes. This disunity made a uniting of the tribes an absolute necessity, if they were to survive. But the tribal loyalties, and a certain fear of kings, held them apart.

In the meantime life was kept orderly by the efforts of a unique group of citizens of strong personal character and wide influence who were called judges. The only authority they had was that which stemmed from their own personal character and whatever reputation they might make for wisdom and fairness. It was in the midst of such times that Samuel judged and made his reputation.

The Toll Paganism Took

The people who came out of the wilderness with Joshua and Caleb were only one generation removed from slavery. They had known the name of Jehovah, their God, no more than two generations, and could not have been expected to have convictions deeply rooted or faith securely fixed.

> The Sunday School lesson for July 23: "Samuel, the Upright Judge," I Samuel, 2:26; 3:1-10, 19-21; 7:3-6, 15-16; 9:10; 12:1-5; 13:5-15.

It is small wonder then that they fell a prey to the paganism with which they were surrounded. They knew so little about their own God, their own faith, their own history. It was easy to be convinced that the older religions and the elderly gods of their neighbors were worthy of worship and reverence

The Training of God's Man

The story of Samuel is one that every God-fearing mother ought to teach to her sons with the utmost care and eagerness. There is something very fascinating about the tale of the little lad who was committed to a life of service and religion by his mother. God sometimes begins a long way back to train those upon whom he expects he will lean heavily later on. From his youth up young Samuel had been prepared for the great work of his life.

It is a mark of the greatness of Samuel that he has the courage to speak the truth to his friends.

They had violated their trust, they had worshipped other gods than Jehovah, they had been guilty of gross sins, they had surrendered to the seductions of paganism. They had to be told in the plainest of terms that such sinning would result in but one thing—the loss of the favor of God.

His Record Was Clean

Samuel's entire life had been spent in the service of the people. He had judged their cases entirely on a free will basis. They had paid him no salary, he had benefited by no profit, he had enjoyed no special benefits because of his labors in behalf of the people.

Now as he stands before the nation to warn it against the dangers to which it was subjected by its sins, Samuel was supported in his ministry by his own spotless record. His life became his most convincing sermon.

When he stood up before the nation to call it back to righteousness not one soul in the world could point the finger of scorn at him and call him a pretender or a hypocrite. He enjoyed the first great essential of a powerful leader— he was sincere and upright.

One Man in a Nation

We have witnessed a miracle of personality in our time. Winston Churchill, the great wartime Prime Minister of Great Britain was the embodiment of British courage. His eloquent words were worth more than many regiments. There were times when his words alone saved the nation.

Samuel, in his day, performed much the same service for the Hebrews. His pure personality became the rallying point of the nation.

There is no writing of the history of the chosen people which can avoid the amazing achievement of this venerable old judge. His godliness, in the hour of crisis, saved the nation.

One godly man in ungodly times can make a difference.

70 Delegates From 21 Nations Meet in Seminar

By G. K. HODENFIELD

Mondsee, Austria, July 21 — A practical experiment in international understanding is underway here on the shores of the Mondsee (Lake of the Moon), where 70 delegates from 21 countries are attending Unesco's first international seminar on adult education.

Countries in the Soviet sphere are boycotting the seminar; although officials here refuse to discuss it. Two Czech girls, however, are on the staff as interpreters.

For six weeks, ending next weekend the delegates are living together, working together and playing together in their democratic, self-governing community in a lakeside hotel.

The delegates do not listen to a prescribed series of lectures nor do they study a set program, Rather, they pool their experiences to provide a picture of adult education around the world.

Director of the seminar is Dr. Sven Bjorklund, dean and founder of the Stockholm Peoples University and one of the outstanding figures in Scandinavian education.

Working directly under him are four assistants, each in charge of a particular group. They are: Jean Le Veugle of France, organization and administration; Dr. Shepherd L. Witman of Cleveland, Ohio, intellectual and scientific training; Dr. R. Alex Sim of Canada, economic and social training, and Dr. Giovanni Calo of Italy, approach to the arts—the educational use of leisure.

Countries represented at the seminar are: Austria, Belgium, Canada, the United States, Egypt, Great Britain, Holland, Iran, Italy, Luxembourg, Norway, New Zealand, Sweden, Switzerland, Thailand, Denmark, Germany, Yugoslavia, Japan and France.

SOME PERTINENT REMARKS

Lack of good coaching, especially in the smaller centres plus the fact that boys are not taught baseball when they are big enough to hold a bat, is one of the reasons there are not many Canadians in the major leagues, Pat Colgan, Philadelphia Phillies coach told this corner yesterday afternoon in an interview following the closing of the four-day baseball school held here.

"As a matter of fact," smiled the amiable Pat, who should know whereof he speaks, "the same applies to hockey in the United States. Here in Canada your youngsters are figuratively born with skates on and clutching a hockey stick. In the United States, our youngsters grab a baseball and bat, and never let go until they are in a team of some sorts."

The Phillies coach who has been in Canada for some time conducting the baseball clinic, said he was surprised to see the lack of organized midget and other minor-age teams. "If each town and village as well as the cities saw to it that their youngsters were taught baseball as soon as they were old enough to learn, I'll venture that it would not be long before the United States major leagues would have a very strong Canadian representation."

"Hockey is rapidly becoming one of the most popular sports in the United States," he said. "It is taking hold in every village, town and city along the border. Minor leagues are being formed under Canadian coaches, and don't be surprised one of these days to see a lot more American-born players in the National Hockey League than there are today.

"So," he smiled, "let's get together on this sports deal."

We inquired as to why more Canadians were not in the major and other professional leagues in the United States.

"That is easy to understand," Colgan said. "Let's put it this way. How many American youths who never started to play hockey until they were 14 or 15 years of age would stand a chance of making your Maple Leafs or Canadiens?

"True" he added, "there are some Canadians who made the grade like Phil Marchildon, Alex. Selkirk, Dick Fowler, Oscar Judd and others but they were exceptions to the rule. They were blessed with more natural ability than were those of their Canadian team-mates.

"So there is the importance of starting youngsters to play ball when they are young, and not wait until they reach the age of 15 or 16. True it is natural for a boy to grab a bat and ball and play with the kids on the corner, but apart from boyish fun, there is nothing to it."

"If Canada wants representation in the major baseball leagues, she must organize her boys when they are youngsters, see to it that they get the proper coaching, give them the proper environment such as good baseball parks, and the rest should be easy", Coglan said.

"If this was made a national job," he smiled, "who knows, and it is not too fantastic an idea at that, in the future there might be a Canadian Major League with a three-way playoff for the world series."

Through his observation of Canadian players at the various schools he has conducted in this country, Coglan formed the opinion that there is lots of room for improvement in Canadian coaches.

"Perhaps we as professionals expect too much, but from what we have observed, some of these boys, many of them with fine natural ability do not know what it is all about except to hit and run."

To improve the coaching in Canada, Coglan suggested that outstanding coaches here be sent to Philadelphia or any other American city where major league teams hold coaching clinics every winter, to attend these schools, return to Canada and establish similar clinics here.

Asked why American major league teams such as the Phillies, Dodgers and Cardinals had suddenly decided to "invade" Canada for baseball material, Coglan said that there is a dearth of such material in the United States.

"Besides," he added, "this is virgin territory and you do not know what is to be found."

In addition, he said, "we like Canada, and we come over here not only as representatives of baseball teams but ambassadors of good will."

"We did not find any player here that measured to our standings, but we are not disappointed. We hope you liked us as we liked you."

* * *

Pat Coglan and Dale Jones, his assistant and pitching coach left behind a lot more than they took away. They imparted a lot of tremendously important baseball knowledge to the school they conducted, and every youngster present should benefit. The boys we talked with were delighted with the instruction they received and none was disappointed at taking time out to travel here for the school.

A COUPLE OF LOVEBIRDS?

Despite the boasting, bragging and ridiculing which Fred Atkins has been doing before his match with Yukon Eric at the Memorial Arena tonight, the cool, calm and placid Yukon doesn't seem particularly disturbed at his opponent's ravings and rantings.

The way Yukon Eric looks at it, Atkins is still only one man, only has two arms and two legs the same as other people and, granted that he is an experienced, tough and highly rated matman, has no special, charmed gifts that no one else has. "As for Atkins being tough, I doubt if he's any tougher than some of those lumberjacks I've tangled with in the north woods. If he'd like to go at it rough-and-tumble, that's okay with me," declared the usually-silent Eric.

District Players Show Ability But None Meets Phillies Standard

While the baseball clinic held by the Philadelphia Phillies here this week attracted upwards of fifty district hopefuls, none measure up to the standards required by Coaches Pat Coglan and Dale Jones.

While a number of the aspiring young players had plenty of playing ability, height and weight were not up to the required mark. In other cases where the player was a student, it was pointed out that the National Baseball Association edict states that a player must be a graduate of his class, or must wait until his class graduates, if he has left school.

Yet To Sign Player

However, Coach Coglan pointed out, players from this district need not be disappointed. The Phillies clinic has yet to sign a young player in Canada, and the Belleville class produced the best type of player seen in schools conducted thus far.

"Some of the boys" said Coglan, "showed strong potentialities but a decided lack of coaching. Some were 'naturals' while others forced themselves to play their best under our eyes. Some of the best prospects were under the Phillies requirements of 5.10½ in height and weighing 180 pounds."

"Modern baseball, like your Canadian hockey likes and demands the big fellows. Once in a while a smallish boy will make the grade but he is rare", he said.

Coglan and Jones were not disappointed in failing to uncover a future major leaguer in Canada, thus far.

"We did not expect to discover a Dimaggio, Williams or Musial here, but there is always the possibility there is some youngster who can be developed," Coglan said.

Best School Seen Here

During the three-day school, one day was rained out, the Phillies coaches put the players through strenuous workouts. Each player was given chances to prove his ability while chalk talks, individual instruction, team play, batting, outfield and pitching sessions were held throughout the session.

Players were closely watched during their play, and weaknesses corrected. Instruction was maintained consistently from four to five hours daily. It was the best baseball school of instruction, according to players who have attended others, to be held here.

Players came from Toronto, Peterborough, Trenton, Belleville, Little Britain, Kingston, Campbellford, Napanee, Bath, Sillsville, Colborne, Cobourg, Wellington, Tamworth and Grafton.

If world conditions do not interfere, the Phillies will hold another baseball clinic here next year.

Lawn Bowlers Prepare For Ontario Title

Waterloo, July 21 (CP)—The little man with the leather case under his arm is a familiar sight in Ontario this week.

Chances are he's one of Ontario's 9,431 registered lawn bowlers, hiking off with his bowls to compete in first stage games for the Provincial Lawn Bowling championships.

Announcement that first stage games, or regional elimination contests, are under way was made here today by Harold W. Wagner, chairman of the championship committee of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association. Members of 228 clubs across Ontario are eligible.

Winners of the first stage in 16 districts will be declared July 31, Mr. Wagner said. They will play four second stage round-robin meets to determine provincial semi-finalists, who meet on Ottawa's Elmdale greens Aug. 29 for the championship.

Competition is being held in rinks, doubles and singles events. A junior doubles tournament designed to stimulate interest in the sport in the younger set, will be played simultaneously with other stage games.

Second stage games, played in London, Kitchener, Toronto and Kingston, will be three-game round-robin affairs. The championship flight will be an elimination series, with the semi-finals in the morning and the final in the afternoon.

Official association blazers will be presented to winners of the championship and second sake flights. Runners-up will receive inscribed gold pins, while silver awards will go to consolation winners and runners-up.

Kawartha Club Golf Tourney Is Rich Plum

Peterborough, July 21—Amateur golfdom's richest Canadian plum, the Kawartha Amateur Invitation Tournament will be held at the Kawartha Club here on Aug. 5-6-7. This is the 5th annual staging of the Kawartha Lakes tourney, and this year entries will be limited to 200 to avoid delay and jamming on the 18-hole course.

It will consist of 54 holes of medal play, 18 holes a day, and prizes total more than $1,000, with $150 worth of luggage the award for the first low gross. Second low gross winner gets $100 worth of luggage. Other awards open to competitors in class A. B. and C. will include mantel and portable radios, electric blankets, electric shavers, wrist watches, and dozens of other valuable and useful items.

For Snyder Trophy

A feature of the three-day, 54-hole tournament is the team competition open to any four players of any club affiliated with the Ontario Golf Association or any other recognized association. Winners will walk off with the Snyder Trophy as well as individual awards.

Individual tournament winner gets the large Calvert Trophy, plus a replica for permanent possession.

Special day prizes will also be up for competition, with a low gross prize for each flight on each day of the tournament.

Entry fee is $5 and the deadline is August 1. The draw will be made August 2 and postcards mailed at once to each entry advising him of starting time. No charge is made to spectators.

Last year Ernie Bentley, Ottawa took top honors, and besides all of the Toronto clubs, players competed from Oshawa, Kitchener, Belleville, Montreal, Ottawa, London, Hamilton, Guelph, Orillia and Cobourg.

The 1950 competition will not conflict with any other affairs of a similar nature, consequently many amateurs from both Ontario and Quebec will be able to compete.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Batting— Dom Dimaggio, Red Sox: doubled off Art Houtteman in 11th to score Billy Goodman with winning run over Tigers 6-5.

Pitching— Ken Raffensberger and Ewell Blackwell, Reds: Raffensberger whipped Don Newcombe in 3-1 opener and Blackwell bested Christ Van Cuyk 6-2 for clean sweep over Brooklyn. Neither pitcher walked a man.

Well, Well, Well, Leafs Finally Come Through

(By The Associated Press)

The pitching of Omar (Turk) Lown, strong-armed righthander of Montreal Royals, is one of the top surprises of the International League season.

Lown won only one game and lost seven for Royals last year before he was shipped to Fort Worth of the Texas League where he starred, winning eight and losing one.

His fine showing at Fort Worth earned him another crack with Royals and he has come through brilliantly.

Lown turned in his ninth victory of the season last night as he pitched the Royals to a 6-5 victory over the league-leading Rochester Red Wings.

Russ Derry was Lown's chief irritant, driving home all of Rochester's runs on a single and grand-slam homer.

Despite the defeat the Wings remained 2 1-2 games ahead of the runner-up Baltimore Orioles, who lost 12-10 to Jersey City Giants.

Bill Voiselle made his first start for Springfield a successful one as he pitched the Cubs to a 4-2 10-inning victory over Syracuse Chiefs.

Toronto Maple Leafs and Buffalo Bisons split a twin bill, the Bisons grabbing the opener 4-3 and the Leafs the finale 5-4.

Bob Wellman singled home the winning run in the opener in the seventh. The Leafs wrapped up the second game with a four-run blast in the third that was featured by Alex Grabowski's three-run double.

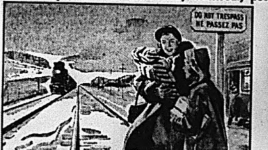
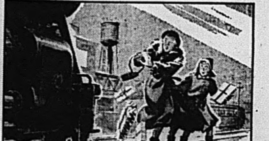
12-YEAR-OLD GIRL AVERTS TRAGEDY AT RAILWAY CROSSING

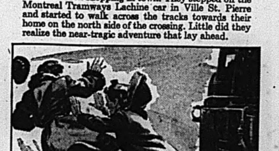
Joan Stusyk, of Ville St. Pierre, Montreal, pushes mother from train tracks in nick of time



1. Young Mrs. Stusyk and her 12-year old daughter Joan had been shopping in town. They stepped off the Montreal Tramways Lachine car in Ville St. Pierre and started to walk across the tracks towards their home on the north side of the crossing. Little did they realize the near-tragic adventure that lay ahead.



2. The two were on the west-bound track when the scream of a whistle pierced the air. They had been chatting as they walked and, because of this and the traffic noise, they had not noticed the speedy approach of the train — now only a few short yards away! With a sudden terror in her heart, Mrs. Stusyk seemed unable to move. She stood frozen in her steps!



3. Little Joan was not affected in the same way. Thinking and acting with amazing speed, she gave her mother a push and at the same time threw herself clear of the rails. When the train stopped, both were found to be safe, suffering only slight injuries from their fall to the ground. We are proud to present Joan Stusyk with THE DOW AWARD.

Red-Hot Reds Cool Dodgers In Twin-Bill to Send Brooks Back to Third Place in Loop

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Shades of 1914. Can Luke Sewell perform a miracle at Cincinnati?

You have to stretch a point to call seventh - place Cincinnati, 11½ games out of first, a pennant factor. But you can tip your hat to Sewell for the Red revival. The man who led the St. Louis Browns to their only pennant doesn't quit.

Last by 17 lengths June 24 the Reds may not qualify as the 1950 miracle team but they sure are the Dodger-killers. If Branch Rickey muffs the pennant, he can blame Cincy.

The sizzling Reds polished off the ambitious Brooks last night in both ends of a twilight - night doubleheader, 3-1 and 6-2. That made it eight of 11 over the Dodgers this season and 19 wins in their last 25 starts. Or, if you prefer, 21 of 29.

Cunning Control

Kenny Raffensberger's cunning control stuff silenced the Brooks in the opener despite Don Newcombe's five-hitter. Then Ewell (The Whip) Blackwell struck out nine in a sizzling night performance. Neither Cincy pitcher walked a man all night.

Ted Kluszewski was the big man of the first game. His first-inning single drove in one of two Cincy runs and his 17th homer in the sixth added the last.

As a result, the Dodgers are three full games behind St. Louis and Cincy is only a half - game behind the sixth-place New York Giants.

While Cincinnati lowered the boom on Brooklyn, New York Giants bounced back to smother St. Louis, 13-3. The loss didn't cost the Cardinals the lead but narrowed their advantage over Boston and Philadelphia to a single game.

The rained-out Braves didn't have a chance to gain and the Phillies missed their opportunity, bowing to Pittsburgh, 10-8, in a slugfest that lasted almost three hours. Ted Beard, Gus Bell and Danny O'Connell each had three hits in the 16-hit attack.

Yanks-Detroit Tonight

The most important series of the American League season, so far, starts tonight at Yankee Stadium when Detroit opens a three-game set with New York. The Yankees, winning 11 of their last 14, have narrowed the Tigers' lead to 2½ games.

With Joe DiMaggio back in centre field, Manager Casey Stengel will lead off with Vic Raschi against the Tigers' Ted Gray. Red Rolfe probably will use Hal Newhowser.

The clubs are all even in 10 meetings, with the Yanks holding a slim 3-2 bulge at the Stadium.

Everybody closed in on the Tigers yesterday when they lost to Boston, 6-5, in 11 innings. The runner-up New York Yankees, not scheduled to play, gained a half game. Cleveland and Boston each picked up a full game. Dom DiMaggio's double off Art Houtteman scored Billy Goodman with the winning Red Sox run to cap an uphill struggle.

Sam Zoldak and Bob Kennedy teamed up on Philadelphia for Cleveland's 3-2 victory in 11 innings. As a result the tribe is only 4½ games back of Detroit. Kennedy tied the score with a homer off Alex Kellner after two were out in the ninth. Zoldak, who replaced Steve Gromek in the seventh, shut out the A's with two hits the rest of the way.

Rain postponed the scheduled night game between Chicago and Washington. It also washed out the daytime game in the National between Boston and Chicago.

Slo-Mo-Shun IV Qualifies for Gold Cup Race

Detroit, July 21 — (AP)—The world's fastest speedboat, Slo-Mo-Shun IV, looked today like an impressive contender for the Gold Cup in the race classic on the Detroit River tomorrow.

Slo-Mo-Shun IV became the third boat to qualify yesterday for the race. Some observers had questioned her ability to take the sharp turns on the river course. But she did it under wraps and qualified with an average speed of 87.42 miles an hour.

The craft, owned by Stanley Sayres, Seattle automobile executive, posted a world record of 160.3235 miles an hour for a measured mile on Lake Washington a month ago.

Her pilot, Ted Jones, a Boeing airplane engineer, estimated he hit a top mark of 140 m. p. h. on the straightaways in the nine-mile qualifier.

Frankford Sport

Frankford — Frankford Midgets dropped a 11-10 decision to the league leading Minto club on Monday night on the Frankford diamond. Frankford went down with the tying run on third base. The game was hard fought all the way and until the last pitch was thrown, the issue was never settled.

A most unfortunate accident occurred when Bob Burkitt of the Frankford team collided with the Minto third sacker, while running from second to third. The Minto lad suffered a fracture to the ankle. He was immediately rushed to Dr. Beach's office for treatment. Dr. Beach stated that the break was caused by the impact and not by ball spikes.

Frankford Legionnaires were eliminated from a playoff position in the Sidney League as they were trounced 21-6 in Wallbridge Tuesday night. Huffman pitched a good game for the Legion, but received little support from his team mates either defensively or at the plate. Latta and Shorey pitched for Wallbridge. The scoring was fairly even for the first four innings, but then the roof fell in, and Wallbridge players ran the base paths like scared rabbits, countering no less than thirteen times in the fifth inning. Playoffs will commence next week, with the first games scheduled for Tuesday night in Wallbridge and Centenary provided the schedule is completed without interference from the elements.

Frankford Merchants, Intermediate Softball entry, edged a snappy Howe and Hegerman team of Belleville 9-8. The winning run came in the last of the ninth with none away. Frankford led going into the eighth frame by three runs, but Belleville tied the count off Rogers, who had taken over in the box. Rogers retired Belleville runless in the ninth, to get credit for the win.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, July 21 (AP) — Some new slants on minor league baseball, mostly from the president of a "half free, half slave" bush circuit. His big trouble seems to be that the farm operators have made class D baseball so expensive the independents can't compete...And now, realizing their own losses, they've begun to reduce their chains and that only makes things worse... Since cutting-down time, they've been shipping players of Class B, A and even triple-A quality into his D circuit...The unsponsored clubs can't get that kind of athletes and if they did, they couldn't pay them...Salary limits are based on paying class D kids about $125 to $150 a month... The higher-rank club that farms them out absorbs the difference, sometimes as much as $375... "That makes him a $500 a month athlete—some pay for a D loop, I'd say," the president adds...

Shorts and Shells

Only one reporter and one photographer, "representing the combined American Press" as the war dispatches used to put it were allowed to visit T. Williams' hospital room for the first interview after his arm operation..As of July 15, 13 of the Dodgers, farm clubs were leading their respective leagues in base stealing and 10 players were individual leaders..Looks as if Branch Rickey really means what he says about speed.

Thumb Fun

When Fresco Thompson, the Dodgers minor league club chief, was managing New Orleans a few years ago, he took exception to an umpire's interpretation of a rule..As Fresco charged out, the ump reached into his hip pocket for the rule book... Thompson fixed him with a scornful look: "Don't tell me they print those things in braille!"...It was nice and cool under the shower.

Noor Faces Stiff Test In Rich Stake

Inglewood, Calif., July 21 (AP) —Noor, the Irish horse who just 10 months ago started a phenomenal racing career in California, bids farewell to the state tomorrow at Hollywood Park.

The dark streak goes postward in the mile-and-one-quarter $50,000 American Handicap wind-up stake on Hollywood's summer meeting. He faces two formidable obstacles.

One is a stubbon little gray fighter from the Argentine, Miche. The other is a top-heavy impost of 132 pounds, the most he's ever been asked to carry.

There'll be a couple of other challengers in the field, maybe four—the Silver Creek Ranch's Dharan, Frank Frankel's Frankly, and possibly Clifford Mooers' Old Rockport, or E. O. Stice's On Trust.

Noor, racing under the silks of the late Charles S. Howard and once again ridden by veteran Johnny Longden, spots Miche 20 pounds.

Canucks Hand Yankee Stars Baseball Lesson

(By The Canadian Press)

You'd never know baseball was a native American game from the Intercounty League All-star game Thursday.

Bobby Schnurr's All-stars — picked from the Canadian players in the league — handed the American All-stars a 6-4 lesson on how to play their own game.

The game, played in Galt, was the first of a best-of-three series, with proceeds to go to Manitoba Flood relief and minor Ontario baseball. Second game goes Aug. 1 in Brantford.

More than 2,500 fans saw an exciting, see-saw struggle in which the Canadians, trailing 3-1, came to life with a five - run 7th inning to salt down the verdict.

The Americans took their two-run lead in the third on Alex Kvasnak's single and a home run by Soddy Groat of St. Thomas. Both blows came off London's ace southpaw, Tommy White.

In the fatal seventh, pinch-hitter Oscar Judd of the Canucks started the big rally with a bingle on which no one covered first base. Tim Burgess of London walked and Stan Lipka doubled. An error and single brought home the remaining runs.

Cy Bricker, second Canuck pitcher, got credit for the win, hurling hitless and runless ball in his three-inning stint. Ted Alexander, victim of the Canadians' big inning, was the loser.

Brantford Hurler Stars

Hitting star of the contest was Lipka, Brantford Red Sox infielder, who walloped two doubles and a single in four trips. Kvasnak had a home run in addition to his single, for a two-for-five performance.

A replay of a nine-inning scoreless tie saw Niagara Falls Fords overpower St. Catharines Stags 5-1 in a Niagara District Senior game in St. Kitts. Fords, paced by Ed Johnston, scored two runs in the first and eighth innings, and a single in the fifth. Johnston hit four-for-four.

The Intercounty Senior Baseball League — idle but for the All-star game — saw a new face atop the league batting ladder today.

London's Joe Bechard finally broke the stranglehold Alex Kvasnak has had on the batting leadership for the last umpteen weeks. Bechard, batting .403 in games up to and including Monday night, had a 20-point edge on the Waterloo playing - manager.

Veteran outfielder Goody Rosen of Galt Terriers was third with a .381 average on only 42 at bats. Orv Cott of Kitchener and Billy McCarthy of St. Thomas parked behind Rosen.

Tom McGrattan of Brantford continued to pace the slugging departments, leading in homers with six and runs batted in with 29. Bill McCarthy led in doubles with 10, and John Lockington of Brantford had scored 32 runs, tops in that department.

Vancouver Star Looms as Threat For Golf Title

By W. R. WHEATLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Saskatoon Golf and Country Club, July 21—(CP)—The golf-wise who insist on watching medal scores in match play competition handed out a free tip today: keep your eyes on Bill Mawhinney.

There was some sound reasoning behind it. In the five rounds played in the Canadian Amateur Golf Championship, the Vancouver quilchena star hasn't had a bad one. He shot sub-par golf yesterday in the quarter-finals.

The speculation was that Mawhinney will be the finalist Saturday against Nick Weslock, of Windsor, Ont.

Weslock has been a consistent winner of good margins too.

At the same time, the school that laughs off medal scores pointed to the accomplishments of Jerry Kesselring of Kitchener, Ont., and Vern Mohs of Edmonton. They wouldn't be in the semi-finals, it was argued, unless they had something.

The four had enough yesterday to bang out victories in high winds and enter the semi-finals —all for the first time.

Mawhinney shot a brilliant two-under-par to defeat Don Doe of Granby, Que., 5 and 4. There was never any doubt of the outcome after Doe dropped four of the first five holes.

Weslock Good, Too

Weslock fired an even par, as the reckoning goes, in disposing of Hugh Morrison of Vancouver. He allowed Morrison to take only one hole.

On the other hand, Kesselring was reported "a little over par" but his 4 and 2 win over Allan Boes of Winnipeg was no mean accomplishment for the 21-year-old Kitchener boy.

Mohs, long a veteran in tournament play, capitalized on the mistakes of Bob Hall of Montreal to win 2 and 1, with the closest margin of the day. Hall had a brief one-hole lead and although he later squared the match he couldn't keep pace with Moh's steady play.

The battle between Mawhinney and Kesselring is viewed as the tidbit match. Both are former Canadian Junior Champions. If Mohs defeat Weslock it will rank as the greatest upset of the tournament.

With all the excitement over the amateur title, the junior championship was quietly decided in the second 18-hole playoff.

Doug Silverberg of Red Deer, Alta., practically a selftaught golfer, disposed of Laurie Roland of Vancouver, shooting a medal 75 against Roland's 81 over the par-70 layout.

Slams Male Stars Who Dress As if They Were Ranch Hands

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 21 — (AP) — Sidney Blackmer, back for another fling at the movies, today took a slam at the male stars who dress like "ranch hands."

"That is one of the biggest changes I noticed about Hollywood since I've been back," said the stage and screen veteran. "And I think it's deplorable.

"Back in the old days, Rudolph Valentino was never seen out of character. He always dressed and acted the role of the romantic star. John Barrymore, John Gilbert and others dressed immaculately.

"But what do you see now? The actors walk around in public in blue jeans, with their shirts hanging out."

Blackmer, well pressed and nattily attired, just closed in "Come Back, Little Sheba," in which he was named Broadway's outstanding actor of the year. He is playing in "The Hero" and has several other deals cooking.

Touch and Go

It has been touch and go with Blackmer and Hollywood for more than two decades. Fortune has often touched him but he always ends up going back to Broadway. He told about one instance:

"I was up for a fat contract at M. G. M. I had done several tests and Irving Thalberg wanted me to sign. I was married to Lenore Ulric at the time and I called her up in New York to tell her about it.

" 'You can't bury me in that forsaken place,' she said. 'You can either have the contract or a wife; you can't have both.'

"So I turned the contract down and flew to New York. Ulric and I started fighting the minute I got off the plane and it ended up in a divorce. Oh yes, the guy who got the contract that was intended for me was a young fellow playing locally in 'The Last Mile' — Clark Gable."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Elva Tyme is always looking for security. At home she gets it by marrying some good man. In a bridge game she worries over some odd situation for which no rule has been given her.

So, I find a rule to fit the worst that can happen to her. Only then is she relaxed and free from fear as to the result. Even if it turns out wrong she is content with the knowledge that she did right.

Part of the lead rule is: Don't lead a suit bid by opponents. At first this tickles her pink. Then a thought like this strikes her: What if the opponents have bid all four suits?

When opponents have bid all four suits the rule is to lead the last suit bid by the dummy hand. The theory behind this is that the last suit bid by a player is probably his weakest.

South and north bid hearts and spades and clubs and diamonds in that order. It ended with south at three no-trump. So the rule lead is a diamond from the west hand shown here:

♠8 4 3
♥9 6 2
♦Q 7 6 3
♣A J 5

The idea is that diamonds is the weakest suit in dummy because it was the last suit bid by that hand. It does not necessarily turn out to be so. But it is still better than no rule at all.

Having a rule to guide you is a comfort in a tight spot. It may not guarantee you absolute certainty in results. It may be barely over a 50-50 chance of being best. But it is better than guessing.

Not every rule that is proposed can be accepted as good. Rules are good only when their advantages exceed their disadvantages. So, it is preferably to lead a secondary suit rather than a main suit.

Uncle Jim claims to know the best answer to such situations. He shuts his eyes and lets fly with the first card his fingers can grasp. He says it feels like the best card and he swears by it. So does his partner at it.

Anti-Pollution For Great Lakes Would be Costly

Toronto, July 21 — (CP) — Elimination of pollution by sewage and industrial wastes on both sides of the Great Lakes would cost $140,000,000, Premier Frost of Ontario said Thursday.

He based his estimate on investigations by the international joint commission.

Mr. Frost said conferences had been held with industries and the federal governments to seek ways of cutting down pollution. All were co-operating to try to reduce wastes.

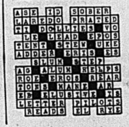
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:



Little Benny's Note Book

I bawt pop a present for his berthday, being a 19 cent pipe from Winestein's Novelty Store, and I gave it to him at breakfist, saying, Happy berthday, pop.

Thank you, the same to you when your own rolls around, and meenwhile I'll keep this pipe amung my most trezzured possessions, pop said, and I said, Well G, aint you going to smoke it, pop?

Well naturelly, pop said, and I said, Why dont you smoke it rite now, so I can watch your expression?

Dont you think it's a little erly? pop said, and I said, It's no erlier than it always is at breakfist.

By gollies that's a fact, pop said, and I said, I'll get your tobacco jar.

Which I did, and pop filled the pipe and lit it and blew puffs out, and I said, How is it, pop?

It's remarkable, I'm sure it's a hand painted pipe, pop said, and ma said, I'm sure it is, too, I can smell the paint.

The mouthpiece is unusual, too, pop said. It's one of the new patented kind made of 17 different spices and herbs, he sajd, and ma said, I think I can smell that, too.

I wish I could smoke it all the way down, but a new pipe is like a new baby, it should be fed very briefly at frequent intervals, pop said. I'm afraid I'll have to wait till I get down to the office for the next few puffs, he said.

And when he got home this afternoon he didn't have the pipe on account of somebody having stolen it while he wasn't looking, and he took me around to the drugstore so I could help him pick out another one.

Ted Williams Back in Action In Six Weeks

(By The Canadian Press)

Ted Williams, his injured left elbow supported in a sling, left the hospital Thursday hopeful of returning to the Red Sox line-up sooner than his doctors expects.

"I think I'll have good movement in the arm and be able to play in six weeks," he said.

But his doctors, orthopedic surgeon Joseph Shortell and Joseph McCarthy, Club physician, are doubtful if Ted can return again this season.

Another track record tumbled at Thorncliffe raceway in Toronto Thursday when Castle Brook, owned by Louis Mack, of Hamilton, did 1.16 2-5 for five furlongs.

Castle Brook, a three-year-old gelding sired by Miller Brook, paid $15.75 in establishing the new track mark in the third race.

Most popular winner of the day for the crowd was J. L. Van, which won the seventh race for J. L. Waples of Midland. The fans backed J. L. Van heavily and he obliged by making every post a winning one. Drive Keith Waples took him to the front immediately and he paid $4.10.

Best price of the day was provided by Sir Peter L., owned by Dr. V. H. Logheed of Dundalk, Ont., which won the fourth and paid $49.10.

The Canadian Sandlot Championships will be held at London, Ont., Aug. 22, it was announced Thursday by Lloyd Douglas of Toronto, president of the National Baseball Congress. Winner of the tournament will represent Canada in the North American championships to be held later in the year.

Prince Ali Khan has named a horse after his wife, movie actress Rita Hayworth.

He registered "Rita" with the Jockey Club in London Thursday as the name of a bay filly foal.

"Rita" is by Souverain out of Solace II.

England's batting again failed miserably against the West Indies on a feather-bed pitch when the third test cricket match began in Nottingham, England Thursday.

England scored 223 runs in the first innings. The West Indies replied with 77 for one wicket. That was the score at close of play.

Heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles will defend his title in Buffalo, N.Y., Aug. 15 in a 15-round bout with Freddie Besbore, promoter Dewey Michaels of the Fairview Athletic Club said Thursday night.

A seven-under par 65 that flowed from his smoothly-working putter Thursday gave Jim Ferrier, 35-year-old San Francisco professional, the lead at the end of the first 18 holes in the St. Paul $15,000 open golf tournament.

One stroke behind Ferrier with a 66 was Skee Riegel, Tulsa, Okla. pro.

John Marshall of Australia, and Ford Konno of Hawaii, both bettered the world record for the mile swim Thursday in preliminary races opening the United States A.A.U. Men's Outdoor Swimming Championships in Seattle.

Marshall, a student at Yale, won the first heat in 20:09.6 to smash by nearly 20 seconds the 20:29 mark set in 1942 by Keo Nakama, Hawaii.

Konno, much smaller than Yale's Australian import, went the mile in 20:22.3.

A couple of no-hitters were served up in the Minor League Thursday.

Dick Fortune, 19-year-old Rookie, pitched a no-hit, no-run game for Jamestown Falcons in the Class D Pony League in blanking Lockport Reds 2-0.

In Quebec City Fred Belinsky tossed the class: Canadian-American League's first no-hitter of the season as Quebec beat Pittsfield 8-1.

Two Toronto Junior Baseball players will sign contracts with the Brooklyn Dodgers organization for next year, scout Dick Fischer announced Thursday at the close of the annual three-day tryout camp conducted by the Dodgers at Welland.

Fischer said the pair—pitcher Moe Galand and catcher Stan Shaldon of Toronto Peter Pans—will report next spring to Dodgers' Sheboygan, Wisc., farm team, a class "D" club in the Wisconsin State League.

Four other candidates at the camp will be invited to attend the Brooklyn spring training camp.

Stewart Warner Loses Close One To Plumbers

Howe and Hagerman's redoubtable Plumbers still cling to the top spot in the league standing but it was a hair-raising 4-3 escape from the clutches of Stewart Warner last evening that will be giving them nightmares for weeks to come.

The hard-luck radio crew outhit their more formidable opponents 15-10 but failed to connect in the clutch with the result that twelve potential runs withered away on base It was the third time in their six games to date that Stewart Warner have lost by one run.

The planters opened the scoring in the top of the first frame with Keith Bertrim and Vern Carr connecting for singles. Bertrim stole third and before the game had well begun Stewart Warner had men on second and third and no one out. Rowbotham lifted one to left field to score Bertrim but Carr languished on third as Claude Carr and Lunberg hoisted to short.

Howe and Hagerman came back in their end of the first to load the bases with a walk, a single and an error, with none away. A grounder to second, a fly to third, and a putout third to first held the plumbers to one run.

The plumbers connected for two runs in the fifth on an error and two singles. A smart unassisted double play by catcher Alf Rowbotham pulled them out of a rather awesome looking hole.

Score Two in 6th

Stewart Warner swept back to the attack in the top of the sixth counting twice on singles by Booth, Leforte, Halloran, and Bertrim. Smart infield work by the Plumbers kept the score down.

In the bottom of the sixth Harry Wardaugh, rapidly acquiring the nickname of "The Spoiler" led off with a Texas Leaguer that went or a triple when Ray Reid in charging it for the catch rather than playing it on the first bounce failed to hold it. Don Adams' single to left field drove in the winning run.

Both teams threatened in almost every inning to break out in a rash of runs but superlative clutch pitching and airtight defensive work kept the scoring down.

Al Adams went all the way for the Plumbers, walking none, striking out five, and giving up 15 hits for three runs. Marty Halloran hurled well in a losing cause for Stewart Warner, walking two, striking out four, and giving up 10 hits for four runs.

Line Up

Stewart Warner: K. Bertrim lf; V. Carr 3b; Rowbotham c; C. Carr 2b; Lunberg cf; R. Reid rf; Booth 1b; Leforte ss; Halloran p. Ronsky and Burley batted for Lunberg and Reid in the ninth.

Howe and Hagerman: Rollins 2b; Tomaso 3b; E. Donovan lf; Wardaugh rf; D. Adams c; M. Fitzgibbon 1b; Spafford ss; Amo cf, replaced by Hunter in 8th; A. Adams p.

FRANKFORD

Legion Discusses Plans For Memorial Parade

Frankford—(Special)— Frankford Branch, Canadian Legion, held their bi-monthly meeting in the club room Wednesday night. Among the items of business discussed, a work parade was called for Monday night, July 24th at the lot, at 7 p.m. The coming Memorial day parade in Campbellford, August 6th, was announced, and it is planned to send a delegation from Frankford. The following donations were acknowledged; $8 from Quinte Sand and Gravel; $15 (trucking) Cecil Carter. Many thanks from the members of 387. A report on the ball team was given.

Carts Skunk Away

A spectacular scene took place at the home of Harold Bryant at 3 a.m. last Tuesday morning, when Harold was seen by neighbors in the bright moonlight, carrying a skunk on the end of a pole back of his barn, followed by his wife, Margaret, armed with a flashlight and rifle.

Sunday School Picnic

Frankford United Church Sunday School held their annual picnic at Oak Lake Wednesday afternoon and evening. Better than 150 attended. The afternoon was spent in swimming and softball. Following the bounteous picnic supper, the annual program of races was held, winners and seconds receiving chocolate bars.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lohnes, Keith and Bruce, visited Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lohnes on Tuesday night.

Ross Lohnes, Douglas Badgley and Ronald Sine are spending a week at the Nazarene Boys Summer Camp at Sutton on the Black River.

Miss Beverly Forge returned Tuesday to her home in Stockdale, after spending a few holidays with Miss Carol Wannamaker.

Dr. McMullen and Don Wannamaker returned this week after an extended vacation trip in Northern Ontario.

Picnic Enjoyed

The Frankford United Church Women's Auxiliary held a picnic for the Mission Band of the church in the Memorial Park Thursday afternoon. A fine picnic lunch was enjoyed by all. A total of 27 adults and 57 children were present. Races was organized, the winners being as follows: 2-5 yrs., Eleanor Beach, Mary Plevak, Helen Plevak; 5-8 years:—Jean Caldwell, Bill Reynolds, Frank McInally; 8-11 years:—Sheila Patrick, Beth Bonisteel, Linda Patrick; 12 years and older: David McFarland, Beverly Patrick, Kay Williams.

Injured in Fall

Jackie Revoy received injuries to his arms and legs as he fell from his bicycle on the Oak Hills while on his way to the United Church Sunday School picnic. He was driven home by Francis Lyons and his injuries do not appear too serious.

NEW BAZOOKAS STOP RUSS TANKS

A two-man bazooka team prepares to fire at communist positions just south of the Kum River in Korea. The new bazookas, hurling a 23-inch shell, penetrate the Russian-made tanks. — Central Press Canadian.

CAPTURED AT GUNPOINT

Hamilton, July 21 — (CP) — Police captured a suspected safecracker at gunpoint today after a break-in at the Canadian Oil Company, burlington Street East.

Detective Ernest Jackson fired two warning shots over the head of the fleeing man before he surrendered.

The suspect, Douglas Shoemaker, 26, appeared later in court on charges of breaking, entering and attempted safe cracking and was remanded until July 28.

TEETH THIEF SOUGHT

Montreal (CP)—Montreal police are trying to put the bite on a burglar before he puts the bite on someone else. A dental supply company manager told police that someone broke into his building and stole an undisclosed number of false teeth.

The Gentle Heart

By Kay Hamilton

Jenny hummed a little to herself, rummaging through the linen drawer of the heavy old sideboard. The organdy set? No, that was for hot weather. The delicate spiderweb crochet? That was too much like "company" and Brent was almost family, they had known him so long and so well. She settled on the simplest of the Madeira, placemats and dollies of fine white linen.

It was always a satisfaction to her to go through the linens. In true European style, her mother had brought to her marriage enought to last a lifetime, and when the three girls had been born, she had started their linen doweries with as much care as if their future husbands would demand it. Jenny smiled, remembering her mother and her quiet joy in all things domestic. Certainly neither Natalie nor Diane had inherited that side of their mother. Only she, Jenny, the youngest and the quietest of the three, knew that same inner pleasure in the duties of a home.

The song, interrupted for a moment, came out again as she began to set the table. It was an old French song, one that her grandfather had sung, from the operetta long since forgotten.

"My key, my key, Who has stolen my key?" her mind automatically translated the song but was not on the words. Or, if it had been, it would have been with an obscure meaning which Jenny herself did not yet acknowledge.

The western sun came through the dining room windows, turning the zinnias and asters of the centerpiece to a startling flame which was reflected in the old silver and in the polished mahogany of the table. Jenny paused to admire it. She was no creative artist, as her father had been, but the appreciation of beauty was like an ache inside her sometimes.

Brent was coming tonight. How long it had been since they had seen him. Almost three months. The hot summer was past; their friends had come back once more to Green Ridge and were taking up the life of the small community again. Brent had been in Maine, teaching in Citole's Summer School of Art. It had been a real compliment that he had been asked. She stood still a moment, remembering Citole's visits to her home, his long excited talks with her father on some minute question of technique, the way in which his voice would rise and fall in his excitement. She could see the studio, with its jumbled order-in-disorder, the air blue with the smoke from their pipes; could hear her father's smiling voice as he differed with his guest.

Citole had risen far since those days. They called him the Dean of American Illustrators now. If her father had lived - -She swallowed the sudden lump in her throat, turned her mind resolutely to the happy occasion of tonight. Brent was coming home

Home, she repeated to herself. Why, yes, this was his home, really. He had been in and out of their house for so many years, had known and loved them all so well. And he had no other home. You couldn't count that wretched apartment above Jessup's store, or the one room he shared with Hazeltine in Greenwich Village when he had to stay in town for a job.

"My key, my key," she sang it clearly now. Had he changed this summer? But Brent never changed—that was one of the nicest things about him! His dependability, his reliability, his constancy.

The table was finished and she stood off to admire it. Brent would notice it, of course. He always did. That was another nice thing about him. And Natalie would love it. She always liked fine things. And she, Jenny, was glad to set the table for three again. It had been lonelier than she expected since Diane married and there had been only Nat and herself.

"My key, my key—" she broke off abruptly. Speaking of keys, she laughed to herself, there was one in the door now. Natalie home so soon she ran out into the hall and stopped, transfixed.

The tall girl in the doorway set down her suitcase with a thump. Her white staring face was defiant. "I've come home," she announced flatly.

For a moment Jenny could not speak "Don't tell me I'm not welcome here?" her sister cried in a voice heavy with tragedy.

Jenny stirred then. She ran to her, put her arms around her. "Diane! what a thing to say! Of course, you're always welcome. It was only that it's so—so sudden. I wasn't expecting you. In fact, I'd just been thinking about you, dear." She knew she was rattling, but she couldn't help it. The shock had startled her too much.

"I know," Diane said bitterly. "Thinking of me in my sweet little house, the happy bride, the adorned wife!" Her soft red mouth curled with distain. "Well, I couldn't stand it anymore. I-I've come home for good!"

Jenny was appalled. Diane had always dramatized herself and her beauty, but there was something more behind this. This was serious. It was bewildering because she and Natalie had been so certain of Diane's and Fred's happiness together.

"But I thought - - we were so sure - - -" she stammered.

"Yes, I know." Diane brushed aside the heavy blond hair from her forehead with a hand that shook. "You thought he was the adoring bridegroom. Well, he was, for a while," she acknowledged grimly, "but that was soon over. You can't know. You'll never know." She buried her face in her long slim hands.

For a brief moment, Jenny's gaze dwelt on those hands. Smooth exquisitely cared for hands with satiny skin and coral nails gleaming in unchipped perfection. Then, ashamed of the thought which had come, unbidden, to her brain, she took Diane's arm and led her into the living room, pulling her down upon the worn couch.

"Tell me about it," she said. "Perhaps I can help."

But Diane shook her head. "Nobody can help," she said. "Nobody but Fred. And he doesn't love me any more." It was a cry from the heart this time, and Jenny gathered her sister close. She stroked the soft golden hair, murmured softly to her.

"Don't cry Diane. Please don't. Of course you can stay here. You know we'll love having you again. Your room's always ready. But you mustn't make yourself sick, dear. Try to stop."

The sobs gradually slackened, ceased. Diane sat up, smiled wanly. "Oh, Jenny, I'm so glad to have you and Nat! What if I had been alone!"

When Jenny had left her sister upstairs, when she had seen her sitting at the dressing table, working over her ravaged face and tumbled hair, she stood in the kitchen and stared unseeingly at the half prepared dinner Broiled veal chops (a good thing she had ordered an extra two), curried scalloped potatoes, broccoli, pineapple salad. There would be plenty. But she must set another place at the table.

What was the trouble between Diane and Fred? Just a lovers' spat? The first quarrel of marriage? Or something more serious? The slightly cynical, highly sensible side of her whispered that it must be serious or Diane would never have cried herself into a state of blotched skin and disheveled hair. But what could it be? Fred adored his Diane. Anyone could see that. He had loved her with a wholehearted intensity ever since his college days.

And Diane loved him. She must, or she would never have passed over the other men who had admired her—richer men, clever men—to marry Fred. What could have come between them? So soon she added. Only three months since they had married, and already Diane was home. She wondered, fleetingly, what Diane would have done if she had not had her old home to turn to?

Her happy mood was gone, and she went about the dinner soberly. She hoped Natalie would have had a good day in town. If Diane was home again they would need more money. Unless Diane would be willing to work at something.

When the sound of a key in the front door came to her a second time, Diane raced out into the hall. "Nat? Oh, I'm glad you're back!" she made a noble effort to cover up her distress, and added, "Did you see Mr. Lightfoot? Did he like the designs?"

"I did, and he did!" Natalie caroled. She was a firm-bodied girl with smooth black hair and a look of winged intelligence, accentuated by the slant of her eyebrows and the upward quirk at the corners of her provocative mouth. "We're in the moola, to be colloquial! And he wants to see more!" She waltzed Jenny around in the prim little hall. "Whew! It will be good to get this hat off. And my gloves! Look at them! I'm glad you made me take two pairs along The train was filthy, but at least I looked pristine when I called on His Majesty!"

She sniffed. "What's cooking? Cabbage? No, broccoli. And something else—what is it?" She pulled Jenny with her into the kitchen, widened her eyes at the sight of the veal chops laid on the sizzling platter, ready for the broiler. "Mmm, a real dinner! You know, I'd forgotten for a moment that Brent was coming tonight. It will be good to see him won't it?"

She was "fizzing," as Jenny called it, excited from her day in town, from the successful sale of her designs to such a prominent concern as Cochrane, Inc. She whirled about, peered into the dining room.

"Two extra plates! Is Brent bringing someone with him?"

Jenny put her hands on her ebullient sister's shoulders, held her still for a moment. "Natalie, listen," she said quietly. "I hate to break into your mood like this—I don't want to spoil your day."

"You couldn't!" Natalie crowed. "And having company for dinner is tops with me."

"It isn't company," Jenny said. "It's Diane. She's home again. For good, she says."

Natalie stopped dead; her wide brown eyes fixed on Jenny's. "What do you mean?" she demanded. "Have she and Fred quarreled?"

Jenny sighed. "I suppose so. She won't talk about it, and she's so upset I hope you won't either, Nat. Give her a day or so to get over it."

Natalie shook her head impatiently as if to clear the fog of puzzlement from her bain. "But it's only three months! And they - - - -"

Jenny knew that her sister's thoughts were paralleling her own "I think it's only a temporary thing," she reassured her, although she could feel no certainty deep within herself. "I think it will all clear up."

Natalie cheered at this. "Well, at least we can afford the veal chops tonight," she said, "and we might as well enjoy them." She made a visible effort and threw off her momentary depression. "Remember what mother used to say 'It is foolish to save money for caramels in your old age, for by then you have false teeth!"

She turned, however, at the foot of the stairs, one firm hand on the newel post. "Is she in her old room I'll look in on her, poor kid."

Before Natalie had come down again, Brent was at the door. He swung Jenny off her feet, lifted her high in the air, and kissed her resoundingly. "Golly, it's good to see you Jen! You look like a million! When did you evolve that new hairdo? I like it on you!"

Jenny blushed, and her breath came short. "I wish I had a million," she retorted. "As for the hairdo, it's the result of necessity and the hot weather we had. Natalie cut it for me, and Diane gave me a home permanent. Perhaps they ought to go in business." She gazed up at him admiringly "Your summer agreed with you, Brent You look extremely well." She did not add that he seemed older, too, somehow. Older and more attractive than ever.

Natalie came running down the stairs just then, and gave Brent a bear hug. "Brent, you darling! How we've missed you!"

Jenny smothered her sudden feeling of dismay. Why couldn't she have greeted Brent in that rapturous fashion? Instead of talking about her permanent, and then saying in that prim fashion, Your summer agreed with you You look extremely well!

Two Armed Bandits Elude Police After Robbing Bank

$9,000 Payroll Taken From Bank Near Vancouver

New Westminster, B.C., July 22 (CP) — Two armed bandits, darkness their accomplice, apparently slipped through Friday night with their $9,000 bank robbery loot from the police-cordoned golf course they made a hide-out.

A third bandit who participated in the payroll robbery yesterday afternoon at a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia at adjoining Maillardville escaped on foot immediately after the raid and also was at large.

Maillardville is 15 miles east of Vancouver and the 180-acre Vancouver Golf and Country Club, whose wooded gullies were the scene of the manhunt, lies near the mill settlement.

Aided by Bloodhounds

Police armed with long-range rifles and aided by bloodhounds were rushed to the greens after between $50 and $60 was discovered on the fairway where the two bandits had abandoned a stolen getaway car.

Police said they believe the money was dropped as the pair attempted to divide the loot "on the run."

One of the holdup men carried a machine-gun. The others carried what were described as sawed-off shotguns. Time of the hold-up was minutes before the bank's 3 p.m. closing time.

Of the $9,000 taken, $6,000 was a hotel payroll.

In No Position to Argue

Nels McIntyre of Maillardville lost his car to the bandits when they ran from the bank. He told police they pushed him aside climbed into the vehicle "and I was in no position to argue."

The stolen car pulled slowly away, leaving one of the trio standing on the road. He fled down a lane, somehow escaping detection.

Yanks Capture Yechon After 16-Hour Battle

Tokyo, July 22 (Saturday)—South Korea and U.S. forces, counter-attacking on the central front Friday, took the rail and highway city of Yechon in a 16-hour battle with North Korean forces.

This aggressive victory in the four-week-old Korean War was won to hold the line 60 miles northeast of the abandoned city of Taejon.

The UN force struck one of the few offensive blows in the general picture of a desperate bid to stall for time while UN reinforcements are built up.

They were reported mopping up two communist battalions at Punggi, between Tanyang and Yongju, 16 miles north of Yechon, key town to the valley corridors, which had changed hands several times in the last few days.

The battered U.S. 24th Division, which had been absorbing the shock of North Korean tanks and foot soldiers in great numbers since July 5, dug into hill positions southeast of Taejon.

Still Missing

Unreported, since the abandonment of Taejon was the 24th's commander, Maj.-Gen. William F. Dean. He was last seen passing ammunition to a bazooka tank-buster team in the house-to-house fighting in Taejon.

The 24th gave up the blazing rail city Thursday midnight after exacting a heavy price in enemy tanks with new 3.5-inch bazooka rocket launchers. At least a dozen tanks—some of them disguised with American markings for sneak attacks—were knocked out in the planned getaway to prepared positions four miles and more below Taejon on the rail and highway line of supply up from Pusan.

The 24th expected the North Koreans to exploit their capture of Taejon with a quick follow-up down the rail and roads, but the enemy did not come on in force after harassing the American escape.

Losses of tanks and the prospect of losing more may account for the North Korean delay.

London, July 22 — (AP) — Princess Margaet shook off a cold today which kept her away from Thursday's royal garden party. She left for Norfolk to inspect cadets of the St. John Ambulance Corps.

Work May Start Soon on Second Radioactive Pile

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 22—(CP)—A start on Canada's second radioactive pile—the key to atomic energy research and production—may be only a few months off.

Its construction at the Chalk River, Ont., project would not only consolidate but extend Canada's lead in one vital field of atomic development. Its importance in any new war would be great. Scientists and engineers were reported today to be on the verge of licking the main physical obstacle barring the way to its construction—agreement on the pile's design.

They predicted that specifications, estimates of costs and propose design of the pile or reactor would be placed before the government within the next month or so.

Korea and its implications have wiped away virtually all doubt that cabinet will give favorable and probably quick considerations to the proposition.

The purpose of the pile, as is that of the present one, would be peaceful research, but both could be switched over to war purposes if necessary.

Construction of a second pile was recommended last year by a parliamentary committee as part of a general expansion of Canada's atomic effort.

The new plans call for an improved, modernized version of the heavy water pile that allows Chalk River to make research tests that can't be made elsewhere. The present pile will be kept in operation.

Girl of Ten Rushes Upstairs Over Burning Creamery and Saves Child

Ramore, Ont., July 22 (CP)—A fire swept through the Ideal Creamery yesterday causing $50,000 damage and forcing Mrs. Mona Bastien, 25, to jump 15 feet to the ground to escape the flames.

Mrs. Bastien, alone in an upstairs apartment occupied by the family, jumped when the fire and smoke cut off her attempt to leave by a stairway. She was bruised about the arms and legs and suffered from shock.

Her husband and two other children Albert, 3, and Claudette 5, were outside when the fire started. One-year-old Diana was sleeping in her carriage on the verandah at the top of the stairs leading to the living quarters.

Prompt action by 10-year-old Vivienne Levlievre of Kirkland Lake who was visiting the family saved the life of child Diane. She was playing with the two older children and saw flames coming out of the creamery door. She rushed up the stairs and brought the carriage down. She barely reached the ground with it when the stairs collapsed.

The building a frame structure was soon a mass of flame and beyond saving. All machinery and equipment was a total loss. Two or three sheds nearby were also destroyed.

RED CHANCELLOR URGES REVOLT IN W. GERMANY

Says Allies Have No Right of Occupation

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

Berlin, July 22—(AP)—While the Kremlin's Cominform emissary applauded, East Germany's Communist chancellor urged the people of Allied-occupied West Germany yesterday to open resistance against the policies of the western occupying powers.

The call to revolt was made by Otto Grotewohl in one of the most inflammatory anti - American speeches ever delivered in this four-power city.

Grotewohl addressed the second day's session of the third annual convention of the Socialist Unity (Communist) Party in the Russian sector.

He charged that the United States, Britain and France had forfeited their right to remain in Germany because they violated the Potsdam agreement and ended four-power government". (The official western view is that Russia bears this responsibility.)

"Nobody in West Germany is legally obliged any longer to obey the orders of the occupying powers", Grotewohl said. "Therein lies the justice of the national resistance (a Communist front movement) because it is a resistance against an illegal situation in which the western allies are exercising might instead of right."

He demanded the withdrawal of the western occupation armies, charging they are now "merely interventionist armies." Grotewohl, however, said nothing about the 20-division Russian occupation army here—which is larger than all the western forces in Germany.

Party Members Attend

In the audience of 4,000 applauding delegates was Mikhail A. Suslov, secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union and the Kremlin's chief delegate to the Cominform.

Also present were Cominform delegates from the Communist Parties of other European countries and Red China. Their presence indicated that a Cominform meeting is in progress here, probably to discuss a joint proclamation on the Korean war and to hear the Kremlin's plans regarding any further Communist pressure points.

Four M.P.'s Ask U.K.'s Position if War over Formosa

London, July 22 (AP) — Four members of the House of Commons called on Britain today to make clear what position she would take if Russia and the United States ever go to war over the Chinese Nationalist stronghold of Formosa.

The four — a Conservative, two Labor members and a Liberal—made their request in a letter to The Times. They described Britain's present attitude as "obscure" although they noted the government has said it would not aid American forces ordered to neutralize the Chinese Nationalist stronghold.

Outlining how a major war could break out, the four said any American action against a possible attack by Red China on Formosa might be regarded as aggression by the Peiping government.

Then, they said, the Chinese Communists could call on Russia for help under the terms of the mutual aid treaty between the two countries and a Third World War might be under way.

The four M.P.'s were Conservative Norman Bower, Liberal Joseph Grimond and R. H. S. Crossman and Woodrow Wyatt, both Labor.

They said that, while the situation in Korea was clearly one in resisting aggression, the case of Formosa "is on an altogether different level."

ARGENTINA HALTS MEAT SHIPMENTS TO BRITAIN

Failure to Agree On Price is Cause

Buenos Aires, July 22 (Reuters)—The Argentine Government Friday ordered meat-packing houses to suspend all shipments to Britain.

The Anglo-Argentine five-year meat agreement entered its second year July 1 with prices to be paid unsettled.

At one time it was feared negotiations would be broken off then, but Argentina announced she had 10,000 tons ready for shipment which were sent while talks continued.

Argentine authorities said they could charge $273 a ton, but the British mission said it would only pay $252. Loading went ahead as neither side would take responsibility for another rupture in the meat relations between the two countries.

Trade between Britain and the Argentine has been a thorny problem since the signing of the Andes Agreement in February, 1938. That was followed by the five-year agreement that began in July last year, a reciprocal arrangement under which each country agreed to buy $436,000,000 of goods from the other.

Britain sold oil and bought principally meat.

An announcement said Argentine acted today because "the British Ministry of Food should agree to pay $273 a ton. The measure is effective from noon today, and therefore the meat packers will send no more meat."

It was stated that the measure will remain in force until the British Food Ministry submits a new price.

THREE WORKERS BEATEN

Los Angeles, July 22 (AP) — Three Chrysler automobile plane workers were severely beaten outside the company gates at Maywood yesterday because, sheriff's deputies reported, they refused to tell fellow workers whether they are communists.

Two hundred men and a few women either took part in the disturbance or watched, the officers said, while the three men were punched and kicked and knocked off their feet.

Trawler Captain Identifies Craft Says Newspaper

Story Follows Reports Of Other Undersea Boats

St. John's, Nfld., July 22 — (CP) — The Sunday Herald, . weekly paper, in a newspage story today quoted a trawler captain as saying he had spotted a submarine on the Grand Banks. The captain said that from the type of construction it was a Russian sub.

The Herald story continued: "As Russia has the only large submarine fleet outside the United States and United Kingdom, it is a matter of speculation as to whether the submarine was Russian. If indeed the sub was Russian it is impossible to say what she was doing so far from her home base. Certainly in view of the serious situation in Korea anything that Russia might have in mind for this side of the Atlantic would not be to the advantage of North America."

The story said the submarine surfaced on the fishing banks and was sighted by Newfoundland fishermen. There was no official confirmation here.

The story follows reports from other parts of the Atlantic provinces that unidentified undersea craft have been sighted. A sub surfaced on the George's Banks off Nova Scotia some weeks ago and another was sighted near Saint John, N.B., earlier this week.

No Comment by Officials

Naval officials at Halifax said they have no comment on the reports.

This was the first report of Russian submarines on the Atlantic coast but there have been many reports they have been seen in the Pacific near the west coast.

While the Herald report spoke of more than one sub, it was quite possible that the same craft could have been in various locations at different times.

George Tiner, a New Brunswick fisherman, said Thursday that when he started to pull up one of his lobster traps off Chance Point Harbor, a submarine surfaced in dense fog.

The 62-year-old fisherman said the craft crash-dived almost immediately.

Here is the full story from The Herald:

"A foreign captain of a trawler fishing off the Newfoundland Grand Banks received the right of his life last week when a crew member reported that a submarine had surfaced off the stern.

"The captain discovered to his amazement that the report was correct. And a large black submarine with no markings had surfaced less than 100 yards from the vessel. The sub remained on the surface for over ten minutes, then dived.

"The trawler captain got the impression that from the type of construction it was a Russian sub although it is possible for just about any submarine to camouflage its construction to make it look like that of another nationality.

"However no British or American markings were on the sub and as the trawler had no ship to shore radio it was impossible to report seeing the sub to the authorities until the ship returned to port.

"When the trawler arrived in town five days after seeing the submarine the Sunday Herald upon learning of the incident

REDS SHELL ISLAND

Taipei, Formosa, July 22 (AP) — Chinese communists tonight began shelling Quemoy Island, off the mainland port of Amoy, in evident preparation for an assault on the nationalist blockade base.

The nationalist defence ministry said the reds have assembled some 1,300 craft for an apparent assault on the island.

Quemoy is garrisoned by nationalist troops under Able Gen. Hu Lien.

NAVY RECEIVED REPORTS

Ottawa, July 22 — (CP) — The navy said today its intelligence branch received reports several days ago that a strange submarine, possibly Russian, had been seen off Canada's east coast.

A naval spokesmon said the reports are being investigated.

He indicated that immediate checks with Washington and London showed no American or British subs would have been in Grand Banks area where Newfoundland fishermen reported they had seen the craft emerge.

Leopold Comes Home From Exile But Not One Cheer Greets Him

Brussels, Belgium, July 22 — (AP) — Leopold III, King of the Belgians, today came home from exile.

There was not one cheer, nor one single handclap as the monarch, whose surrender to the Germans in 1940 led to a political fight which has split Belgium in two, landed at heavily-guarded Haren military airport. Only a handful of early risers, besides the 8,000 military guards, were present.

He arrived in a twin-engine military plane at 7:10 a.m. (2:19 a.m. EDT) with Premier Jean Dusieusart, leader of the Social Christian (Catholic) party which led the fight to reverse parliament's 1945 vote exiling Leopold.

Crown demonstrations by violently anti-Leopold socialists did not materialize, possibly because the time of his arrival was such a secret.

Leopold had scheduled a conference with his cabinet this afternoon at his palace in Laeken. News of his future plans probably will be announced then.

May Follow Course

Last April the king offered to turn over the throne, at least temporarily, to the crown prince if he were allowed to return briefly to Belgium. Many persons believe that is the course he will follow now that the preliminary conditions has been met.

Many observers believe this would satisfy the socialist opposition and ease the serious split in the country.

As the king and crown prince stepped out of their planes, bugles sounded and a military band burst into the national anthem "Brabanconne."

Leopold wore the beige summer uniform of a lieutenant-general.

The music, a few handshakes from government officials, and the salutes of the men assigned to guard him, were all the welcome Leopold got after his six years' absence from his homeland.

The Germans took Leopold to Germany in 1944, when Brussels was about to fall to advancing Allied troops.

Charge He Was "Guest"

Many Belgians charged that he was more a "guest" of the Germans that a prisoner-of-war. This added to the fact that he had surrendered to the invaders in 1940, instead of fleeing to Britain with his ministers to continue the fight, led to his being exiled in 1945.

A long and bitter struggle followed between the social Christians, who wanted the king back, and the socialists, communists and liberals who didn't.

It ended Thursday when the social Christian majority in parliament asked the king to return. The socialists have threatened to disrupt Belgium with strikes in protest.

Leopold sped from the airport to his country palace at suburban Laeken in a wild race.

The king's car, flying the royal standard, was in the midst of an armed cavalcade including four armored cars and 17 truckloads of heavily-armed gendarmes.

Mounted gendarmes with drawn swords, foot troops, air force trucks and radio cars gave the whole area the appearance of a military camp.

The Princess, who expects a baby next winter, will stay in Geneva, Switzerland, at the Chateau where Leopold passed most of his five year exile.

Leopold has said that his wife will never be queen.

Detroit War Veteran Does His Share To Make Communist Paper Scarce

Detroit, July 22 — (AP) —The Communist Daily Worker enjoyed a bounce in circulation — for the moment — and citizens had some fun.

That was an immediate result of Detroit's projected curb on street newsstands.

For the time being it's not being enforced. There is a question of "legality."

A ban on the sales of "subversive" papers or literature was to have taken effect at 4:30 p.m. yesterday.

But acting Mayor Louis C. Miriani said the legality of declaring publications "subversive" would have to be tested. And police agreed to a "few days of grace."

Action centred yesterday at one popular downtown newsstand. A group identified as communist or sympathizers appeared at the stand and began buying up the Daily Worker, apparently in a challenge of the ban.

At that point Edward Rendzio, 33, a war veteran, stepped in.

Rendzio started buying the Worker five at a time. He would carefully tear each one in half and deposit it in a big waste paper tin.

Bystanders tossed him quarters and half dollars to buy more.

Shortly, William Payne, 52, a Negro, joined with Rendzio. He also bought, tore and tossed.

Rendzio said the sympathizers' demonstration "made me sick."

Sixardee Trims Pt. Anne 6-4

No. 6 R.D. maintained their undefeated record in the Belleville and District League last evening when they overcame a tough Point Anne Cement team 6-4, in a nine inning game at Point Anne.

The Cementmen who have been giving the aircrew their roughest games this season nearly upset the league leaders last evening before bowing to superior power.

Point Anne took the lead in the second inning with Buchanan, who had reached first on an error, racing home on Hull's triple.

The aircrew, blanked in the first three innings on two hits came up with three smashes in the fourth to count twice. Three more safeties in the fifth produced two more runs as the repairmen took a three run lead.

An error and a single gave Point Anne their second run in the sixth and they came up with two more in the seventh, for their final tallies.

Sixardee tallied once in the seventh and added an insurance run in the ninth to cop their fourteenth straight victory of the year.

Maloney went all the way on the hill for the winners limiting Point Anne to five hits, while striking out thirteen.

Phil Loft toiled for the losers giving the airmen 11 hits. He was lifted for a pinch hitter in the bottom of the ninth.

Line Up: Sixardee: Christie ss; Coursol c; C. Ellis 3b; Hastings rf; Maracle 2b; replaced by Cole in 7th; Gibson 1b; L'Heureux cf; Greenough lf; Maloney p.

Point Anne Cementmen: Bradshaw cf; Gilmour 3b; M. Green lf; Buchanan 1b; Lewis ss; J. Green c; Hull 2b; P. Green rf; Loft p; Strahan for Loft in 9th.

Family Escapes Burning Home At Turiff

Fire, believed to have started from overheated stovepipes destroyed the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Burton White, of Turriff on Tuesday morning.

The family of two children barely escaped with their lives as the frame structure quickly became a mass of flames.

The fire started at 6:30 a.m. after Mr. White had put on the morning fire previous to the family arising. He then went for the cows and on returning noticed the home afire. He raced to the house and quickly evacuated the family from the burning structure.

Raspberry, Cherry Prices Ease Under Larger Offerings, Potatoes Slightly Lower

Greater volume on the market this morning brought the prices of both raspberries and Montmorency cherries down. The red cherries, which have been going for $1.50, dropped to $1.30 this morning, and raspberries, which started the market at 50c per quart, had dropped to 45c by ten o'clock. The blue raspberries were selling for five cents less than the reds.

Blueberries, again in quantity, remained steady at $2.25 for six quarts, price they have maintained for the last week. Gooseberries were 90c for six quarts, red currants were 25c a quart, and a new showing, Melba apples, were 15c a quart box.

Potatoes too, took a drop. One week ago they were 90c per peck, and this morning the asking price was 85c. Outside prices on eggs were 50c and 45c, with inside prices slightly higher.

On the vegetable market, cucumbers were 10c and 15c, depending on size; beans and beets were 10c, cabbages were 10c and 15c, lettuce was 10c a head, and carrots were 10c a bunch, three bunches for a quarter.

Asparagus was 20c the bunch, and as one woman put it, "It may be the last." Reason is that with raspberries coming in, less time will be available for the cutting of asparagus.

No fish were offered.

$2,435.46 Total Recreation Fund, Needs $1600 More

A total of $2,435.46 has been subscribed to the Belleville Recreation Committee playground fund, it was announced by committee members today. The response to date has been gratifying but the committee feel that many citizens have delayed sending in their contributions.

The committee welcomes all assistance in financing the much needed playground project. The children are enjoying the playgrounds and the committee feel they are a credit to the city. The supervisors are doing a fine job and the rest is up to the citizens.

A sum of $1,600 is still needed to do a real job in supervising and properly equipping the playgrounds.

In the list of Tuesday, July 11th, North Belleville Playground Park $151.96, was listed in error as Ninth Belleville Playground Park.

Tourist Finds Forgetfulness Rather Expensive

It doesn't pay to be forgetful, just ask Charles Davidson, of Walker's Point, Muskoka.

Yesterday while motoring through the city Mr. Davidson stopped off to purchase a new suit. Then, laden with the suit as well as a number of other parcels Mr. Davidson laid the suit on the fender of the next car while he unloaded his parcels into the car and walked up the street.

You guessed it. When he remembered and came back both the car and the suit were gone.

Sea Cadet Group Leaves For Camp

Approximately 20 members of the "Quinte" Sea Cadet Corps left early this morning for Presqu'ile Point for the next ten days they will combine cadet training and a camping holiday. While at camp the cadets will be under the command of Sub. Lt. Sager and Sub. Lt. Ross Boyce.

The cadets and their officers with camping regalia made the trip to Presqu'ile by water, their two cutters and dinghy being towed up the Bay of Quinte with Bob Graham's "Baralgra" and Sub. Lt. Sager's "Budgie".

The cadets got away from their local ship "Quinte" in good time, the last boat leaving prior to eight o'clock. While at camp the boys will take training in boat rigging and in sailing.

Return of King Leopold May be Doubtful Victory

By DEWIT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst

King Leopold of the Belgians has won his long fight for return from exile to his throne, but it is a doubtful and perhaps even dangerous victory.

Public passions have run high in this dispute which has divided the Belgians numerically into two almost even camps. The advisory referendum held last March showed only 57.69 per cent of the voters wanted his return.

Further Warning

Still, Leopold insisted on claiming this as a favorable mandate, and last Thursday parliament voted to restore him to this throne. But that vote was in effect a further warning, for it came from one party—the Christian socialists — and represented just over half the total membership of 387. The vote was 198 in his favor, all the rest of the members having walked out without voting.

Thus Leopold returns to a country bitterly divided against itself.

What a difference between this royal home-coming and that of Leopold's revered father, King Albert, with Queen Elizabeth and their three children, including Leopold, at the end of the First World War.

The current political situation in Belgium would be bad at any time. It's doubly bad now that Europe is in the midst of the cold-war crisis.

Belgium As Sentinel

Belgium is a sentinel on the invasion highway over which aggressors through the centuries have marched their legions from the east.

Thus Belgium is a key position in the defences of the Atlantic-Pact countries. Anything which weakens Belgium as a bulwark is a threat to the security of the western bloc of powers.

Leopold's unpopularity with many of his people arises from two causes. The main grievance lies in his surrender of the Belgian armies to the invading Germans after only 18 days of fighting in 1940.

The other thing held against him was his remarriage after the death of his wife, youthful Queen Astrid, in an automobile accident in Switzerland. Astrid was greatly beloved by the people and they disapproved the king"s second marriage.

Obituary

LATE GEORGE R. BRADSHAW
(Marlbank)

The funeral of George Ryerson Bradshaw, Marlbank, was held Friday afternoon from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street. The service in the chapel and at Deseronto Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. Oscar Wager.

The bearers were Geddes Bradshaw, Donald Bradshaw, Roe Bradshaw, Robert Bell, Lott Campbell and Wilbert Campbell.

Air Force Will Co-Ordinate 'Rescue System'

Ottawa, July 22— (CP) — The government, banning any special new coast guard for Canada, Friday announced that the R.C.A.F. is going to co-ordinate "a general marine search and rescue system" that will be able to call on more than 200 government-operated ships already in service.

Defence Minister Claxton and Transport Minister Chevrier issued a joint statement applying to facilities for life-saving at sea on both coasts. It indicated no steps to build new ships but rather action to weave those now available into a co-ordinated system.

The announcement said the government has adopted the recommendations of an inter-departmental committee appointed to review arrangements for marine search and rescue services and that the committee was satisfied that "the enlarged system of coordination of rescue services would be both adequate and efficient."

TRAWLER CAPTAIN

contacted the captain and learned from him that the sub appeared to be something of a mystery because there are a number of British and American submarines in the North Atlantic at the time the mystery craft was sighted, there were none reported in the area of The Grand Banks.

No Advantage to N.A.

"As Russia has the only large submarine fleet outside of the United States and Britain it is a matter of speculation as to whether the submarine was Russian. If indeed the sub was Russian it is impossible to say what she was doing so far from her home base. Certainly in view of the serious situation in Korea anything that Russia might have in mind for this side of the Atlantic would not be to the advantage of North America.

"All attempts by the Sunday Herald to obtain comment on the sighted sub have met with silence. Due to the extremely serious world situation at the present time matters such as the sighting of unknown submarines are now classified as top secret and it is impossible to receive any official word or opinion on the trawler captain's experience."

Reports Investigated

At Ottawa a Royal Canadian Navy official said the reports are being investigated but results of inquiries are not yet known.

"There is no information at the moment to indicate these reports are true," he added.

The Ottawa official was commenting on reports that Russian submarines have been sighted on the Grand Banks of Newfoundland.

He said he knew of no method whereby a Russian submarine could be positively identified and pointed out that Russia took over a number of German submarines after the last war.

"Submarines are supposed to hoist a flag on surfacing," he said "otherwise they can be challenged by coastal defences."

Have Snorkel Device

Jane's Fighting Ships, in its 1950 edition, said about 360 Russian subs are believed to exist including former German tonnage.

The construction of subs is of special priority in the U.S.S.R. Many of the newer craft are high speed ships equipped with the "Snorkel" device which enables them to remain under water for weeks at a time without surfacing.

British and American subs, using Snorkel, during the last year have recorded submersions of about four weeks without surfacing.

Jane's says that under the current Russian ship-building program the Soviets hope to have 1,000 subs completed by 1950-51, of which 400 were to be in the Far East, 300 in the Baltic and the remainder in the White and Black Seas.

With the outbreak of war in Korea, Russian subs have been reported operating from Siberian bases in the China Seas and the Sea of Japan. The U.S. Seventh Fleet, in convoying an American task force for the amphibious landing at Pohang on the east coast of south Korea Tuesday, reported Russian subs were in the waters near Formosa.

Authorities Mum

There has been little or no verification by American authorities of many reports of Russian subs operating off the U.S. west coast within the last year.

The latest report from the west coast occurred late in March when a former R.A.F. pilot now flying privately said he spotted a periscope five miles off northern California.

A fishing boat skipper also said he saw the same sub five miles off the coast from Trinidad harbor which is 280 miles north of San Francisco.

There were no American subs in the vicinity at the time.

The U. S. Navy launched an intensive hunt for the sub but was unsuccessful. A naval spokesman later said the scope of the search was prompted by the reliability of the reports.

There also have been rumors of Russian subs operating in Caribbean waters but these never have been confirmed.

Any foreign sub has the right to operate outside the three-mile limit. If one were discovered inside the three-mile limit it could be challenged under international law.

Tornado Kills Six or Eight Persons in France

Cambrai, France July 22—(AP) — A tornado ripped through this northern industrial area late yesterday, killing six and possibly eight persons and injuring scores. One estimate of the number injured ran as high as 200. Many persons were left homeless. Damage to buildings and crops exceeded a billion francs ($2,850,000.)

U.S. Considers Deployment of Pacific Fleet

San Diego, Calif., July 22 (AP) — A deployment of the Pacific fleet to support Gen. MacArthur's operations in Korea and at the same time strengthen the United States submarine and air defences was under consideration of the navy's top admirals today.

Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, Chief of Naval Operations and Admiral Arthur W. Radford, Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific Fleet, headed the conferees.

The subject of their discussions was disclosed yesterday by Sherman who told a press conference that assignment of fleet units to support the Korean campaign is "one of the principal assignments of the fleet."

DEATHS

BRENNAN — Suddenly at his home in the 5th. Concession of Tyendinaga Township on Friday afternoon, July 21st., Edward Brennan, in his 85th. year.

The funeral will be held from his late residence on Monday morning, July 24th., at 9.30 o'clock to the Holy Name of Mary Church, Marysville, for Requiem Mass at ten o'clock.

Interment St. Mary's Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

WHITE — In treasured memory of my dear husband and son, Franklin Jay White, who passed away July 22, 1948, and J. Earl White, who passed away July 22, 1947.

As it dawns another year it recalls
Sad memories of two dear ones gone to rest
Memories are treasures no one can steal
Death leaves a heartache nothing can heal
Only those who have lost are able to tell
The sorrow of parting without a farewell.

E. German Red Convention Greets N. Korean Govt.

Berlin, July 22 — (AP) — An East German communist convention today sent "brotherly fighting greetings" and congratulations to the North Korean government.

Some 4,000 delegates to the third annual rally of the Socialist Unity (Communist) party mostly approved "congratulations to the Korean freedom fighters in their struggle against shameful American intervention."

The third day of the party rally was again marked by the presence of high-ranking communists from all the cominform countries, who yesterday applauded the call of East Germany's Chancellor, Otto Grotewohl, to former Nazis to help drive the western allies out of Germany.

The Cominform representatives have kept secret any plans they may have for a Cominform meeting.

Solomon Was a Horse Trader

(By Thomas L. Leishman, in The Christian Science Monitor)

In the Eastern United States we are accustomed to speak smilingly of "Yankee traders," with all that implies of sound, if shrewd, bargaining. Equally familiar in many lands is the literal or metaphorical practice of horse trading — an occupation or pastime of no small importance, especially in the pre-automobile age.

Going back to Bible times, we discover that horse trading was one of the many activities in which King Solomon excelled. Evidence of this is to be found in the Old Testament itself, but it is only recently that excavations have proved the extent of his operations in this field.

One of the first modern clues to Solomon's activities as a horse trader came during the course of the very thorough excavations at Megiddo in Northern Palestine which began in 1925 under the sponsorship of the Oriental Institute of he University of Chicago.

One day a sharp-eyed Egyptian foreman, who was superintending a portion of the dig, caught sight of a broken stele, or inscribed pillar, in a pile of rubbish which was being cleared away at Megiddo.

It proved on expert examination, to be part of an inscription in hieroglyphic characters showing that the stone originally had been erected in honor of one Sheshonk, King of Egypt. This King, known as Shishak in the Bible, attacked Palestine during the reign of Solomon's son, Rehoboam (Kings 14:25).

It may well have been that he captured Megiddo, partly that he might have access to the great stables built by Solomon, which the Chicago expedition discovered shortly after the inscription came to light.

In Jerusalem, under one side of the great Haram, or temple enclosure, I have seen the great vaulted chambers traditionally known and shown as "the Stables of Solomon." As a matter of fact it is now fairly well established that they do not go back to his time, although the Crusaders may well have used them as stables.

At Meggido, the situation is entirely different. There Solomon did indeed have a series of large and well-appointed stables, proved to be such by the nature of their construction, and dating from his day.

Thus far some 450 stalls for horses have been found at Megiddo. They were built in orderly rows with a limestone manger at the end of each cobble-paved stall. The stalls were separated by pillars which served a double purpose. They supported the roof while at the same time each pillar had a hole drilled in it, clearly so that a tie-rope could be securely attached.

There was found to be a series of stable buildings opening onto a broad central street leading to the city gate, and in most cases each building had room for twenty-four horses with the groups of stalls facing one another.

The space given to these stables at Megiddo and the careful way in which they were planned indicate the importance attached to them by Solomon, who obviously kept horses, not only for purposes of defence and for impressing his royal visitors, but also as providing a lucrative source of revenue.

The Bible explains that King Solomon made a practice of buying both horses and chariots from the Egyptians. The record goes on to indicate that he resold them—no doubt at a handsome profit—to the various Hittitite and Syrian kings (II Chron. 1:16, 17). In the account of Solomon's reign, he is reported to have had at least 12,000 chariot horses. Some of these he had received as gifts or as tribute from his vassals (I Kings 10:25, 26), while he evidently had purchased or bred the remainder.

The finding of the great stables at Megiddo went far toward solving a problem which had long puzzled the scholars. In different parts of Palestine, orderly rows of pillars had been found by various excavators.

Taken out of their context, as it were, there were no means of discovering how or for what they were intended to be used. The general conclusion had been that they were what was called in Hebrew "masseboth"—sacred pillars or even primitive idols — revered by some of those who were not true worshippers of the God of Israel.

In the light of the clues afforded by the Megiddo discoveries, these pillars were carefully reexamined, and the conclusion was reached that in many cases, they were in all probability roof supports for further stable buildings. Some were even found to have tie-holes similar to those at Megiddo, indicating that they were not images — but simply hitching posts.

On one site of Gezer, which lies among the low hills between Jerusalem and the sea, and also at Hazor in the far north, rows of such pillars have been found dating from the days of Solomon—about 1,000 B.C. The floor plan of the buildings of which they formed a part is sufficiently similar to those of the undoubted stables of Megiddo to show that they were used for the same purpose. We are expressedly told that Solomon carried on building activities at all three of these cities (I Kings 9:15).

The Bible account also makes it plain that Solomon had many cities for his horses and chariots and, although relatively few have been identified thus far, there is sufficient evidence to show the large scale on which his trading was carried out.

It is harder to trace with any certainty the buildings in which chariots were housed as the excavator does not have the distinctive mangers and hitching posts to help him. Still, it may well be that some of the large buildings found near the stables of Megiddo, and in the vicinity of a wideopen space, perhaps intended for a parade ground, were used for chariots.

Ancient Builders' Feats Dwarf Those of Moderns

(By Pat Whealen, in Windsor Star)

Modern builders who figure they are some pumpkins when it comes to marvels of architectural construction should feel more like small potatoes when they compare their work with the prodigious feats of ancient builders.

Back 10,000 years ago, without benefit of machinery of any kind, the Egyptians did themselves a creditable job of building when they erected the pyramids.

Almost Intact

Of the original Seven Wonders of the World, the pyramids are the only one which remain almost intact. The other six, hailed as structures that would last forever, have long since crumbled into decay or been destroyed. They remain only as memories, pictures on old coins, or fragments in the British Museum.

Even the pyramids have suffered. The tallest of them, built by Cheops somewhere around 4700 B.C., was originally 482 feet high. Sandstorms, archeologists, marauders, and time have reduced this height to about 450 feet now. Most of the fine stone finishing has been removed through the years, and today the pyramids have a step-like appearance.

Even so, the pyramids have fared better than the other six wonders. Of these, one is marked only by pictures on coins, one survives in a few stone fragments in the British Museum, and four have disappeared altogether.

The British Museum boasts a Mausoleum at Halicarnassus, erected about 300 B.C. in Asia Minor. King Mausolus, in whose memory the tomb was built, has gained a type of immortality in the English word "mausoleum" but the tomb is gone.

Only Trace Left

Old coins are our only trace of the great Statue of Zeus at Olympia, a 40-foot statue of gold and ivory which presided over the rites and celebrations of the ancient Olympics. The statue, finished sometime in the 5th century, B.C., was destroyed at a later date and all trace of it lost for several centuries.

Of the Hanging Gardens of Babylon, the Temple of Diana at Ephesus, the Colossus at Rhodes, and the Pharos of Alexandria, nothing remains except written accounts. Earthquakes accounted for the great lighthouse, the Pharos of Alexandria, and the Colossus, the great statue that stood at the entrance to the harbor of Rhodes.

An interesting tradition relates that the Colossus represented the figure of a man, straddled across the entrance to the harbor. Historians have found that there is no justification for this theory. Actually, they say, the statue stood at one side of the harbor entrance and may have been used as a lighthouse.

The fact that the Colossus was destroyed by an earthquake in 224 B.C., 56 years after its completion, makes it difficult to believe the theory that Saint Paul's man of Macedonia, who beckoned to the missionary and asked him to "come over and help us" was the great statue at the harbor entrance.

Years after the earthquake toppled it into the sea, the great bronze figure of the Colossus could be seen in the water, until it was broken up by invaders for scrap.

Modern builders, however, are still willing to take bets on the chance that the Empire State Building can outlast the Pyramids. Even for a young man, there's not too much chance of having to pay off.

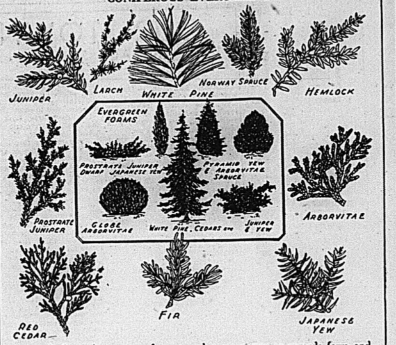
CONIFEROUS EVERGREENS



Aside from the variety of our popular evergreens as regards form and habit, there is a most interesting contrast in foliage forms. Many plants do not run true to the forms shown above but in all cases the leaves of each variety retain their individual characteristics.

It is advisable for an owner using evergreens for foundation planting to study these forms and to be sure to use varieties that will not in years to come grow too large and dwarf the house. Cedar, fir, spruce and white pine are forest trees which grow quite rapidly and should be used more for screens or to flank the sides of the house.

Columnist Learns Her Rural Stories Are Liked Best

(By Grace Luckhart, in Vancouver Daily Province)

I went to a party the other evening and one guest I met smacked me down verbally, with practically her first words. Says she: "Oh, yes, the columnist. I read you sometimes. Not always. Why don't you columnists just write when you really have something to say? After all, you can't hit the jackpot every day."

"True enough," said I, "but we have to eat every day."

I really must say it's unusual for people to speak as she did, even though they think that way. I find newspaper readers are almost universally kind to writers. After all column writing is an unknown world to most people. (Even to the columnist, I might add. We do a lot of groping around ourselves.)

The columns I write which seem to be the most read are those about the old Ontario concessions. So many people from the British Isles, the United States and even the Scandinavian countries as well as Canadians seem to have had the same sort of upbringing that I had. Among the same kind of people. The stories of the concession seems to bring back nostalgic memories of their own youth.

I'm always sure of a response to these columns, but after that, it is anybody's guess. I write a perfectly innocuous column, about Hell for instance, and what happens?

There is a perfect deluge of comment, abuse and tracts which eventually develops into a religious controversy. I'm sorry I ever mentioned it. After all, if people enjoy the thought of Hell why shouldn't they?

You just never know. The only column I have written lately that brought more response than the Hell one, was the one about men I had to clean my house. The window-cleaners. The paper with that column was hardly on the street before the phone started ringing and I have been literally swamped with letters and enquiries ever since.

My only hope now is that the cleaners turned out to be as good as I thought they were. It might have been desperation on my part that enhanced their quality.

A column that brings down the world about my head is when I take a crack at dogs. And from the way I've been pestered lately, there's another column coming up. I just managed to get my patio painted a nice bright blue, and along comes a dog with the idea that he can gild the lily and what happens? The paint job is ruined.

I well remember the late lamented columnist Butterfield who, when he got stuck for a subject, always went back to gnaw at the same old bones, dogs. He got plenty of response.

The dog sufferers always agree with us, but they don't always bother to write, but take it from me, the dog owners don't mind penning a good crack right back at us. Meantime, the dogs their way, looking for more p tios to conquer, I presume.

GOOD WILL vs FOOLISH REMARKS

Ill-considered remarks on the part of some residents of the United States and Canada in the past few weeks have done nothing to further harmony between the two nations, and most certainly are not indicative of the true feelings of the respective peoples.

These statements, which in reality have no bearing on the Korean situation, will only serve to create an unwarranted animosity. It matters not who thought of the first one, nor from which side it came, but what does matter is the impression created by hasty remarks.

One of the Canadian thoughts on the Korean crisis has been "Let the Yankees fight this one, and we'll sit back for a couple of years, go into war production, and make some money." This is not what might be called any sort of a noble thought, but it has been printed in the press and has brought smiles of triumph to some Canadian lips. Undoubtedly communist sympathizers in Canada have been glad to read such claptrap.

On the other side of the ledger, men in the United States have been quoted as saying "Why don't Britain and Canada get into the fight? Why should our boys have to do all the dying?" This is as equally ridiculous a statement as the Canadian one. Mobilization for such out-of-the-way conflicts is not a matter of minutes when nations do not have the troops and equipment already based in the area.

The only refreshing thought we can find in the world exchange has been reported by R. M. Harrison in the Windsor Star. Mr. Harrison tells of a spontaneous burst of applause from a Detroit movie audience when films showing threee Canadian destroyers leaving for Korean waters were screened. The applause was even greater than that given to shots of American Marines leaving for the same area.

We think that if the wiseacres who insist on making dirty digs on both sides of the border would quiet their typewriters, feelings between the two nations would never be strained. It is always the small men who talk big, and unfortunately, they seem to get some of the attention in the daily press.

HEALING OF NATURE

Nature has a healing power which mortals feel especially in the springtime, or the summer, though autumn and winter as well have their influence on human beings. A writer in the Windsor Star refers to the splendid recovery which was being made by a friend and it was discovered that "he had taken up growing roses as a hobby. He announced that he was spending a lot of time in his garden and ever since he began to grow flowers he found his health improving."

That there is truth in this should be apparent to everyone. Who does not know that association with things of beauty, such as flowers, cannot but help to mould and direct the thoughts of men and women and even children, so that with the rose's beauty there comes into the lives of those who cultivate them an influence which does not die even when the rosebud fades and withers?

Touching on the facts which underlie this influence of nature the Star writer says, "There is something about working with the earth that brings health. Call it back to nature if you will. But, it does soothe the nerves and gives rest to the mind. People can go into their gardens and work with the land. They let the earth sift through the fingers and they work with it. They feel the earth as they plant the seeds or the bushes. They feel the earth under their feet as they work with hoe or spade. It brings a satisfaction that comes from no other source.

"People do not have to grow prize flowers or ribbon-winning vegetables. But they can grow flowers and vegetables that bring the satisfaction of watching things planted and coaxing them along to fruition.

"There is something about getting close to the earth that works wonders with the tired mind and torn nerves."

Of course it is natural that the things we plant and watch growing into so many forms of beauty should appeal to us. They enrich life in so many ways that he would be dull and unfeeling who did not understand in some degree the beauties and mysteries of this glorious earth into which we are born.

It is no idle thought that nature works miracles on human beings, give it an opportunity and it will release the taut nerves and anxious mind.

Every reader if he has a strong mind, reads himself into the book, and amalgamates his thoughts with those of the author. — Goethe.

THE BETTER WORLD

The better world that is to be
There's none of us may live to see.
The task is ours to lead the way;
To work for it from day to day,
And though we may not reach the goal
To strive for it with heart and soul.

'Twill be the dream when we are gone
For all who come to follow on.
And glad am I that this is so,
For should a finished world they know,
No goal to reach, no wrong to right,
More terrible would be their plight.

They'd hate us should we leave behind
No secrets left for them to find;
No bridge to build, no shaft to sink;
No further need for them to think;
No chance to fashion something new
And nothing left for them to do.

Against the cares that men rehearse
I still can picture something worse:
A world complete and standing still;
No need for courage, strength or skill;
No chance for youth to prove its worth;
No further need for men on earth.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

July 22nd., 1930

Messrs. Bert Twiddy, West Moira Street, and Jack Carter, Hillside Street, have left on a motor trip to New York City.

There are over two hundred wild ducklings in Walter Turner's sanctuary on the Foxboro Road. These ducklings represent every breed of game duck that is to be found in Ontario. When the proper time comes, Mr. Turner will release them and if they are fortunate enough to escape the myriad duck hunters they will return to the sanctuary next year. Each year there are well over 100 ducklings in the sanctuary.

The Rev. Dr. MacTavish will conduct the services in the Presbyterian Church at Stirling and West Huntingdon on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Forhan, Victoria Avenue, have returned home after spending a vacation in New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. Evan Weese and son of Detroit, Michigan, are visiting friends here.

30 YEARS AGO

July 22nd., 1920

Mr. and Mrs. John Foster of Bay City, Mich., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Robert Orr in this city

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wonnacott of Toronto are visiting Mrs. John Wonnacott, Charles Street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Gilbert Pennock of Wilkesbarre, Pa., are visiting his sister, Mrs William Earle, Coleman Street.

Mrs. Bert Alford of Toronto is here to attend the Old Boys' Reunion.

Dr. and Mrs. Duck of Toronto are the guests of Mrs. William Lavery in this city.

Mr. Victor Wensley of New York City, an old Belleville boy, is here to attend the Old Boys' Reunion which commences tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McCreary of Toronto, formerly of Belleville, are visiting friends and relatives in tht city.

Mrs. Connors and daughter, Miss Alice Connors, of Montreal, are the guests of Mrs. Charles Doran, George Street.

Mr and Mrs. John M. Sheehan of Cleveland, Ohio, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bradden and will remain for the Old Boys' Reunion.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Elliott, of Springfield, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Elliott, Calgary, Alberta, and Russell Hayne of Midland, Ontario, are guests at the home of Mr. D. Watkin, Queen Street.

40 YEARS AGO

July 22nd., 1910

Welcome to the Old Boys and Girls. Make yourself at home—the town belongs to you.'Sakes alive, Maria, you haven't changed a bit.

The Old Boys' and Girls' Reunion is off to a good start. Flags are flying, bands are playing—old friends are meeting and clasping hands and everyone is happy.

The officers of the Old Boys' Reunion are as follows: Hon. president Sir Mackenzie Bowell; Hon. Vice-presidents, William Johnson, Arthur McGinnis, W. B. Northrup, M.P., E. Guss Porter, M.P., J. W. Johnson, M.P.P., President, D. V. Sinclair; treasurer, Mayor Lorne Marsh; secretary, Col. W. N. Ponton; Chairman of Committees — Entertainment, Dr. Horace A. Yeomans; Reception, W. J. THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The impression is growing in medical minds that the number of people who are susceptible to poison ivy, poison oak and other such plants is fairly small. In certain parts of Canada, these toxic plants are so common that it might be said everybody in the community must come in contact with them. Yet very few fall victim to them.

It is probable that some of us are allergic to the poison ivy, as some of us are allergic to certain common house plants. In a recent man hunt in Ontario, the chase led through veritable jungles of poison ivy. Hundreds of men, in hot weather, and plagued by mosquitoes, plunged through the ivy. Yet relatively few of them, sweating and scratching, got the little blisters that the poison ivy raises as its first symptom.

A group of biologists built a fisheries research station in a neighborhood that so abounded in poison ivy that one location was as good or bad as another, in that respect. The nearest settler, an old French Canadian helped them build. And when they complained of the ivy around their building, he cheerfully undertook to remove it. How they asked him.

With his bare hands, the old man simply went to work and uprooted it. By the bushel. In great heaps, which he then burned. The biologists were horror stricken. They begged the old man to desist. They warned him not to get in the smoke of his fire.

For the next two weeks, their chief biological interest centred in the old settler, whom they examined every day.

Not a trace of irritation or rash ever appeared on him. "Me?" he said, "I'm tough. I been bit by rattlesnakes, stung by bees, kicked by horses, fell out of boats. Get a rash? Me?"

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

TOO DARN HOT

Medicine Hat, Alta. — This is written at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The official temperature reading in Medicine Hat is 96 degrees and, says the radio with insane cheer, still going up.

An hour ago I hooked up the hose to a convenient faucet and filled the aluminum bath tub with cold water, laid a breadboard across it, placed my typewriter on same and from this submerged position I propose to put down a few sour words on the weather.

Honest to God, I don't know why anybody lives on the prairies. Do people ever get used to this blast furnace I can't believe it.

Man who came around this morning to sell us some religious literature said the heat wasn't bothering him. But the poor guy was glistening and wiping a soggy handkerchief across his brow. It wouldn't surprise me if he were crazy with the heat.

Our drive yesterday from High River was something I'd just rather forget.

About 30 miles of it was over a brand new road with a top of brand new oil that was just short of actually bubbling. The heat was simmering up across the shadeless plains like fumes from a cauldron.

We stopped at a baked hamlet for gas and an old fellow who looked as if he'd been boiled looked after us. I made some hollow remark about the weather.

"It is a mite muggy today," the old fellow agreed, thus uttering the understatement of the year.

I said we found it hard to take because we're from Vancouver where most times you have a bit of breeze to take the sting out of the sun.

"Can't stand Vancouver," the old boy said in a dry croak, "Get too much rain out there."

Old Memory

The weather has caused me to have a peculiar feeling, a quirk of memory that I experienced once before.

I was born in Winnipeg and was there until I was five or six when my father was able to escape, fairly well fried, but still in his right mind. I'd never been back until this spring when The Sun sent me down to cover the floods.

One day there Ross Munroe and I took a drive out along the Assiniboine River to see how the stream was flooding. This took us through the suburb of St. James and I had the most peculiar feeling of having been there before. When I got home, I asked my mother where we'd lived in Winnipeg. She said we'd lived in St. James.

Well, I had something of that feeling yesterday. The weather stirred some forgotten meteorological memories in the back of my brain, something filed and forgotten for 30-odd years.

There wasn't a cloud in the sky as far as you could see, which seems about a million miles in every direction. The sky looked as if God had air-brushed it with baby blue paint. But something in me announced that there would be a real rip-snorting thunder shower before the night was over.

There was, too, and not more than half an hour after we'd got the trailer set up. Again I had the feeling of having experienced such a storm before.

There was, first, the wind, hot and heavy and then the whole western sky lit up with a lightning flash that was blinding. The thunder cracked with a ripping, tearing sound overhead and shook the trailer.

We were all scared to pieces.

Cool Night

I am finishing up this piece several hours after I began it and in a much better frame of mind.

As I'm sure any prairie dweller will tell you, there's always a fat bonus for the suffering you endure from the weather. It came again at dusk tonight in the form of another storm, short and spectacular and gone in time to give us a few minutes of an extravagant pink sunset.

The rain lasted about 15 minutes. When it had passed everything seemed cool. There was the thick, pungent, damp fragrance that comes after the hot earth has been dampened, a smell we never know on the coast.

When we went for a walk a short time ago there was another sight peculiar to these parts: Folks sitting out on their front porches, taking advantage of the cool of evening.

Ferintosh Old Name of Scotch

"So far as I have been able to find out," says a writer in The Scots Magazine, "there never has been an English whisky. Once a distillery in North Wales attempted to produce Welsh whisky. It was not a success. In prewar days on the continent one was occasionally offered what purported to be French whisky. We Scots, however, have contrived to become world-famous whisky-makers, and "Scotch," fortunately for the British treasury, is inimitable. Not so the name, however, hence the efforts of the Scottish whisky industry to persuade the American courts to prohibit the use of the word "Scotch" in labelling or advertising whisky made in America."

American Product

Whisky production in America is believed to have originated with Scottish settlers in Western Pennsylvania, in the latter part of the 18th century. Before this the popular distilled beverage was rum, produced mainly in the New England States. But however skilful the Scottish settlers may have been in distilling the aque vitae from their local grain, the whisky they produced was not "Scotch." Until Highland water and peat enter into their mysterious association the product of the still is simply whisky. (I make this statement without lyrical intent. It is as factual as the assertion that white bread is not made with brown flour.)

Though Highland burns have been flowing over peat beds since time immemorial it is only within comparatively recent times that whisky has become a popular drink in Scotland. Historically it is not more the national drink than Gaelic is the national language. The Lowlanders scarcely knew it as a beverage till near the end of the 16th century and not till much later than that did it come into general use.

First Distillers

It is almost certain that the Highlanders were our first distillers. Distillation was known to the Celts or Ireland over 800 years ago. Hector Boece who wrote about 400 years ago has a passage in which he tells us that the Highlanders' commonest drink was ale, except in wartime when they contented themselves with water, and again, "at such times as they determined to be merry," when they used a kind of aqua vitae.

Possibly the distinction of introducing whisky to the Lowlanders belongs to the monks. At any rate, in 1495 a friar named John Cor obtained eight bolls of malt from the exchequer for distillation. Then years later, the right to sell whisky in Edinburgh was conferred on the surgeons.

The taste for the new drink spread slowly. One of the first known cases of drunkenness from whisky was that of a French friend of Darnley whose knowledge of the beverage did not accord with his estimates of his own powers of resistance. The inhabitants of districts bordering on the Highlands naturally enough formed the earliest attachment for the drink and possibly because of proximity to the Highlands it was much earlier in use in the west of Scotland than in other Lowland regions. Thus though whisky was distilled in Glasgow and sent in barter to the Isles in the 16th century, it was not sold normally in Aberdeen taverns at as late a period as 1638, when wine, ale and beer alone appear to have been on sale.

Formerly 'Ferintosh'

"Scotch" as a synonym for whisky is a comparative newcomer to the vocabulary of commerce. For many years the drink was "Ferintosh," after the distillery owned by Duncan Forbes of Culloden. As a reward for his loyalty during the rebellion, led by Graham of Claverhouse, and as a recompense for damage done to his lands and distillery by the rebels, Forbes was allowed by the government to distil whisky at an annual rate of £22 instead of the usual excise duty.

This was in 1690, and the distillery was probably then of considerable age. One result of this concession, which continued for 95 years, was to make whisky cheaper than it could otherwise have been. "Thee Ferintosh! O sadly lost" lamented Burns when the concession was withdrawn. The average price of a quart of whisky was then tenpence.

If Ferintosh had almost a monopoly in law, it had in fact a formidable number of unlicenced rivals. In Glenlivet alone during the last years of the Ferintosh monopoly 200 illicit stills were working, and the quality of much of their product was highly regarded. At first the small stills produced simply for the local families, but as restrictions on licenced distillers were increased the proprietors of the illicit stills were encouraged to extend their manufactures. Even persons in authority winked at breaches of the law. Kegs and bladders of whisky were carried without interference to lonely lochs and there transferred to waiting ships for carriage to the towns, and the man who could most cleverly "jink the gauger" became a local hero.

Brandy First

Before whisky came into general use in the Lowlands brandy was the popular drink with the upper classes, and even certain Highland gentry had so far emulated their Lowland counterparts as to regard whisky as a drink for the lower orders. When Major Topham visited Edinburgh in 1775 the choice in fashionable haunts was between rum and brandy.

The poor quality of the whisky probably had something to do with this attitude of society. There is ample evidence that at the time of Topham's visit the poorer people were fast learning to use — and abuse it. Hugo Arnot in his "History of Edinburgh" (1779) classed whisky and tea as "Equally pernicious to health and morals" and demanded that private families should be prohibited from distilling the spirit. When Arnot wrote there were only eight licenced stills in Edinburgh, but over 400 unlicenced.

In July, 1815, a "private" distillery was discovered under an arch of the South Bridge in Edinburgh. The only entrance to the place was by a doorway behind the grate of a bedroom in a house adjoining the bridge, and access from the door to the distillery was obtained by means of a ladder and a trap-door. Water was taken from a main passing overhead. Smoke was disposed of by making an opening in the chimney of an adjoining house, and waste was also got rid of without detection. A woman was employed to carry out the spirit in a tin containing two or three gallons which was placed in a bag and taken to the customers. The still had been producing for 18 months before it was discovered.

THE ANTIHISTAMINE CRAZE

For many years this column has been attacking the notion that "colds" are caused by "chilling," wet feet and "drafts." There is not enough space here to go into a discussion of all that purports to a "cold," but those of you who are interested may recall that I have repeatedly suggested the term "Cri" in this connection. "Cri" is an abbreviated form of the words "common respiratory infection."

A common respiratory infection simply an infection of the respiratory apparatus including the nose, throat and airways within the chest, which subsides with or without treatment and leads to no complications or lasting ill-effects If you choose to call this a "cold" it is all right with me, but the point I have long tried to put over is that in the early stages of this disorder no one can tell with certainty just what is developing.

The person who states that he has a "cold" when he develops symptoms of respiratory irritation is speaking on the basis of wishful thinking and not on fact. The symptoms of a "cold" may actually be the symptoms of a developing polio, meningitis, pneumonia, scarlet fever, measles or other disease. The person who states that he has "Cri" at least puts you on guard because he implies that he hopes it is nothing worse.

"Cri" is an infectious disease meaning that it can be acquired from someone else who has it. As a matter of fact, there is no other way of acquiring it except be deliberately or accidentally infecting yourself with the disease-producing micro-organisms (germs, viruses) from a laboratory specimen.

It is eternally odd that so many persons are willing to accept the notion that chilling, wet feet and drafts produce "colds" or pneumonia, but never think of these things in connection with scarlet fever, measles and other infectious diseases. However, all of these are identically the same in their mode of transmission from one person to another.

Recently the public has been besieged by buy "antihistamine drugs" under various names as a preventive and "cure" of 'colds." This promotion has been carried on by claiming that "colds" are an "allergic reaction" similar to that of hay fever and asthma. If such is the truth, then what has happened to the idea that "colds" are caused by chilling, wet feet and drafts? And, if there is anything to the idea, why should not one take these drugs as preventive or cure for measles and other infectious diseases?

The answer is that no one has proved that Cri or the "common cold" is an allergic disease and any treatment or preventive based upon this idea is simply imaginary at the present time.

Recent scientific and carefully controlled investigations reveal that those who take pills made of bread-dough for the purpose of preventing or treating "colds", thinking them to be "antihistamines" show the same results—or rather lack of results—as those who take the actual drugs. As matters now stand, there is no reason to believe that the antihistamine drugs are of proved value in the prevention or treatment of Cri or the "common cold."

Meanwhile, several millions of dollars have changed hands because of unfounded belief in this notion which has been widely publicized by the eager sellers of the drugs. I repeat that anyone who self-prescribes a potent drug on the basis of what he reads about it in promotional literature, classifies himself as a class A geek.

Promotional literature can never serve the purposes for which the physician has been created.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Oleo and Butter

What are the relative merits of oleo and butter (B.B.)

Answer — Butter contains considerable vitamin A and some vitamin D. Oleo contains little or none, unless it is fortified by addition of the vitamins. Ordinarily I don't care whether you serve me butter or oleo. One is as nourishing as the other.

Husband brushes his teeth frantically 3 or 4 times a day. X-rays showed many hidden cavities between his teeth, but he will not let any dentist grind away his good teeth, for thorough brushing will save them. (Mrs. R.D.)

Answer — His case is extreme but there are thirty million nuts in Yankeeland who naively believe as your husband does. The dentists preserve "dignified silence" while the dentifrice vendors teach the gullible public just that.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LAFCADIO HEARN

One of the strangest of all literary figures was that of Lafcadio Hearn, whose hundredth anniversary is celebrated this year. He was born on one of the islands of Greece. His mother was a Greek but his father was English-Irish. While in school in England he suffered the loss of an eye in an athletic game, and the other eye was myopic. But from this single eye, from which he had only 30 per cent vision, he achieved an enormous amount of work.

He was an unhappy wanderer during most of his early life, eccentric, moody, and highly sensitive. Going into a Cincinnati newspaper office searching for a job, he left a sample of his writing and was immediately hired. An unfortunate situation forced him to move to New Orleans, where he did notable work on the Item and States, and where he wrote his first books. He loved strangely written books, and forever sought them out.

Hearn took a trip to the West Indies and wrote one of the finest of his books upon his observation. Later he went to Japan where he carried on further writings, confining most of his work to Chinese and Japanese subjects. He became famous as a professor of English literature in the University of Tokyo. He married a Japanese woman and had four sons. He died in Japan in 1904, and there is a memorial building to his honor there. He was none too popular with the Japanese though his students loved him.

Few writers, in the century Hearn lived in, had a style so simple and yet so artistic. He was always striving for perfection. He was widely read, but managed to lose most of his intimate friends. Yet he was admired, and his books today are prized collector items in their first editions. In many ways his literarry career resembles that of Poe.

Few, if any writers have interpreted modern Japan to the world as intelligently as did this misunderstood genius. It has been stated that Hearn knew the Japanese better than they knew themselves. And yet, though he embraced their religion and dress, during his lifetime they hardly accepted him, excepting as a brilliant foreigner. Lafcadio Hearn is well worth studying today, and his wonderful style is fascinating reading.

Special Council Meeting Called For Monday Night to Discuss Board of Education Resolution

Trenton—(Special)—A special council meeting is being called on Monday night to consider a Board of Education resolution concerning the board's proposed school expansion program.

The resolution passed at a Board of Education meeting Tuesday night is in two parts. First, the resolution asks council to approve the board's original school building program tentatively approved by the Department of Education, which calls for a new eight-room public school, a 600-pupil high school and a two-room addition to North Trenton school, costing in all nearly $1,000,000.

As an alternative, the resolution offers council the choice of approving the compromise program verbally agreed upon at a joint Council-Board of Education meeting Monday evening. The alternative program which council is asked to approve, lists the erection of an eight-room public school costing an estimated $216,000 and a four-room addition to the present high school, to be built immediately and the erection of a new high school at the earliest possible date.

By drafting the resolution in its present form, the Board said it was emphasizing that it considered its original plan was really what was needed but in view of the discussions Monday night, it would leave council the option of approving the alternative program.

High school principal, W. G. Spencer said that when the present high school was built, the plans were drawn up in such a way that a four-room addition could be built at any time.

In order to begin construction on the public school as soon as possible, the Board of Education intends to visit several recently-constructed schools in the hope of finding a suitable eight-room building and then buy the plans. The Board hopes to have the public school in operation by September, 1951.

Miss Quinte Will be Chosen On Sports Day

Trenton — (Special) — Miss Quinte 1950, who may later have a chance to compete in the Miss Canada beauty contest will be chosen at Trenton RCAF Station's 16th annual Sports Day on Friday, August 18.

Single girls who are at least 16 years of age from Hastings, Northumberland and Prince Edward counties are eligible to compete, but officials emphasize that all girls under 21, must have the consent of their parents in order to take part.

The Sports Day Committee is sponsoring the pulchritude parade which is the first beauty contest ever staged at the annual Sports Day. A panel of judges to be named later will choose the winner from among 20 finalists. Besides getting an engraved silver trophy, Miss Quinte will probably have an opportunity to compete in the Miss Canada contest.

Must Have Talent Also

Since entrants in the All Canada beauty contest are judged on talent as well as good looks and shapely appearance, the Sports Day Committee intends to rate Miss Quinte contestants on talent also.

The Sports Day Committee asks all entrants to apply as soon as possible, preferably having a sponsor. This newspaper will be printing application blanks which the girls are asked to fill out if they intend entering the beauty contest. The committee also requests each applicant to send in a recent photograph.

On August 14, at the RCAF station Ensign Theatre, an elimination contest will be held from which the 20 finalists will be picked. On the afternoon of Sports Day, this number will be reduced to 10 and from these, Miss Quinte 1950 will be chosen in the evening.

Spotless Cleaners, the Trenton entry in the Ladies Lakeshore Softball League dropped out of the playoff picture Tuesday night by dropping a 15 to 12 decision to Grafton Girls in Colborne. The local girls lost out by a couple of unfortunate errors, not of the playing field variety. They defaulted two games to Baltimore.

The irony of the situation is, that Sally Twigg and company have soundly trounced the Grafton team twice at Bayshore Park, and bounced back from their Tuesday defeat to down Grafton 8 to 2 in an Exhibition game at Presqu'Ile Point, Wednesday evening. The only consolation for Trenton is, that Grafton is lucky Spotless Cleaners are not in the playoffs.

Five Colborne errors helped Sixardee Repairmen nose out the Dodgers 5 to 4 in a seven inning exhibition game at Presqu'Ile Point Wednesday afternoon. Although Colborne Dodgers are currently in the cellar of the Lakeshore Baseball League, they are the only "C" team in the league. While their present season's record is one win against five defeats, they are no easy pushovers as the Repairmen found out on Wednesday.

Dodgers scored all their runs in the bottom of the fourth to take a one run lead, and the Repairmen had to come from behind to even the score in the 5th, and picked up the winning run in the sixth.

While the Dodgers are playing out of their class, they are seldom outclassed and most of their losses have been by one run decisions. It is a distinct credit to a village like Colborne with a population of less than a thousand to be able to field and support a team featuring all local talent and offer stiff competition to larger centres like Lindsay, Peterborough and Oshawa. Colborne also boasts one of the best diamonds in this part of the country but Trenton being nearly ten times larger has neither a basball team nor a suitable baseball park. The local entry in the Trent Valley Softball League has been jockeying for top spot in the league all season but has played to a park full of empty bleachers several times.

What's wrong? Can it be that Trenton citizens are not interested in sports?

Thursday night, over 900 people attended the opening of the Murray township community centre at Wooler. Several important guests were present for the official opening, including Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Ontario Minister of Welfare and Dr. Fred Robertson, M. P. for Northumberland.

Public subscription and voluntary labor, in short an all-out community effort built the new community centre which includes a ball park complete with floodlights and bleachers.

Following the opening festivities, Frankford and Wooler tried out the new diamond in a Trent Valley Softball League game. It was a great night for the home team, as Wooler defeated the league - leading Merchants 12 to 4. The loss slid Frankford into second place and the idle Trenton Chevrolets are once more perched on the top rung.

Last night, Chevrolets met RCAF Technical Wing in a return exhibition engagement at Bayshore Park, and Wednesday night the Weesemen will meet Crawford Metals of the Belleville Commercial League in another exhibition game. On August 7, Joe McCauley's Centre Island softball team will be in town to tangle with the Chevrolets. Joe was well known in sport circles in this district when he left Trenton about eight years ago, and a good turnout is expected to be on hand when McCauley's Toronto team meets the best from his old home town.

Stream Food Parcels To U.K. Drying Up

London, July 21. (CP)——The stream of food parcels, which since the war has helped relieve austerity-ridden larders in Britain, is beginning to dry up.

General post office records for the first five months of 1950 show that 2,710,000 parcels were received from overseas well-wishers, an average of 542,000 a month. This was a sharp drop from last year when the average monthly total was 1,105,000. For Canada, the five-month volume of parcels dropped to 400,000 from more than 1,000,000.

MARMORA

Work Progressing On Trans-Canada In Norwood Section

Marmora — The McFarland Construction Co. are getting into full swing on Marmora-Norwood Highway.

The cut just west of Marmora village has been widened by blowing up the rock on the south side of the highway. On Wednesday the whole face of the hill on the south side was blown off for several yards filling up the road completely with rock and cars were detoured to the old highway.

The rock is broken small enough to load with a power shovel and is used to widen the road farther west. Near Blairton a section of the road has already been raised and widened and another section is being diverted from the present roadway to a new site a little farther south.

Britons Debunk Idea Yanks Work Harder

London, July 22 — (AP) —Ten British Labor leaders who visited the United States debunked yesterday the idea that Americans work harder than Britons.

"Except in a few isolated cases" they reported, they found no evidence to support the theory, which had been put out by a few of the several British management-labor missions which have visited the United States in the last year.

Like most of the earlier missions, the Labor group found that Americans produced more per man-day primarily because usually they have more and better machinery and better planned plants.

PLAN 50 SILOS

Chatham, July 22 — (CP) — Plans for the construction of 50 grain silos with a total capacity of 500,000 bushels were announced yesterday by H. E. Webster, president of St. Clair Grain and Feeds Limited. The silos will be constructed on the company's property here and will cost approximately $300,000. Work is to start immediately.

Hampton Court Palace Likely Hospitality Centre For Noted Overseas Guests

(By SIDNEY TAYLOR)

London, July 22 — (Reuters)—Hampton Court Palace, where King Henry VIII wooed and won his six wives 400 years ago, is likely to become the government's number one hospitality show place for important overseas visitors.

The government tried out the idea this month with the 50 delegates to the Commonwealth Agricultural Bureau conference. By special permission of King George VI they were given supper in William III's Orangery. This is by no means the most attractive room in the palace — it is a long bare narrow hall panelled in dark oak — but it happens to be near the modern kitchens.

The kitchens of Henry VIII's times are far away. They are huge and cavernous, with open fireplaces and spits for roasting oxen whole.

The supper had none of the crudities of Old England. It was French cooking, but the main dish was capon, a favorite of Henry's until old age, decaying teeth and the wise counsel of his sixth and most successful wife, Katherine Parr, made him take to slops.

Hampton Court is reputed to have two ghosts. Guides swore that Queen Katherine Howard, fifth wife to the monarch, had been reported "down the ages" as having been seen rushing wildly across the haunted gallery, apparently still beseeching Henry to save her from the block.

The other ghost, a Mrs. Penn, devoted nurse of the Boy King Edward VI, also did not appear.

More Interested in Fishing, Catches Better Than Last Year

(By The Canadian Press)

How are the fish biting this year?

Better than ever, say provincial government officials.

A Canadian Press survey of game fishing in Canada shows interest is increasing and catches this year are better than last — for most people.

But at least one of the thousands of Americans attracted by advertisements describing Canada as a "fisherman's paradise," won't agree. He is Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Ike, trying for salmon for the first time in Quebec's Moisie River, caught only four — a bag classed as "not very lucky."

However, if Quebec salmon aren't biting as they might, British Columbia's are. Cohoe and spring salmon, some of which run as high as 60 pounds, are attracting thousands to Howe Sound and Campbell River. Inland, too, rainbow trout are snapping at a wide assortment of wet and dry flies with particularly excellent results reported from the Kamloops district.

In former years, fishing in Manitoba's Rainy River district used to slacken during mid-summer. Not this year. Wall-eyed and Northern pike continue to bite in most favorite fishing grounds and, where these are aestivating (a fancy word for summer sleeping), bass are filling the gap.

Lunge Biting Well

Muskellunge also are responding in approved fashion to the offerings of native and tourist fishermen. A recent visitor from Indianapolis left for home with a 42-pound muskie caught in Lake of the Woods.

It wouldn't be a report on fishing without a tall story. This one is set in Lake Superior. A man fishing off Welcome Island caught three fish on one hook. At least, that's what the man said.

He said he found a 2½-pound trout had grabbed his one-eyed wiggler. Inside the trout's mouth was a one-pound trout. Inside the mouth of the smaller trout was a smelt.

Ontario's fish and wildlife department reports fishing "excellent" in most of the province. One reason suggested is the province's restocking program. Last year 441,887,000 fry and fingerlings were planted in lakes and streams.

Bass continue to be Ontario's most popular sporting fish. Good catches are reported in the Lake Erie, Rideau Lakes, Parry Sound and Lake of the Woods districts. A seven-pound, 28-inch smallmouth bass was caught in the Rideau River near Ottawa, and whoppers have been reported elsewhere.

Good Catches in Quebec

Quebec's game and fisheries department says flycasters from Montreal district are flocking to lakes St. Louis, St. Francis, and Two Mountains for pike, bass, dore and muskellunge. Tourists in the Laurentians report good catches of red, gray, black and speckled trout, dore and Northern pike.

Nova Scotia reports a slight drop in number of licences issued this year. This is possibly due to a ban on woods travel because of forest fires. Salmon is the popular inland fish with trout a close second. Salt-water anglers will head for Wedgeport in September for the annual international tuna-fishing tournament.

In Newfoundland, salmon is king of fresh water fish. This year good rainfall has created near-ideal conditions.

Wellington on the Lake

SUMMER

A stirring breeze in the tree-tops,
The blue of the summer sky,
A veil of mist o'er the woodland
Where softly the stream slips by,
The fragrant hay in the meadow,
The sound of the mower's song,
Repeat the old, old story
Of summer days and long.

And far o'er the distant hill-top
By limpid lake and stream,
The magic wand of summer
Is weaving a web of dream;
And in earth's remotest corner
Where foot of man ne'er trod,
Is spread the glory of summer—
The impress of nature's God.

Rich Prize Ends Rainbow At Chicago

Chicago, July 22—(AP)—The United States, first futurity of the year, the 21st Arlington, today will send 17 fleet two-year-old thoroughbreds streaking after a gross purse of $68,850 at Arlington Park.

Favored to take the six furlong —if the field stays intact—is Berntest and a $57,715 winner's share wood, owned by Brownell Combs. The dark bay son of Bernborough, the great Australian runner, has scored impressively in his two starts.

Maine Chance Farm, however, has a powerful entry in Silver Wings, win or lose, and Royal Flash. Another strong contender is Bugledrums, the speedster of oil magnate Sam Wilson which, like Silver Wings and win or lose, holds a stakes triumph.

Bugledrums won the Christiana at Delaware Park, while Silver Wings captured the great American at Aqueduct and win or lose took the east view stakes at Jamaica—although he was later disqualified for not carrying proper weight.

Other likely threats to Bernwood include To Market Anyoldtime, Mass O'Gold, Ken, Graham, Ahrens and the Hal Price Headley pair of Jumbo and Here Me.

The futurity mark of 1:10 2-5 set in 1942 by Occupation may be threatened if Arlington's strip, orenched by four days of rain, turns fast.

Bernwood, held a 2-1 overnight betting choice, and 11 other entries nave been assigned 122 pounds. The other five, including Gay Hunter, Ahrens, Anyoldtime, Graham and Royal Flush, are in at 117.

Lady Hollyhocks

My Lady Hollyhocks in gauzy summer dress,
How gracefully they bow to greet the wind's caress!
In crimson, pink and rose, behold
they stately stand,
And then they swing and sway, a dancing happy band;
So dainty and so fair of summer life a part
Their cheery faces bring a joy to every heart,
For they gladden both alike the cottage and the hall—
These graceful hollyhocks that grow so slim and tall;
And when the winter comes and clouds obscure the way
I'll dream of hollyhocks upon a summer day.

WEDDINGS

BOYCHYN—STEWART

Centreville Presbyterian Church was the scene July 15, of the wedding of Betty Adele, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Stewart, of Stewart Hall, to Michael Boychyn, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Boychyn, of Whitby. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Walter Patterson and the wedding music was played by Mrs. A. Muspratt.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an afternoon dress of rosebud pink crepe with Chantilly lace jacket and a matching hat, and she carried an arm bouquet of white gladioli with blue ribbon cascades.

The bridesmaid, Miss Ina Law, of Whitby, wore a turquoise blue lace dress and matching hat and carried pink gladioli.

The bride's brother, Mr. Donald Stewart, of Belleville, was groomsman.

After a wedding trip in the Muskoka district, the couple will live in Toronto.

BURKHOLDER—ENRIGHT

A quite wedding was solemnized in the rectory of St. Michael's Church, Belleville, on Monday, July 17, when Anna Mildred, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Enright, Read, became the bride of Mervyn Harley Burkholder, son of Mrs. Gordon Burkholder, Toronto, and the late Gordon Burkholder.

The bride was charming in an ankle-length dress of white organdie with white matching accessories. Her corsage was of red roses and orchids.

Her only attendant was Margaret Enright, sister of the bride, who wore blue taffeta with white accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds.

Mr. Ted Burkholder, brother of the bridegroom was best man.

Following the ceremony, the wedding party motored to the home of the bride's parents, where a dinner was served to approximately 35 guests.

The bride's mother received attired in a grey flowered sheer with navy accessories. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing grey flowered crepe with matching grey accessories.

The dining room was decorated with white and pink streamers, and the bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake.

Amid showers of confetti and good wishes, the happy couple left on a motor trip to points west. For travelling the bride chose a blue nylon flowered dress with white hat and shoes to match. Her corsage was of red roses.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Burkholder will reside in Belleville.

Prior to the bride's marriage, she was the guest of honor at two lovely showers. A miscellaneous shower held by Mrs. Bob Outred, of Toronto, and a linen shower held by Mrs. Ross Boyce, of Belleville. She was also the recipient of a beautiful lamp from the foremen and employees of The Northern Electric Radio Dept.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

Open letter to Mrs. St. Laurent: Dear Mrs. St. Laurent: We admire and respect your husband as a statesman. We like his honesty, his intellect, his quiet dignity . . . But, Madame, those black rimmed glasses of his. Whenever he puts them on, they make him look ever so dour. They detract from his friendly facial expression when he speaks. In fact in photographs and in the news reels, all we can see are Mr. Prime Minister's spectacles . . . Do you suppose you could persuade your husband to buy a pair of glasses with light colored rims?

Summer days are salad days and we've run across the best recipe for French dressing yet. Here it is: 2-3 cup salad oil, 1-3 cup vinegar or lemon juice, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon fruit sugar, 1-2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1-4 teaspoon paprika.

Combine all ingredients and pour into catsup bottle. Cover and shake up vigorously. Shake each time before using. Grated onion can be added. For other variations, add 1-4 cup tomato catsup or 1-2 cup grated Roquefort cheese or 2 tablespoons condiment sauce.

Glancing at recent British newspapers and magazines, you can see that some of the pre-war splendor of full dress is creeping back into the armed services. Even in units where khaki is worn, a little glamor comes back by the wearing of swords on ceremonial occasions.

We have just read a letter signed by a man who tacked the letters U.E. after his name. This recalls a paragraph in the old history book which explains that the distinction U.E., was legally bestowed by King George III on all Loyalists and their descendants.

Now seldom seen, though there must be thousands of Canadians who could rightfully use the appendage, it serves to remind us of the stalwart U.E.L.'s who fled to the wilderness of Upper Canada in the 18th century to help build the nation which we are all proud to call our own.

Uncle Frontenac says the trouble with some of these old gossips is that everything goes in one ear and out the mouth.

Average Family's Food Costs Only Slightly Higher Than '49

Ottawa, July 22 — (CP)—The Canadian Federation of Agriculture estimated yesterday that the average Canadian family now spends $14.01 a week for six major food items in the weekly diet — eggs, butter, milk, cheese, beef and pork.

It did not take into account other dinner-table staples, such as bread, vegetables, fruits and preserves.

The $14.01 spent weekly, the National farm organization suggested, is an increase of only 45 cents over the family's $13.56-a-week food budget last year. This, it felt, indicated the average Canadian family was "as well-fed today at little or no greater cost as was the case a year ago."

The Bureau of Statistics, in its latest report of the official cost-of-living index, placed the food sub-index at June 1 at 209 against 160.5 a year ago — a jump of 48.5 points. During May alone, the index climbed from 204.6 to 209 points on rising meat prices.

The 400,000 - member Federation said it had made the survey for the Canadian Association of Consumers which has received many complaints by housewives of high meat prices.

The $14.01-a-week estimate for five persons covers the total cost for the consumption of 5.4 pounds of beef, 5.7 pounds of pork, 16 quarts of milk, 3.2 pounds of butter, one-half pound of cheese and two dozen eggs.

The Federation pinned the blame for high meat prices on the American market — "for many years an outstanding market for Canadian beef cattle."

Worn with it is a flame colored cotton jersey turtle neck sleeveless blouse, adding up to a nice beach or country outfit.

IVANHOE

Community Honors Young Couple With Gifts

Ivanhoe Town Hall was the scene of a happy event on Friday evening, July 14, when friends and neighbors gathered to honor Mr. and Mrs. Harry Whyte.

Mr. Harry Lovibond acted as chairman for the following program. Community singing led by Mrs. Reg. Haggerty; reading "The State of Matrimony", by Miss Margaret Wright; piano duet, "Melody of Love", Mrs. Keith Bray, Mrs. Milton Shaw; duet, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart", Annie Crooks and Yvonne Brant; chorus: "There is a Love Knot in My Lariat" by the Ivanhoe School boys.

Wanda and Harry were given seats of honor on the platform and Miss Deneyse Vandome read an address expressing the good wishes of the community for a long and happy married life.

Mr. Elymer Rollins and Mr. Keith Bray, made the presentation of a lovely chair and a magazine rack.

After Wanda and Harry had expressed thanks and appreciation for the gifts all joined in singing "For They are Jolly Good Fellows".

Delicious refreshments were served and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing with Mrs. Reg. Haggerty at the piano.

Friends were present from Toronto, Oshawa, Bancroft, Marmora, Eldorado, Madoc and Stirling.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The joy a good bridge rule brings you is worth your effort to learn it. The joy its application brings your partner is worth your efforts to employ it.

When it is your opening lead, two things you should not do. One is, against any contract don't lead a suit bid by opponents. The other is, against a suit contract don't lead away from an ace or a king.

Take a look at this deal:

NORTH
♠9 8 7 4
♥8 6
♦Q 10 6
♣A K Q J

WEST
♥K 7 5 4
♦A 9 8 3
♣10 8 4 3

EAST
♠A 2
♥J 10 9 3 2
♦K 5
♣9 7 5 2

SOUTH
♠K Q J 10 5 3
♥A Q
♦J 7 4 2

South is the declarer at a contract of four spades after north has also bid clubs. Your opening lead from the west hand is spade six. What does this tell your east partner?

Rule says not to lead away from an ace or a king against a suit contract. So you have told him you have either the ace or the king in each red suit. He studies the red cards he is able to see.

At the moment he is unable to learn whether your high heart is the king or the ace. Because neither the king nor the ace is in his own hand or the dummy hand that lies on the table.

With diamond king in his own hand he knows you have the ace. So, he wins the first trick with trump ace and confidently leads his diamond king. His second diamond is taken by your ace and your return third diamond is ruffed by him to defeat the contract.

What was his reaction to your trump lead? He must surely say to himself: "Why didn't my partner lead an unbid suit at the start?"

The only sound reason could be that rule told you not to lead away from an ace or a king against a suit contract. Therefore, with the king in his own hand he knew you had the ace.

There are other reasons for leading a trump, of course. But at the moment learn the basic reason for it. Basics are the bosses that help reduce your losses.

The golden colored drug known for its sensational treatment of assorted human ailments has now been found to be a remarkable growth accelerator in domestic animals and poultry.

A few pounds of the drug, sold cheaply because it is unrefined, mixed with a ton of feed will cause pigs, turkeys and chickens to speed their normal growth at an unprecedented rate.

The news is equally good for cattlemen and cooks. Certainly more and better meat are needed if prices are ever to become lower. More and better meat are needed if the world's food supply is to be sufficient to keep up with an ever increasing population.

The flavor of steaks, chops and chicken depends not only on the methods used in cooking but on the way the animal or bird was fed and developed. All prime or choice beef comes from well fed, well fattened cattle that matured while still young.

Not many families can afford to live on expensive ribs of beef or porterhouse steaks these days. One of the best ways to prepare a cheaper cut of beef is to marinate it overnight in a mixture of oil, vinegar and spices. The acid in the vinegar will help to tenderize any meat.

Marinated Beefsteak, Serves 4

Order 1 1-2 pounds of top sirloin steak cut inot 4 portions. (Top sirloin is a semi-tender cut of beef.)

In a mixing bowl combine 1-3 cup vinegar, 1-2 cup salad oil, 1 whole onion sliced, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and 1 clove of garlic smashed. Place meat in mixture and let stand overnight.

When ready to cook steaks, remove from marinating solution and wipe meat dry. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and paprika. Place under a moderate broiler flame. Brown on both sides. Steaks may also be pan fried in 1-4 inch of melted fat until brown.

Make a mushroom sauce as follows: Melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine in a saucepan. Add 1 cup sliced washed fresh mushrooms. Simmer until tender, about 5 minutes. Add 2 tablespoons flour, mixing well. Gradually add 1 cup hot undiluted canned consomme. Simmer 5 minutes. Add brown gravy color. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Pour hot mushroom sauce over steaks just before serving. Sprinkle with chopped parsley.

Basic plans the same for formal and informal wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell us how an informal wedding differs from a formal wedding?

Bride's Mother

The basic plans and procedure are the same. . . but the plans and procedure for an informal wedding are on a simpler scale.

Wedding invitation issued by bride's brother and his wife

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My girl friend is to be married soon, and she has asked me to ask you how to have her invitations worded. Both of her parents are dead. She has an older brother and an older sister, both of whom are married.

M. D. F.

The best form would be for her older brother and his wife to issue the invitations: Like this:

Mr. and Mrs. John Paul Smith request the honor of your presence
at the marriage of their sister
Anne Marie Smith
to
Mr. George Alan Eliot on Tuesday, the fifth of September at four o'clock
Faith Church
Haven, New York

(In this case the bride's last name is given, to avoid confusion, since the same wording might be used if the bride were the sister of Mrs. Smith.)

When bride wears suit at informal church wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At my very informal church wedding I would like to wear a summer silk suit, a rather dressmaker type suit, and the groom to wear a dark business suit. (1) But I have always wanted to "walk up the aisle" at my wedding. Would this possibly be correct if I wear such informal dress? (2) Also would it be correct for me to have more than one attendant? (3) To the church wedding we are planning to invite the families, of course, a few close relatives on both sides, and a very few intimate friends. In all these circumstances, would it be proper for us to plan to have an informal reception at my house, inviting quite a few friends not invited to the ceremony?

Grace A.

(1) Yes . . you and your father walk up the aisle together, preceded by your maid of honor, alone. (2) No. . .have only a maid (or matron) of honor, your witness. (3) Yes . . .this plan is entirely proper.

Question of table service

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle a discussion, please answer this question: Is it proper to serve the plates in the kitchen and place them on the table at the individual places before asking the guests to come into the dining-room?

B. F. V.

Proper . . . if you are referring to the first course, and if this course is not a hot course.

Widows wait how long before dating

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How long should a widow wait before she accepts the attentions of a man?

T. A.

If her heart and memory don't give her the answer to this question . . and they really should! . . . etiquette might suggest that six month would be the very shortest period.

Have You a Pretty Neckline?

You won't regret the beauty care you have given your neck and shoulders when you wear a low-cut gown, says Nancy Olsen, screen star.

By HELEN FOLLETT

IF your neck is lovely and your chin contour is firm, you may count yourself among the blessed especially if you are no longer within fingertouch of your youth. But don't let it go at that. Cherish your good looks gifts as if they were rare plants. Time is not on your side.

One of the important things to remember for your neck's sake is correct posture. Keep your head on the level, never let your chin droop. See that your spinal column is extended full length, when you are standing or walking. With that pose, the chest lifts; when your chest is high, the muscles of the throat are in proper place, not relaxed, to soften and take on ugly furrows.

The way you walk into a room may determine whether or not the people there will be eager to meet you. Posture reveals character; the erect pose suggests courage, reliability, splendor of person; the slumpy attitude is that of the discouraged soul or the lazy person.

Take care of your neck as you take care of your complexion. At night apply a heavy emollient, stroking it in with both hands, starting at the chest, working upward and outward in half circles. Stroke the throat up and down. Keep on using more and more cream, as it disappears. Do not stretch the skin with rough strokes, Pat and slap, all over the chest and shoulders, under the chin and along the jaw line.

Wise plans to meet special circumstances

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My daughter and I are having a difficult time planning her wedding and reception, which is to be held in late-August. We would like a very simple affair, but there are many relatives and friends to be considered. In order not to hurt anyone, the guest list is large. . . but the purse is small! Also the prevailing custom of family and nationality seems to call for much eating, drinking, and dancing at wedding receptions. Were we to have an afternoon wedding, it would mean a dinner afterward for at least the wedding part and the two families, which, together with the evening reception, we just couldn't afford. So, to simplify matters, my daughter has decided on a 7 o'clock evening ceremony in the small neighborhood church to which we belong, with a reception following at 8:15, to allow the guests time for transportation. What do you think of this plan we have made so far?

2. The reception is to be held in a large house that used to be a private home, and recently was reconstructed to be used for such occasions. Here there is a caterer and he has suggested for the menu for the evening reception: ham, potato salad, baked beans, macaroni salad, relishes, pickles, rye and white bread, and so forth. My daughter thinks this is more like a picnic menu, and we believe it is too heavy for a hot August evening. We would like to have small, simple sandwiches, cookies, beer, punch, and, of course, the wedding cake. (Is coffee necessary in August?)

To relieve me of work and worry. I would like to have some of the reception catered. And I am wondering if this plan would be possible: to have the caterer prepare a menu of heartier items for about half the number of guests expected, those who really wish to eat (we certainly know some who do!), and for us to supplement this by bringing to the reception-place small sandwiches (such as cream cheese and olive, cearm cheese on nut bread, minced ham, and so forth), and tiny home-made cookies, for the others who will come just for the fun of greeting the bridal couple and to "dance at their wedding?"

A. R.

1. Wise and practical plans, these, to meet the special circumstances that must be faced . . . and I have a feeling that you have understated these circumstances. Certainly, with a limited budget, you should avoid the expenses of a dinner, which, though simple, can be costly for the number of guests you would have to invite.

2. I suggest you name 8:30 as the reception hour, and, as is customary and sensible, assume that the guests will have dined, and that you need provide only the simplest of evening refreshments. Small sandwiches with simple fillings; small cakes and cookies; punch, for the drinking of the toasts, beer if you wish, perhaps a cola drink; some nibbling items, such as nuts, potato chips, popcorn; and a large wedding cake.

But, Heaven forbid, don't order the heavy and horribly inappropriate menu . . . your daughter's description "picnic menu" is right indeed! . . .suggested by this 'caterer'. Make it clear to him that you wish to serve the appropriate items you have named above. Then either negotiate with him to make the sandwiches and provide the other items (except the wedding cake, which you had better have made by a specialist-baker), or have these items made by someone whose skill you know, and have them delivered to the reception-place.

Don't make the mistake of providing a hearty menu for the hearty eaters, and a light menu for the others. . . have the sure taste and discrimination to take your stand on serving to all the guests the light refreshments that are right and smart for this evening occasion. Feature: (1) the sure grace and graciousness of your hospitality; (2) the toasts proposed to the bride and groom and others most concerned; and (3) the gala cutting and serving of the wedding cake.

Fashion Flashes

LOOKING AHEAD it looks like another big season for the tweed town suit. Royal blue, luggage tan and black make a colorful tweed mixture for a slim suit. The fitted jacket has four pockets placed aslant and finished with a narrow cuff. Classic revers and collar above a closing of two tortoise-shell buttons. Fly-front skirt is narrow.

DEEP CROWNS that assure a deep fit, mark a smart group of pastel felts, created for smart travel wear. A very pale brown (a deep coffee-cream) felt, makes up into a little nipped-brim bonnet with matching pale coffee-colored pheasant wings crossed in front to suggest a forward line. Another model in the same light brown felt is trimmed with a silk chiffon scarf draped around the crown the two long ends edged with deeper brown silk faille ribbon.

THERE'S NO beating the well-fitted leather pump as the smartest daytime shoe. Navy blue calf for a charming pump with red calf piping around the shoe and a red midway heel. With it a big blue calf handbag piped and lined with red leather.

HOLDING TS OWN is the coin-dotted fashion, even if it isn't as popular as in former years. Dark green voile dotted in white makes the body of a nicebutton-down-the-front dress, with wing collar, front panel and fan-pleated inserts on the sleeves all of white with green coin dots.

A BEAUTIFUL background color is deep charcoal gray. Made up into an easy-to-wear soft shirt-waist dress, with full skirt, and slim bodice with pointed collar and pointed gauntlet cuffs, it looks lovely with pink, yellow or white hat and accessories.

AIRY shoes of white, red or blue nylon mesh with matching calf trim are "walking out" of the stores where they are shown. Shoes are mostly spectator type pumps with midway heel.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We are two girls of 17 and 18, who graduated from high school last month. Our problem is that when we go to dances, we find ourselves on the side-lines. As a result of this, we do not know any fellows, and consequently miss out on dates and other good times such as other girls our age enjoy.

Could you help us solve our "left-out" problem?

T. and W.

Dear T. and W.:

Have you been going to dances unescorted? If so, that doesn't seem to me the best way in the world for you to get acquainted with the kind of boys who would make the most satisfactory friends.

A much better way would be for you to join some group which has both boy and girl members. Isn't there such a club in your church, or elsewhere in your community? If not, why don't you start a club of your own? Even though you had to begin just with girls, you could have parties at one or another of your homes to which you girls could invite boys, and if you showed them what a good time you could all have together, and then offered them the chance to become members of your club, they would probably be very glad to do so.

Why don't you go and discuss this with your local YWCA? You might even find that there is already such a club where you would be welcome. If not, you could ask how you might start one.

I am sure it's perfectly possible for you to have good times if you take a little trouble and go about it the right way, and the suggestion I have just given you is a good place to start.

A very large mountain out of a very small molehill

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am in love with a boy of 17 who once loved a girl whom he had known for two weeks. He has shown affection for me and has told his cousin that he loved me, but he often speaks of this girl to me, and asks if I think she would still like him. She has gone away from town.

I tell him that I think she probably does like him, which breaks my heart, but I say it because I don't want him to think I am jealous of her, because I'm not. My girl friend keeps bringing this other girl up and reminding my boy-friend about her.

How should I treat my girl-friend and how should I act toward this boy?

C.

Dear C.:

I think if you laughed this whole thing off when either your girl friend or the boy talks about the other girl, it would soon die out. After all, you have a perfect right to show amusement when a boy keeps mooning about a girl he knew for two weeks. Your girl friend, of course, is simply trying to get your goat. Why give her the satisfaction of letting her know that she is succeeding? You are making a very large mountain out of a very small mole hill.

Women's Activities

BETHANY W.M.S. AND W.A.

Bethany—On Thursday afternoon the ladies of Bethany W.M.S. and W.A. met at the home of Mrs. Frank Walker 3rd line.

Mrs John Ritz presided and opened the meeting.

Mrs. Vernon Hamilton, Mrs. Orval Beer and Mrs. Dave Martin read the scripture passages, followed by prayer Mrs. Ritz gave a reading on Korea.

The secretary's report was given by Mrs. D. Martin and Mrs. George Sills gave the treasurer's report. Mrs. George Sills invited the ladies to her home for the next meeting.

Mrs. S C. Cooley gave a reading on "Growing Old." Mrs. S. Sills gave a reading "I Have Another Engagement," a solo by Mrs. Douglas Tummon; Mrs. D. Martin gave a reading and Mrs. Ritz a stewardship reading.

Mrs. F. Walker conducted a short business period for the W.A. and it was decided to send a donation of money to the Manitoba Flood Relief.

Dainty refreshments were served and a social time spent.

REDNERSVILLE W.A.

Rednersville W.A. July meeting was held in the evening at the home of Mrs. Rae Roblin with 26 members present and 2 little visitors.

Scripture lesson taken from Psalm 51 1-17 was read by Mrs. Dickie, Study book by Mrs. Roraback was then given. There will be a quilting at the home of Mrs. Leon Ward on Wednesday afternoon July 26th.

Mrs. Reid gave an interesting reading for the program, after which delicious refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

Mrs. Harry Adams moved a vote of thanks to the hostess and to the program and lunch committee, second by Mrs. Harold Ward.

UNIONDALE W.I.

July meeting of the Uniondale W.I., was held at the home of Mrs. K. Bush, 4th Concession of Sidney, with an extra large attendance. Meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Milton Grills, in the chair. Business was dealt with, planning to serve at O.S.D. July 27, also that August 16. be the day to serve at Belleville Fair. A letter was read from Miss Lewis acknowledging the history notes that were sent in by Mrs. K. Faul.

A brief talk was given by Mrs. K. Faul on the "Hand Book of Lady Brooke of Ireland", telling how their work of Women's Institutes was carried on.

The program consisted of readings by Mrs. Herrington, Mrs. Halsall, Mrs. Stricker, "Parity and Prices", Mrs. Richards, "Modern Reading", and a short story by Mrs. M. Sine. Piano solos were given by Gwenith and Sharon Bush, Helen Burkitt and Marian Richards. All were glad that the girls were interested enough to help on the program.

Nice Idea

A demonstration on the use of discarded linen table napkins was given by Mrs. H. Frost. These can be made attractively into a large table cloth put together with crochet or insertion to make them look like place mats.

Refreshments were served in the form of an ice cream party which was enjoyed by all. Thanks was expressed to the Uniondale W.I.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Bush for opening her home.

The August meeting is to be held at Mrs. R. Wannamaker's, 4th of Sidney, taking the form of a grandmothers' meeting. The roll call will be "Why I Admire Elderly Ladies"?

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

VERY VIVID

If we lived in the Tropics bright plumaged birds would be sufficiently common to prevent us from being excited whenever we saw one; but here in Canada where brown is the prevailing color we gasp in wonder at the vivid scarlet tanager. Other names by which he is known are also appropriate: redbird, and firebird. His uniform deep black wings and tail help to accentuate the flame color. It is unusual to see him at close enough range, and on a level, to distinguish the artistic effects of his bill, feet, and legs; but when possible, you will find his bill to be grey blue at the base, shading off to a yellowish green at the tip, and his legs and feet either pale lavender grey or greyish blue.

But even in this radiant apparel he generally manages to evade observation by keeping in the tops of tall trees, while his admirers stand at the foot, nearly breaking their necks for a single flash of red. His song may very easily be mistaken for a robin's by the uninitiated, though the seasoned bird watcher scoffingly remarks that it has not the clarity of a robin's song. However, his low "chip-burr" note is really something all his own.

If we consider Mr. Scarlet Tanager hard to find his wife is well nigh impossible. His red is replaced by dull green above and greenish yellow below, his jet black by brownish black. This species gives us a fine demonstration of the way in which many birds change their plumage, because about this time he begins to remove his suit and slowly put on an entirely different looking one. In early August green or yellowish feathers peep out from behind the red. Instead of being distinguished, he appears patchy; but soon he will so nearly resemble his wife and children that you will have difficulty in telling them apart. The immature scarlet tanagers always take after their mother, except that the little boys' wings and tails are black like their father's. Red coats are not acquired until the second year.

The young family is brought up in a loosely-woven nest near the end of a branch about 20 feet high. Their food consists mainly of caterpillars, the larvae of insects, and beetles (even Japanese beetles)with sometimes a little wild fruit.

By mid-September all leave their northern woodland homes and are off to South America for the winter.

BEAUTY

Must have! That crisp, clean, cool look!

There are girls who, no matter how high the thermometer climbs, look as cool as a lettuce leaf. There are others with shining noses, stringy locks and the flustered look; they do not qualify for beauty laurels. During the silly season it is necessary to make an extra effort to keep up to pulchritude par.

Spend a little more time in the tub. Scrub vigorously with a brush. Don't let perspiration odor catch up with you. Use a deodorant or deterrent every day. Shampoo the hair every week; if you have a short cut it won't take twenty minutes. Be a bathing beauty. Get in the swim; swimming is good for your figure and spirits.

Regard the lady money-flingers who crowd the buyways. They look pretty wilted, most of them. So do your shopping and marketing in the cool of the morning. Make out your list of purchases, so you won't be buffeted around by other shoppers, will get through the job quickly. All that is easier on you and the salespersons. We all know the shopper who stands before the butcher's counter, tells him she doesn't know what she wants, makes him trot out his merchandise, while you wait and say things under your breath. Surprising how many selfish, unreasonable people there are in the world.

Trotting over hot pavements may make your feet peevish and fretful, in which event you will carry the shadows of discomfort on your face. Have a foot powder handy. Apply to the soles of your feet after your bath; sprinkle some in your shoes. It will absorb moisture. It may be the chemical deposits of perspiration that are giving your feet a temperature.

Some girls always look as cool as a lettuce leaf

Don't touch up make-up. Use a thin cream and remove the old before you make a fresh application. Passing the rouge pad over your face, putting make-up on make-up, means that you will be forcing atmospheric dust into the pores. What then? You know the answer. Blackheads! Horrid black points that destroy the appearance of your complexion and the serenity of your soul.

Avoid strong perfumes. You can get away with them, if you must use them, in the winter season, but not right now. Have an atomizer filled with eau de cologne. These delightful perfumes are inexpensive and you can use them lavishly. Spray neck, chest and arms after the bath. They have nice, fresh, woodsy odors and they "smell cool".

Protect your complexion. It can stand just so much exposure to strong sunlight, and no more. Don't forget that your hair can become sunburned, the same as your skin, so put a little brilliantine on the bristles of your brush.

Take a backward look, lady

With bare-top formals still raging like a house afire, the amalgamated association of beauty seekers—we're all members of that fellowship—is giving plenty of attention to neck, shoulders and arms. Right out in the open, they must be above criticism. But what about backs? Unless you have a full-length mirror, perhaps you have never given a thought to yours. Sometimes, when a woman is sauntering along the buyways, intent on lugging home a pack of dry goods, she gets a glimpse of her rear portions in a store window.

There may be a sort of barrel curve to the top portion and that straight, slim look is absent. Absent also may be the neat nip-in at the waistline that makes a girl's figure look cute. It is a matter which should have the attention of all who want to march in the style parade and retain their youthful shapes.

A beautiful back is a good-looks asset. It must not be too plump; it must not show even a shadow of the spinal column. The surface should be of good coloring, satin-smooth; most important of all the back should be held properly. Let the shoulders fall forward and body balance is lost. The area just south of the napeline may assume an ugly little roll or hump, and if anything will make the figure look older, you tell me, because I do not know.

7-27
Distributed by King Features Syndicate

Calesthenics will do wonders

By keeping the spinal column extended full length, the torso will assume natural, graceful lines. The chest will lift; the abdominal muscles will retire, instead of bulging; the arms will have an easy pose; and the head will be carried in a regal manner. Such a little thing, yet it isn't done by the majority of women. That is why one so seldom sees a feminine frame that has grace and beauty.

To restore the youthful contour of the back, assume the correct standing position; inhale as you square your arms; place the hands upon the inside of the opposite elbow; arch the body forward and downward and swing your arms against your knees. The lower the downward motion of the arms, the better effect upon the muscles of your back. Anything that tends to develop and strengthen the muscles of the back will make for a more youthful silhouette.

The business girl who sits all day, and the saleswoman who stands a good deal, are likely to assume faulty postures that in time will destroy the perfect alignment of the back and the symmetry of the body. That is why they should have plenty of exercise, preferably out of doors.

Three minutes of calesthenics night and morning will do wonders. Stand tall, arms outstretched on a line with the shoulders, and turn from inside to side pivoting at the waistline.

Windsor Union Endorses Stand Against Reds

Windsor, Ont., July 21 —(CP) —A stand against communism in Canada and Korea was announced today by Local 195 United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.)

The declaration by the 11,000-member union, largest U.A.W. local in Canada, was given "heavy" endorsation at a membership meeting here last night, a union statement said.

The statement of policy:

1. Gave "whole-hearted" support to the United Nations' Korean policy.
2. Urged "stripping the mask" from the communist party "masquerading as an honest labor organization."
3. Commended the action of U.A.W. Local 600 at the Ford Motor Company in River Rouge, Mich., which demanded non-communist affidavits from its officers.
4. Condemned the Canadian Labor - Progressive (communist) party for "sabotaging our drive for our reasonable and legitimate goals."

Britain Asks Russia To Explain Act at Sea

London, July 21 — (AP) — Britain asked Russia today — through the British embassy in Moscow — to explain a high-seas drama in which Russian sailors saved a man from extradition to Britain to answer a charge of complicity in a murder

The man is Eugeniusz Stefanowicz, 23, wanted in the beating and strangling of William Dearlove, 62.

Stefanowicz left here July 15 on the Russian steamship Sestroretsk, bound for Russia by way of Stockholm. British authorities discovered his flight and cabled to have hi mpicked up in Stockholm for extradition.

Just before the ship reached Sweden, the Russian tug Neptun met the liner, took Stefanowicz aboard, and proceeded towards the Soviet Union.

Chemical Found Helpful Against Radiation

Washington, July 21 — (AP)— A chemical called "thiourea" apparently gives mice some protection against radiation death, two University of Delaware scientists reported today.

They offered no comment as to whether the chemical might protect humans against atomic bomb rays.

The chemical used by Doctors G. Limperos and W. A. Mosher is a bitter substance related to urea. They offered the theory that the compound works by protecting certain vital constituents of body cells.

TORCH STARTS FIRE

Windsor, July 21 — (CP)—Fire started by an acetylene torch caused damage estimated at several thousand dollars today at Patterson Collegiate. Firemen said the torch which was being used to weld pipe, ignited tar on the roof.

Black smoke billowed from the roof and two alarms were sounded before firemen brought the fire under control.

6,000 GUESTS AT PARTY

London, July 21—(AP)— The King and Queen entertained 6,000 guests at a Royal Garden Party yesterday. It was the second of two informal gatherings at Buckinghom Palace. The only disappointment to the guests was the non-appearance of Princess Margaret, who was confined to the Palace with a cold.

Telephone Rate Increases Now in Force

Telephone rates in Belleville, in line with rate increases granted the Bell Telephone Company more than a week ago, take a jump today. The interim increase was granted the company by the Board of Transport Commissioners and will be effective until the Board makes a final decision on the Bell application for higher rates.

Belleville is classed in rate group five, which means that in a residence, an individual line will now cost $3.15, a two-party line $2.55, a rural line $2.35 and an extension phone $1.00. On business service, the charge is now $5.25 for an individual line, $4.40 for a two-party line, $3.00 for a rural line, and $1.25 for an extension.

All rates quoted for individual, two-party and rural lines are for wall telephones. For desk telephones, there is an additional charge of 20c and for hand phones, 35c.

On long distance services, new rates will apply on calls between many points in Ontario and Quebec, with increases varying from .05c to 25c.

More Time Lost Through Strikes

Ottawa, July 22 — (CP — Time loss in June due to strikes and lockouts was slightly higher than in May although number of workers involved was considerably lower, the Labor Department said yesterday.

For the first six months of this year, preliminary figures show 73 strikes and lockouts, involving 16,259 workers and a time loss of 159,572 days. For the corresponding 1949 period, there were 66 strikes with 20,898 workers involved and a time loss of 671,732 days.

June figures show 27 strikes and lockouts, involving 2,781 workers with a time loss of 30,152 working days, compared with 23 work stoppages in May, when 3,488 workers were involved and time loss was 23,874 days. In June 1949, there were 28 strikes and lockouts, involving 11,511 workers and a time loss of 141,197 days.

'Real War Game' Ends in Tragedy

Virnzbghuj, Minn., July 22 — (AP) — One youth was shot and killed and a second is held here without charge as result of a "real war game" the two were playing yesterday at a resort on Pelican Lake near Orr, Minn.

The dead youth was Gene Porter, 23, of St. Cloud, Minn. Held without charge is Stewart Cadham, 20, St. Paul, son of the owner of Deer Lodge resort at the northern Minnesota Lake.

Dr. J. Arnold Malmstrom, deputy coroner, said the boys were "practicing up for Korea" by firing at each other with .22-calibre rifles.

Smart Clerk Gets Pants Back

Detroit, July 22 — (AP) — Harold Butler, a pawn shop clerk, was surprised when Jesse Willis, 24, tried to dispose of a pair of trousers.

So was Willis.

The pants belonged to Butler.

Willis dashed out of the shop, pants in hand. Instead of pursuing, Butler was cagey, He watched Willis' direction of flight, then called his brother, Ernest, at another pawn shop.

The tip-off worked. When Willis tried it at Ernest's shop, he was seized.

In court Willis explained. He said he took the pants from a cleaner's delivery truck. He was held for sentencing.

$3,000 Gift to OAC

Toronto, July 22 — (CP) — A $3,000 gift was presented Friday to the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, by the Barley Improvement Association for assistance in malting-barley studies.

The gift was presented at a luncheon attended by representatives of the Ontario Brewers' Association, malting companies and O.A.C.

W. J. Doran of Timmins, chairman of the Ontario Brewers' Association made the presentation to Professor Robert Keegan, representing the College. Similar assistance in the past has been given to the Guelph College by the Barley Improvement Institute, sponsored by all brewing and malting companies in Canada.

Recognizes Son By His Big Toe

Pittsburgh, Kas., July 22 — (AP) — A man walked into Mrs. Clarence Bouret's home Thursday and called her mother.

Mrs. Bouret, who will be 84 next week, was unflustered but skeptical. "Why," she asked, "do you call me mother?" The man said he was her son, whom she hadn't seen for 47 years.

"Take off your shoe and sock," Mrs. Bouret demanded.

The visitor complied. After one look at his big toe, which matched her own peculiarly-shaped digit, Mrs. Bouret exclaimed: "Son!"

The son, Ben Bailey of Lubbock, Texas, had not visited his mother since the Christmas of 1902.

REDS FIND PROTECTION IN CROWDS

From the air as on the ground, South Koreans look like North Koreans, and military targets must often be avoided for fear of hitting innocent civilians. This air view, taken on a bombing mission from a U.S. plane shows the problem facing the crew; should the group of humanity below be considered a legitimate target? Among them are certain to be many communists. But since there are probably some U.N. sympathizers also, the perfect target is ignored and more snipers and guerrillas escape to swell the ranks of the North Korean army. — Central Press Canadian.

Summer Holidays Busiest Time of All For Caretakers Of Collegiate and City Schools

Just because school's out at Belleville Collegiate, it doesn't mean that work has stopped. To the contrary, the halls are humming with industry.

The regular janitorial staff, under building superintendent Harold Thurston, is scrubbing and cleaning each of the 54 rooms in the building, as well as the gymnasium and offices. Every room has the walls and floor scrubbed, all lockers are cleaned of the various trash left by departing students, taps are fixed.

If you wander around the corridors on soft shoes, the place is like a morgue. Paint brushes don't make much sound, but there is a lot of work being done. According to Superintendent Thurston, summertime is the busiest time of all for his three-man staff and himself. During this month, they are getting extra help from the public school staff.

No Floor Oiling

The old custom of oiling the floors in the various rooms after they have been scrubbed has been discarded, one of the men said. Instead, lye is being used in the scrub water in an effort to achieve the same effect. Oil tended to spread from the floors to the walls when it was being applied, and another method was looked for.

On the second floor, a squad of painters is working on five classrooms, completely re-decorating them. Also on that floor, a partition has been built in the library, to create another classroom.

All shower rooms have been scrubbed and painted. Both gymnasiums were scrubbed, and the floors now glisten with new coats of varnish. The smell of paint hangs in the halls from the rooms and from the entrances into the building, which are also getting a new dressing of paint.

The only things remaining now are old pop bottles, an odd running shoe, a timetable still hanging on the inside of a locker door. The program calls for complete repair of all lockers, replacing broken hooks and doors.

Superintendent Thurston said that each teacher is asked to turn in a list of things he or she would like to have done to the respective rooms during the summer, and "we try to get them all done."

Busiest Time

"Everybody thinks that we janitors have two months of holidays when the students leave, but in reality this is the busiest time of the year for us," Mr. Thurston said.

In the boiler room, a complete overhaul is being given the stoker in preparation for the coming winter months. In general, the superintendent said, the building is getting a full overhaul. Public schools are getting similar treatment.

The building hardly seems like a Collegiate at all with its muted corridors, and when Mr. Thurston was asked how it felt to be minus the students, a slow grin spread over his face, "Well, it's a treat, anyway."

OLDEST BOARDER

Vancouver — (CP) — Earlscourt, a boarding house here, has lost its star boarder. Bachelor Paul Mermette — at 92 British Columbia's oldest railway pensioner — has moved from the boarding house after 55 years continuous residence there. He will be cared for at a nursing home.

LONG TIME COMING

De Winton, Alta. (CP) — It was a long time coming, but George Sutherland of De Winton has received recognition of his sports prowess at the 1938 Empire Games in Sydney, Australia. Recently he received a certificate recognizing his establishment of an Australian record for the hammer throw. The record — 163 feet — still stands.

FINDS SUCCESS IN CANCER CURE

Dr. Roy Hertz of the National Cancer Institute of Maryland, reported to the fifth international cancer research congress in Paris that "progesterone," the female sex hormone, can dramatically shrink cancer of the cervix, one of the greatest cancer killers of women. Huge doses of the hormone proved effective with 11 out of 30 women treated, Dr. Hertz said. All of the women had advanced cervical cancer. — Central Press Canadian.

LITTLE HERCULES

Capetown — (CP) — Isak Moffet, a Basuto is the strong man of this city's dockland. "Fatty," as he is known, is only five feet, 6 inches in height, but weighs 215 pounds. He is able to lift a weight of 200 pounds with his teeth.

TO KEEP 'EM SLIM

Ogdensburg, N.Y. — (CP) — The fat cop and the big-bellied fireman will be seen here no more if Mayor Ralph J. Morissette has his way. Observing that "to many of our police and firemen have too much belly," the mayor announced the start of a physical fitness program.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

NAPANEE HERE TONIGHT!

Another act in this unpredictable drama of the diamonds sponsored by the Central Ontario Baseball League is being staged tonight at the Exhibition Grounds theatre with the Batawa Shoemen and the Napanee Athletics in the leading roles. Just whether it will be a "Midsummer Night's Dream", a "Comedy of Errors", "Love's Labor Lost", "Much Ado About Nothing" or "Alls Well that Ends Well" remains to be seen.

The "One-Run" Shoemen twisted the tail of that pesky gremlin into reverse Thursday night when they defeated the Kingston Disneys by a lone marker after again losing a heartbreaker to Smiths Falls 5-4 in a ten innings joust.

The Shoemen by tacking a defeat on the Gibbardville clan can take undisputed possession of fourth place since they are now tied with the Brockville Memes in the "clean-up" spot in the league standing. Brockville is idle tonight.

Napanee, who have not been doing so well of late shook off the shackles of defeat on Thursday night and humbled the proud Smiths Falls Royals. They not only humbled them but did it to the tap-dance rhythm of twenty-two spikes crossing the plate. The score was 11-2 and the good folk in Knotty Lee's home town haven't recovered from the shock yet.

So tonight's beans, bath and brown bread brawl should be good enough for a lusty weekend crowd since both teams tasted the sweets of victory on Thursday and will be out to make it two in a row.

DID J'EVER?

Did j'ever see a cross between an animated pretzel, a live corkscrew and a rubberized bed-spring go into softball action? No? Well you will. He'll be here on August 3rd performing with his team against the cream of the Belleville crop of softballers headed by the redoubtable Cy Barriage and loquacious Herbie Henn in the roles of manager and coach respectively.

He is one Charlie Justice, elongated master-chucker of the world famous Tip Top Tailors, world's champion softball team which is appearing at the Exhibition Grounds on that date. And Charlie heads an illustrious company of softball luminaries who last year blazed a trail of glory through the opposition to bring to Canada its first softball championship.

There's Goody Rosen, former professional baseball player, and there's Joe Spring, Eddie Geraldi and Bill Sadler who with their mates are coached by Art. Upper, a name famous in sports circles in Ontario.

The Tip Tops are being brought here by that live-wire servicce club the Optimists, young in years, but busting at the seams with enthusiasm. The Optimists, the baby service club of the city, have undertaken many worthy service projects and are of the type that are not afraid to get out there and work.

This is their first venture, we understand, in the way of sport and in bringing the Tip Tops here, are showing that they desire to give the sports public the best for its money. The world's champions will not disappoint Belleville. They are champions in the literal sense of the word and as such will play championship softball.

Sportsdom should not miss this outstanding spectacle of the softball diamond on August 3rd.

Amazing Aussie Beats Own World's Record

Seattle, Wash., July 22 (AP)—John Marshall, an Australian swimming for the New Haven (Conn.) Swimming Club, beat the world record for the mile swim for the second straight day yesterday in the A.A.U. men's outdoor swimming championships. At the same time he left a trail of seven shattered American marks.

Marshall's time today was 20:08.6, compared to his record effort of 20:09.6 in yesterday's preliminary. He already has a 19:49.4 effort made at New Haven July 7 which will be up for submission before A.A.U. record officials next December.

Other marks he bettered today on his road to the mile title were for 550 yards; 1,000 yards; 1,000 metres, and 1,320 yards.

The women's northwest A.A.U. 110-yard freestyle title went to Irene Strong of Vancouver, Olympic performer, in 1.13.6.

What Can Fish See?

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

Since the time when man first began to fish with hook and line, there has been disagreement in the ranks of the fishermen concerning just what a fish can and cannot see.

More particularly, can a fish distinguish one color from another? Do colors register the same on the eyes of fish as they do on our eyes?

One school of thought maintains that a fish sees colors only as varying shades of black and gray. In other words, color is regarded in terms of shade intensity alone. Thus, bright blue and bright red of approximately the same shade intensity may be considered identical by a fish.

Have Color Sense

Most scientists today, whose work it is to learn as much as possible about fish, believe that fish have keen color perception and that they can differentiate between shades of color even more acutely than we can.

At the American Museum of Natural History in New York City there is an exhibit which shows the "trout's-eye view" of a pool in a trout stream, complete even to the inevitable fisherman in the background, foreshortened because of the bending of light rays in water.

This entire exhibit is in vivid color, intensified to be more brilliant than the colors actually are, no doubt to emphasize the fact that fish are something extra in the matter of color perception.

A great deal of work has been done by both professional and amateur scientists to obtain accurate data on fish and their reaction to color.

The late Gifford Pinchot actually trained a school of pan fish that lived around his boat dock in Florida to take nothing but fish food that was dyed red.

Using as a base a certain type of food, he dyed batches of it red, blue and yellow. The blue and yellow batches were then rendered unpalatable but the red batch was allowed to remain in its original edible condition.

Learned the Difference

The little fish, which at first would sample anything that was thrown to them, soon learned to eat only the red morsels and to allow the blue and yellow food to sink to the bottom untouched.

Experienced trout fishermen can relate at length instances of color preference on the part of the trout. A slight variation in shade, particularly in wet flies, spells the difference between success and failure.

Conversely, these same men will tell you just as many yarns about fish that pay no attention to color. They point to the "fancy" patterns of dry flies — creations that bear not the slightest relation or resemblance to any of the items of natural food found in a trout stream — Royal Coachman, Wickham's Fancy, and so on.

Bass follow pretty much along the same lines. Now and then they show pronounced color preferences.

One manufacturer of bass plugs will tell his friends that the orange plug, dotted with black spots, will take bass two to one over any of his other models.

Looks Good to Angler

The probabilities are that anglers select their lures according to what looks good to them, hoping that the fish will agree. From that point on it is a matter of trial and error — mostly error.

There are some colors that have considerable "fish appeal" which are ignored by anglers. Take blue, for instance.

Many times I have used bass streamers dressed completely in blue and the bass go for them in a large way.

The whole thing is rather confusing.

There are, however, a few things that we do know about color and fish.

In the matter of wet-fly construction it has been faily well established that lures made of natural, undyed materials will function better than those in which dyed materials are used.

Sub-surface light is by no means the same as ordinary, above-surface sunlight. Light rays passing through water undergo polarization and polarized light does strange things to colors.

Colors, particularly positive colors as distinguished from pastel shades, take on different appearances under light rays that are polarized or broken up.

Fish, of course, are accustomed to this reaction on natural colors. With dyed colors, however, it is anybody's guess what the under-water appearance will be and, just as important, how this alteration will react on the eye of a fish.

Surface Lures Different

In the matter of surface lures, the probabilities are that color is not particularly important. This is especially true if the lure is fished in the bright sunlight.

The fish sees the lure from beneath against the background of bright sky. This, he sees only the conformation and, perhaps, the intensity of the shades. In other words, he can distinguish a dark fly from a light fly, but that is about as far as it goes.

The same is true with surface plugs or bass bugs. The under sides of these, especially the plugs, usually are white. A bass takes these lures probably because they behave like something that looks attractive rather than because they actually resemble a familiar item of food.

On cloudy days, however, or at dawn and dusk of fair days, when light is reduced so that fish can distinguish color, then the angler had best use lures that actually do resemble things with which the fish are familiar.

Cites Experiment

Only last spring I had an interesting day experimenting with this very idea. The weather was overcast and visibility, from the standpoint of the fish, was quite good.

I had selected two flies of the same general conformation. One was decidedly of the "fancy" variety — a Coachman with some extra trimming of red floss and gold tinsel.

The other was a standard pattern — a Cahill, dressed with natural materials and according to the original pattern of Dan Cahill. A hatch of insects was drifting and this fly resembled them quite closely.

Using the fancy fly, I fished the likely spots. At least a dozen times trout rose, took a close look, and returned to the bottom.

Allowing the fish to rest while I returned to the bank, tied on the Cahill and smoked a cigarette, I would then wade out and drift the natural imitation over the fish. Nine of them came up and took the Cahill without hesitation.

Say what you will, color is very important under certain conditions.

BEVIN RUMORS DENIED

London, July 22 —(Reuters)— A fresh crop of rumore that Prime Minister Attlee intends to replace Ernest Bevin as foreign secretary was authoritatively denied yesterday.

These continuing rumors appear to disregard the fact that Bevin is one of the gib three of the Labor government and party, with an immense following in the Labor and trade union movement.

Picton Loses To Brockville By 11-3 Score

Brockville, July 22 (CP)—Behind the steady pitching performance of Hank Dul, Brockville Memos trounced Picton McFarland's 11-3 here Friday night in a Central Ontario Baseball League game.

Jimmy Proctor, with two doubles and a single and Clare Seeley who knocked out two doubles paced the 13-hit Memo batting attack. Dul gave up nine hits and was never in trouble after the third inning.

Line score:

Picton 100 020 00— 3 9 3
Brockville 002 620 1x—11 13 1

Brantford Sox Sock Stratford For 17-4 Win

By The Canadian Press

There must be some connection between that name "Red Sox" and the ability to wallop the hide off a baseball.

Brantford Red Sox, taking a leaf from their Boston namesakes' book, sprayed base-hits all over their home park Friday night in defeating Stratford Nationals 17-4. Sox sluggers smashed 19 hits off three Nat pitchers, nine of them for extra bases.

Between them, the two intercounty first-division teams collected 30 safeties, but Branford picner-manager Bob Whitcher spaced 11 Stratford hits effectively and was never in danger of losing his lead.

Jim Burns and centrefielder Anderson of Sox paced the hitting spree, Burns with a triple, double and three RBI's and Anderson with two triples and four runs driven home.

Waterloo Tigers and Galt Terriers did their best to give each other the ball game in a comedy of 11 errors in Waterloo. Galt finally outdid the Tigers, committing three errors in the eighth inning to hand the league-leaders the ball game 6-5.

Terriers sported a 5-4 margin going into the eighth, but their thee miscues plus a single by Larry Archambault and a triple by Augie Herchenratter blew the game. Jack Griffin, Waterloo relief pitcher, was credited with the victory.

In Guelph, the struggling Maple Leafs came within an ace of tying up their contest with London Majors in the last of the ninth, but two batters left the equalizing run stranded. Majors won 3-2.

Oscar Judd, just appointed Leaf playing-coach, stroked a run-scoring single in the ninth. But he was left holding the bag as the next two batters went down in order. Joe Bechard continued his heavy clouting for Majors batting in two runs on three singles.

A wide-open game at St. Thomas saw the hometown Legionnaires nose out Kitchener Legionnaires 10-9 after three hours of play. St. Thomas shot into an early lead, but nearly blew it in the last two innings when Kitchener rallied for six runs.

Manager Tommy Irwin paced the winners' attack on three Kitchener pitchers with four hits, including a double. Doc Doherty was credited with the win, and young Yank Lipka with the loss.

LIGHTED LANES

Montreal —(CP)— City Councillor Max Seigler is campaigning here for lights in city lanes. Seigler says he believes that better lighting at the rear of homes, commercial and industrial premises would not only help reduce crime, but would actually prevent night marauders from carrying out their robbery plans.

Johnny Mize Lifts Magic Wand And the Yankees Claw Tigers For a Smashing 14-5 Victory

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The big cat is on the prowl again.

Johnny Mize, who terrorized National League pitching for so many years, is blasting away as of old for the New York Yankees in their American League pennant bid.

Big Jawn, who a short while ago was on the brink of drawing his release, has hit a fantastic .867 for his last four games. He began to purr against St. Louis Tuesday and has banged out 13 hits in 15 trips—including five home runs—since then.

Mize's amazing performance has raised his batting from 119 points from .258 to .377.

Mize ascended the heights of his comeback last night as he belted out two homers, a pair of singles and drove in five runs to lead the Yanks to a smashih victory over the pace-setting Detroit Tigers in the opener of a vital three-game series at the Yankee Stadium.

The overwhelming triumph, witnessed by 62,823 fans, cut the Tigers' lead over the Yanks to 1½ games. The Yanks can assume the lead by winning today and Sunday.

Mize, who took over the fourth slot in the batting order when Joe DiMaggio became ill, was kept in that position against the Tigers. Manager Casey Stengel dropped DiMaggio to fifth. The move paid off as DiMaggio clubbed three singles and a double. It marked the second time since DiMaggio took over the clean-up spot from Lou Gehrig in 1939 that he has batted other than fourth for the Yanks.

Race Tightens

Meanwhile, the pennant race in the National League also tightened as Philadelphia Phils tied St. Louis Cardinals for the lead.

The Phils, behind the eight-hit pitching of rookie Bubba Church, beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-1. Eddie Waitkus scored three of the victors' runs and Dick Sisler drove home two. Ralph Kiner accounted for Pittsburgh's lone run with his 28th homer in the eight inning.

St. Louis dropped a 5-4, 11-inning decision to the New York Giants. An error by Eddie Miller allowed Alvin Dark to score from third with the winning run.

The third-place Boston Braves remained a game off the pace by dropping a 4-3, 13-inning game to Chicago Cubs. Bill Serena singled home Andy Pafko from second with the payoff run, spoiling Johnny Sain's bid for his 13th victory.

Brooklyn's fourth-place Dodgers moved to within two games of the co-leaders by trouncing Cincinnati Reds, 7-1. Veteran Preacher Roe tamed the Redlegs on eight hits to pick up his 12th victory.

Little Con Marrero prevented Cleveland from gaining ground in the American League chase, as he pitched Washington Senators to a 3-2 victory over the third-place Indians.

Boston powerful Red Sox pounded the St. Louis Browns into the dust, 7-4. Dom DiMaggio and Birdie Tebbets featured Boston's 12-hit attack with home runs.

Philadelphia Athletics edged Chicago White Sox 7-6, in 10 innings. Sam Chapman singled home the deciding run off Ken Holcombe, fifth Chicago pitcher.

Now What, A Super Cup For Hockey?

Toronto, July 22 — (CP) —The Allan Cup's future doesn't appear too bright today.

It's a battle-scarred veteran of 42 years in the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and may be heading for a "semi-retirement" role—as far as Canada's rough-and ready senior puck-chasers are concerned.

Its successor has been identified only as a "super" trophy. And there's been no inkling as to a would-be donor.

It all started at the C.A.H.A. annual meeting at Banff, Alta., last month. The idea will be considered by the association's executive at a meeting and its recommendation will be presented to provincial officials today.

If the new cup is accepted by provincial officials, it will mean the power-packed senior clubs will shoot for the "super" cup, while weaker clubs will go after the Allan Cup. Clubs in the "super" class will come from various points in western Canada, Ontario Quebec and the Maritimes.

The idea hasn't been welcomed by all club or league officials.

The British Columbia Amateur Hockey Association turned thumbs down on it last week. Officials said they are opposed to segregation of the wealthier clubs and added that President Gerry Thompson of Trail will cast a "no" vote at the executive meeting. The Western Canada Senior Hockey League has also decided against the move.

A new contract system also is in line for discussion. The contract says Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, "should help knit things even closer" between the C.A.H.A. and N.H.L. It will have a draft clause and players salaries will be stated on the form, similar to the N.H.L. system.

Bateman Motors Edge Bakelite In 9-8 Game

Bateman Motors two-run rally in the bottom of the ninth inning fell just short of tying the ball game last evening as the Motormen absorbed a 9-8 beating from Bakelite in a Commercial Softball League B game at the Alemite Field.

The win left the Bakelite crew solidly entrenched in second place in the league standing while Bateman's settled more firmly into fifth place.

Bakelite went after their runs early in the contest counting once in the first when Littlejohn reached second on a two-base error to the rightfielder, took third on a passed ball, and came home on Ray Burley's single to right field. They added four more in the second on walks to Lawn and Powers, Littlejohn's home run, a single by Ray Burley, an error and a fielder's choice. A double by Lawn and an error to the shortstop gave Bakelite another counter in the third.

Bateman's counted three runs on a single, two walks, two errors and two fielder's choices in the bottom of the first and added one in the second on pitcher Ray Hedger's double and an error to the third baseman.

Bakelite struck for two runs in the seventh on Gord Cook's single and Ernie Cousins' home run to take a four-run lead.

Bateman's replied with two tallies in the bottom of the seventh on a double by Jud Semark, and a triple by Brown.

Bakelite pushed over their winning run in the top of the ninth, when Cook, who had singled, reached third on passed balls coming home on a fielder's choice

Bateman's rallied in the bottom of the ninth with Jud Semark and Brown getting to second and third with no one out. Callaghan doubled to score both runners and then languished on second as Hatfield struck out. O'Brien went down short to first and Hedger popped to the third baseman.

Hedger went all the way in a losing cause for Bateman's, walking four, striking out four, and giving up 10 hits for nine runs.

Burtch was credited with the win for Bakelite, going all the way walking two, striking out four, and being nicked for 11 hits and eight runs.

Line Up:

Bakelite — E. Littlejohn, 3b; Burley ss; Cook lf; E. Cousins c; Peever cf; Lawn rf; Powers 1b; Arnott 2b; Burtch p.

Bateman Motors — Thompson cf; replaced by John Semark in 2nd.; Bone c; Graham 2b; Jud Semark 3b; Brown lf; Callaghan 1b; Hatfield ss; O'Brien rf; Hedger p.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, July 22 — (AP) — On a recent inspection trip, Jack Sheehan, boss of Chicago Cubs' farm system, saw Springfield move into first place, Spindale (N. Maybe instead of sending players to their farms, the Cubs should send Sheehan . . . Ray Welbourne, who is running a mid-summer ski meet at Laconia, N. Weird Golf Features Play In Semi-Final

By W. R. WHEATLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Saskatoon Golf and Country Club, July 22—(CP)—Anyone who has carefully figured his ticket for today's Canadian Amateur Golf Final may well toss it to the prairie winds.

Based on yesterday's semi-final display—perhaps the weirdest in the 46-year-old history of the competition—anything can happen when Nick Weslock of Windsor, Ont., meets Bill Mawhinney of Vancouver in the 36-hole match play final.

In a generous sense, form was followed. Nick defeated Vern Mohs of Edmonton, 6 and 4—not an unexpected result. Mawhinney and Jerry Kesselring of Kitchener, Ont., both 21-year-old former Canadian Junior champions, put on the real dog-fight of the day. The lead shifted about in bewildering fashion until Bill finally outlasted Jerry, 2 and 1.

But the process of achieving these decisions was something to behold. The golf was good, poor and terrible.

Even the reliable Nick contributed his share to the general floundering, firing into the woods and hooking shots.

High winds whipped the course, but the same winds have been in evidence practically through the week-long tournament.

An analysis of the play gives this illuminating information.

For the distance played, the usually-brilliant Weslock was 10 over par on his 32 holes of medal play. Mawhinney, a studious tactician in golf, was 13 over for 35 holes. Surprisingly, Mohs, who took the worst trouncing, ranked next with a 14-over display and Kesselring had a shuddering 17 over.

Weslock had 14 pars, 12 over pars and six birdies; Mawhinney 15 pars, 16 over pars and four birdies; Kesselring 12 pars, 18 over pars and five birdies; Mohs 15 pars, 15 over pars and two birdies.

Then It Started

Kesselring got the jump on Mawhinney and appeared headed for a semi-final berth with a two-hole lead at the end of the 18-hole morning round. He grabbed the first two holes, lost them, and got them back. His most miserable display was at the ninth where he got into a trap and fired monotonously back and forth across the green.

Starting the afternoon round Kesselring puts of 30 and 18 inches and then got into another trap to lose the lead.

Mawhinney then took a hand in the queer exhibition and as late as the 29th hole the match was all square. Here, Mawhinney fired two shots out of bounds. He won the 31st with a par three and the 32nd where Kesselring resorted to his ninth-hole performance.

Jerry tried to get things under control by taking the 34th with a birdie, but on the 35th his tee shot went to the edge of the first fairway and he needed a five to get down against Mawhinney's four.

As for Mohs, he never knew when he was licked by the 32-year-old Windsor stylist. He was five down at lunch and eight down after the 26th but kept fighting.

Weslock, as if puzzled, suddenly began shooting far off line. He drove into the woods at the 27th, played a provisional ball and lost the hole. He hooked two at the 29th and surrendered the 30th when he went one over par.

Yuke Was Sleepy, Yes, Egad Saucy Aussie Gets The Nod

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Referee Bert Maxwell may be a house dick in Toronto but he should take a course in a draper's shop, if you know what we mean.

For last night's brawl between the Australian powerhouse Fred Atkins and the Alaskan slow-motion iceberg Yukon Eric was settled by a matter of inches.

Maxwell swore that the big lumberjack from the land of Robert W. Service had his shoulders pinned to the mat in the third fall of the brawl, but the Yuke swears that he raised hismelf from the canvas and his swelling muscles rolused to come up with the lift.

That is, he is like the guy with the little feet and big shoes who had to take a step before the boots budged.

That is the Yuke's story but the pudgy Maxwell told us that his shoulders were, "that much", measuring two fingers, splayed out on the canvas under the snarling, growling carcass of the rock from down under.

And that much, according to the Maxwellian standards, is a lot when it comes to measuring the torso of the Alaskan. Because he is built like a cross between a sleeping elephant, a puncheon and the old rain-water barrel. It is almost impossible to spread-eagle him on the canvas and the foeman needs an arm-spread like an Arab blanket in order to pin the huge-torsoed gent from the walrus wilds.

Interesting? Yes

Otherwise it was an interesting go with the faithful getting a huge rise out of the Alaskan's antics when occasionally he tossed the arrogant Aussie aside as though he were a minute particle of dandruff on his shoulder.

But the Atkins was a tough nut to crack and used his speed afoot to elude the bearlike approach of the Yuke. It was the first time we have seen Atkins move as though there were a couple of cops behind him and he had good reason to. And after being kissed good night, at least it looked like that from our perch on the third rafter north, the Australian who is not a bad looking character when he is out of character, if you can follow that, was quite content to straddle the ropes until the leering Alaskan was semaphored into retreat, by a brave but reckless Maxwell.

However it did so happen that the Australian found himself rocking like a canoe on an ocean wave about 20 minutes after the opening gun had fired and feeling three timid pecks on the back decided he had won the fall. He had.

Couple of Pals

But, dear kiddies, it was different in the next waltz. Yukon, his eyes blazing like his favorite Aurora Borealis, slowly strode to the centre of the ring. The cocky confident Atkins essayed a tackle or so and then hit something which might as well have been the wall of the Arena.

He flooled and he flailed but the icebergian Gargantuan from the land of the midnight sun enveloped him in what was anything but a lover's embrace—and just like that, kiddies, it was all over.

That evened matters for the nonce. Came the third fall and in some manner unknown to science or the constitution of the College of Applied Pachydermy, Atkins found himself aboard the good ship Yukon, rocking gently to and fro while Referee Maxwell was trying to locate the anchor. He did eventually, and apparently being in a mood to call it a day he buried his arm to the elbow in the Yuke's shoulder, reached up to knock a mosquito off his balding noggin, hit Atkins by mistake and the brawl was over. It was good clean fun and the large crowd including the Ontario Intelligencer newsboys enjoyed it.

Warren Bockwinkle and Ray Villmer staged an outstanding show in the semi-final. It was fast clean wrestling and a fitting appetizer to the main joust. Frank Schofor and Seelie Samara, a huge Negro battled in the opener with the latter getting the nod.

Bob McFarlane May Quit Cinder Path

Teddy Morris, who coached Toronto Argonauts to three Dominion football championships, announced his resignation Friday as manager of Argos and said he will coach Toronto Balmy Beach seniors of the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

Morris was appointed manager of Argos last winter after resigning as coach when the Toronto Big Four entry finished out of the league playoffs two years in succession.

In his new job, Morris replaces Don (Shanty McKenzie) last year's playing coach, who this season is trying out for a line position with Argonauts.

Morris was succeeded as Argo coach by Frank Clair, former coach of the University of Buffalo.

In an interview today, Morris said he is leaving the Big Four club under amicable circumstances and is happy about his new job.

Carlisle Hanover, owned by A. P. McNiven, of Ecorse, Mich., won the fifth dash and finished third in the eighth to take the major event of the $1,000 feature event at Thorncliffe raceway in Toronto Friday.

In the eighth, Carlisle Hanover was shuffled back in the early pacing and, although he came with a rush through the stretch, he couldn't catch Tom C. Gratton or Count Hanover, who finished second.

Carlisle Hanover paid $9.25 in winning his dash and Tom C. Grattan, overlooked in the betting, paid $24.80 in the eighth. Tom paid $1315 to place and $16.40 to show.

One of the greatest track stars ever produced in Canada—Bob McFarlane—may quit the sport after the greatest year in his career, but the lure of the cinder paths may again get him back into competition for the 1952 Olympics.

Big Bob said Friday that he was all through with track, and that from here in he would concentrate on his career in medicine.

In his hint that he may retire, Bob had some good news for WWestern football fans. He said that he hoped to try again for a place on Johnny Metras' intercollegiate football club.

The Hamilton Tiger-Cats said Friday night they'll go to court before they surrender Jackie Stewart and Earl Valiquette to Edmonton Eskimos.

"We'll take it to court," general manager C. Voyles said when told that manager Al Anderson of Edmonton had said Valiquette and Stewart must play in Edmonton this year or quit football.

Voyles insisted the two players had signed contracts with the Tiger-Cats before signing Canadian Rugby Union certificates Edmonton Eskimos.

Jinx Confronts Champion Noor In Rich Race

Inglewood, Calif., July 22 — (AP)—Weight, a gray flier from the Argentine and an old jockey jinx confronted Mrs. Charles S. Howard's Noor today as he faced four rivals in the $50,000 American Handicap at Hollywood Park.

Upwards of 50,000 fans were expected to turn out for the final day of the summer racing program at the scenic track, and the Irish importation, Noor, was both the big attraction and the question mark.

Named to race against Noor over the mile-and-one-quarter route were the Argentine horse, Miche, racing for Mrs. John P. Adams of San Jose, Calif.; old Rockport, owned by Clifford Mooers of Texas and Kentucky Dharan, of the Silver Creek Ranch at Santa Barbara, Calif.; and Frankly, the pride of Frank Krankel of Houston, Tex.

The time was opportune for an upset, most observers agreed before the race. But there was firm belief it would take a surprising twist of fate for Noor to lose.

There was the weight, however. Noor, at 132 pounds—five more than he ever carried—had to give 20 pounds to Miche, and the fellow from the Pampas was rated as a weight margin been closer. solid challenger even had the Noor had to give away even more pounds to the others, including 30 pounds to Dharan, the flyweight of the field.

There's where the jinx figure entered. Little Nick Hall was flown from New York to ride Dharan, and the mighty mite has a long record of upsetting the stars of the Howard stable.

Noor entered today's American with four successive victories over the Calumet king, Citation. A new $32,500 awaited the winner.

Upsets Feature Lacrosse Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

Action was fast and furious in the Ontario Lacrosse Association series Friday, with upsets being the feature of the night.

Hamilton Tigers, paced by a brilliant one-man show by Captain Blain McDonald, outfought the league - leading Owen Sound Crescents 6-5 in Owen Sound. McDonald rapped home four Tiger goals, and assisted on another. It was Crescents' third loss in 16 games, and it maintained the hot winning streak posted by the Tigers in recent weeks. The game was a hard-fought, close-checking affair, with Tigers collecting 22 penalties.

In the second upset of the night, the rapidly - rising Mimico Mounties toppled the second-place Peterborough Petes 7-6 before 2,000 Peterborough fans. A fourth-quarter goal by Ken Dixon broke up a 6-6 tie and gave Mounties the nod.

Petes came back to storm the Mimico net, but tight defensive play held them off. Two - goal performers included Denny Peterson of Mounties and Dootch Vitarelli and Arn Rugan of Petes.

St. Catharines Athletics staged their usual hard-driving finish to pot eight fourth-quarter goals and gain a 17-10 win over Weston Lions in the garden city.

The game started slowly, and not until the third quarter, with Athletics ahead 8-6 did things liven up. The last period was a thriller from beginning to end. Ken Croft paced St. Kitts with four goals, three of them in less than two minutes of the fourth frame. Ted Downer bagged four goals for the losers.

Ho-Ho-Hum, Leafs Again Lay an Egg

By The Associated Press

Carl Erskine, the 23-year-old righthander who won eight games and lost only one for the Dodgers last season, found himself shipped to Montreal this year after a brief trial and an 0-0 record.

Young Erskine set out to show the Dodger higher-ups it was all a mistake. The going was tough at first but the stocky 165-pounder finally appears sraightened out. He was a 7-6 record and a four-game winning streak.

Erskine also is working a string of three straight shutouts.

He blanked Toronto 6-0 last night. Earlier he had shut the Leafs out 1-0 and Rochester 6-0. He checked Toronto on four hits last night, striking out 13 batters and walking three.

George Schmees, with three hits, helped Erskine win No. 7. Jack Brittin suffered his sixth loss.

Triples by Ed Mierkowicz and Don Richmond in the eighth inning gave Rochester a 5-3 victory over Buffalo. Ed Yuhas gained his 10th victory.

Jersey City, behind George Spencer's five-hitter, whipped Syracuse 7-1. Chet Laabs paced the Little Giants' 13-hit attack with two singles and a home run —his 20th.

Springfield and Baltimore divided a doubleheader, and the Orioles fell thee full games behind league leading Rochester. Baltimore won the nightcap 8-2 after Springfield captured the opener 6-5.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Batting, John Mize, Yankees: Clubbed two homers and two singles, driving home five runs, in a 14-5 romp over Detroit.

Pitching, Sal Maglie, Giants: Hurled New Yorkers to 5-4, 11-inning win over Cardinals.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS)
Hollywood, July 22 — (AP) —

Shooting a picture in India is great fun — if you don't mind riots, sweltering heat, deadly snakes and cows that bite.

That's the word I get from Tommy Breen, handsome young actor just returned from making "The River," near Calcutta.

"It was a great experience," said Breen, the lad who gave Jane Powell her first screen kiss in "Luxury Liner" and appeared in several other M.G.M. films. Among the drawbacks of filming in India there were the religious riots.

"We didn't actually see any trouble," he said. "But there were times when he were told to stay indoors. And for a few weeks we were driven to locations in jeeps armed with Tommy-guns.

"It was between 105 and 108 part of the time. The humidity was about 90 per cent. Under the hot lights needed for color film, the heat rose to about 115."

Great Snakes!

"One day I was walking through the jungle and I saw a little snake about eight inches long. It was no bigger than an over-size worm and I stepped on it. The natives scrambled through the brush. It turned out to be one of the deadliest snakes in India.

"Once I was walking through the streets of the city and a cow reached out and bit me on the thigh. I started to kick the beast, but I realized that the Hindus all around me considered it sacred. I was outnumbered — about 300,000,000 to one — so I restrained myself."

Despite these factors, Breen said the Indian adventure was a worth-while experience. "The River" company took along a few technicians, mostly Britons, and relied on native help for the rest.

AT THE McCARTHY — Broderick Crawford as Willie Stark, featured in "All The King's Men", closing today at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

AT THE DRIVE-IN MONTANA

Starring Errol Flynn and Alexis Smith

Montana in 1879 is dominated by greedy cattle barons whose monopoly is challenged by Errol Flynn, Australian sheepherder seeking new pasturage for his flocks. Masquerading as a cattleman, he persuades Alexis Smith, wilful owner of a large ranch, to lease him some of her land. In the process Flynn runs afoul of Alexis' fiance, Douglas Kennedy, leader of the cattlemen. Alexis swears revenge when she learns Flynn deceived her, but Flynn herds his sheep onto the land he leased from her. Kennedy is trampled to death when he and his gang start a cattle stampede to block the sheep; then Alexis, brandishing a gun, fires point-blank at Flynn, injures him and then gathers him into her arms as vengeance turns into love.

AT THE CAPITOL — "House by the River," Republic picture which will be the Capitol Theatre's next offering, stars Louis Hayward and Jane Wyatt in an unusual, suspense-laden melodrama. The film starts at the Capitol Monday for its first city showing. On the same program thrills in "Prison Warden," starring Warner Baxter.

Ma was eating her graptfruit diet this morning, saying to pop, I'm thinking of going downtown today, I wonder if I'll have to take my umbrella, but I dont fancy being cawt in the rain without one. That's the other side of the picture. Maybe I'll take a chance and leave it home. Or maybe I better take it, I don't know, she said.

My dear, you sound like Justin Case, pop said, and ma said, Who? I never heard of him.

Haven't I ever told you about Justin Case? pop said. He could never make up his mind about anything. He fell in love with a gerl, and the evening he decided to propose to her he lost so mutch time trying to decide which necktie to wear that he arrived at the gerl's house an hour late and learned that the infuriated gerl had just eloped with a chap who never wore anything but sports sherts with open collars. Well my dear, Justin Case was all broken up. He went rite home again and decided to kill himself, but he couldn't make up his mind whether to shoot himself, tern on the gas or take poison. Trying to decide the question he tossed and terned in his bed, he smoked 50 cigarettes, in nerviss indecision. At last he fell asleep and the 50th cigarette set fire to the house and Justin Case was rescued with his nightshert blazing. The shock gave him a nerviss breakdown, and he recovered from it with his memory compleetly gone. He is now happy for the ferst time in his life because he cant remember anything long enough to change his mind about it. He makes a modest living as a waiter Of course he gets everybody's order wrong, but that's normal with waiters, pop said.

ONCE-OVER FOR BETSY

Former Wrens who served with the Canadian Navy during the war are planning their first national reunion in Toronto, with Lt.-Cmdr. L. D. M. Saunders, staff officer of H.M.C.S. York. Traditional navy hospitality was limited to iced tea. From left to right are, front row: Norma Wright, Toronto; Peggy Muntz, Hamilton; and Judy Price, Toronto. Back row: Betty Highman, Assiniboia, Sask; Muriel Perkins and Jane Woodruff, both of Toronto. — (CP Photo.)

Mental Hospital Not Institution But Cure Centre of Modern Type

By ROD CURRIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Halifax — (CP) — The number of patients admitted annually to Nova Scotia's mental hospital has almost doubled in the past two decades, but this sharp increase is not regarded by authorities as an indication that mental illnesses are increasing.

Dr. Murray McKay, medical superintendent of the Nova Scotia hospital at nearby Woodside, says although the increase has been greater than the increase in population there are other factors that account for the jump.

"Today there are many mild cases of mental illness treated in the hospital that 20 years ago would have been neglected," he said. "People have become educated to the fact that many sufferers can be treated and fully cured."

Efficient Treatment

He said, also, that the great turnover of patients is somewhat due to the efficiency of modern treatment, one of the most important of which is insulin therapy.

The rambling hospital, situated on park-like grounds on the eastern shore of Halifax harbor, is regarded as one of the most modern and best-managed institutions of its kind in Canada.

Dr. McKay said it was encouraging that people of today understand that the modern mental hospital is not an institution for the confinement of the insane, but a place where they can be treated and cured.

In 1948 a bill was passed by the Nova Scotia legislature stating that "all residents of Nova Scotia shall be treated at the Nova Scotia hospital at the expense of the department of health."

The hospital has for the first time in its 65-year history reached a position where it can teach psychiatry.

Dementia Praecox Cured

In a recent report Dr. McKay said that more institutional beds are occupied in Nova Scotia by dementia praecox patients than by patients suffering any other disease—including tuberculosis.

"The number of cases treated successfully is limited," he said, "by the tragic fact that the vast majority of them are not recognized or sent for treatment until it is too late."

Many Patients Helped

In a one-year period 56 patients were given insulin therapy treatment, and all but six improved. Twenty-five fully recovered.

The treatment must be extensive, thorough and carried out over a considerable period of time and a high proportion of staff to the number of patients treated is required.

A staff of some 85 nurses, both male and female, is maintained at this hospital which has had a nurses training school for 50 years

An occupational therapist is employed and this work is considered an essential part of the treatment. On the staff also is a social service worker who investigates the background and home life of the patient before treatment

Many patients engage in "outside work" as part of their occupational therapy. They work on the hospital's huge farm, in the greenhouse, and help maintain the lawns and roads.

TAR BABY

Lea Sherwin of Vancouver was playing on the ground when a barrel of tar tilted, covering her to the waist and glueing her to the ground. Two constables cut her out with knives and took her to the hospital where a doctor and nurse, aided by a quart of ether, removed the tar. Here Lea ruefully looks in a mirror following the ordeal. — (CP Photo.)

Briefs From Britain

(By The Canadian Press)

Birmingham, England—(CP)—A harmless blue snake, 18 inches long, fell 60 feet from the roof of a store after escaping from a pets' corner. Passersby scattered until a brave spirit popped the snake into a garbage can.

St. Helen's, Lancashire, England—(CP)—Authorities will decide a dispute between Patrick Fletcher, who wants to keep two black Australian snakes in a council house, and housing manager E. Collick who says that the snake's bit can kill within an hour.

London—(CP)—Workers trimming trees for London's Bermondsey council get a raise in pay the higher they go. They receive a penny extra an hour for working from 15 to 30 feet up; two-pence at 30 to 45 feet; and threepence at 45 to 60 feet.

London—(CP)— A cricket fan gave a George III gold guinea coin to replace a ceremonial guinea stolen from Lord's cricket ground.

Skegness, Lincolnshire, England—(CP) — Two automobiles parked together formed an amusing slogan with their registration letters— G-E-T F-A-T.

London—(CP)—More than 100 game bird chicks were hatched in London zoo's electric incubators.

Rudston, Yorkshire, England—(CP)—Roman pottery believed to date from the third century has been unearthed in a nearby field.

Wellingborough, Northamptonshire, England—(CP)—The question: "Why did a swarm of bees settle on the brass instruments of the Salvation Army band" is easily answered— the bandsmen lubricate their trumpets and trombones with a sweet-smelling oil.

London—(CP)—A 22-year-old Dublin-born woman was stated at London's Marlborough Street court to have had no schooling at all, was unable to read or write and could not tell the time.

Wallingford, Berkshire, England—(CP)—Immortal to the residents of Wallingford are the names of FO. J. A. Wilding and Sgt. J. F. Andrew. In 1944 they stayed with a crippled bomb-laden plane to prevent it from crashing on the town. Both were killed. Now grateful townsfolk have named two streets on a new housing estate after them—Wilding Road and Andrew Road.

Glascow, Scotland—(CP)—Advertisement in a news agent's window: "Well-furnished flat to let with bath on the tram lines".

Stratford -on - Avon, England—(CP)—No smoking was the order of the day in a street here. Police warned that 40 gallons had leaked from a tanker carrying high octane fuel.

London — (CP) — Athletes in London's Lewisham district are asked to push elderly persons in wheel-chairs round the park occasionally.

YOUNGSTERS NAME HIPPO

Auckland, N.Z. —(CP)— After a contest among school children, a baby hippopotamus born at the Auckland Zoo was named Khama. The custom has been to name male hippopotamuses at the zoo after Zulu chiefs.

GOOD SWIMMING NEWS

Vancouver — (CP) — Vancouver swimmers got good news this year. Water temperatures are higher than they have been for years. Thermometer has climbed to 69 degrees. Average for past 10 years is 61 to 63 degrees.

CANUCK IN FAR EAST

David Streit, 19-year-old Canadian who ate his way into the United States Army, is one of the few Canadians who may see action in the Korean war. His mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Streit of Kitchener, Ont., said the last letter she received from him was written from Japan. Two years ago Streit went on an eating spree to reach minimum weight requirements when told he was too light. — (CP Photo.)

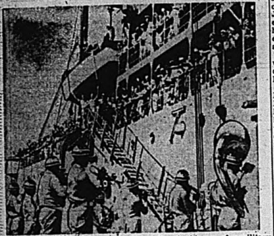
FIGHTING MEN GET GALA SEND-OFF



Reminiscent of a gala peacetime sailing is this one of a military transport, jammed with troops from a port in Japan. When this photo was taken, few knew the destination exactly, but most guessed "somewhere in Korea." The destination turned out to be Pohangdong on Korea's east coast. — Central Press Canadian.

JEEP RATES ROYAL PRAISE

The royal standard flies from the radiator of the lowly jeep as Queen Elizabeth tries out the British version, called the Landrover. Though she didn't ask for a real demonstration of its roadworthiness, Her Majesty expressed surprise at its comfort and manoeuvrability. —Central Press Canadian.

TRAFFIC JAM ON KOREAN ROADS

There are no super-highways in South Korea and the narrow roads are jammed with military vehicles of all descriptions as U.S. troops and equipment are rushed to advance positions. Here is a typical scene on a road leading to the front. — Central Press Canadian.

The Gentle Heart

By Kay Hamilton

Natalie had even forgotten that Brent was coming until she saw the dinner preparations, yet she could sound as if she had been living for this moment. While Jenny, who had carried the happy knowledge around with her all day, had sounded stiff and formal. She bit her lip in vexation, but her innate good nature reasserted itself in a moment and she was able to smile at her own disquietude. When she saw Diane coming down, she said, "I'll put the chops on," and went off toward the kitchen with a brisk step.

But she did not put the chops on at once. There was a tiny mirror hanging over the refrigerator, and she paused to stand on tiptoe and peer into it. If only she were beautiful like Diane, or animated like Natalie! But the face which stared back at her was too familiar for her to appreciate its unusual qualities.

It was a pointed little face, with straight serious brows and a rosy childish mouth. Her hair was neither golden like Diane's nor black like Natalie's, but a dark blond which almost toned in with the tan of her skin. Against this background her eyes were startling — a clear light blue, as intense as the color of the sky on a clear October day. Her father's eyes; while both her sisters had the large, sparkling brown eyes of their mother.

She did not realize how astounding those eyes were in her grave, young face; how expressive they could be with the quick reactions of her sympathetic nature. To her they were simply an unpleasant contrast to the monotone of skin and hair.

No, she sighed to herself as she turned away, she would never be beautiful like Diane. Nor, she had to acknowledge, would she ever possess the alluring animation of Natalie—the champagne sparkle of a brilliant personality. She was too shy, too vulnerable.

The meal was excellent. Brent groaned wth ecstasy when the veal chops came to the table. "Glory be!" he exclaimed piously. "I've been living on seafood all summer long, with an occasional hamburger to keep me from growing fins. And here comes a real piece of meat!"

Jenny chuckled. "You don't know what a near escape you had," she told him. "I was going to dash over to the shore and bring home some soft-shell crabs as a treat for you, but I missed the bus and had to get chops in Green Ridge instead."

He shook his head. "And a good thing, too. It might have been the end of a beautiful friendship." He looked over at her suddenly. "I'll bet you miss your car, don't you?"

But Jenny, although she missed the old car very much, would not say so. "Green Ridge is so small it's no trouble to walk anywhere you have to go," she said stoutly. "And we'd never have been able to make those repairs on the house without the money we got from the car."

"Well, I'm home now," he consoled her, "and if you need a lift for anything at all, you know you've only to call me. The Evans jalopy is always at your service, madam. And that reminds me," he added. "I've got the chance to do some work for the Bell Agency—it means doing a couple of paintings for submission, but I'm going to have to use models."

Jenny and Natalie said with one breath, "Bell's! Oh, Brent, how wonderful!"

"Hold your horses. I haven't got anything definite yet," he grinned at her. "But it is a chance. Harley. their art director, was in Maine this summer and came over to Citole's to see if he could lure the old man into taking on the artwork for one of their big accounts. It was worth the price of admission to hear Citole haggle. He got Harley down on his knees before the interview was over."

"Lesson number one in bickering?" Natalie asked.

"Lesson number twenty!" he retorted. "That was an advanced course and 'way beyond me. It may come in handy in thirty years from now!"

"But what about your job?" Jenny inquired eagerly.

"Well, by the time Harley had got the old man to sign on the dotted line, he was so pleased that he was feeling benign, I guess. At any rate, he said there was a bus company that was thinking of a new advertising campaign—they'd use New England scenes with a homey, quaint touch, the sort of thing the passengers might see from their bus windows, you know."

"Yes, once in a million years!" Natalie laughed.

"You said it! Still, he seemed to think from some of the sketches I had made there that I could handle it. So I'm to have the chance."

Jenny could see that underneath Brent's casual manner, as he told of his opportunity, he was deeply stirred. And she knew, as few people could know, just what such a chance meant in the field of illustration. Hadn't her father, Jerome Mayhew, been one of America's finest illustrators? Hadn't his family lived with him through each opportunity, each discouragement, each accomplishment

She leaned toward Brent now, with real inner excitement. "It could turn out to be a big thing, Brent," she said.

"Don't I know it! That's why I'm so anxious to do it right. But I've got to have models; I've got to have special lighting. This job will be going on right into the cold weather, maybe, and while I have enough outdoor sketches, and most of my research, I'll need a real studio for the final work."

Natalie said thoughtfully, "That's right. Your place over Jessup's would never do. Too small. How about the big storeroom he has in the back? The one he never uses?"

"I thought of that, first thing," he said with a rueful smile. "But Jessup has been busy this summer while I was gone. The housing shortage has finally dawned on him, and he's turned the place into a two-room apartment. The people are moving in the first of October."

"Why, I didn't know that," Jenny said with great surprise. In a town as small as Green Ridge, one usually knew everything that was going on. But it had been a hot summer, and she had seldom ventured out unless she had to, happy in her quiet domestic round at home.

"How about one of Hazeltine's friends? Couldn't you sublet from one of them?" she asked.

"I thought of that, too," Brent answered her. "But most of them have doubled up already, and none of them is really rich enough to have the sort of studio I'm going to need."

He took a deep breath. "What I'm driving at," he said abruptly, "is that I'd like to rent working space in your studio, Natalie. For long enough to get this job done. I wouldn't be underfoot too long. If it flops, well, that's that. Though they'll pay me, of course. But if it goes over, I'll be able to rent something big for myself."

He looked at the three of them expectantly. Diane, of course, had her own home now, but she still was part owner of the house. Jenny looked pleased. Natalie — the one who would probably have the final say-so since she was the one who worked in the studio— was thoughtful. It was Natalie whom he watched now.

She said, suddenly aware of their questioning tyes upon her, "Well, why not? My work doesn't take up so much room, and if I had some help I could clear my things over to one end and leave you the main body of the room. Everything's scattered about now, of course. But textile designing doesn't take nearly as much space as illustration." She said, on the same breath. "Have you any bad habits when you work?"

"Well, I smoke some, but I don't turn the air blue," Brent said. "And sometimes I whistle. But you could shut me up in a hurry. I don't know when I'm doing it." He added, "I could pay you forty a month."

Natalie glanced quickly and Jenny nodded. The youngest of the three girls had had charge of the finances by common consent ever since their father's death two years before. If Jenny thought forty dollars was enough, there would be no argument. But Natalie said, "You'd have to supply any fancy lighting that was necessary, although you're welcome to use anything of Dad's that's around."

It was settled. Brent was jubilant. "That's swell! You've no idea what a load this is off my mind! Now I can really get to work When do you want me to move your traps?" he asked Natalie.

"Don't push me!" She held up her hands in protest. "I just sold four designs today to Cochrane's, and there's the chance of a fifth if I make a few alterations. It's Rush, so I'll have to have a day or two to finish that."

"Cochrane's!" Brent was admiring. "Say, they're tops! You are getting places, Nat!"

Natalie was pleased at his praise, and the talk drifted into "shop" while Jenny took away the plates and brought in the desert, a fluffy Spanish cream, and the pot of steaming coffee.

"Mmm, that smells good!" Brent interrupted himself to say appreciatively. "Nobody in the world makes as good coffee as you, Jen!"

Jenny went back to the kitchen in a glow. That was one of the nicest things about Brent. If there was anything at all to compliment you about, he always did it. It was a simple but infallible way of spreading pleasure through the world, she thought now, and one of the happiest traits that a man could possess.

When she came back into the dining room, Brent had turned to Diane. "Why so quiet tonight, Di? he was asking. "Missing Fred? Is he away on a trip?"

It was an innocent question and an obvious one. Why else would a new bride be dining at her sisters' home without her husband But the result was unexpected. Dianne suddenly rose to her feet, one hand pressed against her mouth.

"I can't talk about it," she choked, and fled from the room. Brent took from Jenny to Natalie and back again.

"What on earth is the matter? What did I say?" he demanded. And then, an awful though occurring to him, he cried, "Good Lord, I've been away so long I —He isn't dead, is he?"

Jenny was able to smile at that. Somehow, it made the facts seem less disturbing. It was only a falling out, after all. Nothing unalterable. Nothing as final and conclusive as death. And she could tell Brent—he was practically one of the family.

"It's nothing serious," she smiled. "They've quarreled."

The morning sun streamed into the living room, rested gently on the polished walnut and mahogany, brought new life to the faded chintz of the curtains, and highlighted the shining brass. It was always a cheerful room but in the mornings it was delightful.

Jenny paused in her dusting to admire the general effect. There was no cold, schematic design here, no charted decorators plan. The furniture had arranged itself through the years into groups as natural as the people who had used it Tables, lamps stood where they offered the most light and service: the square, rosewood piano dominated one corner; the walls were hung with pictures, lots of pictures, each one of them with a story and a meaning to the family. It was a friendly room.

When the doorbell rang, Jenny smoothed her ruffled percale apron, left the dustcloth on the mantel-piece, and went with unhurried steps to answer it. It was Fred.

CANADA MOURNS DEATH OF MACKENZIE KING

150-Mile Front Attack on Yanks Fails

Tanks Clean Up Forces of Reds Behind U.S. Lines

Planes and Ground Troops Smash Tanks Leading Reds

Tokyo, July 25—(Tuesday) —(AP) — North Korean invaders were attacking Monday all along a 150-mile front from Taejon eastward to the coastal town of Yongdok, but "continued to be repulsed" by United States and South Korean defenders, General MacArthur's headquarters reported early today.

Field dispatches described two hard assaults on separate American defence lines deep along back roads in rugged south-central Korea.

A third communist column had swept south along the west coast to Kwangju, near the southwest tip of Korea, in a broad flanking threat.

Dispatches from the front late Monday night said north Korean pressure mounted steadily all day against American lines astride the Taejon-Yongdong highway, while 20 to 30 miles northeast another drive was in progress, pronging out along three roads.

On the Yongdong front, AP correspondent Hal Boyle reported communist infantry at one time got behind advanced American positions and threw up a mortar-backed road block.

This serious threat in the area southwest of Taejon was cleaned out in two hours with the aid of American tanks and artillery, Boyle reported.

"We didn't fool with it; we sent the tanks to clean it up," he quoted an artillery commander. (This was one of the few references made to American tanks.)

Boyle added, however, that North Korean frontal pressure was still mounting, with steady artillery and mortar firing all Monday afternoon.

North and northeast of Yongdong, a force identified as the North Korean 2nd Infantry Division pushed its three-speared attack on other defending positions.

Five Red Tanks Smashed

One 2nd Division column reached Poun, 22 miles north of Yongdong and 35 miles northwest of the rail-highway hub of Kumchon.

American planes and ground troops were credited with knocking out five of the eight tanks leading about 700 red infantrymen near Poun.

The two other columns of the invading 2nd Division were reported 15 miles and 20 miles northeast of Poun on two rugged mountain trails that wind southward west of the town of Hamchang.

Air activity included a strike by mustang fighters of the Royal Australian Air Force Sunday, in which they destroyed two tanks and damaged six others. The target was not located. All the Aussie planes returned safely.

Sizeable Estate Believed Left By Former P.M.

Ottawa, July 24 — (CP) — Former Prime Minister Mackenzie King had little opportunity to amass a fortune, but is believed to have left a sizeable estate.

When he first came to Ottawa he bought some land in Kingsmere, 20 miles from Ottawa in the Gatineau Hills, where he built a summer home. It was there he died.

Through the years he added to his holdings, and at his death had about 500 acres and two houses built for winter and summer use.

In ottawa he owned the old four-storey stone home on Laurier Ave., Laurier House, willed to him by Lady Laurier, widow of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who had preceded him in the Liberal leadership.

Value of that property might not be great because of its age, but it is filled with objects of art and furniture on which antique dealers might place a high value.

Mr. King was known to have placed a great value on his paintings and furniture and art pieces, and in recent months he told a friend one of his immediate tasks was to provide a fitting distribution of them on his death.

33 U.S. Trainees Killed in Crash

Myrtle Beach, S.C., July 24 — (AP)— A big United States Air Force transport carrying National Guardsmen from war games crashed and burned near here yesterday. Thirty-three men were killed.

Minutes after the C-46 climbed from the municipal airport here en route to Nashville, it plunged into a lonely pine thicket and burst into flames.

The towering gasoline-fed fire kept rescuers at a distance and they were helpless as they watched the cremation of the Tennessee Air National Guardsmen and Air Force Reserve crew from Miami.

"It was burning to beat hell," said George Hux, undertaker who went to the scene in an ambulance. "I didn't see any need for me to stay there. There were no survivors." Everybody is being burned to a crisp."

It was hours later before Air Force men could approach the white hot remains.

Debris was scattered over a wide area.

"You couldn't tell it was a plane," reported one of the first on the scene. "Parts were blown hundreds of yards."

Capt. P. S. Wood, public information officer said the plane carried 30 passengers and a crew of three.

The doomed ship took off about 10.30 a.m., and headed for Nashville. About halfway to Conway 14 miles northwest of here, it plummeted to earth.

Special Broadcast Of Tributes Tonight

Toronto, July 24 — (CP) —The CBC will present a half-hour British broadcast of tributes to the late William Lyon Mackenzie King at 6.30 p.m. EDT tonight. Speakers will include Prime Minister Attlee.

ENRAGED SON SLAYS FATHER, TWO INJURED

Family Differences Lead to Hull Tragedy

Hull, Que., July 24 — (CP) — One man was killed and two others seriously wounded when a long-smouldering family feud erupted into a triple shooting Saturday night.

Dead is A. J. Lapierre, 60, of Ottawa, shot four times in the back by his enraged son as he sat drinking beer in the Ottawa House Tavern at the corner of Main and Eddy Streets.

The son, Graham Lapierre, 23, himself was shot in the back a few minutes later as he attempted to escape from the scene.

Before he was struck by police bullets, the youth seriously wounded George Remillard, 33, manager of the Remillard Tavern on Eddy Street, who tried to apprehend him.

The wounded men, now under treatment in Sacred Heart Hospital, are expected to recover.

Police said Lapierre will face a charge of murder.

Constable J. L. LaCroix, who stopped the fleeing Lapierre with a bullet in the back, narrowly escaped being killed in an exchange of shots with Lapierre. The officer stumbled as he rounded a corner after Lapierre, and as he did so, the fugitive fired point-blank at him. But the bullet passed over his head.

Still lying on the ground, LaCroix took aim and hit Lapierre in the back as he ran for the next street corner.

Family differences — precisely about what is not known—are believed to have led to the tragic last meeting between father and son. It is understood that due to family quarrels the son had been living in a hotel for several weeks.

Witnesses said the tavern was just beginning to fill up when young Lapierre, neatly dressed in brown, entered a side-door and scanned the customers.

The moment he saw his father, who was sitting with his back to the door, Lapierre is said to have raised a black automatic revolver and fired four quick shots. Then he turned and walked out into Eddy Street.

Damaged Stadium Was to Have Been Named for Stalin

Port De Bouc, France, July 24 —(Reuters)— An explosion Sunday destroyed part of a stand in a new sports stadium here, which was to have been named the "Joseph Stalin Stadium." On the wrecked stand was painted: "Municipal stadium for sport and not politics. We want nothing to do with Stalin."

Former Prime Minister Was Always Reluctant to Meeting the Press

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 24 (CP)—Former Prime Minister Mackenzie Kingg. who died Saturday night at the age of 75, was a former newspaper man but there have been few men in Canadian public life who shrank more from business meetings with reporters and his press conferences were few.

He knew the value of the press in reaching the people and was extremely sensitive about what was printed about him.

Yet he consistently refused to establish any regular scheduled meetings with reporters such as that followed by his friend, the late President Roosevelt, in Washington.

Mr. King stuck to the belief that the Canadian prime minister should conduct himself in his press relations as did the prime minister of the United Kingdom.

His argument was that Canadian and British prime ministers were obliged to go before parliament daily during a session and submit themselves to questioning. The United States president was not a member of congress and his only channel to the people was the press.

Mr. King always conducted himself with complete assurance when he did hold a press conference.

His remark to me, in a number of talks about his reluctance to meet newspaper men, was: "A man will never be blamed for what he didn't say."

Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King

. . . distinguished figure in political life passes from Canadian scene.

Tributes Paid to Mr. King By Canadian, World Leaders

(By The Canadian Press)

The men who worked with William Lyon Mackenzie King in his 40 years of public life and the men who fought scores of political battles against him joined today in paying tribute to his service to Canada and the world.

Tributes came from one end of Canada to the other. They came, too, from one end of the democratic world to the other—an indication of the key position in international affairs which Canada reached under Mr. King's leadership.

Among the first messages was one from the King and Queen. In a cable to Viscount Alexander, the governor-general, they said: "His wisdom and wide experience were of constant value in the counsels of the British Commonwealth of Nations, while his lifelong service to Canada will ensure him an honored place in the history of his country and in the hearts of its people."

In Vancouver, Viscount Alexander himself said "Canada has lost a great Canadian and Lady Alexander and I have lost a very dear personal friend."

Prime Minister St. Laurent

Prime Minister St. Laurent said his predecessor's death from pneumonia Saturday night ended a period "which historians will certainly describe as the Mackenzie King era."

"No other man will have a larger place or higher claims on the gratitude of his fellow citizens," he added. " . . . today the government of our country has lost its wisest counsellor and the people of Canada their greatest public servant."

Prime Minister Attlee

Prime Minister Attlee said Mr. King held the office of prime minister longer than any other statesman in commonwealth history and "rendered eminent service not only to Canada but to the British Commonwealth of Nations".

President Truman

President Truman said Mr. King's political career was "as distinguished as it was extended and brought Canada to a new stature of greatness."

Men who for many years were political enemies of Mr. King added their tributes.

George Drew

George Drew, National Progressive Conservative leader, said: "He was intimately associated at all times with national affairs for half of the years which have passed since Canada became a nation because of the part he played in the many important events through which our country passed during those long and eventful years."

Gordon Graydon, now Progressive Conservative member for Peel and Wartime opposition leader, said Canada was bowed in grief at the loss of a man of "uncanny wisdom and judgment in world and national affairs."

M. J. Coldwell

M. J. Coldwell, national C.C.F. leader, said he had deep respect for "those qualities and characteristics which enabled him (Mr. King) to lead this country successfully through the war years."

Solon Low

Solon Low, social credit leader, said the world had lost one of its greatest statesmen and Canada one of its most illustrious sons.

Editorial pages of leading newspapers in Britain and the United States also praised Mr. King's leadership.

Winston Churchill

Other tributes from national and international figures:

Winston Churchill, wartime Prime Minister: "I deeply regret the loss of this great statesman whose friendship I enjoyed for so many years and whose services to Canada and the British Empire will long be remembered."

Prime Minister Nehru

Prime Minister Nehru of India: "I came to look upon him - - not only as a great statesman of Canada who had played a notable part in the building up of that great country but also as a friend for whom I had respect and affection."

Field Marshal Smuts

Field Marshal Smuts, former Prime Minister of South Africa: "He was indeed a Canadian of world significance whose many and great services to his own dominion to the Commonwealth and to the world will be increasingly appreciated as we gain perspective in the history of our time."

BLASTING BARGES AT PORTSMOUTH BASE SABOTAGE

'Miracle' No Loss of Life Says Attlee

London, July 24 (Reuters) — Prime Minister Attlee told Parliament today the blowing up of nine ammunition barges at Portsmouth naval base July 14 was due to sabotage.

It has not been possible to establish who did it, he added.

Attlee said the fire which led to the explosion was 'caused maliciously by some person or persons unknown."

But enough was known about the means employed to show that they were based on considerable scientific knowledge and were carefully calculated for their effect, he added.

"The incident thus constitutes an act of sabotage," he declared.

Investigation Continues

Further inquiries are being made .

No one was killed in the explosion which touched off a series of terrific blasts and a raging fire. Seven persons were injured —none of them seriously. The blasts shattered hundreds of windows and were felt four miles away.

Attlee told the House it was a "miracle" that there was not a serious loss of life among the workers in the armament depot and their families living near Bedenham Harbor where the explosion occurred.

Answering Anthony Eden, Deputy Opposition Leader, Attlee said extra precautions have been taken at Admiralty establishments for some weeks.

Attlee said the facts he gave today were the interim report of the board of inquiry set up to probe the explosion.

Woman Dead, 'Just Used Fists' Says Husband

New York, July 24 — (AP) — All he wanted was a reconciliation with his wife, said William Large, 32.

He visited her but there was an argument over their separation, he added.

The battered body of his wife, Madeline, 26, was found in her apartment Saturday.

The husband was arrested Sunday on a homicide charge.

District-Attorney Thomas Cullen said Large told him "I just used my fists."

HAD UNTAGGED PELTS

Sudbury, July 24 — (CP) — Louis Morreau of Cornwall today pleaded guilty to having six untagged beaver pelts in his posession and was fined $300 and costs.

Few Men in Public Life so Aloof In His Associations as Former P.M.

By DOUGLAS HOW

Kingsmere, Que., July 24 (CP) —For one last time, they all talked of the controversial enigmatic man who was William Lyon Mackenzie King.

He died here Saturday night in the utter quiet of a summer home among the trees, but the talk was all across the country, among the people who had talked of him so many times before, sometimes in the strong partisan words of politics, in the wild and swaying opinions of crises that came and went.

There wasn't much talking here. Only muted voices on the lawns outside the unostentatious wooden house.

But three miles or so down the road in old Chelsea a man sat on the steps of the village grocery store and yarned about the man who used to walk along the road under the great, green trees, bidding good-day to people, while his chauffeur drove slowly along ahead until Mr. King was ready to climb in and drive the rest of the way into Ottawa.

He laughed about the day Mr. King stopped in the village and a visitor gave him an earful about the government, not knowing how close the government was, and he said Mr. King was amused. The visitor was nonplussed, the man said, when he learned what he had done, but Mr. King only laughed.

In the east block of the Parliament Buildings they will talk of the strong, shrewd taskmaster

Pneumonia Brings Notable Public Career to End

Former Prime Minister Gave up Leadership in '48

By CLYDE BLACKBURN

Ottawa, July 24 — (CP) — Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, Canada's former Prime Minister, died peacefully at his summer home near here Saturday evening. He was 75.

Death came at 9.42 p.m., EDT, after he had been unconscious nearly 48 hours following an acute attack of pneumonia, suffered late Thursday afternoon.

But he had been failing as the result of a long standing cardiovascular ailment which became serious while he was in France and England in the autumn of 1948.

That ailment prompted him to give up leadership of the Liberal Party Aug. 7, 1948—29 years after he had assumed it. No other party leader in a British Commonwealth country had exceeded that record.

On Nov. 15, 1948, he handed over the prime ministership of Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent, his own choice as party leader. He had been Prime Minister an aggregate of 21 years, five months and five days—another Commonwealth record.

He retained his membership in the House of Commons as representative of the small Ontario constituency of Glengarry until Parliament was dissolved April 30, 1949, when he said good-bye to public life forever.

State Funeral Wednesday

A state funeral will be held Wednesday.

Mr. King's death interrupted a self-imposed task of writing his memoirs and cataloguing for the public archives the vast quantity of historic documents in his possession.

At his bedside when the end came were his physician, Dr. Campbell Laidlaw of Ottawa, three nephews, John Lay of Toronto, Harry Lay of Ste. Adele, Que., and Arthur King of Toronto, son of his late brother, Dr. J. McDougall King.

His only surviving near relative, a sister, Mrs. H. N. Lay of Barrie, Ont., was unable to come and on orders of her doctor will not attend the funeral.

Mr. King died in his comfortable summer home at a lakeside resort—Kingsmere—in the Gatineau Hills, 20 miles from Ottawa, where he had a large property holding and where he always spent the summer and autumn months.

Today the body was brought to an Ottawa funeral parlor and tonight it will be taken to Laurier House, the four-storey Laurier avenue home willed to Mr. King by the widow of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, whom Mr. King followed as Liberal Leader in 1919.

Messages of tribute flooded into Laurier House today from around the world.

Royalty Send Tribute

One of the first was from the King and Queen who said Mr. King's "lifelong service to Canada will ensure him a place in history of his country and in the hearts of its people."

Pilot at Helm Of Grounded Liner Will be Suspended

Ottawa, July 24. (CP)—J. C. Lessard, deputy Minister of Transport, said today the Department will suspend Edmond Lamontagne, veteran river pilot at the helm of the 20,000-ton liner Franconia when it grounded off the Island of Orleans in Quebec Harbor July 12.

Length of the suspension will be decided by Transport Minister Chevrier.

He now has in his hands all the information obtained in a preliminary inquiry conducted into the grounding by the department.

Mr. Lessard said that under the Canada Shipping Act the department could order a formal inquiry on the basis of the information obtained in a preliminary inquiry. The alternative was to suspend the pilot.

"We don't intend to carry out a formal inquiry," said Mr. Lessard.

The Cunard Donaldson liner was carrying 780 passengers at the time of the grounding. None was injured and all were removed and provided alternative transportation to Britain. The Franconia was bound for Liverpool.

Heavy Storm Hits W. Ontario

Stratford, Ont., July 24. (CP) —Electric power in Stratford and the surrounding district was off for half an hour today after lightning struck numerous transformers during a thunderstorm.

Sub-stations here and in nearby Tavistock were hit.

Hail, wind and rain beat down grain in areas south of the city. Farmers who had prepared to harvest wheat and barley this week said they did not know whether the grain stocks will spring up again.

Sarnia, (CP)—Chimneys were knocked from several homes and a large number of trees were felled today when a thunderstorm struck Sarnia and the nearby Lake Huron resort district.

At least eight summer cottages on the Lake Shore road, four miles northeast of here, had entrances blocked by falling trees. Two homes were struck by lightning. The storm was accompanied by heavy rain.

Toronto, July 24 — (CP) — A bread salesman who stole from his customers was sentenced today to two years on each of 16 charges of housebreaking. The sentences are concurrent.

Arthur J. Robillard, 32, pleaded guilty. He told police he used his bread route to locate houses whose occupants were on vacation.

Wading Pool Unused for Years Again Put Into Service, 100 Kiddies Enjoy Splashing

In a state of disrepair for the past number of years, the children's wading pool at the south end of Victoria Park became operative again over the weekend when Sunday afternoon an estimated 100 kiddies romped and splashed their way to a good time in the pool.

Chairman of Victoria Park, Arthur Keegan, stated today that the pool would be open daily from 10 to 12 in the morning, from 1 to 5 in the afternoon and 7 to 9 in the evening. A lifeguard will be in charge during the hours mentioned above.

Part of Playground Plan

Although it had not been originally planned the pool will be operated by the Belleville Recreation Commission as part of their playground program. Ray Dolan has been appointed as lifeguard and is already on the job.

As in years past when the wading pool was formerly operated it will be open only to women and children.

It is hoped that additional tables and other playground equipment can be provided for the park area about the pool. Even yesterday a number of families had an evening picnic at the park.

With its cracks filled with caulking cement the wading pool was filled with water Sunday morning and by early afternoon the kiddies commenced to arrive.

Youngsters Quickly on Scene

"I don't know how the word got around so soon but at least 100 kiddies must have used the pool during the afternoon and evening, Mr. Keegan said.

With the addition of Victoria Park wading pool the Belleville Recreation Commission now are operating a total of eight playgrounds.

These include junior and senior playgrounds at East and West Belleville playgrounds, and at King George School.

In addition there are the C.N.R. playgrounds off Station Street; Churchill Heights; Brock Street; St. Paul Street and Charles Street. At the start of the season but seven playgrounds were promised by the commission.

Four Injured As Cars Collide

Ottawa, July 24 (CP)—Four persons were injured and taken to hospital yesterday following a head-on collision of two automobiles on the Montreal road, three miles east of here.

Seriously injured was four-year-old Madeline Levesque of Rockland, Ont., who suffered serious head and facial injuries. Hospital authorities reported her condition slightly improved today.

Also in hospital are the child's foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Levesque of Rockland, and Alvin Belcher, 23-year-old Ottawa city policeman, driver of the second car. They suffered undetermined injuries and are being held for observation.

Ontario provincial police said a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor and dangerous driving would be laid against Belcher on his release from hospital.

BODY IDENTIFIED BY SHOE

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 24 — (CP)— A body taken from the Niagara River below Niagara Falls last night was identified from a shoe as that of Leroy Stivers, 69, Niagara Falls, N.Y., by his wife.

Stivers had been missing since Thursday.

CANNING PLANTS SOON BUSY

London, Ont., July 24 (CP) — Workers for the canning factories which will start operations in a few weeks are being recruited throughout Western Ontario. Men and women are being sought at present for work in tomato canning plants in Chatham, Leamington and Strathroy.

At Chatham 300 men and 300 women are needed for work in a canning plant.

An official of the Department of Agriculture here said the tomato crop this year showed every sign of being "reasonably good."

Mr. King's Father Once Lived Here

The death of Canada's former prime minister W. L. Mackenzie King is of particular interest to city residents in that the father of Mr. King at one time lived in this city.

This was made known by Mr. King in a letter to W. C. Mikel, K.C., of this city, in which the then prime minister expressed his appreciation to Mr. Mikel for the gift of a copy of The City of Belleville History.

As a footnote to the letter written in February, 29th., 1944, Mr. King wrote in his own handwriting:

"You may be interested in learning that my father, the late John King, K.C., lived for a time in Belleville as a boy and attended the old grammar school there—his uncle (with whom his mother lived) Dougall MacDougall, if I am not mistaken, edited one of the local papers. Mr. MacDougall later moved to Berlin, Ont., now Kitchener.

In a later letter to Mr. Mikel, the prime minister wrote: "My father's mother, having been left a widow at the time of his birth, she and my father went to live with Mr. MacDougall who was her brother. That accounts for my father having spent the early part of his childhood in Belleville, and having attended the grammar school there before he and his mother went to live in Berlin with Mr. MacDougall."

The late Mr. King and Mr. Mikel were warm friends, although political enemies.

TEST MOBILIZATION

The Hague, The Netherlands, July 24. (AP)—A Dutch military spokesman announced today members of the 1st and 2nd Divisions of The Netherlands Army —veterans of the war in Indonesia —will be called up some time in August in a test mobilization of some 30,000 fighting men.

"If we can demonstrate that we have trained manpower available we are certain that the Dutch request for increased military equipment under the United States military defence assistance program will be granted," the spokesman said.

Surviving her is one sister, Mrs. W. K. McCaw, Tweed.

Shot by Mistake

Hydro Employee Critically Wounded as Aftermath Of O.P.P. Search for Bandits

Innocent victim of a police bullet, Gerald Scott, 23, employee on a hydro project in the Algonquin Park district, lies critically wounded in Toronto General Hospital as aftermath of a provincial police search for two men who held up a woman taxi driver near Huntsville.

The shooting took place early Thursday morning near Killarney Lodge in Algonquin Park when police mistook Scott's car for the one believed to have been driven by the holdup men at Huntsville and fired a shot which pierced the trunk of the Scott car and ripped through into Scott's back.

The wounded man was rushed by police cruiser to Huntsville from where he was taken to Toronto in an ambulance. His condition at the Toronto hospital is said to be serious.

Had Attended Dance

It is reported that Scott, a sub-foreman with a hydro gang working in the Whitney district, had attended a dance with Pamela Bulreuil, a waitress at Killarney Lodge. After the dance the couple had parked along highway 60 when their car was spotted by officers in a provincial police cruiser stopped near the entrance to the Lodge.

The police drove down the highway and turned their spotlight into the parked car when Scott, thinking it was some of his friends playing a prank, is reported to have started his motor and moved away. His car had gone only a few lengths when the shot rang out.

The bullet split as it went through the metal of the car and after passing through the upholstery of both rear and front seats lodged in Scott's back. The pieces were removed in an emergency operation at the hospital.

Collapsed on Highway

Scott was able to stop the car but after getting out onto the highway as the officers approached collapsed onto the roadway.

The father of the wounded man, Mr. Jack Scott, R.R. 2 Frankford, said his son had later told him that he had heard no command to stop. He had thought the spotlight had been a prank on the part of some of his friends.

The two officers in the police car were reported to have been J. Williams of Pembroke and O.P.P. Kerwin, from the Killaloe detachment. The officers had been stationed at a roadblock near Lake of Two Rivers on highway 60 at the time of the incident. Police said the Scott car was the same make, model and color as the wanted vehicle.

But the father of the wounded boy is critical of the police action in the matter following the incident. The shooting took place about 2.30 Thursday a.m. but Mr. Scott was not informed until after ten o'clock—then not by police but through the proprietor of Killarney Lodge who telephoned him.

Had Identification

"As a hydro employee my son would have had full identification on his person so there would be no question of identity," Mr. Scott said.

Mr. Scott said that police had declined to tell him which of the two officers in the police cruiser had actually fired the shot.

"The police have nothing against my son," Mr. Scott said. "There was no liquor in the car and they tell me he is not being charged with any infraction of the traffic act."

The father explained his son's parked car through a request of the proprietor of the Killarney Lodge that escorts of female help to the lodge do not drive cars into the lodge late at night for fear of disturbing the guests.

The Scott car was said to have been parked only a short distance from the entrance to the lodge.

Official Thanks Tendered Residents Of City for Donations to Relief Fund

The residents of Belleville, through Mayor H. J. Allin, have been tendered an official thanks for their contributions to the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund in a letter from H. W. Manning, general chairman of the fund.

To the letter of appreciation from the flood relief chairman, Mayor Allin added his personal appreciation to the residents of the city and to the hard working committee which headed the fund raising drive.

"I extend my personal appreciation to Mr. J. M. Wood, chairman of the local committee, for the splendid work which they accomplished, and also extend my thanks to the citizens who made such generous contributions to the fund," stated Mayor Allin.

The Mayor was particularly pleased to note that the roughly $12,000 raised in Belleville was equal to approximately 50 cents for every man, woman and child in the city.

"The hearts of the people of Manitoba are overflowing with gratitude," the letter of appreciation from Chairman Manning stated. "The sympathy and generous support of the people everywhere have been most heartening and helpful."

Mr. Manning in his letter asked that Mayor Allin convey to the people of Belleville grateful thanks for the sympathy and support extended.

BIRTHS

KILPATRICK — Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Kilpatrick wish to announce the birth of their daughter, Susan Alberta, at the Belleville General Hospital, July 17, 1950. A sister for Carol Louise. J24

McVICKER — Dr. and Mrs. D. C. McVicker, (nee Betty Covert), Deseronto, are happy to announce the arrival of their daughter, Agnes Dawn, at the Belleville General Hospital, on Sunday, July 23, 1950. J24

CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to express my sincere thanks to Rev. Father Buckley, Dr. Gibson, Dr. Cronk and Dr. Miles, the nursing staff on first floor west, also the kind people who called to see me. And to all who sent flowers, candy, fruit, letters and cards while I was a patient in Belleville General Hospital. Earl Naphan, Belleville. J24

IN MEMORIAM

STUART — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Edward Terrance Stuart, who passed away on July 24, 1944.

Six years have passed and gone
Since one we loved so well
Was taken from our home on earth
With Jesus Christ to dwell.
The flowers we place upon his grave
May wither and decay
But the love for one who sleeps beneath
Shall never fade away.

Ever remembered by dad, sisters and brother. J24

STUART — In loving memory of Edward Terrance Stuart, who died six years ago, July 24th, 1944.

Nothing can ever take away
The love my heart holds dear.
Fond memories linger every day
Remembrance keeps him near.

Always remembered and loved by mother Thelma Stuart. J24

FERGUSON — In loving memory of Melzer E. Ferguson, who passed away July 24, 1949.

We think of him in silence
No eyes can see us weep
But still within our aching hearts
His memory we keep.

Sadly missed by his wife and family. J24

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 24 (CP) —Prices weakened slightly in dull dealings on the Toronto stock exchange today. Market leaders backed down fractions at the opening and couldn't recover as the session progressed. Volume for the first three hours was 571,000.

Papers, liquors, and utilities were lower while steels held firm. Issues like Consolidated Paper, Ford A, Brazilian Traction, Imperial Oil and CPR, were among the losers.

Base metals held against the downward trend. Leaders like Consolidated Smelters, International Nickel and Quemont added fractions and Normetal continued climbing.

Western oils slipped back from an attempted recovery movement. Losses ranged to about 10 cents.

Junior gold producers declined pennies while seniors held steady. Cobalt Lode Silver Mines was a brisk issue at about 65 cents in its first appearance on the board.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, July 24 — (CP) — Cattle trade was dull in the forenoon at the Ontario stockyards today. Receipts: cattle, 5,200; calves, 950; hogs, 750; sheep and lambs, 490. Left from last week were 500 cattle.

One load of good weighty steers sold at $30.40. Canner and cutter cows brought $15-$18. Good bulls $24-$25; choice fed yearlings $31-$32.50. Good stockers $25.50-$27.

Calves strong to $1 a hundredweight higher at $29-$30 for choice vealers. Common to medium $18-$27.

Hog prices were not established.

Some lambs sold at $32 for good ewes and wethers with bucks at $31. Good light sheep $13-$15.

FORMER PRIME

Despite Mr. King's shyness with the press, it is known he had a real affection for many members of the Ottawa press corps.

In 1945 he appointed to the senate a veteran and generally-beloved correspondent, Charles Bishop of the Southam and other newspapers.

In 1946 he recommended to the King that officership in the Order of the British Empire be awarded to wartime presidents of the Press Gallery and made similar recommendations for a number of war correspondents and others in the writing profession.

In December the Parliamentary Press Gallery made the prime minister an honorary life member—something he said he prized as much as many other honors he had received.

British Press Pays Impressive Tribute to Mr. King's Statesmanship

London, July 24 (Reuters) — Several British national newspapers today devote editorials and obituaries to Canada's former Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, who died Saturday night.

The Times says in an editorial "the death of Mr. Mackenzie King removes a wise and understanding statesman of the Commonwealth who guided the destinies of Canada through nearly all the most vital years of the Dominion's rise to be an international power. . .

"As a statesman of the Commonwealth Mr. Mackenzie King always had regard both to the national unity of Canada and to the fact of Canada's continuity to the United States.

"Before the statute of Westminister, which bore especially the mark of his thinking, the emphasis was on Canada's independence of action. There was never any doubt as to the value he put on the closest association and cooperation with the other members of the Commonwealth, although not by institutional forms.

"That Canada, not long after his retirement, should become the keystone of the arch of the North Atlantic treaty was in keeping with Mr. Mackenzie King's conception of the Commonwealth as part of the larger community of free peoples. . ."

The conservative Daily Telegraph says in an editorial: "When Mr. Mackenzie King first assumed the premiership Canada hardly counted in the world of diplomacy. He leaves behind him a country whose authority on the international scene is greater than that of any country of comparable size.

"To him more than anyone else was due that beneficient development in Commonwealth relations which we call dominion status as embodied in the Statute of Westminster."

The Daily Mail says Mr. King inspired the solidarity of the British Commonwealth and established a longtime record as the prime minister of any British country."

"He got things done — by finding the common denominator, unobtrusively, without fuss, always after deep thought. Thus he gave Canada the best administration she has ever had.

The liberal News Chronicle describes him as one of the greatest statesmen the British Commonwealth produced.

"He was always a Liberal and radical at heart, and such men are dificult to satisfy. But he must have known that his work was good and that it would ensure."

The pro-labor Daily Mirror says that "Canadians trusted him as they would their family doctor."

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express says in an editorial:

"He will be honored in the memories of empire men and women to the gifts of statesmanship, wise counsel, steadiness, and purposeful vision, which he devoted to his country, and to the Commonwealth ideal. And in Britain we mourn a great-hearted friend."

Fine Bass Haul Taken From Muscote Bay

"Bass, bass, my kingdom for a bass" is a distant echo to Denny Anger and Sid Hewitt of Hamilton who hauled in 15 finny beauties over the weekend, at an average weight of, — hold your breath men—four pounds.

The two men, staying at Luke's Camp near Mountain View airport, pulled in their legal limit yesterday and early this morning returned to the scene of their triumph to catch three more.

The largest fish weighed slightly more than four and a half pounds but the remarkable consistency of size resulted in the fabulous four pound average.

FEW MEN

who sometimes forgot that subordinates had wives and families, who ruled the cabinet with an iron hand and scented the winds of public opinion with some inherent talent no political contemporary could match.

They will recall his moods, the need to judge those moods and act accordingly.

Parliamentarians would talk of him, of the tactics and the canniness, of the issues that flared and flamed around him; the Liberals of an era of rule that made them great and made them numerous; the Tories of his maddening ability to turn them out and keep them out and taunt them.

All across the country the people would talk of him and think of him, of the aloof and distant man so few men knew, of the bachelor who seldom came near to the people yet knew their thinking better than they did themselves. In the towns, in the cities, in the villages they would talk of this man who had dominated a Canadian era, who was still too close to be aligned with history.

But here, at the summer home he came to every year for two decades, there was little talk. A Mountie came in his red jacket to keep away the curious, but there were no curious.

In the back part of the house, caretaker Frank Kelly, a lean, spare man, said a few things, but not very much. Mr. King was a quiet man, he said, a man who liked his solitude who let few people inside of himself.

"He was a lone ranger," Frank Kelly said.

Korean At a Glance

(By The Canadian Press)

Korean Fronts: Americans stop tank-led assaults in two separate sectors of central front. Communists take Kwangju in southwest sector, 80 miles southwest of Taejon, and wheel for possible drive across southern end of peninsula. North Koreans reported building up "considerable strength" in centre, west and southwest.

Air War: Clear weather lets planes give heavy support to ground troops. B-29s hit behind lines, dumping bombs on bridges and other strategic targets.

Washington: Congress leaders seek appraisal of U.S. military strength as speculation centres on whether a halted communist drive in Korea would bring new Soviet diplomatic moves.

London: Spurred by Korea, Atlantic Pact countries get ready to work on program aimed at bolstering up their defences.

King Gave Advice When Asked, Never If Not

Ottawa, July 24. (CP)—To the surprise of many, when William Lyon Mackenzie King quit politics he quit them completely. He gave advice when it was asked—and it often was—but never if it wasn't.

His era, long as it was, ended abruptly the day he turned over the prime ministership to Louis Stephen St. Laurent in August, 1948.

Informed quarters said the man who dominated Canada's political life longer than any other leaned over backward to avoid the slightest sign of wilful intrusion in the decision of the cabinet he had left.

But Mr. St. Laurent often went to him for advice, intimates said. Sometimes he went himself to Laurier House or to Mr. King's summer home nearby Kingsmere. At other times, he sent an aide.

As Mr. St. Laurent said in a tribute: "The government has lost its wisest counsellor."

Surplus Fund Transferred by Atkinson Trustees

Toronto, July 24 (CP) — The sum of $3,000,000 from accumulated surplus has been transferred from the Toronto Star Limited to the Atkinson Charitable Foundation as a capital fund, it was announced today.

The announcement came in a statement issued by executors and trustees of the late J. E. Atkinson's will, directors of the Star and trustees of the foundation. The Atkinson will left his newspaper properties in trust for support of the foundation, and ultimately to belong to it.

The announcement estimates at $80,000 to $85,000 the yearly income available to the foundation as a result of this transfer. In addition to this gift to the capital fund, a further sum of about $100,000 in the hands of the estate's executors is also being transferred as an expendable amount, together with $15,000 to $20,000 from the Toronto Star Limited. Total income available for charitable purposes in the coming year, therefore, will be about $200,000.

Announcement of an "important project to be assisted" will be made shortly, with further projects to be announced from time to time during the year.

Many Fatalities In East Canada Over Weekend

By The Canadian Press

A wide variety of mishaps — drowings, traffic, trains, fires and falls — took the lives of many persons in Eastern Canada during the weekend.

A Canadian Press count of fatalities from midnight Friday to early Monday included eight persons drowned, nine killed in traffic accidents and two each by fires, falls, and trains.

A man was trampled to death by horses and another was shot in what police called a case of murder. A four-year-old girl was strangled when she slipped her head into a rope noose on a hay wagon. An infant was accidentally choked to death.

There were 13 fatalities in Ontario, 13 in Quebec and one in New Brunswick.

A 2-year-old Hamilton boy was killed and his parents critically injured on No. 24 highway, a mile south of here, yesterday afternoon when their convertable coupe went suddenly out of control and rolled over several times.

Killed was Jimmy Ecker of 47 New St., Hamilton. Injured and lying in critical condition in Orangeville hospital are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Irvin Ecker. Hospital authorities said today that both are unconscious. They were in a coma when they arrived at the hospital, regained consciousness for a time, then lapsed again.

Motorists who saw the accident occur said the 1935 model convertible, driven by Ecker, was going along the highway at about 40 miles an hour. Suddenly it swerved, then rolled over.

Young Jimmy was killed. Ecker who is 22 years old, received a broken arm and leg and head injuries. Mrs. Ecker is believed to have fractured her skull.

The other Ontario victims were Witma Van Deelan, 27, of Edmonton, hit by a car while crossing an Ottawa street; Charles Metner of Hamilton, killed near Wiarton in a crash; and Harry Sanderson, 33, of Stratford, killed near Drayton Saturday night.

Falls Into River

Near Lindsay, Mrs. Walter Oregory, 80, was drowned when she fell into the Scugog River while trying to fill a bucket. Two persons in Ontario were burned to death — Claudette Dore, 2, in Sudbury, who set fire to her dress while playing with matches, and Pauline Boyd, 36, of Halifax, whose bed in a Toronto rooming house caught fire from a cigaret.

Near French River Paul Joseph, 36, was hit by a train while crossing a bridge and killed. In St. Thomas, George Carroll, 63, fell on a flight of stairs in his home and was fatally injured. Three miles north of Sudbury, William Logan, 65, was thrown under the hooves of a team of runaway horses.

Drowns In Deep Hole

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., — (CP) — A Sault Ste. Marie man, father of six children, was drowned in full view of his family at a dam bearing his family name - near Thesselon Sunday.

Walter McCreight, 40, stepped into a hole as he waded in the waters of the dam, his six-year-old daughter Mary on his shoulders.

A seven-year-old son, Billy, walking at his father's side, also stepped into the hole as Mrs. McCreight stood helplessly on the shore. Bystanders pulled Mary and Billy from water, struggled in vain to locate the father's body.

Nearby workers from a Department of Lands and Forests crew formed a human chain to recover McCreight's body.

The forestry men applied artificial respiration to Billy for three hours before he revived. Mary recovered almost immediately.

VOLUNTARY CENSORSHIP

Washington, July 24. (AP)—The Times-Herald said Saturday in a front-page announcement it has "imposed on itself voluntary censorship". The paper said it will not print designations of service units called to active duty.

DOGS AND CATS ENJOY HOLIDAY

Hamilton, July 24—(CP)—An unknown person—apparently an animal lover—forced a padlock at the Humane Society pound here during the weekend and liberated 45 dogs and about 12 cats. It took Humane Society workers all day to round up the stray animals.

New Tenders for Public School Called by Board of Education

After a five months' stalemate between city council and the local school board during which time the construction of a proposed new public school in East Belleville has been delayed, the Belleville Board of Education at a special meeting Friday evening voted to call for new tenders for the school's construction.

Accordingly the school board will instruct its architect to call for new tenders on a slightly revised specification, tenders to close Friday, August 11th.

Construction of the proposed new school has been a moot question between city council and the school board since last March, when the board awarded the contract for the building of the structure to the second lowest tender. The lowest tender submitted by the McFarland Construction Company was for $219,000, while the second tender from The St. Lawrence Contracting Company of this city, was for roughly $23,000 over that figure.

Council declined to issue debentures for the construction of the school by the second lowest tender and requested that new tenders be called. On the other hand the school board stated it had acted in its best judgment in accepting the second tender.

However, faced with the situation that unless construction of the school was commenced immediately there would be no hope of providing relief for school over-crowding by Sept., 1951, the board met Friday evening in an attempt to take some practical action with respect to the council request to call for new tenders.

Following is the resolution adopted by the Board of Education.

"That in view of the fact that the prime responsibility of the Board of Education is the educational needs of the children of the city, since the Board has been prevented from providing accommodation according to its judgment, and in order to prevent further delay, the Board accede to the request of Council and instruct its architect to advertise for new tenders on a slightly revised specification for a new Elementary School Building in East Belleville in appropriate trade journals, tenders to be in the hands of the Secretary of the Board of Education by five o'clock, Friday, August 11th, 1950."

PASSENGERS SHAKEN UP

Gravenhurst, July 24 — (CP)—Twenty-four passengers were shaken up and showered with mud yesterday when a bus left the highway four miles west of here and plowed into a swamp. All escaped uninjured through the emergency exit.

Reports of Subs Disturbing to Defence Dept.

Ottawa, July 24 — (CP) —The defence department has been concerned and active for at least two weeks over fishermen's reports that Russian submarines are being sighted off the Canadian Atlantic coast, the navy said today.

The first of a number of sightings came about three weeks ago.

The department's concern is believed to have been one of the factors which entered into last week's cabinet decision to expand the manpower of the forces and to step up the equipment program.

A navy spokesman said today reports from fishermen indicate there is at least one submarine and possibly two operating outside Canada's three-mile-limit.

The reports say they bear no distinctive markings.

The news has been kept secret in an effort to allow the investigation to go forward as quietly as possible without inviting panic sightings and reports. There also was a desire to keep the Russians in the dark as to how much knowledge Canada has.

A naval spokesman said a check with London and Washington disclosed that neither the Royal nor United States navies had any submarines in that area. Russia is believed the only other country which could logically have a submarine off the Atlantic coast of Canada.

WILLIAM LYON MACKENZIE KING

William Lyon Mackenzie King, a great Canadian and political leader has passed after a life devoted to public service of his country and the British Empire, the British Commonwealth of Nations and the United Nations. Few public [illegible] have been so long in their country's service and [illegible] have been so well prepared for and deserved leadership as he when the opportunity presented itself. The last public scenes and business of his public life were associated with matters of the British Commonwealth: it was while attending the meeting of the Prime Ministers of the British Commonwealth in London that his health gave way and he was forced to retire from public life.

His natural gifts and experience had fitted him for championship of the world cause of democracy. His life was devoted to public service of the Dominion and of the democratic nations of the world.

To him had fallen the honor of having six times led the Liberal party in Canada to victory at the polls. In this he achieved a record unequalled in the whole history of the parliamentary free institutions of the world. For more than a quarter of a century he had served in the office of the Prime Minister of Canada, a service to which no other parliamentary leader in any democracy has ever been called to devote his effort for so long a time.

British Prime Minister the Right Honorable Winston Churchill in a message of congratulation on August 7, 1944, when the Second World War was still raging, paid these words of compliment to Mr. King on his attaining the twenty-fifth anniversary as Liberal party leader in Canada, "Through these twenty-five years you and we have watched Canada advance along the line of liberty and progress with admiration and pride. Yet never perhaps has the world held Canada in higher esteem than in these last five years of bitter conflict during which under your inspiring guidance as Prime Minister, she has played so splendid a part in the now imminent overthrow of the powers of evil."

To Mr. King had fallen the task of guiding this nation through the Second World War as one of the members of the United Nations, with all its resources, human and material, to victory over aggression and tyranny. The greatness of this task for the sake of democracy and a safe world in the future is understood by all Canadians.

The profound interest of Mr. King in the public weal developed from a family background, his mother's father, William Lyon Mackenzie, having been the leader in the struggle for responsible government in Upper Canada in 1837 while his paternal grandfather was a member of the Royal Horse Artillery and fought against Mackenzie. His training too served as a preparation for the exalted rank he was to hold in Canada's political life as a leader and a statesman. A brilliant student of economics Mr. King graduated in political science from the University of Toronto and studied the trade union movement at a social settlement centre in Chicago. It was he who recommended to the Government of Canada a federal Department of Labor. His suggestion was adopted and he became deputy minister. In 1908 at the age of 34 he entered Parliament, served on the International Opium Commission in the same year and became Minister of Labor in the Laurier Government. In 1919 on the death of Sir Wilfred Laurier he was chosen Liberal leader and two years later his party came into power.

His preparation and training for public service stood him in good stead in days when matters of the greatest importance came before the world leaders. He had had an experience of years in international organization. He was a member of the Council and vice-president of the Assembly of the League of Nations in 1928 and 1936. He attended Imperial Conferences and meetings of Commonwealth Prime Ministers and led the Canadian delegation to the San Francisco Conference in 1945 and signed for Canada the Charter of the United Nations at close of the Second World War. He was present at the atomic energy conference in Washington with President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee. He with Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Attlee signed the Washington Declaration on Atomic Energy.

BARN DOORWAY

No historian has ever taken a serious view of barn doorways so far as the countryman has discovered. But ever since men began to fight for new principles in human society and made farms in a virgin wilderness, farmers have sat in barn doorways on rainy days and rested contentedly for a spell before they went about their indoor tasks. Dreams have been dreamed and long thoughts pondered as men have rested and watched their land. In those days men were willing to exchange hard labor for self-won security. And in the barn doorways of our nation, many a man has sensed deep meanings of life that he could not express in words. — Ottawa Journal.

TRAINED FOR THE ROAD

With the first inning the game begins;
Winner or loser must play the nine.
There's never a race but the lad who wins
Must run its length from the starting line,
And never a vic'try or fame bestowed
On one who refuses to train for the road.

For sport or labor, the field or the shop,
This is the law and will ever be:
Nobody starts a career at the top.
No one is born with proficiency.
With patience to learn, ambition the goad,
Who would succeed must train for the road.

Step by step must the mile be run.
Deed by deed is esteem acquired.
Merit is earned by work well done
And a spirit stout when the body tired.
This for all leaders has been the code:
Who would go far must train for the road.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

JULY 24th., 1930

Mrs. Roy Benson, of Detroit, Mich., is the guest of Mrs. P. S. Robinson, Chatham St.

Mr. W. H. Faulkner, Cedar St., and Mr. E. M. Hubbs, Howard Street, have returned home after spending two days fishing at Weslemkoon Lake.

Miss Margaret Cannon has returned home after spending two weeks with friends in Cobalt, Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry McConnell and son of Detroit, Mich., are visiting friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack O'Brien, of Regina, Sask., are visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Foltz, Grove St.

Recent guests at "Bayview," the home of J. Anderson, Massassaga, were his brother, John, of Brockville; his sister, Mrs. Simpson, and her husband, Mr. Wallace Simpson, Warner, Alberta; Miss Hattie Brood and Miss Fay Clarke, of Newcastle, and Miss Beatrice Jones, Belleville.

30 YEARS AGO

JULY 24th., 1920

Belleville old boys and girls are here to celebrate old times. While the celebrations of the Old Boys' and Girls' Reunion—which is the third such event—begins officially tomorrow, old boys and girls have been arriving from every direction during the past week and the indications are that a great crowd will be present to live over again old times in the beautiful city of the bay. Already many groups of former residents gather upon the streets, clasping hands and talking over old times. The programme arranged for the entertainment of the visitors is complete in every detail. The officers of the reunion are as follows: Hon. President, Lt.-Col. S. S. Lazier; Hon. Vice-Presidents, Thos. Ritchie, J. M. Hurley, Lt.-Col. W. N. Ponton, Chas. N. Sulman, J. W. Walker, James A. Roy, R. J. Graham, D. V. Sinclair, Curtis Bogart, W. Jeffers Diamond, J. E. Walmsley, E. Guss Porter, M.P., Geo. Wallbridge, J. J. B. Flint, John Newton and John McKeown; President, Judge J. F. Wills; Vice-presidents, W. C. Mikel, K.C., W. B. Deacon, and H. W. Ackerman; treasurer, B. L. Hyman; secretary, Arthur L. Johnson; assistant secretary, P. H. Wills; chairman of committees: Finance, H. F. Ketcheson; Entertainment, Chas. Hanna; Decoration, A. C. McFee; Accommodation, J. V. C. Truaisch; Information, R. H. Ketcheson; Transportation, A. P. Allen; Parades, Lt.-Col. David Baragar; Athletics, W. J. Cook; Reception, Alfred Gillen. Mayor W. B. Riggs will extend a hearty welcome to all the old boys and girls. This evening a band concert will be given at Vitcoria Park by the G.W.V.A. Band under the direction of Bandmaster E. R. Hinchey. Special services will be conducted in the churches on Sunday.

40 YEARS AGO

JULY 24th., 1910

S. L. S. Titus and wife of St. Paul, Minn., are here for the reunion. He is an old Belleville boy.

Geo. W. Baker, of Prince Albert, Sask., is home for the reunion.

Geo. E. Hanwell, Vancouver, B.C., is being welcomed by many old friends.

James Johnson and Arthur Johnson, Boston, Mass., are being welcomed by many old friends.

George B. Niblock, Leadville, Colorado, is home for the big reunion.

Jack Bonar, Cobourg, is here for the reunion.

Thomas Duncan, formerly of the local post office, now of London, Ontario, is here for the reunion.

Fred Burrows is home from Toronto to visit with the old boys.

Thomas Lynch, of Chicago, was given a hearty welcome home.

The big parade of old boys and girls was an interesting event yesterday.

Sandy Burrows and Geo. Jones, dressed as "rubes", made a lot of fun for the boys and girls yesterday. Seated in a rig, which came out of the ark, the lads cut-up in a style which created tons of fun. If there are any medals left over, a few should be hung on Sandy and Jonesie.

George Mathison, Winnipeg, and James Wallbridge, Edmonton, are home for the reunion.

George Smeaton is home for the big doings.

50 YEARS AGO

JULY 24th., 1900

Harry R. Wemp, Toronto, formerly of Belleville, was in town today.

W. H. Reed, of Stroud's tea and china store, is spending his vacation at Twelve O'Clock Point.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Clarke are spending a few holidays near Cobourg.

Mr. and Mrs. Sol. Vermilyea of Rochester, N.Y., are visiting friepds here.

Mr. Cameron Brown, of the Belleville Daily Sun, and family, with Col. M. J. Hendrick, U.S. Consul here, are spending a vacation at the 1000 Islands.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilber Sherry will return to Chicago, Ill., tomorrow after visiting friends here.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

SO DEAL WITH IT FIRMLY

Worry is a sin.

This is a bold statement and one with which many would find it impossible to agree. Yet go through the Bible from beginning to end and you will find the whole divine revelation testifying to the essential wickedness of worry. To worry means to doubt God. If we really believe that God holds the universe in the hollow of His hand, that not even a sparrow falls without his notice, then we will not allow the irritations and frustrations of life to discourage us. Neither will we allow calamity and sorrow to plunge us into despair. Anybody who really believes in God and trusts Him is undergirded by the conviction that all things work together for good to them that love God.

Worry is a sin, and worry is a habit. For some people, worry is an indulgence. It is their chief form of pleasure. They seem to get some sort of inverted satisfaction out of the excitement in which they constantly keep themselves by their broodings and forebodings.

Snap out of it. The sun is shining every day, and even though clouds cover the sky, the sun nevertheless is shining about them.

Worry is a waste of time. Worry is a destroyer of happiness. Worry is a bad habit that can be broken. Worry is a sin.

It's Like 10,000-Foot Dive In Plane as Snorkel Valve Of Submarine Opens Again

San Francisco, July 24 (AP)—The Snorkel has added some bizarre new complications to life aboard submarines, Rear Admiral H. L. Pugh, navy medical officer, reported at the recent meeting here of the American Medical Association.

The Snorkel is a long tube invented by the Germans to supply a submerged vessel with air for its men and its engines. A sub is supposed to be able to cruise indefinitely under water with this apparatus.

The top of this tube sticks out of the water a few feet. At the open end, where air is sucked in, is a valve which closes automatically when a wave engulfs it.

Despite this safety gadget, submarine compartments can become flooded because of a lag in the valve's operation.

The inrush of water floods men and machinery. The closing of the valve shuts off the air supply. But the engines keep going, rapidly gulping air. The engines are like vacuum pumps, decreasing atmospheric pressure.

This can produce thin air like 10,000 feet above sea level. It is a potential menace to men who need sure and steady hands and heads to keep the complicated machinery going.

When the Snorkel valve opens again, air rushes in and produces a physical effect resembling a 10,000-foot dive in a fast plane. Men with blocked Eustachian tubes, the passages which lead from the ears sometimes have ear drums broken.

Because the Snorkel permits long periods of submerged cruising, while the old-style submarine had to come up for air every night or so, crew endurance may be less than formerly. Pugh said it will take another war to find out just how much of the new life men can stand.

UN is Committed To Guard Greece From Aggression

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The danger of communist action in the Balkans, involving Greece, naturally leads to the uncomfortable question of whether such a development would inevitably lead to a third world war.

That's reasonable query in view of the general warning given by President Truman in his message to congress last Wednesday. In studied, plain language he said:

"I shall not attempt to predict the course of events. But I am sure that those who have it in their power to unleash or withhold acts of aggression must realize that new recourse to aggression in the world today might well strain to the breaking point the fabric of world peace."

Committed to Defend Greee

What could be clearer than that? Such aggression could lead to a world war. However, the president didn't say it inevitably would lead to another general conflagration, and I don't believe he intended to convey any such ultimatum.

One certainy is that we are committed to defend Greece against Red aggression. But who can forsee where the Greek upheaval might lead? It is possible that it might be confined to the Balkans. Probably that would depend on what sort of game Moscow played.

Judging from past performances, Russia would duplicate her Korean performance in any Balkan upheaval. She would set the stage, equip her satellites militarily, and then push Bulgaria into the fray as the champion of communism. Moscow herself would keep clear of the shooting. She wouldn't be the aggressor—not she.

Anybody can see with half an eye that another world war could grow out of such a situation. But it hasn't grown out of the north Korean aggression as yet, and north Korea is a Red stooge.

Any Balkan aggression would be another step in the general Bolshevist program of whittling the United States and her Allies down military and economically by making them fight costly engagements in widely-separated theatres.

It long has been obvious that such a weakening process is the heart of Russian strategy. If Russia had greater economic and military strength, she might cut corners by calling for a world show-down right now. As things stand, she wouldn't be likely to strike until she feels sure of victory was in a sack.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE GOSPEL OF LIVING

Here in my unique cabin, in the forest of my summer island retreat, I find peace and contentment that I find in no other place. There is quiet here. No rush, no hurry, no stepping on people's toes. The scent of the pines, and the cheerful songs of the native birds, give renewed health to the body and hope to the soul.

Here it is that I like to read my little book on Thoreau. I become akin to him. I listen to him. He says: "It would be worth our while to ask ourselves .. is our life innocent enough? Do we live inhumanely, toward man and beast, in thought or act? To be serene and successful we must be at one with the universe."

Here is a beautiful place, as well, to read over and over again the Sermon on the Mount, which I keep beside my typewriter on my work desk. The pines whisper to me as I walk under their shade and foliage. Sunshine and shadow, the rippling waves along the shore, and the softened spring from mossy paths paved with the fall of pine needles, is an inspiration as I walk the paths of "Weskawenaak."

It took me quite a number of years before I realized what an investment one makes in the gospel of living! No other investment is so sound and permanent. Its stock rises with time. It never falls. It's all loaned out from Cod's great bank!

Again, listen to the voice of Thoreau: "What we do best or most perfectly is what we have most thoroughly learned by the longest practice, and at length it falls from us without our notice, as a leaf from a tree."

Spaced out in our lives there should be hide-a-ways where we might become better known to ourselves, and thus better fitted to become companionable and inspiring to others. We ought to learn the art of giving out, and less devoted to the evil tasks of getting and taking. Greed and selfishness are two of the world's worst destroyers of hope and happiness. If you love you live!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Most of us think of the canoe as essentially a wilderness craft that comes closest to civilization at Summer resorts. A few are to be found along the beaches of cities that are lucky enough to front upon water; and on park ponds.

But in the May issue of Ford Times, which is a little digest-sized publication distributed by Ford dealers in the States, there is an article on Manhattan canoeists which reveals that right under the George Washington bridge spanning the Hudson between New York and New Jersey there are a series of boathouses where 1,600 canoes are housed. And from early spring to late fall, there is more concentrated canoeing, in that area right in the heart of New York, than you will find in hundreds of square miles of wilderness anywhere.

One half hour's paddle from those boathouses are the Palisades across the Hudson River. And once under those beautiful cliffs, the city boys and girls are as good as a hundred miles from the metropolis. A couple of hours' paddle and they are in something pretty close to wilderness, as far as quiet nature is concerned. There are, of course, tourist parks all along the way, where the canoe escapists can rent open fireplaces, tent space or cabins. But a good many of the 1,600 regulars go several hours upstream to genuine forest areas. Their number increases every year. It is a new and economical escape.

A canoe rents for $2 a day. A new one costs around $150. Storage in the boathouses catering to this trade is $30 a year. They get a locker also for that. Down at work's close each day they come in swarms, in city clothes, to emerge, in a few minutes, in shorts and T-shirts, with canoe on head; and, favoring the double-bladed paddle, they vanish over the Hudson into a rural atmosphere inaccessible by road.

Personal Health Talks

POOR CIRCULATION AND PILES

In preceding talks the underlying or predisposing causes of hemorrhoids (internal or external piles) were named, as follows: (1) the physic or enema habit; (2) poor physical tone or flabbiness due to sedentary habit laziness, riding when one might walk; and (3) man's upright posture, which imposes the weight of a column of blood upon the network of veins without valves around the lower end of the alimentary tract.

The veins of arms, legs and neck are provided with valves at intervals along their course, which, like valves anywhere else tend to prevent backflow, stagnation of blood, congestion of the tissues from which they convey blood back toward the heart. Whether a day of Genesis was 86,000 seconds or an eon long it is an anatomical fact that the veins of the trunk (abdomen or greater body cavity and thorax or chest cavity) have no valves, although valves would seem as necessary in these veins as they are in the veins of the legs since man's posture is more or less upright much of the time.

The column of blood supported by the hemorrhoidal network of veins around the rectal outlet is as high as the liver—indeed the blood from the area flows directly ino the great portal vein which collects blood from the entire length of the digestive tract including the stomach and conveys it to the liver, where it is processed, let us say, by the largest gland in the body. (The functions of the liver will be described in a talk to follow). From the liver the blood enters the great vein, vena cava, with blood from the legs to be returned to the right side of the heart and pumped into the lungs for oxygenation or purification.

This dependence of the circulation in the pile area upon the portal circulation (the liver area) accounts for the frequent occurrence of piles in persons with "liver complaint or "torpid" or "sluggish" liver or 'billiousness" as the almanacs called it in the days of horse cars and bustles.

In the Invitation to the Somersaultauqua, a pamphlet discribing somersaults—rolls, not leaps—you will find so-called 'biliousness" mentioned, along with flatulence and the sense of fulness and distress commonly ascribed to "gas," among the indications or reasons why you should do a dozen or so a day. For a copy of the pamphlet send stamped self addressed envelope and ask for it in writing—if you can't write you probably can't read either, so I'll not waste a copy on you.

Of course one rolling a somersault reverses the upright posture for only a second or so. Still, I know of no physical activity, exercise or body discipline that does so much good in so little time. By the watch I find it takes not more than 18 seconds to turn six somersaults (my kind, not Webster's) on the floor beside my desk.

Speaking of stagnation of blood in the great portal area and its effect upon the hemorrhoidal plexus or network of veins in the lower end of the alimentary tract, the portal and other splanchnic or visceral veins may hold nearly a quarter of the entire volume of blood in the body—and does keep a considerable part of it out of circulation if you sit or stand in a slouchy or flabby posture much of the time. This applies to hemorrhoids (piles) just as it does to varicose veins and varicose ulcers. What are hemorrhoids (piles) but varicose veins in the rectal wall?

It may strike the ordinary victim of piles or varicose veins in the legs as a silly business practising belly breathing, erect posture, somersaults and the like as a preventive or remedial measure. But in my files are hundreds of testimonials from people who have discovered that these strange suggestions are not so crazy as they seemed at first.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Grandma Worry

My grand-daughter, aged 6, beautiful, healthy looking child, but eats very little meat, only milk, fruits and fruit juices. Doctor told her mother not to worry but.. (Mrs. E. L.)

Answer—But naturally Nana avails herself of her right to worry, eh? All right, Nana, but don't work overtime at it. As long as the child gets her milk, potatoes and fruit her nutrition will be o.k.

Calling All Diabetics

Husband has diabetes and rheumatism. Brought up on typical Scandinavian diet of meat, potatoes, gravy, large quantities of bread and butter, coffee, cake, pastry. Exceeds his allowance of these and depends on extra large doses of insulin. (Mrs. L. A. F.)

Answer—Evidently a tough case—his attutude, I mean. Still, he may get some help from the booklet Training for Diabetes. For a copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope.

Pinch Double Wins For Chevs In 9th Inning

Trenton (Special) —Chevrolets really come through in the clutch. Trailing by one run in the last of the ninth, with two out and two on bases, Lou Istead hit a pinch hit double and the Chevrolets defeated RCAF Technical Wing 7 to 6 in an exhibition softball game at Bayshore Park Friday night.

It was close all the way. Trenton opened the scoring in the first, when Ivan Istead who had hit a single, crossed the plate after the catch on Joe Scott's long centre field fly. The flyers tied it up in the second when catcher Hammond slugged a two bagger to score his battery mate Frank Thompson.

One All Till 8th

The score remained tied at one all until the top of the eighth when the airmen went on a four run scoring spree. Chevrolet relief pitcher Harry Farr was in trouble all through the eighth.

Neher started the inning off for the airmen with a single. Farr walked the next hitter. Then the Flyers first baseman Wilkie struck out and pinch hitter Ray Coursal connected for a double to score Neher and Zaleski.

From then on, it was a pinch-hitters ball game. The airmen used three and Chevrolets countered with four emergency recruits during the last two innings.

Before Farr could squelch the scoring outbreak, four RCAF runs had crossed the plate and the airmen were out in front five to one. Adding another counter in the ninth, while Trenton only picked up two in their half of the eighth, it looked as though the airmen were certain to even the score after one run tenth inning loss to the Weesemen a few nights ago.

However in a thrilling final frame finish, Norm McCue's boys met the challenge as they have done several times this season and pulled another game out of the fire.

Jefferey Hero

Jefferey was the hero for the garagemen as he came up with two successive doubles in the eighth and ninth. In the eighth, Jefferey's double scored Curtis and a pinch hit single by Don Forbes scored Jefferey.

Farr started Chevrolets off in the ninth with a single, then Ivan Istead was safe on a fielder's choice and Farr came in standing up. The next two batters struck out and Thompson walked Joe Scott. Jefferey followed with his second double in two tries.

With Miron already at the plate Norm McCue decided to send in Lou Istead and this move proved to be the one that won the ball game, as Lou slammed a sizzling drive into deep centre field to end the ball game.

Thompson went the distance on the mound for Technical Wing, giving up 10 hits and striking out 13 while allowing five men free trips to first. Reid started on the hill for the Chevrolets and stayed five innings. Reid was tagged for seven hits, struck out three and walked one. Harry Farr worked three innings for Weese Motors and allowed four hits, while firing "strike three' past three airmen and walking three.

Raspberries Sell At 40 Cents Box On Market

Trenton: Raspberries made their appearance on Trenton market for the first time Saturday. Red raspberries brought 40 cents a quart and 25 cents a pint. The blue variety of raspberries were being offered at 40 and 45 cents a quart. A few black caps were on sale at 40 cents a quart and 20 cents a pint box.

Red and black currants were seen on several stands. Red currants were being offered at 25 cents per quart box, while black currants were selling at 50 cents a quart. A few late strawberries were priced at 35 cents for a quart box.

Home grown cucumbers were displayed on one stall at two for 15 cents with the larger ones at 10 cents each.

Cherries were not very plentiful and did not meet the demand, at $1.30 for a six quart basket. Potatoes were plentiful at 60 cents a peck, or ten pounds for 40 cents.

Gooseberries were noticed on two or three stands at 20 cents a quart, and 90 cents for six quarts. Cauliflower were in very short supply selling at 15 cents for fairly small heads. Cabbage were being offered at 10 and 15 cents per head, depending on size. Late peas were priced at 2 quart boxes for 25 cents and 60 cents a six quart, unshelled.

Eggs were going at 55 cents a dozen for grade A Large. Poultry was selling at 50 cents a pound dressed weight.

Beets and carrots were in abundant supply at two bunches for 15 cents, while radishes and cooking onions were selling at from five to ten cents per bunch.

YOUTH AGAIN REMANDED

Windsor, July 24 (CP)—David Carswell, 18, of Windsor, was given a further remand to July 31 when he appeared in court today on a charge of procuring an illegal operation that resulted in the death of a 16-year-old Windsor girl.

The body of the girl, Margaret Jean Smith, was found in the Detroit River July 12.

Carswell is free on $5,000 bail while police search for another person suspected of being involved in the girl's death.

Rare Albino Swallow Sighted by Fishing Party

Trenton (Special)—An albino swallow was seen by three Trenton men one day last week while they were trout fishing north of Bancroft.

All three men insist that the white bird was a rare albino as they saw it several times during the day, flitting about a nearby gravel pit.

They report that a flock of ordinary swallows was constantly flying around the unusual white member of their clan and regarded it as quite an oddity. Obviously, the orthodox swallows were confused by their white kinsman who looked so much like themselves and yet sported a strikingly different white plumage.

The party which included J. M. Holsey, Windsor; E. A. Holsey, Trenton; Don "Doc" Wright, Trenton and Hugh Vance of Bancroft, also found the trout were biting and they brought back "ten good sized ones."

England Wins Kolapore Cup Canada Third

Bisley Camp, Surrey, England, July 22—(CP)—Canada's team at the National Rifle Association Meet today placed third in the Kolapore Cup competition.

England won the event with a score of 1,113. Rhodesia placed second with 1,100 and Canada's marksmen scored 1,097.

After the 300-yard stage, Rhodesia was leading, with England second, Jersey third and Canada fourth. At the 500-yard stage, the Canadian team pulled up to third place behind Rhodesia and England and remained in that order until the end of the match after the 600-yard shoot.

Maj. James Hampton, captain of the Canadian team, won third prize of £3 with a score of 48 out of a possible 50 after a tie in the Secretary of State Rapid Firing Competition at 500 yards. A. G. Pinnock of Britain won the event.

British Election Unlikely Before Next Spring

By GLENN WILLIAMS

London, July 24 — (AP) —Political tipsters on both sides of the fence predict now that the thin socialist control of Britain's affairs will last at least until next spring.

Some say a new election may not come even that soon.

The conservative foes of Prime Minister Attlee have candidates lined up to run for almost every seat in the House of Commons but political chiefs who guide the party still have no coherent program on paper. They don't think they'll need one for several more months.

The labor party is going full speed ahead with a new platform which stresses a slowdown on public-ownership plans.

A preliminary plan has been drawn. It will get a final polishing from labor's executive committee this Wednesday, then will be moved on to local parties in each constituency for discussion. The final program will be ready by mid-October. In that month it will also get a going over from the labor party's annual convention.

The Prime Minister has power to ask the king at any time to dissolve parliament and call an election, but labor party informants say Attlee is in no mood to chance a test at the polls yet and probably won't be before next spring.

Last February's balloting, which cut labor's majority from overwhelming control of the Commons to a shaky working majority of nine, showed political sentiment evenly split in the country.

Persistent tapping of popular feelings has shown no convincing swing to either party.

O.P.P. Constable Dismissed At North Bay

Toronto, July 24 — Attorney-General Porter Friday announced dismissal of Constable Gordon A. Anderson of the North Bay detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police for "unbecoming conduct."

He said that Anderson, suspended June 21 following a complaint by a North Bay hotel proprietor, was fired yesterday by the provincial cabinet on the recommendation of Police Commissioner W. H. Stringer.

William Noyes, operator of the Algonquin Hotel in North Bay, complained of Anderson's conduct the night of June 17. Testimony at an inquiry held by Commissioner Stringer was that the policeman, under the influence of liquor, got into an argument with Noyes. Details were not disclosed.

He was convicted of discreditable conduct by acting in a disorderly manner."

MARMORA

Two Norwood Men Injured In Road Accident

Marmora—William H. Bannon, of Hastings and Glen Taylor, of Norwood, received head injuries and lacerations and were rendered unconscious for a while as the sedan in which they were travelling east on No. 7 Highway on Saturday afternoon crashed into an air compressor, property of the Department of Highways which was stationary about a quarter of a mile east of W. D. Lavender's service station.

The driver of another car passing at the time, notified Dr. H. G. Parkin, who attended their injuries. As they regained consciousness and had their injuries dressed, Provincial Constable T. Lummiss of Madoc, who investigated, conveyed both men to Madoc.

Marmora Dunks Norwood 14-4

Marmora — Although a little slow in getting down to action, Marmora won comfortably in their home game with Norwood on Friday evening the score being 14-4 in their favor. Drummond pitched throughout for the winners and was given good support by his team mates. Norwood used Fredericks for the opening pitcher and he was changed for E. Spencer in the third when ten men crossed the plate. This innings was featured with a homer and a three bagger by Auger. In scoring his home run Auger also brought in two other runs. Killian playing his usual effective game, and Sweet scored a brace each in that frame. From the fourth Kelly took over the pitching for Norwood and kept the Marmora scoring down to only two more runs. In the fifth, Marmora executed a neat double play—Drummond to Killian to Darrah.

The game was witnessed by a somewhat larger crowd than usual.

First War Vets Greet Old Comrade

Marmora — Marmora First World War Veterans renewed a link with the days of the G.W.V.A. as they greeted the secretary of that organization, W. E. Turley of Toronto, during his recent two weeks' stay with B. Anthony at Deer Lake Island.

In a short humorous article, Mr. Turley wrote for the local weekly he mentioned that the city bred Kerry Blue terrier, "Butch" which Mr. Anthony brought to the island from the city, knew nothing about skunks on his arrival, but now knows all that he could ever want to know, and that the same terrier will listen attentively to all forms of music save one—that produced by his owner from an old accordion.

It was Mr. Turley's first visit to the village since he was guest speaker at a G.W.V.A. banquet several years ago.

Porcupine Output Billion Dollars In 40 Years

Timmins, July 24 (CP) — The Porcupine mining district of northern Ontario has reached the $1,000,000,000 mark in production after 40 years of operation, a record for Canada.

Record of the Ontario Department of Mines gives the following figures:

Ore treated, 117,878,184 tons; gold recovered, 33,757,658 ounces; silver recovered 6,470,532 ounces; grand value $1,002,794,736.

The district produces about 4.5 percent of the world gold output outside of Russia. The 'Big Three' of Porcupine mining are Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines Ltd; McIntyre Porcupine Mines, Ltd.; and Dome Mines, Ltd.

CANADA PRODUCES SOME OF THE WORLD'S FINEST LUMBER

Canada has almost unlimited timber. From British Columbia fir to Maritime spruce her lumber is in demand throughout the world.

Why Seagram's sells Canada first

This is an adaptation of one of a series of advertisements designed by The House of Seagram to promote the prestige of Canada and help sell Canadian products to the markets of the world.

The campaign is appearing in magazines and newspapers published in various languages and circulated throughout the world. The peoples of many lands are told about the quality of Canadian products and see Canadian scenes illustrating these products.

The advertisements are in keeping with the belief of The House of Seagram that the future of each business enterprise in Canada is inextricably bound up in the future of Canada itself; and that it is in the interest of every Canadian manufacturer to help the sale of all Canadian products in foreign markets.

A campaign such as this not only helps Canadian industries but also puts money in the pocket of every Canadian citizen. One dollar of every three we earn comes to us as a result of foreign trade. The more we can sell abroad the more prosperous we will be at home. It is with this objective that these advertisements are being produced and published throughout the world.

WEDDINGS

PALMER—WOODLEY

A quiet wedding was solemnized in Christ Church, Belleville, on Saturday, July 22, when the Rev. Canon J. Grant Sparling, rector of the church, united in marriage Maida Elaine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold George Woodley, and James Nichols, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jermyn F. Palmer.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and attended by Mrs. Kenneth Wooodley and Mrs. Thomas Woodley, while Mr. James Dearden, of Orillia, attended the bridegroom.

After the wedding, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Following the reception, the couple left for a camping trip in Haliburton County. Upon their return they will reside at R. R. 2, Trenton, Ont.

GAWLEY—BATEMAN

Marmora.—St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, was the setting for a pretty wedding on Saturday, July 22, at 3 p.m., when Mabel Ellenore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bateman, of Marmora, was united in marriage to Norman Walter, son of Mrs. Walter M. Gawley, of Peterborough, and the late Walter M. Gawley. The Rev. G. D. Young, B.A., B.D., officiated before a background of tall floral standards and candles.

The wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Alex. Fraser, of Marmora, and the soloist, Mrs. E. Colden, sang before the ceremony "O Promise Me", and during the signing of the register, 'Because".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her bridal gown of heavy traditional cream satin, fashioned on princess lines, with nylon and lace molded bodice with seed pearl trim, the full skirt falling gracefully into a slight train. Her floor length veil of lace-edged nylon tulle was held in place by a matching headdress of lace over satin, encrusted with seed pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and blue forget-me-nots and maidenhair fern tied with white satin streamers.

Mrs. George Reeves, of Belleville, was matron of honor, gowned in pastel green figure taffeta, with matching gloves and picture hat. She carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations and maidenhair ferns.

Miss Jean McLaren, of Belleville, was senior bridesmaid, wearing pastel yellow figured taffeta with matching gloves and picture hat, and carrying a nosegay of old fashioned flowers tied with matching ribbons.

Miss Ruth Bateman, sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid, gowned in pastel orchid figured taffeta, with matching gloves and picture hat. She carried a similar bouquet to that of the senior bridesmaid, tied with matching ribbon.

Miss Judy Gawley, of Niagara Falls, Ont., cousin of the bridegroom, was flower girl, demure in white organdy with blue satin streamers, matching hat and mitts. She carried a nosegay of pink and white carnations.

Mr. Leland Gawley, of Peterborough, and brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and Mr. Francis Dwyer, of Niagara Falls, Ont., brother-in-law of the bride, and Mr. Gordon Reid, of Ivanhoe, cousin of the bridegroom, were ushers.

Following the reception, which was held in the church parlors, the bride's mother, gowned in powder blue with white accessories, and corsage of red roses, received the guests assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore navy faille with navy accessories, and corsage of red roses. The young couple left for Lake Simcoe, and points in the United States.

For travelling, the bride chose a powder blue ensemble with navy and white accessories and corsage of pink roses. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Gawley will reside in Peterborough, Ont.

Out-of-town guests were present from Niagara Falls, Ont., Belleville, Peterborough, Niagara Falls, N.Y.; Maryland, U.S.A.; Tweed and Madoc.

RAWDON

Young Couple Charivaried By 125 Merrymakers

Rawdon.—Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bush, River Valley, entertained 70 guests at their home on Tuesday evening last in the form of a reception in honor of their son, Jack Bush and his bride, formerly Miss Joan Hoard.

The young couple had just returned from a delightful honeymoon at Algonquin Park, Huntsville, Midland and Lake St. Peter.

The dining room was decorated in yellow and white with the bridal party seated at the large table and small tables attractively arranged and decorated in the same color scheme to seat all the cousins and other invited guests.

Those in charge of the serving were Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh, Mrs. Gerald Brooks, Mrs. Roy Irven, Mrs. Pihl Conley; Misses Helen Stapley and Mary Hulin.

The kitchen hostesses were: Mrs. Stanley Irven, Mrs. Clifford Lansing, and Mrs. Harry Hulin.

Mrs. Mary Vandervoort, aunt of the groom, poured tea.

At 10:30 p.m. the River Valley ccharivari gang, headed by the Stirling Municipal Band, made a noisy appearance with about 125 merrymakers.

After a session of weird music the band members delighted with a splendid musical program.

Mr. and Mrs. Bush served refreshments to all the guests on the lighted lawn and everyone enjoyed a delightful evening.

Graniteware Shower

Previous to the wedding, Mrs. Jack Brown and her daughter, Miss Eleanor Brown entertained a number of ladies to a graniteware shower at their home at Hoard's Station, in honor of the bride-to-be.

The rooms were suitably decorated with an upturned parasol as the central decoration in the living room.

Joan was the recipient of a decorated basket in pink and blue filled with blue and white granite, and she graciously thanked her friends for the lovely gifts.

Dainty refreshments were served and all enjoyed a happy afternoon.

MADOC

Enjoyable Picnic Held at Crystal Beach by W.I.

Madoc.—The Madoc Branch of the Women's Institute held an enjoyable outing at Crystal Beach, on Friday afternoon. Instead of the regular meeting, the afternoon was spent in games and contests. Members and visitors alike taking part.

Tables were set and a bounteous supper served. Among the honored guests were Mrs. James Caskey, who has been a member and now a life member, since its organization in 1910, and Mrs. T. L. Nickle also one of its oldest members and one who has contributed much to the Madoc branch. Both were recipients of small gifts.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. George Hill, convener of the afternoon's program and her assistants for the pleasant outing.

Announcement was made for the August meeting which is to be held at Mrs. Will Stewart's home, when Miss Lamoine West, B.A., will give a talk on 'Vocational Guidance".

PRIESTS ROBBED

Cleveland, July 24 — (AP) — Two men with silk-stocking masks broke into a Roman Catholic parish house today and robbed three priests of $13,000. One priest was slugged.

The money came from a five-day parish and carnival and yesterday's collection at the Immaculate Heart of Mary church in southeast Cleveland.

25th Anniversary Marked By Women of the Moose, D.G.R. Mrs. A. McKelvie Attends

The Women of the Moose of Belleville Chapter No. 435 celebrated the Chapter's 25th anniversary on Sunday at the Orange Hall. The chapter was instituted 25 years ago by the late Mrs. Joseph G. Jackson of Toronto, who was the Deputy Grand Regent of Canada at that time. The first Sr. Regent of Belleville Chapter was Mrs. Thomas Wells; the Junior Regent, Mrs. Ernest Bunnett; Chaplain Mrs. William Parry and the Recorder, Miss Mary Doran. Of the charter list only four are left as members of Belleville Chapter.

For the occasion a class of 14 candidates was initiated, honoring the present Deputy Grand Regent, Mrs. Alice McKelvie of Kitchener, Ontario, Chapter No. 634.

Following the initiation, Mrs. McKelvie welcomed the new members into the defending circle of the Women of the Moose, asking them to become active members of Belleville Chapter, to help increase its membership and wished them years of happiness in their associations with the organization.

Mrs. McKelvie then presented each of the new co-workers with a rose.

Corsages Presented

The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion with summer flowers. Corsages were presented to Mrs. McKelvie, also to Mrs. Winkworth, the District Deputy Supreme Governor's wife and to the officers and escorts.

Guests were present from Toronto Port Hope, Trenton, Brockville, Oshawa and Frankford.

A special guest for this anniversary meeting was Mrs. Alice McKelvie, Deputy Grand Regent of Ontario in whose honor the class was initiated.

Mr. George Winkworth, District Deputy Supreme Governor, of the Loyal Order of the Moose of Toronto and Mrs. Winkworth were also special guests. Pilgrim Joseph G. Jackson, chairman of the Beneficiary Board of the Loyal Order of Moose, also paid a surprise visit to Belleville Chapter on its anniversary. Mr. Jackson is the husband of the late Mrs. Jackson who instituted Belleville Chapter.

Chapter Congratulated

Guest speakers were Mrs. McKelvie who congratulated the chapter on its 25th anniversary, and also thanked the chapter for having the largest class initiation of any chapter in Ontario in her honor. She also thanked Mrs. Eliz. Murphy and Mrs. Selina Isles who sponsored the class of candidates.

She stated that a new chapter year had started, and asked for the whole hearted co-operation of officers and members, as it takes the combined efforts of both to have a successful chapter year. She spoke of her year as deputy, stating that the chapters in Ontario had been very cooperative and had nearly all responded with class initiations, and also for the Canadian House of God fund for the beautiful new church which is being dedicated at Mooseheart on August 20th. She wished the chapter every success for the coming year and hoped the next 25 years would bring greater progress and success to Belleville chapter.

Other speakers were Mr Winkworth, who spoke on the ritual in his capacity as Ritual Chairman for the Loyal Order of Moose.

Tell of Experiences

Mr. Jackson spoke on the experiences he and Mrs. Jackson had in organizing the chapters of the Women of the Moose in Ontario and of the progress made by the chapters in Ontario since that time.

Before the meeting adjourned Mrs. Eliz. Murphy the Junior Graduate Regent was presented with her Graduate Regent's pin by the Deputy Grand Regent. Mrs. Murphy thanked the chapter for the award and also for the splendid co-operation given her during her term of office as Sr. Regent.

Expresses Appreciation

The Senior Regent then expressed her thanks and appreciation to Mrs. McKelvie for the assistance she gave the chapter on committee work and general instructions. She also thanked her executive and all the co-workers who helped to make the anniversary meeting and supper such a wonderful success.

After the meeting a bountiful supper was served to 100 guests from tables decorated with flowers. A large birthday cake held a place of honor at the head table. In charge of supper arrangements was Mrs. Mabel Galbraith, and her committee.

During the supper hour Mrs. McKelvie was presented with $10.00 for the Canadian House of God fund, and was also presented with a gift in remembrance of her visit to Belleville chapter.

A social hour followed the supper with the showing of a Mooseheart film in technicolor, and also a film of Moosehaven by Mr. Lawrence Bamsay, Governor of Port Hope Lodge.

The party arrangements and the chapter program was sponsored by the officers of Belleville chapter.

PNEUMONIA

Prime Minister St. Laurent was at his holiday home in St. Patrice, Que., when the news reached him. He immediately ordered a state funeral and made plans to return to Ottawa.

Mr. King's death he said,"marks the end of a period which historians will certainly describe as 'the Mackenzie King era'".

He added: "Today the Government of our country has lost its wisest counsellor and the people of Canada their greatest public servant."

The state funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon with services in the church where Mr. King always worshipped, St. Andrew's Presbyterian.

Tuesday his body will be taken from Laurier House to lie in state in the Hall of Fame of the Parliament Buildings for 24 hours preceding the funeral.

It will then be taken to Toronto by special train for burial Thursday morning in Mount Pleasant Cemetery beside the graves of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John King, and his brother, Dr. J. McDougall King.

In a public career of nearly 50 years, Mr. King left an imprint on Canadian life that only history will fully reveal. But he was a modest-living, lonely and somewhat aloof man. His actions were unostentatious.

Since Christmas he had been in failing health and seldom left Laurier House, where for much of the time he was confined to his bed.

His last public appearance was in mid-June during the Imperial Press Conference of the Empire Press Union which brought to Ottawa newspaper publishers from all parts of the Commonwealth.

Mr. King attended the state dinner given the delegates by the Canadian government but remained only for the pre-dinner reception, meeting all the delegates, many of whom were old friends.

It was noticed then that he had failed greatly and that his appearance was achieved only by great physical effort.

But he told friends he hoped to go at once to his place in Kingsmere, where the quiet surroundings and warm weather so often had brought him back to strength in the past when he was worn and ill from the strain and stress of his office.

He went to Kingsmere about a month ago and started, with assistants, to work on his memoirs and papers.

At noon Saturday the news of his serious condition was made public. It came from a private secretary of his early days in office, Fred A. MacGregor, who recently resigned as chief commissioner of the Combines Investigation Act, and took on the task of helping his old chief with his memoirs.

He reported that Mr. King had been ill with pneumonia since late Thursday, and that his attending physician described his condition as "exceedingly grave."

Mr. MacGregor, with Edouard J. Handy, the bilingual personal secretary, who has been Mr. King's constant companion for more than 12 years, and joined later by the three nephews, was at the bedside until the end came. Also present was the domestic staff, most of whom had been with Mr. King for many years.

His Death Announced

At 9.42 p.m., Dr. Laidlaw announced that the former Prime Minister was dead He issued the following statement:

"Death was due to hypostatic pneumonia which had been precipitated by an attack of acute pulmonary oedema which occurred on the afternoon of July 20.

"The illness represented the terminal phase in the course of chronic cardiovascular disease of long standing.

"Although for some time the patient had suffered from serious physical ill-health, he retained his alertness of mind and studiously employed himself with a great number of important tasks right up to the onset of his illness."

Mr. King, grandson of William Lyon Mackenzie, rebellious fighter for responsible government in Canada, entered public life in 1900 at the request of the late Sir William Mulock, who wanted him to help organize the first Canadian Department of Labor.

He was the first deputy Minister of Labor and in 1908 entered Parliament and became Minister of Labor. With the exception of the First World War years—1914-18 when he was with the Rockefeller Foundation—Mr. King has been a prominent and usually dominant figure in Canadian public life.

In later years, the strain of his health took the form of frequent attacks of pulmonary ailments.

He took frequent trips in search of health, usually to Virginia and other southern resorts.

He went from Paris to London for the Conference of Commonwealth Prime Ministers in October, but became so ill that he was forced to remain in bed in his hotel for a month.

He was attended by the King's physicians and other specialists who told him he would have to give up active public life and take the best possible care of himself.

Mr. King was able to travel home by ship early in November, 1948, landing in New York. He remained abed during the journey and was weak and wasted on arrival.

Back home he seemed to improve, but was finally convinced that he must shake himself free of all public responsibilities, if he were to regain his health.

Then nearly 74, he drove to Government House through the bleak winter chill of Nov. 15, 1948, to resign the office of Prime Minister he had held so long.

From then on, he lived largely in retirement, reading, resting and working on his official memoirs of a career that encompassed and often dominated the first half of Canada's 20th century.

The man who was born Dec. 17, 1874, at Berlin (now Kitchener), Ont., had a lot to look back on.

Thrice Prime Minister

His was a political career that made him Prime Minister three times, saw him launch Canada towards the welfare state with broad social legislation, saw him lead the country through the Second World War and into the atomic age as a young, maturing giant accepted as a major partner by the United States and the United Kingdom.

He began to lead Canada in 1921, a 46-year-old Prime Minister who two years before had been picked by the Liberal Party from among four candidates for the party mantle left vacant by the death of Laurier. The country was bucking the problems left by its first big war.

Chronologically, his political life was marked by his election to the Commons as members for the Ontario riding of Waterloo North in 1908; appointment to the Laurier Cabinet as Labor Minister in 1909; his selection as Sir Wilfrid's successor 10 years later; his first election victory as leader in 1921; the stalemate election of 1925, three months out of office, and then the election victory of 1926; defeat for the Liberals in 1930; victory again in 1935 to launch a 13-year stretch that closed out his record.

Paradoxically, this man who led the country longer than any other—a sober, cautious leader often accused of lacking color — was defeated personally at the polls four times. By-elections furnished the avenue that allowed him to return to the Commons to lead his Liberal backers.

He was revered or respected by his followers as a master parliamentarian, a shrewd party leader who could sense the thinking of the people and crystallize it in action as could few men before him and no one in his own time.

Probably as no other Canadian before him, he became a world figure and enhanced Canada's status in doing so. He conferred as an equal and as a friend with Franklin Roosevelt and Winston Churchill in the dark days of the war. He toured Canada in 1939 with the King and Queen, offered the hand of hospitality to war-exiled European royalty.

He was tremendously fond of his mother, and the image of her father, William Lyon Mackenzie, was a large factor in his life and in the shape of his career.

His life was studded with highlights whose brilliant augury was his university days . He left University of Toronto in 1897 with three degrees, studied at Harvard and Chicago universities, became deeply interested in social problems and, as a young newspaper reporter for the old Toronto Globe, was instrumental in having a full-wage clause written into government legislation.

The memo he wrote on that subject led to his appointment as deputy Labor Minister and abandonment of plans to lecture at Harvard. The big events since then are numerous and part of Canadian history.

His 1919 election as party leader came not without surprise because he defeated three seasoned, older men with larger claims on party loyalties. But all three served in his cabinet.

In 1926, he fought a celebrated election on the constitutional issue of the right of a governor-general to refuse a prime minister's request for dissolution of the Commons, as Lord Byng had refused his.

He won and later said ". . . There is no longer any possibility of doubt that the governor-general is the representatve of the King and in no way representative of the government of Great Britain or any department of that government."

That same year his presentation of Canada's case at the Imperial Conference was a vital step in the development of Dominion autonomy as expressed in the Westminster Statute of 1931.

Mr. King came through other momentous issues, such as the conscription crisis of 1944 when he dramatically reversed the policy of five war years and ordered conscription of soldiers for overseas service.

His long interest in social problems powered him through legislative measures that included Canada's first labor code, old age and blind pensions, unemployment insurance, family allowances and promotion of a scheme of national health insurance.

It was during his regime that the pro-Soviet spy plot in Canada was uncovered and investigated resulting in the prosecution of several men and women on espionage and associated charges.

Mr. King took Canada into the Second World War promptly and united and one of his supreme satisfactions was the return of his Government in the 1945 election which followed Germany's defeat.

As Minister of External Affairs for years, he started Canada's foreign diplomatic service by sending ministers to Washington and Tokyo, and saw it grow to large proportions. He led the Canadian delegation to the 1945 San Francisco Conference that launched the United Nations.

The movements for a North Atlantic Security Alliance and absorption of Newfoundland as a 10th province were started in his tenure of office, but completed by the man he favored as his successor, Louis St. Laurent.

Mr. King believed strongly in the ideal of the United Nations.

He headed the Canadian delegation to the initial conference in San Francisco in April, 1945 returned to fight and win the general election of that year, and flew back to San Francisco to sign the historic charter at the end of June.

He was not fond of flying, but took to the air for the first time in the autumn of 1940 when he flew to London for a war conference. Thereafter, he made many flights when the pressure of time and urgency of business made it necessary.

The swing is to FORD

Chrome wheel trim rings and white sidewall tires optional at extra cost.

because its BIG!

Ford seats are wider, to bring you "big-car" roominess! You get "big" power, too—100-Hp. V-8 power. And you get a big-car "feel" from Ford's "Hushed" Ride, with "Para-Flex" rear springs and "Hydra-Coil" front springs smoothing the way.

because its BEAUTIFUL!

Canadian car buyers agree with famous style experts who selected Ford as "Fashion Award Winner". They're swinging to Ford because, inside and out, it's so luxuriously, so completely "The Fashion Car of the Year".

Just watch the '50 Fords go by along "vacation trail" these days . . . and your own eyes will convince you, more and more people are swinging to Ford! Then "Test-Drive" it yourself and see, hear and feel the reasons why!

Look beyond its "Fashion Car" beauty and see the extra hip and shoulder room in Ford's big, big "Lifeguard" Body . . . so restful on long trips.

Hear the smoother, quieter Ford 100-Hp. V-8 Engine "whisper while it works". Feel the difference in riding ease with Ford's new "Hushed" Mid Ship Ride. You'll say it has "big-car" roadability!

And here's another big reason why people are swinging to Ford for happy motoring: The '50 Ford costs less per mile than any other full-size car!

because its QUIET!

Ford brings you the quietest engine, the quietest ride in the low-price field. And for those who want even quieter, smoother performance, Ford offers its optional Overdrive. This advanced Ford feature lets the engine loaf at 35 m.p.h. speed, while the car hustles along at 50! And it pays for itself with savings of up to 15% on gasoline. Enjoy a demonstration.

TWO IN A ROW

The Batawa bludgeoneers found their shootin' eyes in Exhibition Park Saturday night blasting a couple of Napanee hurlers for 13 clouts to win going away by a 14-6 score. Gordie Muffitt blanked the Gibbardville crew for six innings then weakened and walked three to have Jocko blast a three-run triple that sent the righthander to the showers. Napanee touched Wright, Muffitt's successor for another three and tall Ken Peacock went to the rescue. However the Batawa bats were pounding out a paean of victory with Solmes and Acquino setting the score with three hits each. Mouse Bush came through handsomely with a brace of two-basers with Coach Bridgman hammering out a pair. The puts the Shoemen into undisputed possession of fourth slot in the league standing since Brockville was idle over the weekend.

A SPLENDID PROJECT

The official opening of the fine new recreation park of the Canadian National Railway Athletic Association has been set for Wednesday, August 9th at 3.15 p.m. There will be a formal reception held at Kiwanis Centre at 6 p.m. the same date, according to the invitations which came in the mail the other day. While not as yet completed, the softball diamond of the new park has been in use for some time utilized by the teams of the CNR Interdepartmental League. The new sports ground and recreation park is a distinct credit to its originators and President George Foster and his hard-working committees, not to mention the railroad employees who have so faithfully supported the project with time, money and effort. The Canadian National Railways and its athletic association should be justifiably proud, as should the city as a whole, of this fine new park which in itself is not only a fine recreation field but is a permanent monument to the hard work and efforts of those who made it possible. Congratulations, President Foster to you and those associated with you in this splended venture.

NCFORT HAS PUTT-PUTTS!

Bancroft will echo to the roaring thunder of flashing speedboats on July 26th when the Lions Club of the northern village are staging a speedboat regatta. Some of the fastest boats in the district will be seen in action including a number of 225 and 135 cubic inchers as well as boats of other classifications. It should be a great day for the Bancrofters as well as speedboat enthusiasts of other places. A grand program has been arranged and the village Lions are looking for a bumper crowd.

THIS WE SHOULD SEE

Something novel in the way of sport will be seen at the Canadian National Exhibition this year in a four-man sofeball team hailing from the United States. Four of 'em, count 'em, four are all the players on this unique squad, which, it is stated, has defeated some of the best nine-men teams in the United States and Western Canada. A Western sportswriter claims the mushball quartet can beat the best niner team in the country, but how it is done, is something we must see. There must be a pitcher and catcher but what the remaining pair does, we cannot say. It should be a sight to see. The team is available for dates in other parts of Ontario during the Exhibition period and any ambitious promoter who has ideas may get the address from this office.

Leafs Win Two of Three From Royals

Toronto, July 24 — The Maple Leafs, hopping about the field like kangaroos with tails afire, regained a little lost respect this not-lost weekend. They looked more like a ball team, albeit a weak-hitting one, in nudging the third-place Montreal Royals for two wins in three games. Following up a 5-3 triumph on the home lot Saturday night, the maligned Maples squeezed out 3-1 triumph in yesterday's opener, then fell back into skid row on a 2-1 decision in the seven-inning finale. All games were so tight that a hit in the right spot could have changed the outcome of any one.

He Got Assist Rule or No Rule

Boston, July 24 — The scoring rules say a pitcher must not be credited with an assist in striking out a man. However, Maurice McDermott of the Red Sox had to be given one when he struck out Jack Bruner of the St. Louis Browns Saturday.

The third strike got away from catcher Matt Batts. It bounded into fair territory at the right of the plate, but Batts couldn't find it. So McDermott had to rush up, grab the ball and fire it to first ahead of Bruner, so he got his assist—rule or no rule.

HORSELESS CARRIAGE

Cugnot, a Frenchman, is credited with building the first horseless carriage. It was propelled by steam at 2 m.p.h.

Detroit Tigers Whip Yankees 6-5 to Take Game, Half Lead In Close American League

Detroit Tigers scored two runs with two out in the ninth inning to salvage the final game of their three game series with the New York Yankees, 6-5 today. The result widened their American League lead to a game and a half before a crowd of 59,760.

With two out in the ninth and George Kell on first as the result of a force play, Hoot Evers and Gerry Priddy delivered successive singles to tie the score. Priddy's hit knocked out Allie Reynolds, who had pitched shutout relief ball since he took over in the fifth inning, and brought in Joe Page.

Veteran Ellis Kinder of the Boston Red Sox posted his 10th victory today when he scattered 10 hits to defeat his former teammates, the St. Louis Browns 6-2, before 19,452 fans.

Jackie Robinson and Gil Hodges each drove in four runs today to pace Brooklyn Dodgers to an 11-6 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates before 25,389 fans.

Robinson collected five hits and topped off the afternoon with his 10th home run, a 450 foot drive over the left field wall in the ninth inning off Vic Lombardi. Hodges pounded a three run homer over the wall in the eighth inning of Mel Queen.

St. Louis Cardinal second baseman Al Schoendienst bettered his own National League record of 285 consecutive chances fielded flawlessly today as the Red Birds trimmed Boston Braves 8 to 4.

Schoendienst, who chalked up two putouts and four assists, giving him a total of 286 chances without an error in a 52 game span, set his old record in the latter part of the 1948 season and the early section of the 1949 campaign.

Stan Musial extended his hitting skein to 28 games with a single.

Bob Lemon, heading for the best season of his career, became the first major league pitcher to win 15 games this year. He scattered nine hits as Cleveland Indians defeated the Washington Senators 6-2, before 19,339 fans today.

Al Rosen, Cleveland's third baseman played with a broken nose. He was hit on the bridge of the nose chasing Ed Stewart's foul Saturday night. X-rays today refealed a fracture. Rosen wore a strip of plaster on his nose. Both his eyes were blackened and swollen.

Philadelphia Athletics swept a doubleheader with Chicago White Sox 2-1 and 5-4, today and climbed out of the American League cellar.

Allowing only fife hits and delivering the deciding hit himself, Hank Wyse beat the Sox for the second time in three days in the opener, while Paul Lehner's single with the bases loaded and none out in the ninth settled the nightcap.

Eddie Sawyer's Philadelphia Phillies regained undisputed possession of the National League lead today. They defeated Cincinnati Reds 12 to 4 and 7 to 4, in both ends of a doubleheader.

Eddie Waitkus, with hits in five tries, paced the Phils to victory in the nightcap. Four homers, two by Willie Jones, two triples and two doubles were among the 15 hits the Phils hammered off the pitching of Ken Raffensberger and Ed Erautt in the first game.

New York Giants whipped Chicago Cubs in a double header today 5 to 3 behind Larry Jansen and 3 to 0 on Sheldon Jones' magnificent one-hit game.

Jones had a no hitter in his grasp until two were out in the eighth, then catcher Rube Walker lined a two-and-one pitch into left centre for a double.

HEAVY FIGHTING IN CERAM

Jakarta, Indonesia, July 22.—(AP)—Heavy fighting has broken out between rebel troops and government forces on Ceram Island, the rebel radio at Amboina said today.

Amboina is the seat of the rebel South Moluccan government which wants to quit the United States in Indonesia.

Irish Noor Wins Smashing Victory In Rich Race

New York, July 24—Noor proved he has a strong back as well as flying hoofs as he lugged a 132-pound load to a smashing victory Saturday in the $50,000 added American Handicap at Hollywood Park.

The Irish-bred galloper, making his final start under silks in the West, bounced home a half-length ahead of Dharan in the mile - and - a - quarter event. Frankly was third, while Miche and Old Rockport pulled up the rear of the small field.

Near Record

Dharan was the lightweight in the field at 100 pounds. But despite his 32-pound advantage, Dharan could not fight off Noor, which charged under the wire in 2:00 1/5, a fifth of a second off the track record.

Noor, the 1 to 3 favorite of 48,500 fans at the West Coast track, paid $2.70 to win. Winner of $237,440 since his arrival in this country last year, Noor is expected to be shipped East today and probably will start in next month's Saratoga Cup.

It was a big day for the Brookmeade Stable elsewhere along the national racing circuit. Greek Ship carried the stable's colors to victory in the $25,000 Monmouth Handicap, while Sunglow got home first in the $15,000 Saranac Handicap at Jamaica.

Greek Ship's victory came against older thoroughbreds. It marked the second time this year the 3-year-old son of Heliopolis stepped out of his division to win a race, his previous victory having been chalked up in the Metropolitan Mile at New York.

Joe Culmone turned in a front-running ride aboard Greek Ship, urging the Brookmeade charger home a head in front of Hypocrite II. Three Rings, one of the best handicap racers in the East, was forced to settle for third money.

Sunglow also pulled a mild upset in the Saranac, leading home Lights Up, the odds-on choice by three-quarters of a length. Bit O'Fate finished third, while Dooly was fourth and last in the field of sophomore runners.

The form also was bounded around in the $30,000 added Arlington Futurity, when To Market loped home first. Bernwood, the favorite of 23,037 fans at Arlington Park, staggered home eighth.

To Market, with Angel Rivera up, scooted to the front shortly after the start and remained on the top to the finish. Bugledrums finished second, more than five lengths back of the winner and two lengths ahead of Jumbo.

At Suffolk Downs, Woodvale Farm's favored Iamarelic breezed to a three-and-a-half length victory over Fog A Boglia in the $7,500 Mayflower Stakes. Tea Token out-gamed Liberty Rab for third money in the field of nine juveniles.

Slo-Mo-Shun Wins Gold Cup In Gruelling 90-Mile Classic

Detroit, July 24—Slo-Mo-Shun moulded her maiden race into a historic Gold Cup championship Saturday, upsetting two course records in the grueling 90-mile Detroit River classic.

The trim Seattle, Wash., entry won all three heats with an average of 78.217 miles per hour and became the favorite for next month's Harmsworth championship.

She proved her name and her class to be misnomers, zipping with the ease of an airplane over the three-mile circular course in power-boating's oldest test.

It was Slo-Mo-Shun's first try in competitive racing. Owner Stanley Sayres established her as the world's fastest boat last month in a 162.3235 mph straightaway run on the West Coast but racing hands felt she might be too fragile to hold up on the tough Gold Cup course.

As it was Slo-Mo-Shun took the pitching turns easily. Some fans thought she skipped along completely out of the water most of the way. Her bird-like performance might have been the doing of Designer-Driver Ted Jones, an aircraft engineer. Slo-Mo-Shun lapped defending champion My Sweetie in the first heat, but Detroiter Horace Dodge's veteran speed boat led by more than a mile in the second. My Sweetie's engine broke an oil line on the final lap of that heat and it was clear flying for Slo-Mo-Shun from there on.

Bandleader Guy Lombardo piloted his rebuilt Tempo IV to second place after My Sweetie had to drop out. Lombardo clocked in at 70.44 mph.

Lou Fageol, My Sweetie's driver, shared in the record honors despite the engine trouble. He posted a new mark of 86.2 mph for a three-mile lap in the second heat.

Veteran speeder Bill Cantrell drove My Sweetie in the first heat, but had to turn the controls over to Fageol because of injuries he suffered in a warm-up spin Wednesday.

Jim Crudden became the only casualty when Jay Dee V flipped over in the second heat. Hospital authorities termed his injuries "not critical."

Detroit breadman Jack Schafer's two hopeful entries, Such Crust I and Such Crust II, dropped out in midrace with engine trouble. Only three craft answered the starting gun for the final heat—Slo-Mo-Shun, Tempo, and Chaz, owned by Charles Klein, Long Beach, N.Y.

Besides eclipsing the 90-mile record of 75.55 mph set by Stanley Dollar's Skipalong last year, Slo-Mo-Shun sliced the 30-mile lap record to 80.897 mph in the second heat. My Sweetie posted the previous mark of 78.64 in winning last year's Gold Cup.

Gerard Cote Finishes Third In Marathon

Fort Fairfield, Me., July 24 — Four Canadians finished in the first dozen in the State of Maine AAU marathon here Saturday.

Winner of the grind of 26 miles and 385 yards, was J. Laverty of the Boston AA, in 2:44.39. A mere 12 seconds back was his teammate John Kelly, with Gerard Cote of St. Hyacinthe, Que., third, and George Norman of Toronto's Gladstone AC fourth. Two other Gladstone stalwarts, Fred Bristow and Paddy Mulvihill were 10th and 12th respectively in the starting field of 45.

Cote's time was 2:49.50 and he finished two minutes ahead of the 37-year-old Norman, a member of Canada's British Empire Games team. The three-man Gladstone team was second to the Boston AA for the team championship, based on points.

COLLIDE IN DOCKS

Liverpool, England, July 22—(Reuters)—The 14,000-ton Cunard liner Media and the 11,000 ton ship Worcestershire collided in dock here today, but the impact was only slight and damage minor.

A new plate is being fitted in the bows of the Media, and she is expected to sail for New York today with 200 passengers.

A cross-wind is believed to have caused the accident.

Shoemen Defeat Napanee 14-6 To Climb Into 4th Place Tie

Batawa's battling Shoemen, suddenly discovering the magic formula for ailing batters came up with another tremendous display of power at the plate Saturday night as they walloped Joe Killoran's Napanee Athletics 14-6 at the Fair Ground. to climb into a fourth place tie with the Brockville Memoes in the COBl Brockville Memoes in the COBL

The Batawans, who have fallen to the wayside six times this season by one run, have suddenly come to life at the plate. Last Thursday evening they crashed out 16 hits in sinking the Kingston Disney Leafs to break even on the week's activity. The dozen new bludgeons which the club purchased this week might contain part of the answer.

The Shoemen opened the scoring in the bottom of the first frame pouring over three runs on singles by Solmes and Acquino, an error to Vern Green and Mac Watson's double to chase Napanee starter Finlay. Stan McTaggart went the rest of the way. They added a fourth in the 2nd frame with Solmes riding home on Dick Bridgeman's triple to left field.

Seven Run Lead

The Shoemen opened up a seven run lead in the fourth with a walk to Carson, a single by Solmes, Dick Bridgeman's double and a two base error to the left fielder going for three runs.

The Athletics, effectively stifled by Gord Muffit who assumed the pitching chores for Batawa after a long absence, finally made the most of Muffit's first lapse by collecting three runs in the seventh. With two away in seventh Muffit walked Markle, Hayes, and Gerow, and then served up a knee high hook to Joe Jocko which that worthy blasted into left field for a triple and three runs.

Batawa came back in their end of the seventh to claim three runs on an error, two singles, and a double by Bill Rankin.

Muffit retired for a shoulder massage in the eighth and Art Wright came in. An error, a single, a walk, and Jim Markle's double resulted in three more Napanee tallies and Ken Peacock came in to douse the fire and effectively hold the Athletics over the rest of the route.

Batawa made it a rout in the eighth hammering over four more runs.

Muffit worked seven innings for the win, walking six, striking out six, and giving up six hits for three runs. Wright asd Peacock were touched for three hits and three runs in relief.

Stan McTaggart toiled a rocky road for seven and two thirds innings in relief for Napanee, being hammered for 11 of Batawa's fourteen hits for 11 runs. He was charged with the loss.

Cec Solmes and John Acquino with three for five led the winners with Bridgeman and Bush collecting a pair.

Joe Jocko, with two singles and a triple in four tries was best for the losers.

TEACH THE CHILDREN TO SWIM

Swimming days are here again! It's a wonderful sport : : . but it can be a dangerous one, particularly for the kiddies. You can help remove this danger: For example, never let the youngsters go into the water except under the supervision of an adult swimmer—and as soon as they are ready, teach them to swim! Next time the kiddies want to go for a dip, round up the gang and go with them: You can guide them—guard them . . : and surely that is "Good Citizenship":

Mawhinney Wins Golf Title Over Weslock

By W. R. WHEATLEY

Saskatoon, July 24—(CP)—Bill Mawhinney of Vancouver won the Canadian Amateur Golf Championship Saturday with a sensational 6 and 4 decision over the highly regarded Nick Weslock of Windsor, Ont. The upset was more in the margin of victory than in the outcome. The black-haired 21-year-old truck salesman from the Quilchena Club of Vancouver was never ruled out as a possible winner, although 32-year-old Nick remained the favorite to the final day of the week-long match-play competition.

Mawhinney, believed the youngest golfer ever to wear the Canadian amateur crown, shot superb golf practically all the way. He was only four over par in medal score for the full distance against 12 over par for Nick.

After Mawhinney took the first four holes in a row Weslock was pressing his play and even scrambling the rest of the way. He never saw the margin that close again. Twice it went to eight holes

The collapse of Weslock's game in the face of Mawhinney's brilliant display was the surprise of the day to a gallery of more than 1,000.

There was nothing wrong with Weslock's courage. He practised assiduously during the lunch interval after 18 holes—where he was seven down—but still could not control his iron and wood shots, particularly on his approaches.

He played better golf in the afternoon but it was too little and too late. Even then he once saw Mawhinney's lead soar to eight holes and only by sheer determination whittled it down to five.

The near medal play record shows how convincingly Mawhinney, winning 13 holes against seven for Weslock, routed his opponent On his first nine in the morning, Mawhinney was two under par with 34; on the second he was one over with 37. Weslock had 41 and 39. In the afternoon, Bill was out in par 36, Nick in 37.

After the 27th on the final turn for home Nick had four pars in a row against only one for Mawhinney, whittling Bill's eight hole lead at the 27th to five.

The match ended on the 32nd when Weslock was in a fairway trap at the side of the green with his second. Mawhinney was on the green in two and was conceded the hole in a par four.

When it was all over Bill said: "This is the happiest day of my life"

Weslock, obviously disappointed with his own game but giving full credit to Mawhinney, said.: "What can you do with a guy playing like that? He certainly did a good job on me."

For the 32 holes played Mawhinney was over par on seven against 15 for Nick. Bill tossed 22 pars and three birdies against Nick who had only 13 pars but gathered in four birdies.

Mawhinney made the turn of the morning round five up, coming out of a trap at the ninth with a beautiful shot that landed only a foot from the pin. Weslock, in another trap, blasted across the green and failed to hole out.

Facing an eight-hole deficit coming down the 18th fairway, Weslock played one of the best shots of the day with a pitch that landed only six inches from the pin. He was down for a birdie three to cut Mawhinney's lead to seven.

The first nine of the afternoon was almost a repetition of the morning play.

Nick took the 20th when Mawhinney went into a trap, and the 22nd with a birdie when Mawhinney sliced into the woods.

Bill dropped a six-foot putt to win the 23rd and took the 24th with a par when Nick sliced his tee shot.

At the 27th, Weslock caught a trap and went eight down. Then he made his final bid when Mawhinney uncorked his one wild streak of the day, going over par for three consecutive holes before ending the match on the 32nd.

Canuck Oarsmen Win Two Titles At Philadelphia

Philadelphia July 24 (CP) — Canadian oarsmen won two U.S. singles titles in the 76th National rowing championships here this weekend.

Both titlists from over the border are youngsters whose performances were listed as upsets. Jack Guest Jr., son of a former Diamond Sculls winner for Canada, scored in the senior singles Saturday. Tom Smith of Hamilton won the 145-pound singles today in a brilliant finish.

Guest, 17-year-old Canadian schoolboy champion who attends Etobicoke Collegiate Institute, Toronto, took his honors over a field of nine to win his way into the American championship class

Today, 19-year-old Smith, who rows for Leander Boating Club surprised all by upsetting the veteran New York fireman, Joe Angyal by three feet in the 145-pound championship event. It was the first time Angyal was defeated in his favorite race since 1938.

Smith a protege of Bobby Pearce, came from behind to win in the last 50 yards. Smith, who has been sculling for three years stroked Leander's 145-pound championship four to the title in the 1949 regatta at Buffalo, and has also won a number of Canadian crowns.

Defeat of Angyal was a real surprise as the New York AC sculler was a wide favorite. Rudy Jezek, Ravenswood, BC, Philadelphia was third in the five boat finish.

Almost equaling Smith's stirring showing was the fine work of another Pearce protege, Bob Williams of Leander, in the championship singles. Jack Kelly, Jr., 1949 Diamond Sculls champion of Vesper BC, was champion by four lengths over Williams, but the Hamilton lad had little trouble beating Joe McIntyre of Seattle, Wash., by almost as wide a margin.

New Yorker Wins O.G.A. Golf Tourney

Cornwall, July 24—(CP)—Roy "Rocky" Romeo from Massena, N.Y., Golf and Country Club fired a five-over-par 77 Saturday to win low gross honors at an Ontario Gold Association tournament here

Bill Morland, Canadian intercollegiate golf champion from North Bay, toured the Cornwall Golf and Country Clup in 79 to take second place in the 'AS' class.

Low net prize went to Stan Burke of the host club with a 79 gross and eight handicap for a net of 71. Dick Young of Toronto, president of the Ontario Golf Association, had a gross 83 and net 75 for second.

Players from 10 Ontario, Quebec and New York State Clubs competed.

Low gross honors in class "B" round were captured by Walter Wright, of Ogdensburg, N.Y. He posted a 79 and was followed by youthful John Marlin of Cornwall with an 89. Dr. J. A. Phillips, of the host club won low net honors in the same class with an 85. He was trailed by Bill Turnbill, of Ogdensburg, with an 84.

Mac Whittaker, of Cornwall, finished the course with a 93 to sweep the class "C" low gross race. Don McGregor, also of Cornwall was second.

Boyd Mulhern, Cornwall, with a 31 handicap, took low net top place in the same class with 100. Guy A. Smith, Cornwall, was second with 96.

Out-of-town competitors included:

Class "A" — Benny Andrews, Royal Quebec, 83; E. Hickey, Montreal Chaudiere, 87; E. R. Nesh, Montreal Hampstead, 88; J. Keay, Montreal Hampstead, 91; B. Douglas, Ottawa, 87; G. Favell, Toronto, 85.

Class "B"—L. Turner, Brockville, 93; C. L. Sherman, Brockville, 91; R. McDougall, Ottawa Hunt Club, 90; Bob Raguin, Hamilton, 90; W. E. Stead, Toronto, 89.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Bridge is a game of infinite surprises. Only a very few of its rules are infallible. At times what you do right will lose for you. At times what you do wrong will win for you.

There are 635,013,599,600 different hands. The rule to apply to each one is the one that has more advantages than disadvantages. All you ask of a good rule is that its percentage is in your favor.

My claim is that Horse Sense rules offer a higher percentage of accuracy than any others; and that they are easier to learn and apply. Which is the most any player can ask of a bridge rule.

There is a sound rule for nearly every situation in bridge. These are based on normal expectancy. But a combination of them will develop the rule that is necessary for any unusual combination.

The overall rule for leads is: The order of choice of leads is guided by tops, longies, shorts; don't lead a suit bid by opponents; against a suit contract, don't lead away from an ace or a king.

When every unbid suit has an ace or a king in it, lead a trump. If you also have a king and one trump, lead a bid suit to show you have the ace or king of each unbid suit and in trump as well.

When all four suits have been bid, lead the last suit bid by the dummy. The idea of this is that the last bid suit is probably the weakest held by your opponents.

Thus, you see that it is best to first learn the normal rule, From this develops the rule for the odd situation that may occur. In other words, it is a combination of knowledge from the basics.

It is your lead from this west hand:

♥9 6 3 2
♦Q 9 6 4
♣K 8 5

North had bid clubs and spades in that order. South had bid hearts and diamonds, ending with hearts as trumps. Lead a spade, the last dummy bid suit. If it turns out wrong say: "Doggone the American card company."

Reports Louis Will Return To Ring

Paterson, N.J., July 24 —Joe Louis will return to the ring in late September for a heavyweight title bout, and has leased training quarters for a month, the Paterson Evening News said Saturday.

Earlier this month, Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, said Lewis would come out of retirement and oppose heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati in September if Louis could straighten out his income tax problems.

The Paterson News says Louis has reserved the Pompton Lakes, N.J., training camp—where he has trained for his previous bouts—for a month starting Aug. 24.

Snead Ties Jim Ferrier For Top Slot

St. Paul, Minn., July 24 — Determined Sammy Snead roared from far behind today to tie Jim Ferrier for first place in the $15,000 St. Paul Open golf tournament and force a playoff tomorrow.

The never-say-die ace from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., who trailed Ferrier by six strokes going into today's final round, fired a blistering, seven-under-par 63 to match Ferrier's total of 276 strokes—12 under par— for the 72-hole grind.

Ferrier, the leader through the first three rounds, almost blew his chances for a tie when he bogied the 17th hole and fired his second shot at the 18th hole into a trap But he came out beautifully for a birdie four that gave him a 71 for the round.

Jerry Barber of Philadelphia and amateur Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., wound up in a third-place tie with 278 on rounds of 72 and 71, respectively, today.

Skip Alexander, Nashville, Tenn., act who shared the lead with Ferrier after two rounds and trailed by a single stroke going into today's play, slipped to a one-over-par 73 today and had to settle for a fifth-place tie with Lloyd Mangrum at 279.

Bracketed behind him at 281 were: Joe Coria, St. Paul; Tommy Bolt, Rurham, N.C.; Ed. Oliver, Seattle, Wash. and Ted Kroll, New Hartford, N.Y.

Snead, the pre-tourney favorite, appeared out of contention after firing 70 and 72 for the first two rounds against Ferrier's 65 and 71. But he picked up speed with a three-under-par yesterday and capped his comeback with today's terrific 65. With their tie, Ferrier and Snead forced the St. Paul classic into a playoff for the sixth time in its 18-year history.

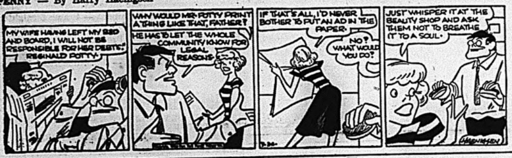
PENNY — By Harry Haenigsen



MY WIFE HAVING LEFT MY BED AND BOARD, I WILL NOT BE RESPONSIBLE FOR HER DEBTS! REGINALD POTTY.
WHY WOULD MR. POTTY PRINT A THING LIKE THAT, FATHER?
HE HAS TO LET THE WHOLE COMMUNITY KNOW FOR LEGAL REASONS.
IF THAT'S ALL, I'D NEVER BOTHER TO PUT AN AD IN THE PAPER.
NO? WHAT WOULD YOU DO?
JUST WHISPER IT AT THE BEAUTY SHOP AND ASK THEM NOT TO BREATHE IT TO A SOUL.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was reeding his paper and ma was reeding hers, saying, Well, here's news, William. Elmer Fisherman is going to speek in the tea room at Hookbinders Wensday afternoon.

What's he going to speek about? pop said, and ma said, About bridge, naturelly. Imagine, William, one of the greatest bridge players that ever lived, and the father of the Fisherman slam convention. Just think, thousands would never of gone down into histery if it hadn't been for the Fisherman convention, she said.

That's rather an awful thawt, pop said, and ma said, That perticuler convention is rather complicated, so personly I never learned to use it, unfortunately. All I know is, it's a way to ask for aces and kings, she said.

Oh, it's not really difficult, I can explain the Fisherman convention to you in a few werds, pop said, and ma said, Oh, can you reely, William?

Of course, pop said. If you have 2 aces and 3 kings, you bid 4 no trumps and cough once, but if you have 3 aces and 2 kings you cough twice and sniff once, and if you have all the kings and only need one ace, you sneeze. If your pardner has one ace and 2 kings, he bids 5 in his strongest suit and pulls his rite ear. If he has 2 aces and one king, he pulls his left eyebrow, and with only one ace and no king, he lays down his cards and blows his nose, pop said, and ma said, Now William, do you really think that's funny?

Music World Ready to Mark Bicentenary of Bach's Death

By W. G. ROGERS

New York, July 24 (AP) — Two hundred years ago next Friday, Johann Sebastian Bach died in Leipzig.

For 200 years before that, there had been Bachs who were musicians. The family could count a dozen organists, a dozen cantors, a dozen composers, and many of them received official appointments to German courts. So many Bachs were musicians that a musician was sometimes called a Bach.

Today it is the best known name in musical literature, and this anniversary year is probably the most important date on the musical calendar.

In Europe and America there has been an unending succession of festivals, fetes, concerts, programs and other events in his honor, and the record companies have flooded the field with Bach disks. The celebrations have been more than formal, empty gestures, too; they have consisted of hour after hour of performances of Bach's music. Nothing could please any composer more.

It would have pleased Bach himself. Out of his profound religious faith came the St. Matthew and St. John Passions and the Mass in B Minor. If he absorbed the entire musical culture of his time, he also enriched it beyond description.

He raised numerous musicians among his own children .. there were 20 of them, born to two wives.

The most talked-of Bach festival was held last month in Prades, in the Pyrenees, with 'cellist Pablo Casals coming out of retirement to assume the direction of it.

YESTERDAY . . . milking was a slow and tiring task

TODAY . . . he milks 20 cows in 60 minutes

MILK builds a healthy nation

Canadians consumed 14½ billion pounds of milk in 1949 . . . an average of 430 quarts per person. Modern machines enabled farmers to produce it, in spite of help shortage.

It takes a lot of hard work to produce milk. Cows have to be milked twice a day, 7 days a week. For every cow in the herd, it is necessary to put up at least 1½ tons of hay, 3 tons of silage and a ton of grain for winter feeding, plus half a ton of straw for bedding.

In spite of wartime and post-war shortage of help, dairy farmers have continued to produce milk in abundance . . . with the aid of modern tractors and power-farming equipment. Tractor-powered machines multiply the amount of field work a man can do in a day. Modern power milkers enable one man to milk as many cows in an hour as 3 men can milk by hand.

Milk builds healthy payrolls as well as healthy people. Farm income from the sale of 14½ billion pounds of milk in 1949 went out to buy millions of dollars worth of goods made by town and city workers.

Shaw Nears 94th Birthday But Will Pay No Attention to It; Plays Bring Him Big Income

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

New York, July 24 — George Bernard Shaw will be 94 years old July 26.

GBS (that's what his friends call him; he hates the name George and has dropped it) will pay no attention whatsoever to the event. Following a pattern established a quarter of a century ago when Shaw birthdays started to be news, the bearded, irascible Irish sage will closet himself for most of the day, refusing telephone calls and interviews and leaving congratulatory messages unopened.

At some point, however, Shaw may be glimpsed long enough by newspaper men to snort, in essence, on the subject of his birthdays: "Bah, rubbish!"

It is wise, however, to use the word "probably" when anticipating the millionaire playwright, for he is nothing if not unpredictable. There are grounds to believe he is not strictly on the level in his professed boredom with the fuss made over his birthdays.

Dublin-Irish Shaw has a Scotsman's sense about money. Only last year he offered to go ahead with a birthday interview —provided he was offered "a nice, big commission" for it.

Everyone Aware of Shaw

Shaw has never come up with anything particularly punchy or even outstandingly witty on or around his birthday. But there are few subjects under the sun upon which he has not commented with vehemence on other occasions. He has made people furious or amused them, but above all he has made them aware of Shaw.

He called Christmas a nuisance and a "horrible carnival." He said men couldn't write the truth about marriage while their wives were still alive. He called all men villains at 40; all women, at 30.

He invented a 42-letter English alphabet. He said he was careful never to say a civil word to the United States and had defined the 100 per cent American as 99 per cent idiot, "but they adore me:."

Shaw said Joan of Arc lacked sex appeal. He publicly espoused Communism after a trip to Russia in 1931. He said—in 1933—he liked Hitler's deeds and the way he expressed resentment, but not the Fuehrer's Aryan ideas. He laughed — in 1936—at the possibility of another World War, asking in the same interview if the Grand Canyon were a building.

He is Unpredictable.

He refused to go to King George's coronation in 1937 because "amateur pageants" bored him. He came out for R.A.F. bombing of Berlin and Rome at the end of 1940 — and completely reversed his opinion a few months later. He predicted Hitler would "get away with it" and wind up in the vice-regal lodge in Dublin.

That's a rough sampling of Shaw opinion through the years.

It has been quite a year for the spidery-legged, fierce-eyed old gentleman who has been calling himself extinct for almost 25 years.

Three of his plays were doing standing room business on Broadway last season. His latest play, 'Buoyant Millions" premiered in London. Even though it won mixed notices and ran only five weeks, Shaw is the most successful living playwright — and he can show you tax-collector's receipts to prove it.

TWO CZECHS SEEK ASYLUM

Bonn, Germany, July 22—(AP)—Two young Czech flying instructors landed a two-seater plane at Duesseldorf Thursday and sought political asylum, British officials announced today. A British official identified them as Rudolf Teichmann, 25, and Svakopluk Bokorny, 27. He said they were employed by the Czech Transport Ministry.

FARMS MECHANIZED

More Canadian farms are being mechanized every year. The tractor fuel bill in 1949 was 253 per cent greater than in 1948, while parts expenditures increased during the same period by about 200 per cent.

HORNET'S NEST, SHED BURNED

Reading, Pa., July 24—(AP)—Asher B. Stichler got rid of an annoying hornet's nest the hard way yesterday.

Stichler poked a flaming stick at the nest in the corner of a tool shed at the rear of his home in suburban Pennside.

Now the hornets are gone—and the tool shed, too.

The Gentle Heart

By Kay Hamilton

"Is Di in?" Fred demanded at once when Jenny answered the door. She was shocked at his appearance. Normally a neat young man, with clear blue eyes and smooth-brushed hair, he had a distracted look this morning. His eyes were bloodshot and staring, and he looked as if he hadn't shave at all.

"Come in, Fred," she said. Even if he were at fault, she could not help but feel sorry for him. He followed her into the living room docilely, sat where she indicated, but he repeated his question at once.

"Is Di in?"

"No, Fred. She's gone to the beauty parlor to have her hair done."

A peculiar spasm of pain flashed across his face, and he slumped suddenly where he sat. "Then she really doesn't care," he murmured half to himself.

Jenny straightened. "Fred, I can't get a thing out of her, but she's terribly upset. What did happen? Can't you tell me?"

When he looked up his eyes were bitter, and he seemed to have aged in these few minutes. "Yes, I can tell you," he said with slow emphasis. "It's simple enough. Diane doesn't care for me. Or for her new home. She' in love with only one person — herself. She cares for only one thing — her appearance — her beauty."

Jenny was silent. It wasn't true, of course, but it was near enough to the truth to worry her. There must be more.

He said, with sudden vehemence, "I wish she were homely! I wish she had lank hair and a muddy skin, and—and cross-eyes! Anything but this perfection that she's hipped on! She can't think of anything else! Her looks always come first."

"Oh, no, Fred," Jenny protested. Yet she did not speak with real assurance.

"Oh, yes!" he retorted. "Never less than an hour to fix her hair. And that's not saying anything about the time she spends on her skin. And her nails! The house is a mess! But she can't soil her hands with cleaning it, and I can't afford a woman for it. My own mother was a lady, but she wasn't afraid to work when she had to."

Jenny breathed fast. It was all true, so far. Diane did spend hours on her physical grooming, but she and Natalie were used to it, had watched it for so many years that it had ceased to perturb them. And then their father had always chided them when they would have protested. 'Let her go," he would say. "There are not many girls as beautiful as Diane."

It was her pride in her beauty —his spoiling that had done it. While their mother had lived there had been more family discipline. And since their father's death, two years ago, she and Natalie had been to blame for for their laxness. Yet it had been so easy to go along in the old ways rather than risk any unpleasantness. Their home had always had a harmonious atmosphere, it had been a happy place. And she and Nat had shied away from anything which would disturb that harmony.

Fred was still talking, jerkily, angrily. "She won't cook! Half the household money goes to the delicatessen. I've been living on bologna and baked beans and macaroni out of a white porcelain tray. Have you ever eaten delicatessen macaroni?" he demanded. "It's horrible stuff. But it doesn't cost as much as meat, and it doesn't have to be made at home!' He laughed, suddenly, a short, mirthless bark. 'Ha! You know how I got her off the macaroni and baked bean diet? I told her it was fattening! I'd still be eating it if I hadn't."

Jenny opened her mouth to speak, but he did not give her the chance. "I'd have stood all that, though, if there had been a spark of happiness somewhere. Something that I could work with. I love her." His face crumpled suddenly and he buried his head in his hands. His words came out muffled but despairing. "It was the flattery that got me. I've always thought Di was the most beautiful creature on God's earth. But I didn't know I'd be expected to tell her so every fifteen minutes. I didn't know that every time she wore a new pair of stockings or a new nail polish I was supposed to notice it and comment on it, and tell her how much more beautiful it made her. There was never any chance at normal 'married' talk—about my work, about our home, our future plans. Nothing like that. In two sentences it had got back, every time, to Di's beauty, or her clothes, or what somebody had said to her about her 'lovely long limbs' or her 'sun-gold hair'."

His words battered at her until Jenny felt faint with self-reproach. A lot of this was her fault. Hers and Natalie's. They should have risked a family quarrel now and then for the sake of Diane's character and perspective. They should have nagged at her if necessary. She would have taken it from them so much better than from anyone else. They should never have let her grow so one-sided that it would her life and wreck her marriage.

"She loves you, Fred," she offered now, hoping that she could bring some comfort to the unhappy man before her.

"I'm not sure," he said heavily. 'I don't know any more. Well," he got to his feet. "I've got to get to the office. I had hoped to see her. Tell her for me that I . . " He broke off, shrugged one arm despairingly. "Oh, what's the use!"

Jenny sat very still after he left. This was much more serious than she had thought when Diane came home last night. Then she had supposed it was a lovers' quarrel — something that could soon be patched up. But this was different. This, was a real break, and one which she saw now would take a long period of change to repair. If it could be done at all.

She longed to consult Natalie, but the door to the studio was closed this morning, and she knew her sister was hard at work on the revised drawing of her design. It was a household law that when the studio door was closed there were to be no interruptions except for meals. It had been that way for her father; now that Natalia was the wage-earner, it was that way for her.

No, this was something she would have to think about herself; something she would have to make every effort to solve. She remembered now, with a feeling of guilt, how little significance she had attached to Diane's announcement this morning that she was going to the beauty parlor. She would have thought it an unnatural thing in any other girl who had just left her husband, who had been as tragically upset as Diane had appeared to be the night before. Yet in Diane it had gone without comment. That, alone, should have shown her how narcissistic her sister had become.

When Di returned after eleven, Jenny was sitting at her desk figuring. It had come to her that there would be another mouth to feed, and her slim budget could not be stretched that far, she knew. And there would be more to do. She looked up when her sister came into the room, her eyes abstracted, her face serious.

"Di," she said at once, "if you are going to stay here, you'll have to help with the housework."

Diane did not appear to have heard her. She was turning this way and that in front of the large, gilt-framed mirror above the mantelpiece. One hand patted unceasingly at a soft curl above her ear. "I don't think Mary got my hair as good as last time," she said now. "You know, those girls get careless, and think that any old thing will do. She placed this curl too high, for one thing. It makes me look one-sided."

But you are one-sided; Jenny said to herself. Terribly, terribly one-sided. Why had I never noticed it before like this? Aloud she repeated what she had said.

"I heard you," Diane said impatiently. "Of course, I'll help."

Her agreement was so unexpected that Jenny blinked. Had Fred imagined his grievances, she wondered. But almost at once Diane continued.

"Of course, I think I ought to have some choice," she was saying. "For instance, I wouldn't mind running the vacuum cleaner, but you know what dusting does to my hands! Besides, you really like it, you've always said."

Jenny couldn't deny this, so she kept silent. It was astonishing enough that Diane was willing to help at all. "And I'll make the desserts, if you'd like," Diane added. "And perhaps some of the salads. But nothing with garlic or onion in it," she tacked on hastily, as if regretting her offer.

This was so much more than Jenny had expected that she made no protest at all. Besides, the phone rang just then and she picked it up absently. "Yes?" she said into the mouthpiece. "Oh, hello there! How nice! Are you back from your trip? Yes, she's working, and I don't dare." She glanced toward that end of the living room where the door to the studio passage was located. "I know she'd love to talk to you, but — why don't you come over here tonight for a real good chin? Good."

Jenny turned to Diane when she had hung up the phone. "That was Gary Underhill. He's just come back from his vacation. He took it late this year."

Diane was back at the mirror. She said slowly, "He really is smitten, isn't he? I've noticed it for quite a long time now. How does Nat feel about him?"

But Jenny could not give her an answer. She had never known her clever sister to be so enthusiastic about any man. When he wasn't there. That was the funny part. When Gary came around to sit adoringly at Natalie's feet, she treated him with such an offhand, casual manner that Jenny sometimes wondered what she really did think about him.

When Natalie came out of her studio shortly before lunchtime, stretching and frowning behind she working glasses, she seemed very tired and discouraged. "I wish I hadn't had to grub away at that design all morning. Nothing went right anyhow, and I'll have to do it over. I don't think Lightfoot knew what he was talking about. 'Carry this line through', he said, 'and you'll have something I can use.' Well, I carried it through, and it looks ridiculous." She ran one hand over her thick dark hair. "It bothers me. I was counting on that hundred dollars."

"Are you getting that much now?" Diane inquired with sudden interest.

"Only from him," Natalie said. The converters haven't paid me more than sixty. Seventy-five, once or twice. By the way, we'll have to talk over some financial arrangements, Di, if you are coming back here to live." Apparently she felt that this sounded too cold-blooded, because she added at once, "We have to pay our bills, you know, and one more person —"

Maj.-Gen. Dean Of U.S. Army Missing in Korea

Washington, July 22 — (AP)— The army today officially listed Maj.-Gen. William F. Dean, commanding general of the United States 24th Division, as missing in action in Korea.

It also reported word indicating that the general has been wounded.

Confirmation that Dean is missing came in a message from Gen. Douglas MacArthur. The supreme far east commander said that Dean's interpreter, who had been with him, indicated that Dean was wounded.

MacArthur expressed high hopes that the general will return with "one of the groups of separated personnel frequently returning to their units."

Fifteen Yaks Said To Have Hit U.S. Air-Strip

By ROY MACARTNEY
With U. S. Headquarters for Korea, July 22 — (Reuters) —

Fifteen Yak fighter-bombers — the largest concentration the communists have yet mustered over South Korea — today hit an advanced United States air-strip in a sneak raid, said American transport flyers returning to Japan tonight.

No official confirmation of the raid was immediately available here.

Apparently taking advantage of bad weather which has grounded most of the Allied fighters, the Yaks slipped in low over the sea.

An American naval unit nearby was not attacked.

So far there had been no notification of damage or casualties.

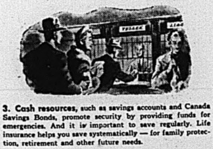
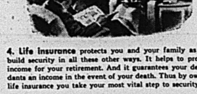
Four vital steps to security
(with something important in common)

1. A steady job is the foundation of security. And job-security can be increased by showing initiative — the quality which, surveys prove, makes workers most valuable. Life insurance dollars, invested in industries and public works, create many new jobs each year.

2. Owning your own home builds security two ways. It allows you to make a sound investment through regular savings, and it brings freedom from housing worries. Hundreds of thousands of Canadians now own their own homes, built with the help of life insurance dollars.



3. Cash resources, such as savings accounts and Canada Savings Bonds, promote security by providing funds for emergencies. And it is important to save regularly. Life insurance helps you save systematically — for family protection, retirement and other future needs.



4. Life insurance protects you and your family as you build security in all these other ways. It helps to provide income for your retirement. And it guarantees your dependants an income in the event of your death. Thus by owning life insurance you take your most vital step to security!

Here's to your future! In all these ways, life insurance helps you and yours to find greater security. Today 5 million Canadian life insurance policyholders are helping themselves and each other to face the future with increasing confidence!

Thousands Pass by Bier In Farewell Tribute to Memory of Great Statesman

Ottawa, July 25—(CP)—Thousands of Canadians today lined up on Parliament Hill to get their last glimpse of Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King.

Led by Prime Minister St. Laurent, they filed slowly past the flower-banked bier of the veteran statesman lying in state in the Parliament Buildings he loved so well.

Passing in single file under the Peace Tower, they moved up the marble steps into the centre block of pariament, across Confederation Hall to the Hall of Fame.

There, beneath the stately gothic arches and marble walls that witnessed so many of his triumphs during 40 years of public life, they moved slowly past the body of the statesman and former prime minister, who died Saturday at the age of 75.

Parents stooped to lift their children for a better view of the bier and of the uniformed honor guard, heads bowed over reversed arms in traditional tribute.

In the first hour almost 2,000 persons filed by the bier.

Simple Ceremony

A simple and moving ceremony took place at the bier before the general public was admitted at 10 a.m.

While a group of newspaper men, Commons employees and constables watched, three nephews of the veteran statesman approached the bier to pay their respects to their uncle. With them were the wives of two of the nephews and Fred A. McGregor, an associate of Mr. King for about 40 years. All stood reverently for five minutes in silent prayer before the casket.

Then, as the clock on the Peace Tower tolled out the hour of 10 a.m., Mr. St. Laurent, Defence Minister Brooke Claxton and Ross Macdonald, Speaker of the House of Commons, moved to the main entrance to head the procession of public mourners.

Before the first persons were admitted to the building today, a uniformed guard-of-honor was mounted at each corner of the casket. A four-man guard—a soldier, a sailor, an airman, and a R.C.M.P constable—will remain on duty the whole time the public is allowed in the buildings, from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. today and from 10 a.m. to about 2.30 p.m. tomorrow.

On top of the casket is the golden, enamelled Order of Merit with its long red-and-green ribbon, presented to the former Prime Minister by the king in 1947. Mr. King prized the decoration more than any other award bestowed on him during his public service. It was on the coffin yesterday at Laurier House where close friends and high officials were allowed to see the body before it was taken to Parliament Hill.

Prime Minister St. Laurent who succeeded Mr. King as Prime Minister following the latter's retirement in 1948, was among those calling at Laurier House. Trade Minister Howe, Defence Minister Claxton and other of Mr. King's former cabinet colleagues also called, along with representatives of foreign embassies and legations.

Later Mr. St. Laurent presided over a thee-hour cabinet meeting at which plans were made for the state funeral.

39 Honorary Pallbearers

The Secretary of State's office announced a list of 39 honorary pallbeares, chosen by Mr. King some time before his death. Nine will be unable to attend for reasons of health or because of absence from the country.

The list was headed by Mr. St. Laurent and members of the cabinet who had served under Mr. King. It included membes of the

U.S. COMMITTEE RECOMMENDS WATER DIVERSION

Would Increase Power Output at Niagara

Washington, July 26 (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee recommended to the senate today that it ratify a treaty with Canada concerning increased diversion of water at Niagara Falls to generate more electric power.

Federal Power Commission engineers have estimated that the additional water, properly utilized, could about triple the present Hydro-Electric capacity of United States plants at Niagara.

Production on the Canadian side of the river also would be increased.

Chairman Tom Connally (Dem. Tex.) said the committee acted unanimously in agreeing to send the treaty to the senate. He said he did not have any idea when the senate will act on it.

Connally told reporters the committee made one reservation in its approval of the treaty.

The reservation, he said, expressly reserves for Congress the right to say how the additionally diverted waters shall be utilized for redevelopment purposes.

The treaty, to win ratification, must receive a two-thirds vote of the Senate,

50 Canadian Schoolboys Visit Nelson's 'Victory'

Portsmouth, England, July 25—(CP)—Fifty Canadian schoolboys today visited the ship where Nelson fought and died in the Battle of Trafalgar.

Naval guides conducted the visiting Canadians on a tour of the flagship Victory in Portsmouth harbor.

The boys visited the aircraft carrier Thesis, went for a spin around the harbor in a motor torpedo boat and had lunch at the Royal Navy's big torpedo and mining school here.

The visit of the Canadian boys is sponsored by Garfield Weston, Canadian-born biscuit manufacturer.

Risks His Life To Free Sparrow

London, July 25 (CP)—Harry Wakefield, a one-armed elevator operator, loves animals.

Two years ago he saw a kitten trapped on the roof of a blitzed building and risked his life to save it.

Recently he crept along a window-ledge 80 feet above ground level at his apartment block.

Finally he lifted a window, freeing a fluttering prisoner—a sparrow.

Russian Zone Police Using Terror Methods to Build New Spy Ring

Berlin, July 25 (AP) — The Russian zone police are using terror methods to build a new spy ring in Western Germany.

Travelling business men have fallen victim to it. Some of their experiences have filtered into anti-communist circles where the new plan of the red gestapo has been disclosed.

This is the way it works: Germans who have reason to enter the east zone for business or social contacts have been arrested in varying numbers, estimated by Berlin sources up to as many as 500 in the last three or four months.

They are held in frightening cellars and interrogated until the security police figure they are sufficiently cowed. Then they are released—if they sign a paper guaranteeing to keep the east zone communist regime informed of all activities in their own home areas.

How effective this type of terror inspired espionage has or will be cannot be gauged as yet. The aim of the east zone police is described as two-fold:

1. To establish some kind of information ring composed of persons who are not in any way associated with the communist party or its front organizations, so that none of its agents come under suspicion.

2. To implant in the minds of hand-picked West Germans an awe for the East German regime.

A group of anti-communist lawyers and former judges in Berlin and East Germany has investigated a number of cases of terror arrests which were made for this purpose.

The group which calls itself 'Free Jurists of the Soviet Zone' came into being about a year ago with a tiny well-concealed membership.

Severe Storm Hits Province, Death, Damage Left in Wake

Toronto, July 25 (CP) — Two deaths were blamed in part on drenching rain which swept across Ontario Monday.

The rain, accompanied by thunder and lightning overloaded sewers, disrupted some communications, caused considerable flooding and flattened field crops. Property damage amounted to thousands of dollars.

Mrs. Emile Milette, 62, of Stratford, Ont., was killed and four other persons injured in a two-automobile crash in blinding rain at Christie's Corners, near Hamilton.

Edward Speers, 23, an operator for the Municipal Telephone Company at Caledon, 30 miles northwest of Toronto, was fatally injured in a 40-foot fall from a wet, slippery pole on which he was making repairs.

Four persons were injured when a bus overturned in London, Ont., during the height of the storm.

At Mount Dennis, near Toronto, Mrs. William Tugwell carried her 11-day-old baby to safety when lightning streaked down a chimney, set fire to curtains in her apartment and made part of a ceiling collapse.

Heavy Damage in Toronto

Cellars of hundreds of houses and downtown office buildings were flooded in Toronto. Rain caved in a section of the roof of a broker's office. The Bell Telephone Company reported the city hall switchboards and one in a Canadian National Railways building were "out" because water got into cables.

Toronto's Lakeshore Road was so badly flooded that traffic was detoured through the Canadian National Exhibition grounds. Street-car service in several parts of the city was delayed for 15 to 30 minutes. Minor hydro breaks were reported.

Two people were trapped in an automobile in Brantford when a cloudburst inundated a subway. Harold Sewell of Brantford and his daughter waded through knee-deep water a few minutes before their car was completely flooded.

Storm General

The storms extended as far west as Sault Ste. Marie, north to North Bay and east to the Quebec boundary. Forecasters said the disturbance will make little difference today in the weather, abnormally cool in many areas.

Wind and rain toppled chimneys at Sarnia and flattened wheat and barley south of Stratford. Lightning hit hydro substations at Sarnia, leaving the city without power for half an hour, knocked down trolley wires in Toronto and set fire to a barn on the farm of Mrs. Florence Osborne near Brantford.

Lightning struck a tree, ran along a metal clothesline and set fire to a frame portion of a brick house owned by Andrew Bell at Chesterfield, near Woodstock. No one was injured.

Caught in a sudden windstorm, a drifting raft carried five children two miles out on Lake Ontario near St. Catharines. Rescuers reached them in boats from Port Dalhousie.

Canada, United States Parley To Air Armament Potentials

Ottawa, July 25 (CP)—Canada so far has been given only the barest inkling of United States armaments and industrial needs in the event of all-out war, officials disclosed today.

That is why they are looking forward to the high-level, two-day industrial mobilization talks to be held here Aug. 8.

At the meeting of the joint Canada-United States industrial mobilization committee, Canada hopes to obtain concrete estimates of the type of industrial potential needed to fill armaments orders not only for the two countries but also for the eight member nations of the North Atlantic treaty.

"If we only knew what was wanted," one outhoritative source said, "we could go ahead and plan. But we don't know. Canada needs so little herself that it would be a problem to plan a vast expansion without knowing what the United States wants."

Until the Korean crisis, joint Canada - United States planning proceeded at a leisurely pace, the source disclosed.

Survey Made

A survey had been made of Canadian industry and how it could be geared to produce war equipment. The United States was informed of the kind of goods Canada could produce, but there was little further activity and no United States decisions made as to how the Canadian potential could be used.

The source said joint committee is a planning body only. It can make recommendations to both governments and will do so, but it cannot implement the recommendations.

From other quarters it was learned what the North Atlantic council, now meeting in London, likely will mean in the way of armaments orders for Canada The western European members of the treaty need armaments urgently. But what they need is "heavy" types of weapons, guns and particularly tanks.

Not Produce Tanks

Canada has no means at the moment of producing tanks. It is felt here that the United States likely will do all the tank production not only for western Europe, but possibly for Canada as well.

However, there are many items Canada can produce, such as anti-submarine vessels, jet aircraft, Arctic clothing and various "light" munitions equipment.

Harry J. Carmichael of St. Catharines, Ont., wartime munitions production controller, and Sydney D. Pierce, assistant deputy minister of trade are the Canadian members of the industrial mobilization committee. They likely will emphasize these items at the forthcoming meeting.

Warships Sighted Off Northern Japan

Tokyo, July 25. (Reuters)—Unidentified warships have been sighted off Nemuro, on the eastern tip of Hokkaido, Japan's most northern main island, since the Korean war started, the Kyodo News Agency said today.

The agency quoted the Maritime Safety Board for this information, adding that in all 31 unidentified ships—warships and others—had been officially reported sighted close to Hokkaido.

THREE OF FAMILY KILLED

St. Gerard de Magella, Que., July 25 (CP) — Three members of a family of four were killed near here last night when their truck went out of control on the highway and turned over.

Dead are: Rosaire Pelletier, 34, his wife, 28, and son, Georges Leon, five months. Reine Pelletier, 5, was critically injured in the accident. All are from St. Paul de Joliette.

Britain May Offer Small Ground Forces

London, July 25. (CP)—Informants in touch with the government reported today Britain has decided to offer a small ground force to the United Nations for use in Korea.

They reported this after the British Cabinet met in special session, apparently to discuss a number of major changes in national defence policy.

ALL OVER FIVE DIMES

Oxford, O., July 25 — (AP) — Arthur Cole, 25, was fined $25 and costs for stealing 50 cents — from the police station.

Cole was in the police station with a friend who was being booked for speeding. He commented to patrolman Charles Shanks about five dimes lying on the desk. When the man left Shanks noticed the dimes were gone.

BUTTER SUPPORT COSTS GOVT. $1,340,000

1949 Surplus Stocks Sold Says Report

Ottawa, July 25. (CP)—The government has finally disposed of its 1949 stocks of surplus butter, informed quarters disclosed today.

It was indicated that the government realized 51 cents a pound on some 19,000,000 pounds of butter, which has cost the government 58 cents a pound to purchase.

The loss was estimated at approximately $1,340,000.

Spare That Crow Says Prairie Man

Tageola Prairie, Man., July 25—(CP)— Spare that crow, says farmer Dick Sanderson.

The black-feathered bird with the noisy beak is the arch-enemy of field mice and gophers, he told the district Chamber of Commerce.

The more crows conservation experts shoot, the more field pests multiply. Mr. Sanderson contended it's becoming impossible to grow a crop in some areas because of them.

Conservation men have sought to exterminate the crow because it feeds on birds' eggs and fledglings.

The chamber referred farmer Sanderson's complaint to its agricultural committee for further information and action.

Col. Flanagan Dies

Toronto, July 25 (CP)—Members of the Irish Regiment here received word of the death yesterday in Houston, Tex., of Col. James Wainwright Flanagan, 77, internationally - known mining engineer and soldier of fortune who was an honorary lieutenant-colonel of the regiment.

Col. Flanagan was a director of Macassa Mines Ltd., a Kirkland Lake gold producer. He lived in Toronto for about 15 years.

Col. Flanagan was closely identified with several big engineering projects in Central and South America. Among these was the construction of a 615-mile oil pipe line across Colombia for the Andian Corporation of Toronto.

Escaped Lion Shot In Alberta Town

Rycroft, Alta., July 25 (CP) — A 750-pound African lion was shot to death Monday on the main street of this Peace River town, after terrorizing residents for more than an hour. The Lion biggest of three in a touring carnival from Edmonton, escaped from its cage early in the day and passed within 15 feet of three sleeping carnival hands as it made its way uptown.

Russ Attache, Like Will Rogers Knows Only What is in Papers

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 25 (CP) — You can't prove a thing by Petr I. Egorov.

He's the one man in Canada who quite probably has inside information whether the Russians have sent one and possibly more submarines into waters off the Canadian East Coast.

He's a captain in the Russian navy, the one Russian naval officer in the country. He came to Ottawa two or three months ago as the first naval attache the Russian embassy has had in some years.

But Capt. Egorov is not talking. He says all he knows is what he reads in the papers.

A reporter called the big home on swanky Range Road where the three or four Soviet military attaches live with their families.

A woman answered and promptly put Capt. Egorov on the line. The captain's English was good. His voice was quiet and polite.

The reporter explained who he was. The rest of the conversation went roughly like this:

Q. "There are reports that some of your submarines are on a training cruise off our Eastern Coast. Is that true?"

A. "I know nothing about it."

Q. "Is it possible?"

A. "I just saw it in your paper."

Q. "You have had no information from Moscow about it?"

A. "No."

Q. "You only know what you have seen in the press here?"

A. "I have no comment."

Fanatical Koreans Drive Americans From Yongdong

Allied Carrier Planes Hit 'Targets of Opportunity'

Tokyo, July 26 — (Wednesday) — (CP) — Waves of fanatical North Korean troops drove elements of the United States First Cavalry Division out of Yongdong yesterday, narrowing the American defence perimeter in southeast Korea.

Far to the southwest, Allied carrier planes blasted targets where red troops swept virtually unopposed to the coast.

The air strike was mounted in 24 hours by U.S. and British carriers just returned to an unnamed port after operations north of the 38th Parallel along Korea's east coast. They struck at "targets of opportunity," said a headquarters announcement. Results of the raid were not reported.

The rampaging communists sheared off all the western and southeastern side of the peninsula. They seized the southern tip of Korea and turned eastward toward Pusan, U.S. supply port on the southeastern tip of the peninsula.

Day-Long Battle

Yongdong was abandoned after a fierce day-long fight. Most of the U.S. troops got out safely, but troops on the flanks were trapped and battered by communist roadblocks, snipers and guerrillas.

The reds stole through the hills surrounding Yongdong wearing grass and leaves to blend in with the countryside. Their camouflage made them difficult targets.

A Reuters field dispatch said that during the fierce Yongdong battle U.S. troops were attacked from both sides but fought successfully to hold an escape route open under heavy red shelling.

The 1st Cavalry fought off an all-out bid by two red units to close the road and trap the main body of Americans.

Other units on the American flanks were reported making a fighting withdrawal through road blocks and guerrillas.

Some reports said communist infiltrators were fighting behind the U.S. lines of retreat. The withdrawal from Yongdong, which is 20 miles southeast of red-held Taejon, came after North Korean tanks suddenly appeared in the city and hordes of red infantry overwhelmed the U.S. front lines.

Mow Down Enemy

U.S. guns, shooting over open sights, were reported to have mowed down massed waves of North Korean infantry in the hundreds.

New North Korean red attacks were anticipated in the northeast sector of the winding, 150-mile mountainous front.

In other sectors American and South Korean forces were reported holding the line, except in the far southeast, where the communists ranged unchecked.

A spokesman at an advanced American outpost said:

"Our troops are fighting like hell."

The battle for Yongdong started with heavy frontal attacks on American positions across the main Taejon-Pusan highway at a point west of Yongdong. Fanatical communists in waves fell upon the Cavalrymen.

Meagre first reports indicated Yongdong itself was not fought over—contrary to earlier reports The Americans pulled back through the town to their new positions. Most of the townspeople had been evacuated.

The communists worked two jaws of a pincers movement while maintaining the heavy pressure of their frontal attack.

The 25th U.S. Division, in positions somewhere north of the First Cavalry Division beat off two communist attacks with artillery fire and infantry support, Associated Press correspondent Tom Lambert reported.

The 25th Division abandoned advanced positions during Monday night. Then it caught the reds in a flanking fire when they made two heavy assaults during the day.

More Drastic Penalties Ahead For Drunk Driving
—Doucett

Toronto, July 25 — (CP)— Despite increased penalties, far too many Ontario motorists still mix the deadly cocktail of alcohol and gasoline, Highways Minister Doucett said today.

The Highways Department is suspending drivers' licences at a rate of more than 1,000 a month, and "even more drastic steps will be taken," the minister said.

In the first six months of the year, there were 6,558 suspensions of driving privileges, compared with 5,695 for the corresponding period of 1949. Of this number, 690 were for drunk driving, an increase of 144.

Main reason for suspension listed was "careless driving," a category used by the department under which infractions not otherwise specified can be penalized. Under this listing, 2,321 motorists lost their right to drive, some for a long as two years.

Under the Highway Traffic Act, the car of a drunk driver is automatically impounded for three months, and confiscation

CYCLIST ESCAPES WITH SHAKING-UP

Colliding with a parked auto near Firemen's Park as he was riding his bicycle down Front Street, Ronald Day, 208 Pine Street, escaped with a shaking up on Sunday. The lad was taken to hospital where an examination by Dr. Austin Walters revealed he had suffered nothing more than shock.

THIEVES ESCAPE WITH $12 CASH

The Grills Dairy at 237 Coleman Street, was broken into over the weekend with $12 in cash being taken from milk drivers' pouches. Police stated that entry to the building was gained through a rear window and that drivers' money pouches were strewn about the floor. Nothing else in the building was touched, it was stated.

BOYS' GROUP ENJOYS NIGHT OUT IN WOODS

Several budding Daniel Boones from the west hill playgrounds were treated to a supervised overnight hike "in the wilds east of Oak Lake" last Friday as a reward for their good attendance at the west hill playground.

Playground supervisor Dick Martin and three seniors accompanied the eight to 12-year-old boys who were so enthused with the first night's adventures that they wanted to stay over for another day.

Those present were Jim Meagher, Ross Walmsley, Mansen Jones, Bill Green, Jim Green, Bruce Elmy, Bruce Fleming, Jack Gill, Ron Pollard, Frank Chris, Jack Calnan, and Bill Dickey.

Owner Did Not Know Car Stolen

Observation on the part of residents on West Bridge Street who were suspicious of a car parked in a no parking area, was responsible for a stolen car being recovered early today by local police.

The car, owned by Hilliard McKinnon, Prescott, was recovered by police before Mr. McKinnon knew that his car had been stolen. A police check of the licence number revealed Mr. McKinnon as the owner and when called by officers went to his garage and found his car missing.

The car must have been taken from the garage some time Monday, the thief taking the trouble to close the garage doors. The vehicle was then apparently driven to Belleville and abandoned on Bridge Street where it was reported shortly after midnight.

Confined Bees Have Fine Time Gorging on Honey

"To bees or not to bees?" That is the question which spectators are asking themselves these days as they watch the milling antics of several hundred bees in a large glass case in the window of Bishop's Seed Store, Front St.

The bees, swarming over several combs of honey as well as over each other, look like anything but the industrious little workers that fable and fancy have led us to believe they are. They seem to be gorging themselves on honey which, after all, is about the best thing that can be done by anything cooped up in a glass case with several hundred other hungry individuals.

All that honey looks good too, but those retractable lances in the bees' sterns provide more than enough discouragement to most people who, sighting the honey, ask themselves "To bees etc."

City Breeder Wins Honors At Poultry Show

Jack W. Holley, plumbing and building inspector for the city of Belleville is more than an inspector—he is also a top-notch Bantam poultry breeder.

Just this was proven recently at Simcoe in Norfolk County where in hot competition he won 1st prize hen, 3rd prize hen and 2nd prize cock bird. The show was held in connection with the American Poultry Association annual convention which this year was held at Simcoe.

It is the first time the convention and poultry show has been in Canada since 1927 when it was held at Ottawa.

Competes With Best

Mr. Holley's success at the competition was all the more notable in that the best birds in Canada and in the United States were on exhibition at the show. Arthur Schillney, American poultry judge, said that Mr. Holley's 1st prize hen was the best hen he had ever handled.

The exhibit of Rhode Island Red Bantams shown by the local breeder drew high interest from the many American and Canadian fanciers attending the show and more than one breeder was ready to make Mr. Holley a big offer for his 1st prize bird.

"I would not sell her for $100," Mr. Holley replied. "She stays right in Belleville."

Has to Move 200 Bales As Trailer Caught in Bridge

That two and two add up to four any schoolboy will agree. But Douglas Dorland, age 20, of Wooler, is just as certain that 200 plus 200 equals 400—he knows for he counted them.

Driving a tractor trailer highway transport today Dorland was all loaded up with 200 bales of straw when in passing over a small wooden bridge on a side-road north of the Marysville Catholic Church, east of Belleville his vehicle broke through the bridge.

The rear of the tractor broke through first but the momentum of the transport carried the vehicle ahead until it stopped, the trailer firmly wedged amid broken planking and wooden bridge stringers. Part of the load of bales spilled off and scattered over the dry creek bed.

That is where the arithmetic comes in. The entire load of 200 bales had to be re-loaded onto another vehicle before the stranded truck and trailer could be moved.

Boys' Camp Will Hold Final Field Day Wednesday

The final field day for the boys' period at Moira Lake Y.M.C.A. Camp will be held on Wednesday. At the end of this week the boys break camp to make way for the heavy influx of girls who will commence a three-week period to end on August 19th. Instructions have gone out to the girls who have registered so that all may be in readiness for their arrival in camp. Only a few vacancies remain for the week commencing Aug. 12th.

In the field day for boys held last week Ronald McBride, Doug. Aselstine, Bill Schillinger and Jack Doig were the respective winners in the junior, intermediate, senior and leader sections.

In the junior section Ron McBride was an easy winner with a total of fourteen points. His nearest rival was Keith Johnston with seven points. Dennis Clarke was a close third with six points.

The intermediate section saw a close race between Douglas Aselstine and Malcolm Scott. Scott was beaten out in the last event in his section Aselstine collected a total of eight points with Scott in hot pursuit with seven points.

Bill Schillinger was the athlete of the day in the senior section with a total of thirteen points. Bob Brearly, present for half the events only, was in second place with eight points. John Marshall was in third place with five points.

The leaders' section saw a keenly contested battle. Jack Doig collected a total of fifteen points with Jack Matthews close on his heels with fourteen points.

All members participated in each and every event in the meet and it is noteworthy that thirty-one campers won points in their various sections.

The following counsellors and assistants have been selected for girls' camp: Jackie Varcoe, Rae Johnston, Shirley Smale, Sylvia Motley, Jean Doig, Enid Longwell, Eleanor McCormick, Carol O'Flynn and Beth Wilbur.

Roy J. Messervey Honored by U.S. Poultry Assoc.

Well known in the Belleville district as a breeder of fine poultry, Mr. Roy J. Messervey, Gordon Street, recently had the honor of being one of the few Canadians selected to officiate with American judges at the American Poultry Association Convention Poultry show held at Simcoe.

Classed as being one of the best judges of poultry in Canada, Mr. Messervey was selected to place the many special prizes on the various breeds at the show and following this was again selected as the only Canadian judge to form a committee with the American judges to place the grand champion male and female of the show.

Following the show and convention, Mr. and Mrs. Messervey were guests of Magistrate H. P. Innes, K.C., and Mrs. Innes, for dinner at the Norfolk Golf and Country Club and later were guests at a party at the magistrate's home with a number of local friends.

Avon Jewelers Default Game To Belleville Motors

Avon Jewelers, unable to muster a full team within the 15 minutes of grace allowed by league regulations, defaulted to Belleville Motor Car Company last evening in a regularly scheduled Commercial Softball League B game.

The win left the Motormen undefeated at the top of the loop with six wins. Avon retreated to fourth place in the league standings as a result of their loss.

The Jewelers, however, picked up a few players from the stands and staged a five inning exhibition game with the Motormen which the latter copped 5-3.

Church's Growth In Past 150 Years Best in History

"A lot of people would have you believe the Christian church is dying—and it just isn't so," Dr. W. J. Gallagher, general secretary of the Canadian Council of Churches, who spoke at the Rotary luncheon Monday, told the group that the Christian church has never been more alert, more alive and more successful than in its last 150 years.

"The last 150 years has been the greatest era of expansion in the church's history. Not even the Golden Age of Christianity—the first century—can compare with it". Dr. Gallagher said. The speaker added that many people felt that Christian missions had failed, but emphasized that although some of the missions have fallen short at times, there has been no failure.

Reviews Council Meeting

Dr. Gallagher went on to review the annual meeting of the central committee of the World Council of Churches, which ended ten days ago in Toronto. At the meeting there were between 125 and 150 Christians from 45 different countries, representing 160 denominations. These were the official delegates.

Two problems were assessed by the committee, the first being that of the 150-year expansion of the church, and the second the place of the church in international crisis. With regard to the second, Dr. Gallagher repeated the views of the Council on Korea, racial discrimination and segregation in South Africa, and the question of religious and civil liberties all over the world.

Dr. Gallagher told the Rotarians that Toronto is the "ecclesiastical capital" of the world this summer, with the meeting just past and the convention of the World Council of Churches in August. This latter meeting will draw 5,000 people from 70 different countries for a ten-day discussion on the problems, opportunities for, and methods of Christian education.

Four Departments

In Canada, the speaker said, there are 4 departments through which the churches work. The first is evangelism, which promotes the Week of Prayer, university Christian missions; second is the church's place in today's social relations; third is Christian education through the Sunday Schools and young people's groups and fourth is the relations of the Canadian movement with the world movement.

Dr. Gallagher was introduced by Dr. Bert Howard.

Rotarians, on suggestion of President Ken Griffiths, stood in silence in tribute to the memory of the late William Lyon Mackenzie King, former Canadian Prime Minister who died Saturday night.

Guests and visiting Rotarians were as follows: Rotarian John Roberge, Thedford Mines, Ont., Mike Kennedy, Gib Aziz, Lloyd Weese, Lon Oliver and Gerry Farrar, all of Trenton; Charlie Allan, Peterborough; Charlie Bowie, London, Ont.; G. H. McLean, Hamilton, and Len Smith. Guests were Gwyn Morton, Hamilton, Cecil Bilton, Ottawa, and Charles Staples, Lennoxville, P.Q.

Intruders Escape Before Police Arrive on Scene

A light sleeping neighbor whose attention was attracted as two intruders made an attempt to enter the garage of the Belleville Printers on Moira Street, was responsible for averting a break-in at that place of business early this morning.

Mrs. David Curry, who lives directly across the street from the printing establishment, was attracted by the noise shortly after three o'clock and looking out saw the two men attempting to effect an entrance. She called police but before the cruiser arrived a few minutes later the men had disappeared down Everett Street and officers were unable to locate them.

Obituary

EDWARD BRENNAN, SR.

(Tyendinaga Township)

The funeral of Edward Brennan, Sr., who died suddenly at his home in the 5th Concession of Tyendinaga on Friday last, was held from his late residence on Monday morning to the Holy Name of Mary Church at Marysville where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Donoghue, who also said the committal prayers at St. Mary's Cemetery.

The bearers were Frank Sexsmith, Jack Farrell, James Roach, Frank Kinnear, William Haight and Patrick Finnegan.

The late Mr. Brennan was 84 years of age and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Brennan. During his active years he was engaged in farming. He was a member of the Holy Name of Mary Church at Marysville and in connection with the parish he was a member of the Holy Name Society.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Margaret Sexsmith; four sons, F. W. Brennan, and J.C. Brennan, both of Marysville and F. J. Brennan and J. L. Brennan, both of Lonsdale; one sister, Mrs. Elizabeth McConnell, Milford; also a number of nephews and nieces.

Raspberries, Cherries Easier

Raspberries, Montmorency cherries and potatoes took a dip on the farmers' market this morning. A plentiful supply of red raspberries brought the price down to 40c a quart, with the blues going at 35c.

Cherries dropped to $1.25 a basket, with a lesser quantity being offered than on Saturday. Potatoes dropped 10c to $75 a peck, with a plentiful supply on hand. Blueberries remained steady at the weekend price. Gooseberries were 15c and 20c per quart box, with the smaller berries at the lesser price.

Vegetables remained constant, with onions, beets and carrots, 10c a bunch, three for 25c, beans 10c a quart and cabbage 10c and 15c.

Red currants were 20c per quart.

Offerings were good for a Tuesday market, with potatoes in strongest supply.

Passenger Cut By Glass When Car Overturns

Skidding on the wet pavement as it rounded a curve on highway 37 north of O'Brien's Bridge, a car driven by Mrs. C. George Gordon of Buffalo, N.Y., overturned and went into the ditch shortly before noon on Monday. Miss Bonnie Gordon, 17, daughter of the driver, who was a passenger in the car suffered cuts to her head from flying glass and sustained a broken bone in her foot.

The girl was taken to Belleville General Hospital where she was attended by Dr. W. B. Beattie of the city.

Police stated that the southbound Gordon car went out of control on a curve south of Plainfield when smooth tires failed to hold the vehicle on the wet pavement, Provincial Police Constable L. Pellissero investigated.

CAR, TRUCK COLLIDE

Windsor, July 25—(CP)—Three Detroit residents were seriously injured when their car collided with a loaded gravel truck early today about 10 miles south of Windsor.

The injured are Mrs. Mattie Shaw, with concussion and possible fractures; Ollie Woods, undetermined internal injuries, and Mrs. Nettie Roberts, with possible fractured skull and other injuries.

The car was driven by Woods.

Unexpected Slash in Berry Prices By Canneries Has Growers Bewildered

Large-scale raspberry growers of the district will not emerge as agricultural millionaires if the 1950 crop yields 100 boxes to the cane.

In fact the berry men are wondering if they can break even on the season's activities.

For the canning factories have slashed prices at the factory nearly fifty per cent, according to a prominent Wellington grower.

The price delivered at canning plants this year is quoted at 21 cents the box as compared to 40 cents in 1949.

Now the growers are wondering just where they are "going to get off." There has been no decrease in the price of boxes, nor the cost of picking. Last season pickers drew eight cents per box.

In addition, this year, growers must haul their fruit produce to the canning plants. Other years, haulage was included in the price.

"I cannot understand the sudden slash in price, unless the canners have a surplus from last year and the market is not what it should be", the Wellington grower commented.

"It is a rather serious outlook, and certainly not one that gives any encouragement to people to grow berries. There has been no decrease in the cost of living nor in the price of equipment and labor," he said.

Harvesting of the berries on a general scale is expected to begin this week. The crop is well below that of last year due to lack of early season moisture.

RCAF Golfers In Lead for Esquire Trophy

Sunny skies greeted the district's golfers at Trenton on Sunday morning. The occasion was the first round of the 1950 series for the Esquire Challenge Trophy, presently held by the Trenton Golf Club.

After the day's play the standing was as follows: Trenton RCAF team leading with 21½ points, followed by Port Hope Golf Club with 19 points, Quinte Golf and Country Club were right behind with 17½ points and last year's winners, Trenton Golf Club trailed with only 14 points.

Tommy Carruthers, leading golfer of the Quinte district, led the entire field, firing a par 70, going out with 36 and coming in with 34, one under par. Dick Kowcinak of the RCAF team was second with a very fine 72.

The next round of the Esquire Challenge Trophy will take place on Sunday, Aug. 20th at the Port Hope Golf and Country Club.

Always Wanted To be Hangman

Ormskirk, Lancashire, England July 25 —(Reuters) — Stanley Riding's greatest ambition was to become a hangman.

He once told his wife he would like a job as assistant to Albert Pierrepoint, Britain's chief executioner.

His reading matter was murder mysteries and he related grim details of murders and hangings about which he had read.

Yesterday an inquest was held into the death of Riding, age 23. He had been found hanging from a beam by a rope.

INVASION THREAT EASES

Taipei, Formosa, July 25. (AP) —The threatened Chinese communist invasion of Quemoy Island off the China coast opposite Formosa ended today—at least temporarily.

The defence ministry said that Red junks seem approaching the 50-square-mile Island did not strike.

Mystery of Tagged Fish Finally Solved

Dayton, O., July 25 (AP) — The mystery of how an Ohioan happened to catch, in an Ontario lake, a pickerel with an Ohio tag has been solved.

James Thomas of Dayton said Monday that he tagged the fish. It was one of two dozen he tagged three years ago while fishing in the vicinity of Long Lake, Ont.

Andrew J. Schultz of Youngstown notified the Ohio Wildlife Division that while fishing near Harlowe, Ont., this summer he caught a pickerel with an Ohio tag No 12892-A.

Thomas said that the pickerel was only 11 inches long when he tagged it.

Where did he get the Ohio tags?

"I used to work for the State Parks Division," he explained.

He did the tagging to check the fish's growth, if ever one should be caught again. Schultz' catch was the first one of the tagged fish brought to Thomas' attention.

COURT SUMMONS PUBLISHER

Sydney, Australia, July 25 — (AP)—The publisher of Australia's communist party newspaper today was ordered to answer charges of sedition growing out of articles about the Korean war.

The charges will be returned in a special federal court early in August.

Publisher William F. Burns of the communist tribune faces a maximum penalty of three years in jail.

IN MEMORIAM

LOUGH — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Ross Lough, who was killed in action in France July 25, 1944.

O happy hours we once enjoyed
How sweet the memories still
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.

Sadly missed by mother, dad, brothers and sisters. J25

KELLY — In loving memory of our daughter and sister, Agnes Jean, who passed away July 25th, 1946.

Before the throne of God
Thousands of children stand
Children whose sins are all forgiven
A holy, happy band.
Up there among the throng
Our little Agnes stands
Waiting for us to join her
In that holy, happy land.

FANATICAL

Tokyo, July 25 (CP) — The North Korean Red tide spread unchecked today in the lightly-defended southwest and posed a growing threat to United States communications in vital southeastern Korea.

In the northeast sector of the twisting 150 mile mountainous f....., American and South Korean forces held firm before heavier North Korean attacks. The Reds seemed to be throwing their main punch at Yongdong, against the U.S. 1st Cavalry (infantry) and South Koreans.

It was a powerful frontal attack for Yongdong, important highway and rail town 20 miles southeast of fallen Taejon. But a spokesman at an advanced American outpost said the lines were holding, and added:

"Our troops are fighting like hell."

Australian and American planes destroyed or damaged 21 Red tanks, 15 bridges and an armored car and raked enemy supply lines in stepped up activity.

Tanks Destroyed

Ten tanks, dispatches from Korea said, were destroyed. A Far East Air Forces spokesman in Korea said 11 more were damaged.

The 64 air missions in 191 sorties were in close co-ordination with operations of the 1st Cavalry Division. The planes ranged also to Kwangju, deep in southwest Korea, where Red forces ranged unchecked by token forces of South Korean police.

At the same time it was announced the U.S. Fifth Air Force would step up its night operations against the communists, who have been moving men and tanks in long columns under cover of darkness.

"We have to pin them down at night as we have them pinned in the day," said Maj.-Gen. Earl E. Partridge at Fifth Air Force headquarters in Korea.

He said the Reds were able to maintain steady ground pressure because of night operations. The invaders had been moving motorized columns 25 miles long at night with lights on.

Reds Complete Sweep

AP photographer Max Desfor was in the town for two hours, leaving at noon today, and reported no Red tanks moving in the battle area.

Of growing concern was the continued communist seizure of strategic points in southwest Korea. The Reds completed a sweep of the west coast and turned east toward allied communication lines stretching inland from Pusan, on the southeast corner.

(U.S. defence officials in Washington indicated that the Americans and South Koreans might be backed up into the southeastern corner. A briefing officer said it is becoming increasingly difficult to hold against hordes of North Koreans with units of three U.S. divisions and the smaller, more lightly-armed South Koreans.)

The Reds captured Haenam, near the extreme southern tip of the peninsula and more than 230 airline miles from the 38th parallel over which they plunged to begin the invasion a month ago.

Another communist column swung northeast of captured Kwangju and occupied the south western railway junction of Namwon. Also seized was Kurye, 15 miles south of Namwon and midway between the rail centre and the southern port of Sunchon.

The former naval base at Mokpo, on the southwest coast, was taken previously.

The battle for Yongdong was a continuation of an assault which began with a tank attack Sunday. Increasing strength of the Red forces was reported in field dispatches and in headquarters announcements.

No Canadians Accepted For U.S. Enlistment

Detroit, July 25 (CP)—No Canadian citizens are being accepted for enlistment in United States military forces, an officer of the United States army recruiting office for Michigan said Monday. Maj. Thomas P. Dickinson said Detroit recruiting centres turned away 30 Canadian youths last Saturday. Only U.S. citizens, or those who have taken out their first papers for citizenship are being accepted into the armed forces, he said.

'Abe' McCardle, Kidnapper of John Labatt, Dies

Windsor, July 25—(CP)—Michael (three-fingered Abe) McCardle, one of the men who kidnapped John Labatt in 1934, was buried here today. He was about 53.

He was freed from Kingston Penitentiary in 1944 after serving most of a 12-year term for abduction of the wealthy London, Ont., brewer. Fourteen months later he returned to Kingston, sentenced to five years for armed robbery of a fruit company in Windsor.

When that term was served, he returned here.

McCardle, a native of the Dublin district of western Ontario, confessed in Middlesex County Court in 1935 that he was one of the men who figured in the Labatt kidnapping Aug. 14, 1934.

Labatt was abducted while driving from his summer home on the Lakeshore Road, near Sarnia. He was taken to the Muskoka district and held prisoner in a cottage. The gang demanded $150,000 ransom, which they never got.

McCardle's confession exonerated David Meisner, who at the time was under sentence of 15 years for participation in the kidnapping.

Arrested at Crown Point, Ind., McCardle confessed that the Labatt abduction was carried out by Jack Bannon, Russell Knowles, a man named Pegram and himself. He said Meisner had nothing to do with it.

The ransom note sent to the Labatt family after the kidnapping was written in block letters and signed "Three-fingered Abe."

McCardle died Sunday in hospital of cancer.

No relatives attended his funeral today.

Bright Outlook For Spring Grain

Toronto, July 25—(CP)—Haying is pretty well complete throughout Ontario and farmers now have under cover a crop they describe as "fair to average."

But if hay harvesting and growth was hampered by unseasonable dampness during the past few weeks, other crops responded differently. The weekly report of the Ontario Agriculture Department gives a bright outlook for spring grain and fall wheat in most sections.

Recent rains have been beneficial in eastern Ontario's dairy counties, where pastures have improved. Cheesemakers, however, are reporting a smaller make this year in spite of the improved pastures.

Corn and potatoes are doing well.

Goodyear Boosts Prices of Tires

Toronto, July 25 (CP)—Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company of Canada Ltd., Monday night announced price increases from 5 to 7½ per cent of its tire and tube prices, effective today.

C. B. Cooper, general sales manager, blamed boosts in raw-material costs.

"Since May 26, when the last Goodyear increase was announced," he said in a statement, "the spot price of crude rubber on the New York market has advanced 10 cents a pound, or 32.2 per cent. The price of cotton has risen by five cents a pound, or 14.7 per cent.

"These increases have had the effect of nullifying the effect of the last general increase. . ."

Mr. Cooper said that "panic buying and the Korean war have not affected the price increase except as may be indicated by the price of raw materials." There seemed to be no sign of crude rubber costs dropping.

senate, representatives of the judiciary and men who had close connections with Mr. King.

One of the honorary pallbearers chosen was Senator Charles Bishop, former member of the parliamentary press gallery. Others included Mr. King's private secretary, J. E. Handy; and the parliamentary barber, Paul Tasse who trimmed Mr. King's hair.

Among those unable to act as pallbearers will be Senator Allen Aylesworth, Canada's oldest-ranking privy councillor. Sir Allen, who will be 96 next Nov. 27 and lives in Toronto, is unable to attend because of his health. He was a pallbearer at the funeral of Mr. King's father in 1916.

The procession from the building to the church for the funeral ceremony tomorrow will be marked by one of the largest military turnouts in the capital since the war.

AP correspondent Lief Erickson reported from U.S. Eighth Army headquarters that the 1st Cavalry Division firmly held a line west of Yongdong "against Korean Reds attacking from the front, the flanks and trying to set up road blocks in the rear."

He added that Yongdong "was securely inside American lines but some guerrillas and snipers were cleared out early today."

SUBWAY WORK FLOODED

Toronto, July 25. (CP)—Construction on a six-block section of Toronto subway was stalled today by flooding from yesterday's heavy rainstorm.

Underground work from Front to Queen Street was affected. Water was nine feet deep in some places. More than 100 men pumped throughout the night and the water is expected to be cleared by tomorrow.

Says Russia Gave Heavy Equipment ToN.KoreainMay

By BILL SHINN

U.S. Eighth Army Headquarters in Korea, July 25. (AP)—North Korean prisoners said today that 20,000 Korean veterans of the Chinese communist army were recalled in March for the invasion of South Korea. They added today in interviews:

Russian advisers are working with North Korean army units.

Russia in May—at least a full month before the invasion—supplied the North Korean army with huge quantities of military equipment.

A companion strike at Formosa by the Chinese communists apparently was planned but did not come off.

(The United States threw a screen of warships between Formosa and Red China a few days after the invasion of South Korea.)

Kim Kwang Whan, 24, and Suk Yung Chan, 22, said the 20,000 Korean veterans, as the 141st division of the Chinese Red 47th army, fought several years in Manchuria.

Some of the 239 prisoners in a stockade here talked freely with correspondents.

Ko Duk Rin, a second lieutenant, said the Chinese communists told the Korean veterans that South Korea, Formosa and Hainan all would fall at the same time. Hainan fell in late April.

Kim Yung Bok, 35, a second lieutenant, said North Korea received much military equipment from Russia last May. There were unknown numbers of Russian-built tanks at the Pyongyang arsenal, he added.

Acts of Violence Shatter Peace In Belgium

Brussels, July 25—(CP)—Anti-riot squads of gendarmes went to action posts in Belgium today as an epidemic of bombs and acts of sabotage shattered the uneasy three-day calm following exiled King Leopold's return to the

The pattern of incidents suggested an attempt to paralyze communications.

About 20 small bombs exploded in various parts of the country within the last 24 hours. The main railway line between Namur and Brussels was dynamited in two places.

Saboteurs slashed telephone and signal lines at many points.

New incidents—from strewing nails in main roads to interference with level crossings and the unscrewing of rails—were reported hourly today.

There were no casualties or bloodshed reported.

MARMORA

Lack of Safety Device Held Cause of Death

Marmora (Special) — Lack of safety device on the machine which he was operating at the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company, was responsible for the death of John Laird last July 18, was the verdict of a coroner's jury following an inquest held in the Marmora town hall, Monday evening.

Dr. J. H. Bateman, reporting on the findings of the post mortem which he conducted stated that in his opinion the primary cause of death was internal injury received in the operation of a machine and not natural causes.

The coroner stated an Inspector of the Department of Labor had reported to him that he had made an inspection of the machine but was unaware as to whether the report came under his department or that of the Department of Mines.

The jury, having retired once, was recalled to hear testimony by William Dickson, Assistant Chief Engineer, who stated under questioning by the Crown that he had no knowledge of any report being received from the Department of Labor or the Department of Mines following the fatality.

Dr. S. R. Beatty of Madoc was presiding coroner and questioning of the seven witnesses was carried out by assistant Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson.

Those who gave testimony at the inquest were Provincial Constable John Hurrie, and Corporal Jack Hatch, Arvi Koski a welder at the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company; James Rice, the man who first discovered the body; Sidney Sandham, foreman of the repair shop and William Dickson, assistant chief engineer.

The jury was made up of William Foresteel, foreman, Nathan Mumby, Joseph Darrah, Edward Post and Gordon Phillips.

RADIOLOGIST DIES

Montreal, July 25 (CP) — Dr. William Lloyd Ritchie, 67, retired director of radiology at the Montreal General Hospital and chairman of McGill's University's Radiology Department, died yesterday after six weeks' illness.

During the first years after his graduation he was a general practitioner in Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

Boy, 15, Admits Wrecking Train

Caruthersville, Mo. July 25. — (AP)—A 15-year-old boy who admitted wrecking a passenger train told officers yesterday he got the idea from watching a movie about the notorious Dalton gang.

Sheriff E. F. Claxton said William L. Godsey, son of a sharecropper confessed breaking a switch lock and a signal light near Holland, Mo.

A Memphis-to-St. Louis train hit the switch at 50 miles an hour and jumped the rails, Sunday, killing the engineer and injuring 13 persons.

KEEPING STREETS FREE OF RUBBISH

At this time of year, the tourist season is at its peak. Thousands of American and out of town Canadian cars are visiting our towns and cities every day, and the kind of impression visiting motorists take away with them depends largely on the appearances of the places they pass through.

The main streets of a town or city are its display windows. If the through thoroughfares are clean and free of rubbish, the passing tourist may not take any particular notice, however, if the sidewalks and pavements are littered with papers and other sundry varieties of trash, the appearance of the town will almost certainly make an impression on the visitor,—the wrong kind of impression.

Tourists leave a considerable amount of money in the towns and cities they pass through and they will certainly stop over in the cleanest and neatest appearing spots they can find along the way.

Belleville and Trenton have taken notice of this fact and are doing everything they can to keep the streets as clean as possible. Acting on the suggestion of Mayor Couch, Trenton Chamber of Commerce is purchasing metal containers to place on the streets in order to discourage careless citizens from thoughtlessly strewing the streets with miscellaneous rubbish.

In an effort to help keep the streets of Belleville tidy, this newspaper has placed eight trash containers at the principal newspaper distribution points throughout the city. While the primary purpose of the containers is to provide carrier boys with a place to dispose of newspaper bundle wrappings, it is hoped that others will do their part to keep the streets clean by making use of these containers.

FLOOD RELIEF DONATIONS

Belleville residents have just reason to be proud and humble at the same time this week. In the name of the city, they contributed roughly $12,000 to the Manitoba Relief Fund.

That amount, as Mayor H. J. Allin has already noted, is equal to approximately fifty cents for every man, woman and child in the city, and is certainly a wonderful response from the people. Yet, we should be humble that we were able to help restore a measure of life and comfort to a few people who suffered in the Manitoba floods. Surely nothing short of bombing could reduce a city as did the Red River floods. Such interest as the people all across Canada and in Britain and the United States have shown in those in the flooded areas has encouraged these stout-hearted residents of Manitoba.

The general chairman of the fund, Mr. H. W. Manning, has forwarded his thanks and the thanks of the officials to this city for the money received. It is to the people of Belleville that the thanks have been extended, and particularly to Mr. J. M. Wood, local chairman of the committee.

A city is only as great as the people in it, and this time Belleville has proven its worth. We are proud that the request for monies was given such a good reception, and on behalf of the city we extend to the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund and Mr. Manning a very hearty "You're welcome." We only hope that the distressed areas may soon regain their former status, and we wish them well in their rehabilitation.

TOURIST TRADE

The tourist trade, harried by comparatively cool weather and the Korean situation, is evidently suffering a setback this summer. Operators of resorts throughout the province report not only a drop in reservations, but cancellation of reservations which, in some districts, has amounted to as much as a thirty per cent loss in business.

The United States cancellations are greater than ever, camp managers and hotel operators in Northern Ontario report. In the Midland and Penetanguishene district, tourist business is down twenty-five per cent, although actual retail sales in the urban districts are good. The conclusion that may be drawn is that although the volume of visitors is down, the ones who do come still have a goodly amount of money to spend.

Lake Erie points, close to the border, are finding business very good, due partly to shorter vacations and the desire of the visitors to stay closer to home in periods of stress. The Owen Sound district, too, is suffering a drop. The Kawarthas have not been affected too seriously by the situation, but operators in Haliburton have already lost considerable money on the season. The Parry Sound area, hard hit, reports a thirty per cent decrease in tourist business.

The fortunes of the stock market may be keeping some of the vacationers at home, but the urge to just stay at home when the country is actively engaged in a war may be more than the tourist can overcome. The home hearth always looks good in times of strain.

Be rather bountiful than expensive; do good with what thou hast or it will do thee no good. — Penn.

EXPERT TAILOR

Old Sol is a tailor of infinite skill.
The fat and the thin and the short and the tall,
The young and the old, 'till the weather turns cold,
The coat that he fashions will fit one and all.

His patterns are perfect; his measurements true,
With no wearisome hour for his fitting required.
No tailor so wise in the matter of size,
The coats that he fashions will be as desired.

No collars to sag and no buttons to lose;
No zippers to zip, be you maiden or man.
The coats that he drapes are for all sorts of shapes,
But only one color permitted—a tan.

Strength for the Day

COOPERATION

We get so used to common phrases and admonitions that we allow their great significance to escape us. Cooperation, for example. We hear of it nearly every day, but rarely is it put to work as a matter of permanent policy. The word comes from two Latin words, meaning to work together. Simple enough, if we put our heart into it.

There is a sort of universal spirit that embellishes this business of cooperating with each other. If the United Nations cooperated fully among themselves, world peace, and perhaps permanent peace, might be the final result. But there can be no one or two nations indecisive and lagging behind. It must be unanimous.

No matter where we work, cooperation is essential, whether it represents our viewpoint or not. Only weaklings agree with everything and everybody, but when it comes to a point of serious issue in which the happiness of the greatest number is at stake, then one hundred percent co-operation must be demanded.

Every law of nature is one of co-operation. Every chemical in the ground rushes to the aid of seed and root. There is perfect co-operation in the movements of the great bodies in our solar system. We look in the same space for our favorite star in the heavens.

It is always inspiring to see every member of a family doing something to help, no matter how small. It is this co-operation that keeps the family intact. It is amazing what can be accomplished with good directing heads, and enthusiastic cooperation all along the line. This idea is what has created our modern civilization, but if it ever breaks-up then our hard-fought for way of life will be wiped away.

Watch a hive of bees and note what wonderful cooperation there is between every bee connected with the hive. They even have some of their members as policemen to see that no enemies enter. And if misfortune occurs, all pitch in to repair hurt or damage. Nature is still our greatest teacher.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

THE DRY HAT

Medicine Hat, Alta.,—Rudyard Kipling is said to have called Medicine Hat "the town with all hell for a basement," a rather neat quip considering the fact that the burg squats over a sea of natural gas.

Kip would have been just as much on the ball if he'd called it "the town with its tongue hanging out," because for half a century folks in these parts have been looking up anxiously at the burning skies for rain, praying for it, trying to find substitutes for it, even hiring some modern voodoo men to play God for it.

Driving from the west into the Hat, itself a green and pleasant town, you roll through tens of thousands of acres of dry desert with empty rotting barns and farmhouses, leaning and ash-grey with age, and each the story of some farmer who looked hungrily to the southern Alberta skies for a little moisture and got nothing.

From early spring until late fall the average rainfall is a slim three inches. In 30 years there were just six good crops. They say that the turnover in population in the farm areas has been complete since 1910, when the heaviest settling went on. Farmers, many of them up from the Dakotas, ploughed their usual foot-deep furrows. The hot wind and the bronze sun did their work. Many a farm simply blew away.

The natural gas kept Medicine Hat alive, a kind of lost industrial centre put down in the heart of flat country that has everything needed to grow grain but that elusive wetness.

The people remain on, with their tongues hanging out for water, knowing that this kind of economy is the first hit in hard times, but sure that the day is coming when the surrounding country will again come as green as dollar bills.

Seeded Clouds

The Hat's tongue now is out just about as far as it can go because the town can smell water across the prairie and there's a good chance that the years of yearning may be near an end.

Water may be flumed from the expanding Lethbridge irrigation system or from the waterway at Brooks and Bassano, about 65 miles to the northwest. But the best bet is a defunct enterprise south of Brooks known as the Canada Land Co. This irrigation system, fed by the Bow River, was built by British capital and lost money. Now the federal government is trying to wind up a deal to open the watered land to 3000 "dried out" Saskatchewan farm families. They've appropriated two-and-a-quarter million dollars to develop the area and the theory is that it will bring that wet, wonderful stuff to Medicine Hat's parched doorstep.

The people here are counting on this with a sort of desperate optimism, since they've tried everything else.

The nearest they've come to ersatz rain was through experiments by the RCAF in 1948. Air force pilots, working for the National Research Council, tried "milking the clouds" with dry ice. The fliers actually managed to "seed" a little rain, but reported two sad, hard facts: it was plenty risky for the pilots and there was simply no way to get the rainfall on a target.

It was that year, too, that Medicine Hat, parched from two particularly tough years, imported a dreamy young man named Donald S. Johnston from Regina. Donald had a contraption he called a "Universcope" and explained airily that it consisted of twin magnets which would "induce moisture by drawing moonbeams into the orbit of drought attraction."

Everybody was remarkably tolerant with Donald. Before he retired to Regina he graciously reversed the magnets so that Medicine Hat's annual stampede wouldn't be flooded out. It wasn't.

The Rainmaker

The most colorful rainmaker of them all—one Charles Hatfield, of Kansas—operated here for one summer and it's a lovely story. I went back into the 1921 files for the Medicine Hat News today and got some of the story.

Hatfield became world famous overnight when San Diego hired him with a guarantee of $10,000 if he could fill the town's reservoir. It rained 10 inches in the month after Hatfield was on the job, 110 bridges were washed out and 12 people were drowned when a dam collapsed.

This had a profound effect on the citizens of the Hat. They hired "The Rainmaker," farmers put in donations to a fund to guarantee him $8000 for a four-inch rainfall and the great man built a huge thing that looked like a gigantic footstool a few miles out of town. A News reporter who went out wrote that he was most impressed to see that Hatfield had built eaves on the caravan he lived in "to catch the water for drinking."

The best part of the story is that it rained so hard in the first week that farmers couldn't plant their crops in the muddy fields. But then some of the more usual Medicine Hat weather, with temperatures at 100 degrees, set in, Hatfield was set to alibing furiously about "conditions" (it was raining everywhere also in Alberta) and finally it did rain again.

Hatfield seems then to have bowed out hurriedly, at that opportune point, temporarily a hero again, and, though they boosted the ante to $12,000 if he returned, he never came back. In Medicine Hat the odds were just too big.

Letter to the Editor

More Aggressive Dairy Sales Policy Approved

Editor,
Ontario-Intelligencer

The news columns tell of the plans of the organized dairy farmers to embark on a publicity and advertising campaign as a sales promotion force for dairy poducts.

In this reader's opinion the above is a step in the right direction, and not only shows that the farmer is learning something of the business and marketing technique of his city cousins, but, also, that primary producer economic organization is beginning to react in a constructive and intelligent way to the facts in the market-place.

I observe that the essential funds for above campaign come from a one per cent levy on cream deliveries (or milk equivalent) by Canada's 375,000 dairy farmers during the month of June. This is, itself, smart business technique—also a rather painless way of assembling a $240,000 advertising fund. However, the purpose of this little letter is to express one farmer's opinion that, whether growing grain or livestock, producing fruit or wool, these dairymen are fighting our battle. If I am correct in this, then I would suggest that the above "publicity and advertising campaign as a sales promotion force for dairy products" is merely the beginning of a new era in rural marketing; that a wider circle should be drawn, and that the burden of telling Agriculturists' story should be spread across all rural shoulders—and, also, across the year. A few figures from the annual report of the Board of Grain Commissioners for Canada, show what farmers can do: Under the one per cent levy of the Prairie Farm Assistance Act, for the year ended July 31, 1949, farm payments amounted to $6,628,496 and the aggregate payments under P.F.A.A., since August 1, 1939, amounted to $39,658,298.

"Feeder."

Brakeman Races Tram, Scoops up And Saves Baby

St. Charles, Va., July 24 (AP)—Jim Dowell, 60, a Southern Railroad brakeman, said the whole thing gave him "the weak trembles."

The Negro railroader, a 10-car coal train, a 16-months-old baby and baby's frantic young mother all reached the same point on the tracks at about the same time Friday. But moments later—

There was Dowell on the rear platform of the coal train caboose backing down a steep slope from a mine at a good clip. The brakeman glanced down the tracks and froze.

"Oh, my God, look at that baby," he yelled to conductor Hugh Kestner.

About 100 yards ahead on the tracks was Jimmie Woodward. He had clambered away from his home and was inspecting rails.

The conductor slammed the brakes on all cars. But it was plain the train couldn't stop in time.

Then Dowell jumped. And ran toward the boy.

At that moment, Mrs. Carl Woodward, 23, spied her son. She dashed toward him too.

Dowell just avoided a three-way tie in the race. A few feet in front of the slowing train he scooped up Jimmie with his left hand, straight armed Mrs. Woodward off the rails with his right, and jumped to the side with Jimmie under his arm.

NODDING AT AWKWARD MOMENTS

Many individuals with low or slow metabolism, that is, slow-burning vital fire, internal combustion or sluggish oxidation rate, tend to nod or drop into a doze or even a snore at embarrassing moments, as when chatting with guests or listening to a sermon or attending a clambake. The metabolism of the woodchuck (groundhog) and that of the bear slows down to a lethargic level when the animal hibernates. These individuals whose metabolism is too slow hibernate more or less the year around.

For one thing, they are always cold. They feel "chilly" even when healthy or normal persons in the same room or environment are comfortable. They pounce upon the luckless member of the party or group who ventures to open a door or window for a breath of fresh air to relieve the oppression normal persons feel from closeness, lack of ventilation or excessive heat and humidity. They are the life of the fur coat business—they really wear 'em in and out of season because they feel comfortable and not just to make less—well, other women envious. Cats do too.

We began speaking of individuals with low metabolism, and here already we are talking about women. If course men do have low metabolism but the manifestations in men are generally insignificant in comparison with the signs or symptoms of sub-oxidation in women. Anyway, women are individuals.

One of the early and most characteristic signs or symptoms of sub-oxidation in the woman in her thirties or forties is the persistent lassitude that, in her own dull consciousness or conscience, warrants avoiding such physical activities as doing all her own housework, playing her own game or taking her two miles of oxygen on the hoof every day.

The woman with sub-oxidation prefers to sit at home, sit in the car, sit at the movies, sit in the grandstand, sit in at the canasta party or the bingo game, sit at the soda fountain, sit in the cocktail lounge. Just the inactivity and stagnation of all this idle sitting is bad enough. But that is not all. With it the unhappy creature indulges in enough smoking, drinking and gorging of refined carbohydrate food to keep her hibernating indefinitely.

The woman caught in this vicious circle can still come back if she has enough gumption left to try. What she needs primarily is more oxygen and the best way to get it is, as already implied, on the hoof. If she is willing or can possibly afford to walk a daily stint of walking, maybe only a mile or so at first but gradually increasing to five or more miles a day, in one, two or three doses, she will find in the course of a month that she is well along the way to renewal of youth. I mean the way she will feel as well as the way she will look.

The increased absorption of oxygen the woman achieves through general exercise — and walking is the best all-around exercise one can take for health's sake—combats and presently dispels the tendency to nod or doze at awkward moments.

Although the woman with sub-oxidation is likely to accumulate considerable superfluous or slacker flesh, reduction of bulk is of secondary importance so far as her health and good looks are concerned. The important object for her is correction of her nutritional deficiencies, which she may strive to accomplish by patterning her daily diet upon the basic health diet as outlined in The 7 Keys to Vite—for booklet send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope—and/or by supplementing her ordinary diet with adequate daily rations of the minerals and vitamins which are generally lacking in our refined diet.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Vinegar Rub

My mother believes 100 per cent in vinegar rubs on legs, hands or back when muscles are sore. Would appreciate your view of this. (B. L.)

Answer—Rubbing, especially deep kneading as though to press or squeeze or wring liquid from the muscles and other tissues, is generally beneficial—if you like vinegar better than oil, alcohol, witch hazel or one or another liniment used with the rubbing it is all right.

Child Needs Love

Three year old girl, sensitive, full of tears, sometimes wakes from sleep screaming with fright. Mother slaps her when she gets hyterical and then when the child cries slaps her some more, saying she is not going to have a cry baby. (Mrs. C. W. H.)

Answer—The mother needs a psychiatrist. A little real mothering, perhaps a nice little bedtime story of real life by mother would put the child in a happier frame of mind for pleasant dreams. Any parent who punishes a child and then repeats the assault if the child cries should receive equivalent punishment.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SONS AND DAUGHTERS OF GOD

There is a variety of modern sophisticated writer today who tries to convey the impression that the Bible's teaching regarding man is that man is essentially evil. The truth is that from beginning to the end, the Bible teaches that man is a child of God, made in God's image and after his likeness. He has fallen from the high state in which he was created, but the image and likeness of the divine are still there. Growth in character and what theology terms "salvation of the soul" are the result of the cultivation of these divine elements in man's nature.

The Spirit of God is in us, and our chief business in life consists in working it out in the practical affairs of everyday life. The good parent, the good spouse, the satisfactory son or daughter—these are good people through whose minds and in whose daily acts the divine element is being constantly manifested and cultivated.

Everyone of us should be filled with a solemn and overwhelming realization that we are sons and daughters of the Most High God. The image of the Almighty is definitely impressed upon our minds and spirits. Our earthly nature may drag us down at times, but our heavenly origin is our hope.

The Bible has summed it up—"Now we are the sons of God and it doth not yet appear what we shall be.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

When the medical profession has to back-track, it keeps its dignity. Now and again, good old Grandma proves to have been right, and the modern doctors wrong. But do they pay Grandma the compliment of admitting it? Far from it. Doctors in full retreat before Grandma can create the impression of advancing triumphantly towards new and unexplored heights.

An instance of this is in regard to infant feeding. Some years ago, the paediatricians, as the baby specialists call themselves whenever it is necessary to give Grandma a scare and put her in her place, decided that infants should be fed by the clock. In their scientific way, they figured out how often a baby should be hungry, and thereupon ordained that they should be fed every four hours — or whatever the fashion is in your locality.

This decision ruled for years. And many an infant roared himself purple in the sheer agony of hunger. The Grandmas of the nation—that is, wherever baby specialists occurred—were scandalized. They fought, however, a losing battle. Because it was just about the time that baby specialists hit upon the four hour feeding principle that Grandmas all over the world began to lose their ancient authority. Historians some day will link up the decline of Grandmas with the rise of technology—aircraft, radio, colored talkies, and so forth. These wonders of the world shook human society loose from some of its moorings. And one of those moorings was Grandma.

At all events, within the last twelve to eighteen months, the paediatricians—baby specialists to you and me—have about-faced. A great many of them have completely abandoned four hour feeding, and advocate what they call, in profound terms, demand feeding.

Demand feeding! That is, when the baby hollers, feed it! Just what Grandma advocated all along.

Could it be, could it possibly be, that Grandma might be sneaking back onto the world stage?

News of Trenton

Demonstration of Fire Power Impresses Men at Petawawa

Trenton (Special) —After a week of specialized training at Petawawa Military Camp, 17 privates, seven NCO's and two officers of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment Support Company returned home Saturday afternoon.

The Trenton officers and men together with other units of the regiment from Belleville, Picton, Madoc and Bancroft, made up about 100 trainees from the district.

Highlight of the week, which one reservist said was really something to see, was the fire power demonstration. Every type of weapon at the camp, ranging from rifles to medium artillery was trained on the target and an entire division did the firing.

The specialized training included training for recruits, first year infantry, second year infantry and qualification courses for corporals, sergeants and warrant officers. The courses consisted of parade work, classroom study and field classes in tactics and weapon training.

Trainees were givén instruction in the operation and use of the Bren light machine gun, the Sten sub machine gun, grenades, two inch mortars, .303 rifles and Piat mortars.

Classes began at 7.30 a.m. and ended at 5.15 with an hour and a half out for lunch. Wednesday night several members of the regiment were taken to Chalk River to inspect the new power project being constructed there.

Council Approves Revised School Building Plan and Hospital Bond By-Law at Special Meeting

Trenton—(Special)—At a special meeting last night, council approved the alternative school expansion program contained in a resolution submitted to council by the Board of Education.

The approved program which calls for a $42,000 two-room addition to North Trenton School, an eight-room public school with auditorium to be erected east of the river at an estimated cost of $216,000 and a four-room addition to Trenton High School, "to meet the immediate needs", had been tentatively agreed upon at a joint council-Board of Education meeting last Monday night.

In a final token effort to obtain approval for the entire million dollar program which included a $720,000, 600 pupil high school, the board placed the original program already tentatively approved by the Department of Education, at the beginning of the resolution.

However, council had previously given the board to understand on several occasions that it felt such a program implemented all at once would ruin the town's finances, and therefore, approved the alternative plan.

Hospital Debenture Approved

Council also approved the $125,000 hospital debenture by-law to complete and meet the initial operating costs of Trenton and District Memorial Hospital. The debentures which are to be dated September 15, 1950 will bear three and one quarter per cent interest for the first ten years, 1951 to 1960 and three and one half per cent per annum for the last ten, 1961 to 1970.

Pointing out that the school building program "will not get far enough this year to need any money" other than the $42,000 already approved by the Municipal Board for the addition to North Trenton, Mayor Couch said, "For the rest of the year we should try and get by as economically as possible except for the few things we really have to do."

A complaint of the Fire Chief that too much time was being lost in locating street numbers when emergency fire calls are received was dealt with. Council decided to ask the Chamber of Commerce to proceed with the survey they are conducting for this purpose as soon as possible. "If we all work together on these things, we will be able to accomplish them much quicker," said Mayor Couch.

Caught While Attempting to Rob Store

Trenton—(Special)—Caught in the act! That was what happened to Bernard Perrault, 36, no fixed address who broke into Hartman's Grocery, 195 Dundas Street West, early Sunday morning.

Patrolling in the police cruiser, Constables Bruce Westfall and Ivan Jensen stopped to check the door on the grocery store. They noticed a movement inside the store and ordered the man to come out. The two constables took Perrault into custody and booked him on a charge of breaking and entering with attempt to steal.

A search of Perrault's clothing revealed 13 different keys for locks. Perrault gained entry to the store through a side door by breaking heavy screening and forcing the door.

Perrault had a long record which included convictions of theft, housebreaking, breaking and entering, offences against the Railway Act, and vagrancy. He was released from Collins Bay Penitentiary July 2, 1948.

On checking inside the store, it was found that the cash register drawer had been damaged apparently in an attempt to pry it open.

Suggests Cactus Bushes on Grassy Bank of Mattagami R.

Timmins, July 25—(CP)—The Timmins council last night considered a complaint that "the wrong kind of people" were taking advantage of a forested, grassy bank along the Mattagami River.

Councillors commented the complaint probably was caused by either "armorous couples" or drunks.

Councillor Leo Laporte suggested planting cacti or prickly pear bushes to end the trouble.

FLAMES EAT THROUGH FORESTS

Lillooet, B.C., July 25—(CP)—Flames continued to eat through mountain forests today, but the town of Lillooet, threatened earlier was declared by forestry service officials to be out of danger.

Struck by Car Five-Year-Old Girl Injured

Trenton, (Special.) — Badly shaken up when struck by a car, Saturday noon, five-year-old Linda, Wood, 53 George Street, is in Belleville General Hospital, suffering from multiple cuts and bruises.

Linda accompanied by her sister, Patricia, was about to cross Dundas at Byron Street. Holding on to her sister's hand, Patricia saw a car and motorcycle approaching and the two girls stopped to wait for the vehicles to pass.

Before her sister could stop her, or pull her back, Linda stepped into the path of a car driven by Claude Duncan, 45, Warkworth, Ontario. After striking the girl, the car swerved into the boulevard and dragged the injured girl 78 feet. Duncan's car then struck the rear of another car parked along the curb.

The collision caused damage to Duncan's car estimated at $400, and the parked car was damaged to the extent of $450.

Drs. J. G. Johnston and E. A. McQuade were called to the scene. Constable Gordon Steenburg investigated.

CONVENIENT BLINDNESS

Grimsby, England, July 25—(Reuters)—A man who was set free because he went blind in prison and regained his sight when he was released came into court here.

Herbert Howlett, 39, was sentenced to six months in jail for stealing a bicycle.

Howlett's lawyer told the court: "He seems to have the power of going blind at will."

WINDOW FALLS, BOY DIES

Saint John, N.B., July 25 (CP) —Mark O'Brien, 10, was killed Monday when a window fell upon him as he tried to climb into the kitchen of his home while other members of the family were absent. He was found hanging, caught between the window and sill.

BURGLARS STEAL SINK

Chicago, July 25 — (AP) — Burglars broke into a home and stole a variety of articles—including the kitchen sink.

Harry Schrober, a streetcar motorman, told police they also carted away a wash basin, mattress, telephone coin box, garbage burner and grates from the ventilators.

1,000 Painters And Decorators Strike in Toronto

Toronto, July 25. (CP)—About 1,000 members of the Brotherhood of Painters and Decorators (A.F.L.-T.L.C.) went on strike today for a 20-cent-an-hour wage increase.

They stopped work on many large projects. At the Canadian National Exhibition, painters laid down their brushes on all but one project, where the employer met the Union terms.

The strike was called despite a last-minute effort yesterday by Labor Minister Daley of Ontario. But officials of the Union and Master Painters Association are optimistic that a compromise may end the dispute soon.

The Union's 20-cent demand would boost the base scale to $1.55 an hour. A conciliation board's 10-cent recommendation was rejected by the Union.

FISHERMAN AND OWL

Penacook, N.H., July 25 —(AP) — Fisherman Peter Murphy thought in the dusk that he had caught a bass.

When the catch began to rise from the water he thought he had hooked a flying fish.

But when he reeled it into his boat the "fish" had feathers instead of scales.

It turned out to be a sadder and somewhat wiser owl with the plug's barb through its leg.

FUNERAL BROADCAST

Toronto, July 25—(CP)—Funeral service for W. L. Mackenzie King, former Prime Minister of Canada, will be broadcast on a coast-to-coast hook-up, the CBC announced today.

The service, to be held Wednesday in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Ottawa, will be broadcast beginning at 3:45 p.m. EDT.

RoyalTourProved To Late Mr. King Canada United

London, July 25. (CP)—The Royal visit of 1939 convinced Mackenzie King that Canada could be united in war, a political commentator said today.

A. J. Cummings, veteran News Chronicle correspondent, described a "personal recollection" of conversation with the man who was then Canada's Prime Minister.

It happened when the Royal party stopped for a weekend at Jasper in the Canadian Rockies. Cummings quotes Mackenzie King as saying:

"'You know as well as I do that we may be at war in the Autumn. I confess I feared greatly that I could not unite all Canada on this issue.

"'Now the great popular success of the royal visit has stilled my anxiety. We are all at one. I am a happy man tonight.'"

'Four Flats' Male Quartet Visits Alliance Tabernacle

The "Four Flats" male quartet, from the Vancouver Youth for Christ, Dick Cadd, Ronald Cercelius, Harlow Ankey and Norval Hadley, recestly visited the Alliance Tabernacle, and treated the well-filled auditorium to a 'song fest' of pleasing harmonies, rendering many favorite gospel songs, including "Heavenly Sunshine", "I'm On the Battle Front for My Lord" and several spirituals, "The Door", and the children's spiritual, "Noah and the Ark," which, delighted the little ones present, as well as impressing on their plastic minds God's providence and love.

These four young men, dressed alike in suits of grey with red cravates have just recently graduated from George Fox College, in Newburg, Oregon, and have spent five weeks in Alaska on a tour of faith with Dr. MacLean, of the Shantymen's Association, bringing the Gospel message to the needy, there.

Mr. Dick Cadd, the speaker for the evening, brought the ten-minute message, taking as his theme, "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world, and lose his own soul; or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" He mentioned the great need of Christ in the life, and told of there being 30,000 or more children or more children in the United States, who have never yet heard the name of Christ, or attended Sunday School.

Following the song service, they were also heard over CJBQ. All, with the exception of Norval Hadley who is going on to theological college to fit himself for full time service in the Lord's work, are taking the gospel message into their chosen professions, where, today, there is so great a need.

STONE CHURCH W.M.S.-W.A.

4th Sidney.—The July meeting of the Stone Church W.M.S.-W.A. was held in the Community Centre, the meeting opening with 16 members being present and the president, Mrs. E. Phillips presiding. The responsive reading of the 23rd Psalm was followed by a prayer for older people. It was decided to hold the next meeting on August 23rd in the hall with Mrs. C. Rushnell and Mrs. A. Wright as program committee.

A playlet "People Grow Older", was ably presented by Mrs. G. Evans, Mrs. F. Tucker, Mrs. E. Phillips, Mrs. W. Neelands, Mrs. O. Chisholm, Mrs. George Tucker and Mrs. M. Benedict. The president closed the meeting.

W.A. Meeting

Mrs. J. Detlor, president, took charge of the W.A. meeting giving as the thought for the month, "I will strive to hold to the truth and grow more and more in the likeness of Christ". After the theme song, and the 23rd Psalm repeated by the meeting. Mrs. George Tucker read the Scripture lesson. The president spoke briefly on the subject of improving one's mind by Christian living—then closed the worship service.

It was decided to accept the invitation to Scott's Church on Sept. 13th., also the offer of Sills' Book Store to frame a picture of Stone Church, be accepted.

Mrs. A. Seeley and Mrs. G. Reid took charge of the refreshments, and a social half hour was enjoyed by all.

WHITE'S W.A.

White's District — The July meeting of White's Woman's Association was held at the home of Mrs. Leonard Young on Thursday afternoon. The president, Mrs. Glen Meyers, presided, and opened the meeting.

The devotional service was taken by Mrs. Albert Jones who opened with the hymn, "What a Friend We Have In Jesus." Mrs. George Bilham read the scripture lesson. A letter and thank you card from Mrs. R. J. Filyer was read by the president, thanking the ladies for the gift of a pin-up lamp when she severed her connection with White's W.A.

It was decided that the quilt patches on hand be sold by the pound. Mrs. Meyers kindly offered her home for the August meeting. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. A. Jones, who also made a donation to the birthday box.

A demonstration of 'Wear Ever' products was given by Mrs. Murphy of Trenton. Mrs. George Cotton was the lucky winner of a kitchen rack. White's W.A. also received a carving set which will be used at White's Church.

The hostess served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

Astronomer Names New Planets For Women of Family

Johannesburg, July 25 (CP)—E. L. Johnson of the Union Observatory here, who recently discovered a new planet that has aroused world-wide interest among astronomers, made his find "by accident."

He was searching for other heavenly bodies in the course of an assignment when the new planet whizzed by little more than 8,000,000 miles from the earth.

Discovering planets is nothing new to Mr. Johnston, who discovers an average of 40 a year. And he has been doing this for 36 years.

What makes the new planet different from his other discoveries, he said, is that it belongs to a type which usually travels too fast to be observed by astronomers.

"A find like this is made only once in a lifetime, he said.

Of the 40 planets a year which he discovers, he usually has time to observe only about six.

"And here's where one of my problems starts. Finding six planets a year means finding six names a year. What I usually do, however, is to give them the names of women members of my family."

London Dress Show Follows 'Back in the 20s'. Line

London, July 25. (Reuters)—Under a hot July sun, the world's buyers today hurried from one London dress show to another, to look at coats in heavy deep-piled materials, suits and dresses trimmed with velvet, and close-fitting little hats designed for winter.

The London Autumn collections were packed into a few days because the Paris houses suddenly decided to advance their Autumn showings.

London's new line was "back in the '20's"—complete, down to the very name, with the "sacque" coat.

The new look appeared shyly, leaving plenty of familiar flares and pleats. But their were loose-fitting coats, with large collars and knee-hugging hemlines. There was the lower waist line. There was even the "harem" skirt for evening wear.

Skirts Going Up

And skirts continue to go up and up—with the hem line from 14 1-2 to 16 inches off the ground.

The new sacque coats, somewhat top-heavy in effect, fit loosely at the top and taper inward to skirts that tightly wrap the legs just below the knees. Fastening down the centre front with a single line of buttons, they have enormous pockets placed even lower than the normal stretch of the arm.

Best designs in suits are classic in style, with the jacket inches longer than last season but the waist still nipped in. The battle-dress top is a serviceable innovation for Autumn suits.

Velvet is used on coats, suits, and dinner dresses. It appears on the big revers of coats—some large enough to have pockets in them—and on revered cuffs and pockets. Silk velvet of the quality worn by our great-grandmothers enhances the saft lines of dinner dresses.

Some of the hats have high crowns. Nearly all have feather and velvet trimmings.

Arab Headgear

Paris, (AP) — The headdress worn by sheiks in the desert to protect them from the sun will be worn by women next Fall if French milliner Rose Valois has her way.

Highlight of her Fall hat show was a group of bright-colored scarves worn draped over the head and, under the chin, held snugly in place by a turban.

Another of her ideas is to wear turbans made of thick dressing-gown cord or Rouleau, wide piping stuffed with cotton wool coiled round and round like a spring.

Her collection includes a wide variety of headgear but in particular she goes to Balaclava helmets in Angora, pointed crown pixie hats with small roll brims, and tiny skullcaps with earflaps sticking out at each side.

For women who get tired of wearing hats half way through the day, she has designed hats with Rouleau slipknots so they can be slung around the shoulder like a satchel.

Short Hair Styles Need Head-Effects

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP) — London's shorter-than-ever hair styles brought a burst of glamorizing head-effects for evening wear.

Most popular are "ears" of net, tulle, fruit and flowers. These are inexpensive and easy to make.

One example is a ruffle of white tulle fixed across the back of the head and pinned above the ears. This is offset by startling earrings, like the black velvet bow set on a rosette of white lace and supporting three cherries.

For the ash-blonde who rinses her hair lavender-blonde to match a midnight-blue brocade dress, there are ears of rosebuds and leaves surrounded by a matching blue net ruche.

Intringuingly combined with a Grecian-styled jersey dress in the Baccante halo of artificial grapes or cherries. The short hair is arranged in a deep "S" on the forehead which frames the grapes and leaves behind it. A slender swinging line of fruit descends to the ears, completely framing the face.

Longer for Evening

A Mayfair hair stylist (Steiner) lengthens the hair for evening by addition of a nape chignette, a double row of softly-brushed curls attached to the nape by pins.

Straw in your hair is another of the same stylist's ideas. Two attached pleats of straw are tinted to match their hair and there are bows to match the dress.

For the bride, a crown of lace and flowers is set high on the back of the head like a Spanish comb.

One such head-dress is a gazy bow standing on the crown of the head surrounded by a heart-shaped coronet of single gladioli heads mounted on individual hair-pins.

For the bridesmaid there is a deep horseshow of slender starry white flowers coming from the temple to the nape. Any type or color of tiny, slender flowers may be used.

MARIO … in his distinctive feature about Food … What's Cooking ?

Frozen foods are not strictly a 20th Century development.

As early as the Sixteenth Century Francis Bacon, English scientist and philosopher, was experimenting with frozen foods in an effort to preserve meat. Using snow and ice, he attempted to create one of the earliest frozen foods lockers.

In this country, before the era of the refrigerator, fresh meat was widely sold only in cold winter months or else consumed immediately after butchering. Innards like sweetbread, kidneys or liver had to be cooked at once or thrown away.

Liver must be either strictly fresh or frozen.

Liver may be both deep fried or pan fried provided it is cooked only a minute or two and then removed from the fire. To keep fried liver from toughening, and to give it a pleasing flavor, dip it into a light batter before frying. Another novel touch is to place slices of cheese over the liver and warm it in a moderate oven until the cheese begins to melt.

Liver is a rather rich meat. Always count on serving with it a bowl of crisp cold greens with a slightly tart French dressing.

Batter Fried Liver. Serves 4

Beat 1 egg slightly. Add to the egg 1-2 cup milk, beating well. Add 1-2 cup all-purpose flour and 1-4 teaspoon salt. Beat with a rotary beater for 2 minutes until all ingredients are well blended.

Melt vegetable fat to a depth of 1-2 inch in a large heavy frying pan. Fat should be hot but not smoking.

Sprinkle 8 slices of liver (weighing 1 to 1 1-4 pounds) with salt and pepper. Dip liver in flour. Shake off excess flour. Dip liver in batter. Pan fry until lightly browned on both sides.

Place liver in a shallow baking dish. Place a slice of process swiss cheese or Italian mozarella cheese over each slice of liver. Sprinkle with paprika. Place in a moderate over 375 degrees for a few minutes or until cheese just begins to soften.

Heat an 8 ounce can of tomato sauce. Pour sauce on serving plates. Place liver on sauce.

Big-Footed Gals Win Shoe Victory

London, July 25—(CP)—Womn who banded together in defence of big feet have won two victories in seven months.

Victory No. 1: A London shoe firm has agreed to supply outsize shoes of all kinds.

Victory No. 2: A hosiery firm promises special stockings for feet up to size 11½, gloves up to size nine.

by an organization called the Asso-

These concessions were wrested ciation of Women with Large Feet, which set out seven months ago to obtain larger shoes for women.

Driving force behind the campaign is Mrs. Phyllis Crone (9½ shoes), a widow from Airton, Yorkshire. She said the Association hopes to form branches all over Britain.

"We haven't got around to clothes yet," said Mrs. Crone. "That will come later."

WIFE WINS DIVORCE

Los Angeles, July 25. (AP)—His income ran well into five figures and he insisted on staying up nights toting it up on his adding machine.

Mrs. Lotta M. Briggs testified yesterday that her husband, Walter M. Briggs, 42, wealthy operator of parking lots, paid no attention to her when he stayed home, and "the noise from his adding machine kept me and the children awake most of the night."

She won the divorce—and $1,000,000 in community property.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

She can't forgive a repentant husband

When a woman finds it difficult, if not impossible, to forgive wholeheartedly a repentant husband who has been unfaithful to her; to resolve to put his misstep definitely in the past and start all over again on a basis of renewed trust; there may be anyone of three reasons to account for this.

The first is that she may not feel sure of the sincerity of his repentance. She may think he is giving mere lip service to the convention which requires that a person should say he is sorry when he has wrong or hurt another, and that the chances are he will do the very same thing right over again, whenever he feels like it.

The second reason may be that she is the jealous type, ready to be suspicious of her husband if he even so much as takes a second look at a particularly hilarious hat he sees on a passing feminine head.

And the third reason for not being willing or able to take her husband's desire to make amends at its face value, and give him the opportunity he asks to prove that it was a mistake he will not repeat, is that she has lost her love for him.

One of these three factors, I believe, must be lurking in the background whenever a wife says that she "just can't forget".

Which of the three, I wonder, is behind the attitude of a wife who writes that since she learned her husband was playing around with another girl, "life doesn't mean a thing to me any more," and then goes on: "I have tried to forget, but I just can't. That other girl is always in my mind. He doesn't step out of the house without me any more, and there isn't enough he can do for me and our child. But I still can't forget what he did to me.

"The girl's husband was away at the time—in all, she and my husband went out together for nearly six months—and now my husband tells me she wasn't any good to run around with another man while her husband was away. But he doesn't realize that he wasn't any good, either, to do what he did to me.

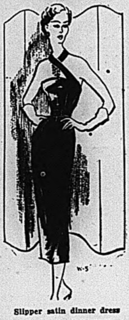
"I've tried as hard as I can to think differently about it all, but I just can't, and I don't know wether to leave him or not."

Now perhaps I am wrong, but I feel it is probably the third reason that makes it impossible for this wife, to forgive and forget, with perhaps a little of the first mixed in; that is, her husband's behavior has killed her love for him and, in addition, she is not entirely certain that his repentance is sufficiently sincere.

Frankly, if I were in this wife's place, I wouldnt' be entirely certain myself that this repentance would last. Any man who has been unfaithful to his wife and then tells her that the other woman "wasn't any good" anyway, quite obviously has the well-known double standard in sex matters, something hardly likely to inspire complete trust and confidence in any wife.

Even so, however, I think it might be wise for this one to put off any radical step a while longer. Of course she was cruelly hurt and bitterly disillusioned. But on the other hand, she admits that he is now trying to do everything he can to make amends, and I believe she should give him the benefit of the doubt and the chance to prove that he intends to be as faithful to her in the future as he, of course, expects her to be to him.

Evening Elegance



Slipper satin dinner dress

By VERA WINSTON

NAVY blue slipper satin is used for a simple shealth-like dress that is really chic, effective and well-bred. The diagonal strap terminates in a little collar-like band at the neck, edged with a rhinestone for a neat touch of glitter. Seaming molds the bodice from under the bust to the hipline which is lightly padded. The slim straight skirt has a kick-pleat and is slit in back.

Fashion Flashes

A NEAT NOTION when it comes to brightening a monotone rayon suit, is a bag, gloves and scarf, or a pocket hankie of checked gingham in brown, blue, red or green, with white.

THE STAR of a recent fashion show turned out to be a sundress and box jacket duo. The slim, button-front dress is of navy cotton taffeta with a broad neckline band of heavy white lace, and has detachable self-fabric straps. The white cotton lace jacket is entirely lined and banded in the dark fabric.

ATTRACTIVE to wear, and comfortable too, is the scarf-hat in felt. Tissue weight felt, in tangerine, for a small visored hat with sheer rayon jersey used for draped crown bands that fall in long scarf ends.

TOP HONORS this season go to monotones, but when a print is seen, chances are that it is very smart and outstanding. Silk crepe in gray, with a muted all-over design in soft blues and greens, is made up into a long-skirted, handsome dinner dress, cut on princess lines. The dress has long, tight sleeves and the wide, scoop neckline is marked by a narrow flange of the fabric.

THE NEAT LOOK in hats is endorsed with Summer suits of tailored rayon men's wear fabric. A little derby of navy felt has its softly curved brim faced with fine white straw. Its white veil, tautly drawn, is bordered with matching felt.

GOOD MANNERS

Guide to men's attire for summer weddings

For the men in the wedding party of a summer wedding . . . bridegroom, best man, ushers, as well as the bride's father and the bridegroom's father:

1. For a summer daytime wedding:

(a) All-white suits: linen or other lightweight material. Soft white shirt, with fold-over collar. Four-in-hand tie, either of plain color or with narrow stripes or small design. White socks and shoes. Straw hat. No gloves.

Bridegroom's boutonniere: white, usually a few small flowers from bride's bouquet. Boutonnieres for best man, ushers, both fathers: carnations, cornflowers, or asters are all suitable flowers: often in the color of neckties or color of designs in the ties.

or

(b) Dark Jackets . . .preferably dark-blue or dark-gray. . . and white flannel trousers. Accessories, as with all-white suits.

2. For summer evening wedding:

White dinner jackets (of non-woollen material), and black tuxedo trousers.

Gentlemen, attention, please: Never, never, never is it correct to wear dinner jackets. . . white or black . . . for a daytime wedding.

A dinner jacket. . .tuxedo. . . is evening attire. . . .and should not be worn before 6 o'clock in the evening, at the very earliest.

How older woman signs her name on greeting cards to teen-ager

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a friend of mine, a woman who is many years older than I and whom I have known for quite a long time, sends my teen-age daughter a picture postcard (from the place where she is spending the summer, or while she is on a trip), how should she sign her name? "Mrs. Clark". . . "Amy Clark" . . . or "A. B. Clark"?

S. M.

She should sign are card Amy Clark. Her signature is her informal name. It is never correct for a woman to sign a card (or letter) with a title before her name . . . .therefore it would be entirely incorrect for her to sign the card: "Mrs. Clark" (or "Mrs. John Clark". And the signature-form "A. B. Clark" is too business-like, customarily reserved for signing notes to employees, sometimes for signing telegrams, and often when ordering from or giving directions to, a salesperson in a shop or small store where one is known.

A long engagement should it be announced?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter is engaged, and the wedding is planned for the summer of 1951. The engagement has not been publicly announced, because we are not sure whether it is proper to send the announcement to the newspapers at the time of the engagement, or just before the time of the wedding.

C. N.

Whether to announce publicly an engagement that must be of long duration is not really a question of propriety, but of convenience, of personal preference. Nowadays an engagement is usually announced from two to six months before the wedding . . . sometimes the time is even shorter. Although the decision for the long engagement will, of course, depend on circumstances, the couple and their parents may quite wisely decide to announce the engagement at once so that the relatives and friends of the couple and their families may know of the relationship which exists between them.

Women's Institute

THE BAY OF QUINTE BRANCH W. I.

The Bay of Quinte Women's Institute held their regular meeting on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Floyd Sandercock, with the president, Mrs. Cecil Jeffery, presiding.

The meeting opened in the usual manner, with a nice attendance.

A paper on "Historical Research" was given by Mrs. A. Meyers.

Mrs. John Reid was in charge of program; Mrs. Dudley gave an interesting talk and demonstration on "Home Economics"; readings were given by Mrs. J. Reid, Joyce Curtis and Mrs. T. Hogle. A contest was enjoyed with Mrs. E. Curtis winning the prize. A demonstration 'A Summer Drink', was given by Mrs. J. Reid.

Mrs. Bonisteel moved a vote of thanks to the hostess for opening her home. After the close of the meeting, refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

The next meeting will be held in the afternoon at Mrs. P. Boulton's cottage.

Mermaids of the Evening

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE girl is Esther Williams, MGM star, Father Neptune's star, too, in any swimmable water. Don't say you think her nylon swim suit is flashy, and despise it. It's a rig for night swimming, at poolside parties, and why shouldn't it flash, just for the fun of it? That blaze of embroidery diagonally down the front is done with sequins. Other evening swim suits are dressmaker types trimmed with lace edging, jewel stud buttons, waterproofed corsages, and so on. News in moonlight.

BEAUTY

Treatment of sallow skin

Girls and women of all ages are grateful to cosmetic chemists and those beauty pioneers who took to the lipstick and the rouge compact and gave the laugh to the long-nosed, saintly cult that believed that make-up made one look like sin. The items of the beauty box are fun to play with and give one a lift. Only the girl with the sallow skin is dubious about the merits of synthetic coloring. Nothing seems to change the tone of her complexion, and sometimes she gets pretty mad about it.

Here is an inside job. Something wrong with the diet, maybe. Maybe a sluggish intestinal tract is responsible. Possibly she is not drinking enough water she should have at least a quart a day. It is not easy to determine the cause of a sallow complexion. The best one can do is to form a health program and stick to it.

Some beauticians believe that citrus fruits have a favorable effect upon a dingy complexion. They recommend a full glass of orange or grapefruit juice before breakfast. Tomato juice can be substituted, as it contains vitamin C. Tea and coffee should be cut down to the limit; too much of either one way have a deplorable effect as far as skin coloring is concerned. It has been definitely established that an excess of carrots in the diet will create the yellow cast.

The various avenues of elimination must function normally. These avenues are the skin, lungs, intestines and kidneys. To keep them in good condition one should bathe daily, using a heavy brush to remove dead skin scales, breathe deeply, eat plenty of fruit and vegetables, drink plenty of water.

A creamy rachelle powder, slightly darker than the skin, will create a more attractive coloring. Rouge and lipstick should be orange-red the blue shades are likely to make the sallow skin take on a greenish caste.

The choice of dress colors is important. No vivid tints should be worn. Coral should be used instead of any of the reds. Black is probably the best selection; and, strangely enough, white is becoming, as it is becoming to the tanned complexion.

Navy blue is a friendly color and it is popular this season. All brown and beige tones are taboo; they offer little contrast. Delicate pastel colors are likely to give accent to the skin that does not qualify.

Get at the source, if this is your beauty grief. Be careful of your diet. Avoid fried foods and pastries; they are no help to any member of the beauty class, no matter what their pulchritude griefs may be. They make the skin oily and coarsen the texture.

Intercounty Reduces Term Of Suspension

Toronto, July 24—(CP)—The Intercounty Baseball Association executive decided at a special meeting Sunday to reduce from one year to three weeks the suspension of Pedro Juarez, Cuban shortstop of the Brantford Red Sox. He will be eligible to play Aug. 1.

Juarez was suspended two weeks ago for withholding information regarding his previous professional experience.

There was no opposition when a vote was taken after Larry Penell spoke on behalf of the player. He claimed that Juarez was not treated fairly.

The executive decided to change the wording of the penalty for providing misinformation on league applications to read 'a maximum of one year's suspension."

Galt Wins Protest

Galt won its protest of an umpire's ruling in the game at St. Thomas July 1 and the executive ordered the game replayed from the last half of the eighth inning with Galt leading 2-1 and a St. Thomas runner on second base and nobody out.

Galt's protest was based on a misinterpretation of the rule whereby a batter-runner is permitted two bases on an overthrow on the first play by a fielder. Umpire Russ Tyne of Hamilton permitted a St. Thomas player to go to third base on an overthrow that attempted to catch another runner advancing to third base. The ball was a fielder's choice.

Three more St. Thomas runs scored during the inning and the home team went on to a 4-3 victory.

A Guelph protest of a game in Kitchener based on an umpire's interpretation of the interference rule was diallowed but Nick Ciani, Guelph outfielder will be credited with a two-base hit The hit was called back by Umpire Nelles when he ruled interference by the Kitchener catcher.

Russian Moves in Case of War With Western Powers Outlined by Former German Spy

By CLARKE BEACH

Washington, July 24 (CP) — A former German espionage agent claims he has obtained information about the opening moves planned by Russia in case of war against the western powers.

He described them recently in a series of articles in the newspaper Die Zeit of Hamburg, Germany. He also gave what he said were detailed descriptions of the Russian armed forces and military equipment.

The articles have been translated by the Congressional library for the information of Congress and government intelligence agencies.

No American officials vouch for them, but military experts have found them of great interest and deem them worth studying.

The articles are signed "Nikolaus Eck." The editor of Die Zeit told The Associated Press this is a pen name used by the writer for the security of himself and his sources.

The Story

This is Nikolaus Eck's story:

In case of war the first Russian push will come from Thuringia, the German province in the southwest section of the Russian occupation zone. A powerful force of tank divisions is stationed there.

This army group will try to advance to the Atlantic and form the southern arm of a pincers around the Baltic Sea. The northern arm of the pincers will be formed by the northwest army group.

The strategic plan is to seize the entire Baltic Sea.

Two other army groups in the south will at the same time clamp a pincers around the Turkish Straits. Another army would march on India.

It is unlikely that the Soviets will undertake any large scale amphibious operations against Japan or North America in the foreseeable future.

In the Arctic the Soviet plan is simply to remain on the defensive. Russian surface naval strength is concentrated primarily in the Baltic and Black Seas. Among 110 vessels in the Baltic are eight cruisers and the old Czarist battleship October Revolution. In the Black Sea are 73 ships, including three cruisers. In the Arctic are 182 surface vessels, chiefly minesweepers, torpedo boats and patrol craft. In the Pacific are 25 destroyers and torpedo boats.

390 Submarines

The Russians now have 390 submarines, and 120 more are under construction.

The island of Ruegen, in the western part of the Baltic Sea, off the north German coast, is being made into a major submarine base.

The Russian air force has 8,900 tactical planes and light bombers and 450 heavy bombers.

The Red army gets the bulk of the country's defence funds. Its present strength of 4,500,000 men could be expanded to 20,000,000. It now comprises 263 divisions — 170 infantry, 35 tank and 58 artillery.

Russia has 40,000 tanks and 40,000 guns. It is producing annually 40,000 to 50,000 guns and 15,000 tanks. Tank production could be doubled.

Switches 100 Freight Cars In Hour in Chicago Yards; Uses Button, Index Finger

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY

Chicago, July 24 (AP) — J. H. Jones switches 100 freight cars an hour with his index finger.

He just pushes buttons, and an electrically - operated automatic switching control system does the work.

The system, first of its type installed in the United States, functions in the Markham Yards of the Illinois Central Railroad 20 miles south of Chicago's Loop.

Jones sits in a small office at the crest of a hill. In front of him is a panel with 45 buttons.

Outside is a track that fans out into a row of 45 tracks. A locomotive pushes cars to the crest. A switchman uncouples each car and it rolls down the hill.

Jones looks at a list that shows the number, contents and destination of each car and the track to which it should be switched. If the car is to be switched to Track 24, for instance, Jones presses button 24, and the rolling car veers to that track.

Jones says he switches 800 cars during his eight hour tour of duty, one of three daily tricks.

The system was adopted to centralize and simplify the car sorting task.

Nobody touches the cars after they start to rumble down the slope. But their speed is controlled by electrically-operated devices.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"THE TIME HAS COME . . ."

Somewhere the whales are sobbing; somewhere the walrus shout; but there ain't no joy in 'Laska, since the Eric was rubbed 'out.' The Australian took an 'inches' decision over the Yukon in Memorial Arena last Friday night, but it was as popular as the well-known striped kitty at the equally well-known garden party. Yukon Eric the strutting lumberjack feels he was humiliated at the expense of the Arrogant Aussia Fred Atkins, and the Yukon ice mountains echoed with the roar of his protests. Atkins shrugged the affair off as another wrestling match but the Yuke's tonsils refused to be stilled until a rematch had been arranged. And that is what happened. The duo will clash again in the Arena come Friday in another Brawl of the Beefian Behemoths. Should be quite a tussle, at that, if what Yukon Eric says is true. In the semi-final the towering Ski-hi Lee returns to the local wars pitted against the dark-skinned Seli Samara, popular African grappler. Two familiar faces will be back in the opener, those of Toar Morgan and Abe Zvonkin, the ex-Queens gridiron star.

CUBS AND THE CLIPPERS

Tonight instead of tomorrow night the Belleville Cubs will be seeking another victory this time at the expense of the Cannifton Clippers, at the Exhibition Grounds. The Speedy St. Louis tribe have but one more scheduled game to play, outside of postponed games and that will likely be played on Thursday instead of Friday with Point Anne the opposition. Saw Bobby Bunton holidaying over at Wellington recently so presume he will not be available for the Cubs. St. Louis will likely start Gabby Moynes or the veteran Chuck Barriage against the Clippers.

KINGSTON HERE TOMORROW!

The Batawa Shoemen go to the mat again tomorrow night at the Fair Grounds, this time against the Kingston Disneys whom they defeated in an overtime game on the occasion of their last meeting. The Shoemen, with the other teams of the COBL, have a long grind ahead yet before playoff time, in fact the grind may be tougher because of their two-week vacation layoff. In any event they had better start soon to cast their eyes on the playoff spot, as time's awastin' and August will slip by quicker than that.

THE VOYAGE OF THE PAASON

The outlook wasn't brilliant for the "Paason's" crew that day
A night of celebration left their mouths like clover hay,
But La Howe took o'er the poopdeck and the Wick, he manned the guns
While Robert peeled potatoes, meanwhile practicing his puns.

The "Paason" heeled to windward, the boys heeled that way, too
Clutching "missionary's downfalls," there was naught much else to do.
Till the broad expanse of Quinte, foaming, white-capped, met their gaze,
When they went to battle stations in a misty sort of haze.

From his bridge up on the poopdeck, Howe, he scanned the distant shore,
Thrust his glasses to his eyeballs, saw a sandtrap, hollered "fore"
"Who're you kidding," muttered Robert from his post mid spuds, alee,
If its downfalls you're awanting, well — there's just enough for three."

Through Quinte's spume-tipped waters, the gallant Paason sped,
Till Lawrence's placid waters met its view a mile ahead,
Then fog swept down, enveloped them like mummies in a shroud,
An hour went by, two, three and four, and then the cry rang loud
"Man overboard," they looked aghast, they counted noses "quick"
The cook was there and so was Howe, but missing was La Wick.

Then through the mist a strange noise came, it sounded like a sob.
They cocked their ears, and smiled again, the voice was calling "Bob"
They came about, and pressed a switch, the engine loudly roared,
And like a porpoise from the deep, they hauled poor Wick aboard.

But Wick was grinning broadly as he reached for proffered glass,
A perch peeked from a pocket, in his hands he held a bass,
A dogfish growled a warning, opened mouth as if to snap.
And a musky had a mouthful in the south side of his lap.

Then continued this strange journey down to Isles, a thousand, more.
Where the poopdeck was deserted for La Howe he went ashore,
Where in solitude he pondered o'er this world of stress and strife
Grinning, as he quaffed a "downfall," "Well, at least I have my life."

But the other doughty seamen headed straight for Picton shore,
Sought they there the Hotel Sunshine where they stayed ten days or more.
"Oh somewhere in this favored land the sun is shining bright.
The band is playing somewhere, and somewhere hearts are light.
And somewhere men are laughing and somewhere children shout,
And all is well on Paason, since the crew is 'round about.'

Phillies Lose Heartbreaker, Jupe Pluvius May be Cause Loss of Nat. League Pennant

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The fuzzy-cheeked Philadelphia Phillies may have cause to remember Monday, July 24, to their rocking-chair days.

The whiz kids lost a heartbreaking game—and perhaps a pennant with it—the victims of a one-in-a-thousand episode.

The box score of last night's Philadelphia - Pittsburgh game shows only that the Pirates defeated the Phils 2-1, in a six-inning game ended by rain.

What it fails to show is that the Phils were leading the Bucs 3-2, when the rains came down.

Pittsburgh, the home club, was deprived of a chance to bat in his half of the seventh. Under league rules, the game reverts to the previous inning if the trailing home club does not get a chance to bat.

The Bucs, behind rookie Bill MacDonald, had a 2-1 lead when the Phils came up to bat in the top of the seventh. With two out and pitcher Bob Miller on base, Eddie Waitkus smashed a home run to put his team in front. Then came the rain. The game was called, wiping out Waitkus homer.

Out of First Place

The defeat knocked the Phils out of first place. Although they are even in games won and lost, the Phils trail St. Louis Cardinals by two percentage points. Brooklyn, in third place, is a game and a half behind. Boston's fourth-place Braves trail by two lengths.

Judging by the tight pennant races in recent years, the Phils-Pirates game could turn out to be the pivotal one in the National League.

It was the only championship game in the big leagues yesterday although Cleveland, Brooklyn, the Boston Red Sox and New York Giants played exhibition games.

The Dodgers defeated the Indians 6-4, in a game at Ebbets Field marred by an injury to Indian outfielder Larry Doby. The crack Negro star was hit by a Joe Hatten curve ball in the eighth inning and taken to hospital for observation.

In the annual event at Cooperstown, N.Y., site of baseball's Hall of Fame, the Red Sox defeated the Giants 8-5. It was the American League's fourth victory in nine mid-summer games.

Citation May Have Run His Last Race

Chicago, July 25 (AP)—Citation, world's leading money winner, definitely is out of Saturday's $75,000 Arlington Handicap and he may be all through with racing.

Trainer Jimmy Jones said yesterday that Citation, who has earned $938,630 in his career, pulled up lame after a public workout at Arlington Park following the fifth race last Saturday. The five-year-old son of Bull Lea-Hydroplane II has a filling low behind the left foreleg.

"We're going to walk him for the next few days and maybe put a saddle on and ride him later," Jones said. "We'll try to bring him back, but it's certain that he won't race him unless he returns to his true condition."

However, even with Citation out and the No. 1 handicap performer, Mrs. Charles Howard's Noor, remaining aloof, Arlington is assured of a worthy race Saturday when the meeting ends.

Jones said that Calumet Farm will be represented by Ponder, winner of last year's Kentucky Derby.

Four challengers from the east are expected in the mile-and-a-quarter handicap. They are Cochise and Greek Song, . the brandy-wine pair; Loser Weeper and Three Rings. Other horses who might show up are Volcanic, Oil Capitol and King Ranch's Curandero.

It was just too much to ask Citation to carry 132 pounds in the Santa Anita Handicap after being injured and out of action for 13 months," Jones said.

"I can't say for sure that he's all through but it looks like it.

The Calumet standard bearer won 29 of 38 races and finished second nine times in his brilliant career. In 1948 as a three-year-old he won $709,470—a record for one year.

Larry Doby Hit By 'Bean' Ball, Not Serious

(By The Canadian Press)

Larry Doby, Cleveland outfielder, was beaned last night as Brooklyn Dodgers defeated the Indians 6-4 in an exhibition game before 10,435 at Ebbets Field.

Doby was hit on the head by a Joe Hatten curve ball in the eighth inning. He had to be carried from the field on a stretcher. His condition, however, was reported not to be serious.

The Dodgers pushed across two runs in the eighth inning off Steve Ridzik to snap a 4-4 tie. Carl Furillo's single drove in the deciding run. Hatten was the winner.

In only 50 minutes, the top-ranked amateur in the United States, Davis Cup veteran Ted Schroeder, was soundly trounced by the National Collegiate champion, Herb Flam, in straight sets, 6-1, 6-2, 6-2 ,in the finals of the National Clay Courts Tennis meet yesterday at River Forest, Ill.

It was a blow to Schroeder, top-seeded in the tourney, who hoped to use his first Clay Courts' title as a stepping stone to the 1950 Davis Cup team. And it was his second defeat in little more than a week. He was beaten in the semi-finals of the recent western tourney at Indianapolis by Tony Trabert.

Boston Red Sox rallied in the eighth inning on home runs by John Pesky and Vern Stephens to defeat New York Giants 8-5 Monday in the annual Hall-of-Fame game on ancient Doubleday Field at Cooperstown, N.Y., where baseball was born.

It was the fourth American League victory against five for the National League in the series that started in 1940.

Bill George, one of the Dominion champion Alouettes' hopes for the 1950 season, has been called up by the United States Army Reserve and is not allowed to leave his home state, it was announced last night.

Jim Ferrier, the transplanted Australian golf professional from San Francisco, won top money in the St. Paul open tournament by winning a playoff with Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W.Va., on the 21st hole.

The two ended the scheduled 18th hole of their playoff all even with three-under-par 69s, forcing them to go extra holes in the sudden-death playoff.

The Aquila of the Crescent Yacht Club of Chaumont, N.Y., Monday won the Charles Freeman Cup in the 175-mile yacht race on Lake Ontario.

The Aquila was skippered by C. Willard Campbell of Watertown, N.Y., The Charles Freeman Cup was awarded for the best corrected time in the racing class.

Winnipeg Scottish, Manitoba champions ,trounced Port Arthur Brent Park 5-2 in Winnipeg last night in the opener of the best-of-three series in the Manitoba-Northwestern Ontario Soccer playoffs leading to the Dominion finals.

Foy Funderburk drove the favored Lusty Song, Winter Book favorite for the Hambletonian, to victory in the $10,000 Volomite trot as the Grand Circuit returned to Roosevelt raceway last night.

Two other candidates for the $85,000 trotting classic at Goshen, N.Y., Aug. 9—Stuart Hanover and Mariner Hanover—were second and third respectively. Stuart Hanover was driven by Joe O'Brien of New Glasgow, N.S.

Lusty Song, owned by the Hayes Fair Acres Stable, Du Quoin, Ill., was clocked in 2:04 2-5 for the mile and returned $4.30, $3 and $2.70 across the board.

In the co-featured $10,000 Knight Dream pace, Grand Knight upset the 2-to-5 favored entry to Tarhell and Direct Rythm.

CANADIAN INDIANS

It is estimated that there were little more than 200,000 Indians in Canada at the period of their greatest strength.

Pros Say 'No', CAHA Shelves Proposed Super Competition

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, July 25—(CP)— The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association is sorry, but its widely-ballyhooed Major Series—a sort of super-duper competition amongst the strongest clubs in the country—has been deferred and probably cancelled.

The proposed set-up didn't get approval of the professional leagues.

That is the sad position today of the 70,000-membership C.A.H.A. after last night's surprise announcement that the series has been shelved. The decision was made at a Monday meeting of the joint relations committee of the pro leagues and the C.A.H.A.

A statement issued after the private session said the Major Series was "dependent upon satisfactory arrangements being reached with the professional organizations." The committees were "unable to find sufficient common ground to establish the Major Series of the C.A.H.A. on a proposed basis."

Pros Not Keen

The breakdown occurred because the amateurs, who proposed putting players in the series on an iron-clad contract, didn't realize they might be dealing with some who already had the finger put on them by the pros. And the pros weren't keen about relinquishing the hold on any now on their lists—or any who might be at some future date.

Terms of contracts to be signed by players in the Major Series from the Cape Breton, Maritimes, Quebec, Ontario and Western Canada Senior Leagues, stipulated a minimum $1,000-a-year salary. That was okay, but a waiver clause providing a club shall not dispose of a player by transfer, except to a professional club, until all teams in the league or group have had a chance to claim the contract at a $100 waiver price, was a stumbling block.

Doug Grimston of New Westminster, B.C., president of the C.A.H.A., said in an interview a special meeting of the association will be held in Toronto Dec. 27-28 when the question of a Major Series will be reopened.

"It looks at present as if there will be no Major Series in 1950-51," he said.

And what of the Allan Cup, which faded into the background when the Major Series was announced? It probably will return to its former status as the premier trophy for senior competition.

It was decided Saturday at a C.A.H.A. meeting that the Allan Cup would be compted for by senior clubs in the country, except those in the Major Series. Now, unless some agreement can be reached with the pros concerning the big five, everybody will be in on it.

Wings Smash Oriole Hopes With Two Wins

(By The Canadian Press)

Rochester's Red Wings are rolling along with the smoothness of a well-oiled machine.

Manager Johnny Keane brought his league-leaders into Baltimore last night for the first two games of an important five-game set with second-place Orioles. Four victories would have catapulted the Orioles into the International League lead.

But Rochester smashed the Oriole hopes, 5-4 and 9-3, in a twilight-night doubleheader. Now Baltimore is five games behind.

Mike Schultz and Tom Poholsky held Baltimore to eight hits in the opener, while George Copeland pitched a seven-hitter in the nightcap. The second game was halted after five innings because of rain.

Russ Derry hit homers Nos. 21 and 22 for the winners.

Rookie Paul Stuffel of Toronto hurled a strange 6-4 victory over Syracuse. He walked 14, allowed six hits and had two errors behind him, but still staggered the route for his second victory. He left 17 men on base.

Bud Heslet hit a home run for Toronto with Bobby Rhawn on third base—but it didn't count. Ken Burkhart was charged with a balk, and the pitch was nullified. Rhawn, however, was permitted to score on the balk.

Montreal Royals, behind Tom Lasorda's eight-hit pitching, trimmed Springfield 9-5. The victory left the Royals half a game behind Baltimore.

Full Support Baseball Given Armed Forces

Cooperstown, N.Y., July 25—(AP)—Commissioner A. B. Chandler today pledged baseball's full support to the United States armed forces in the Korean crisis.

"Baseball in this emergency is prepared to offer to the president the services of all its players and workers," said Chandler.

"The needs of the country come first. Baseball has traditionally always given its loyal support in time of stress."

CLOSE ESCAPE

Windsor, July 25 (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Letourneau fled from their stalled automobile here Sunday seconds before a Canadian National Railways freight train crashed into it at a crossing.

The car stalled on the crossing when a rear shock absorber caught on a jutting railway tie.

A Quintet of World Softball Champions

Pictured above are five reasons the Tip Top Tailors softball team were the 1949 champions of the world and bid fair to repeat this year. Shown from left to right coddling the trusty bludgeons that smashed out the victory runs are Lennie Gaull, said to be the best softball catcher extant; Art Upper, internationally known player and coach of the Tip Tops; Joe Spring, without a doubt the best hitter in softball who was purposely walked five times during the 1949 world tournament; Goody Rosen, former big league outfield star with the Brooklyn Dodgers and a power hitter if ever there was one and Roy Palmeri, a utility player formerly with the New York Grummans. The Tip Tops will be seen in action here on August 3 against a Belleville All-Star team from the Commercial League. The Tips are being brought here by the Belleville Optimist Club in an effort to give local sportdom a glimpse of world champion softballers in action.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT
(For Hugh Fullerton Jr.)

New York, July 25 (AP) — The word has gone around, from sources close to New York Giants that this is Clint Hartung's last stand.

The tall, earnest young "pheenom," either proves himself to be a big-league ball player before the present season ends or off to the minors he goes, probably not to return.

It is sad to relate, for no player ever has tried harder to live up to an exorbitant advance ballyhoo than has big Clint since he reported to the Giants in the spring of '47.

His feats in inter-army-camp games had been fantastic. When he hadn't blinded opposing batters with his tremendous speed he had rifled home runs into adjacent Pacific waters.

Rookie of Decade

There was no doubt, apparently, that the Giants had bagged the rookie of the decade.

It had taken the better part of four seasons to bring Giants officials and the club's followers to the reluctant conclusion that Hartung, approaching 28, is not going to be a super-star or even a top flight big leaguer.

As a pitcher he has shown flashes of true brilliance, yet going into the current campaign his won-lost mark was only .500—26-26—and he lost two more than he won last year. He has shown little so far this season, either as a starter or in relief.

Recently, on the same afternoon, he pitched briefly in the first game of a doubleheader and played the outfield in the second. Manager Leo Durocher is trying hard to find a spot for the big guy, knowing that it will bring pangs of disappointment to the club's front office if it finally becomes necessary to buy him a rail ticket to the minors.

Two-Stage Rocket Test Successful

Cocoa, Fla., July 25 (AP) —A giant two-stage "bumper" rocket made the first successful horizontal test flight yesterday in what was described as a preview of "push button" warfare.

The huge guided missile thundered into the air at 10.28 a.m. EDT trailing fire and vapor. It slanted sharply towards the east and disappeared behind high clouds.

Col. Harold R. Turner, safety officer at this east coast proving ground said the main part of the missile, a captured German V-2 rocket soared up 51,000 feet (about 9 1-2 miles). At that time it was 15 miles east of the launching point.

Turner said the 700-pound 'wac corporal,' a small rocket riding in the nose of the V-2, separated from the 'mother rocket" and streaked eastward.

At the moment of separation Turner said the rockets were travelling 2,700 miles an hour horizontally.

The V-2 reached a maximum altitude of 10 miles 83 seconds after the take off and then began to nose down towards the Atlantic. When the missile got down to 20,000 feet exactly 140 seconds after the start, Col. Turner pressed a button and exploded the rocket.

He said information on what happened to the little 'wac corporal' rocket after it left the V-2 can not be made public at this time.

'Golden Greek' Of Horsedom Is Dead

Baltimore, July 25 (AP) — William G. Helis, oil millionaire horseman, died early today at Johns Hopkins Hospital. He was 63.

The hospital said Helis was operated on for a respiratory infection about six weeks ago and had re-entered the hospital July 12.

Helis owned a large thoroughbred breeding farm at Jobstown, N.J. He also raced a large stable under his own colors. With Eugene Mori, he purchased the Tanforan track in San Francisco in October 1947, and is part owner of the Fairgrounds race track in New Orleans, where he lived.

Helis, nicknamed the "Golden Greek," won and lost several fortunes early in his career as a hard-hitting oilman in California and Oklahoma. He went to New Orleans in 1930 and made another fortune in the Louisiana Fields.

He raced a large stable under his own colors and in 1943 paid $66,000 for a yearling, the third highest price for such a sale on record. That yearling, Perciles, won only one race in three starts but is considered tops in the bloodline.

He entered flat racing in 1942. He bought Attention the next year for $55,000, which became his first "big name" horse. Attention had beaten Whirlaway to the wire before Helis obtained him. In 1949 his string brought him $287,747, making him the eighth leading money winner among United States owners.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The wrong lead can lead your partner astray. So you learn rules that tell you what to lead. Their aim is to tell your partner what you have and what you lack. A very sensible purpose.

Suppose partner has given you no indication as to what you should lead. You are left to your own resources. This is known as a blind lead. Rather than guess, follow a rule that partner understands.

Don't lead a suit bid by the opponents; against a suit contract, don't lead away from an ace or a king; from what is left, follow the order of choice in tops, longies, shorts.

If partner has bid a suit, however, you have no need for a blind lead. You already know what to lead. Partner has told you. Simply lead the suit your partner has bid and that is all there is to it.

In other words, always lead your partner's bid suit or some suit he has indicated in some manner. Only when he has given no indication as to what you should lead do you follow the blind lead rule.

The general idea is easy to understand. If partner has bid any suit you already know what to lead. So, it is not necessary for you to dig up a rule of your own. Simply lead his suit.

If partner has not bid a suit you are called upon to determine the lead best suited under the circumstances. This is determined for you by the rules that govern blind leads.

Your partner in the east had bid diamonds. South became the declarer at four hearts. It is your opening lead from this west hand:

♠K Q 8 4
♥Q 6 3
♦9 6 3
♣7 6 5

Your correct lead is a diamond, the suit your partner has bid. It is the suit you have a right to believe he expects you to lead.

What if you did not lead a diamond?? What if you led some other suit? Partner would have a right to assume you are void in diamonds. Or, so far as he is concerned, you are void, period.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 25 (AP) — Where there's gold, there's Hope and Bob has found a new vein to mine—state fairs.

The fast-travelling comic has been hired to play two state fairs late this summer. Needless to say, the salaries are stratospheric. Hope will appear at Springfield, Ill., Aug. 19-20 and at Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 31-Sept. 3.

Meanwhile, "ski-nose" will be making "The Lemon Drop Kid," his latest picture from a Damon Runyon story. He'll do his third big television show Sept. 10, for which he is paid $40,000. Then he'll leave for Honolulu and a vacation with his wife and their four children, returning to start his air show for his new sponsor.

May be Fireworks

There may be fireworks when Rodgers and Hammerstein see "My Blue Heaven." One number contains a riotous take-off on "South Pacific", with Dan Dailey doing an imitation of Ezio Pinza.

Danny Thomas plays his first comedy role in "Call Me Mister". He played a couple of character parts at M.G.M. and they did nothing for him. Danny's next may be a straight role in "Up Front," taken from the Bill Mauldin book.

Capsule Review

"Stella" (TCF) tries to be funny, but doesn't always make it. It starts on a sombre note—a family secretly buries a wayward uncle, killed accidentally on a picnic. Then it tries for laughs, but the comedy has trouble overcoming the serious beginning. Victor Mature, Ann Sheridan and David Wayne head the cast of well-chosen characters, but all have trouble making the thing seem real.

Canadian Navy Hunts Subs, Locates Whales

Ottawa, July 25 (CP) — The navy is hunting foreign submarines reported off Canada's East Coast, but so far all they've located is a few schools of wales.

A naval spokesman said seven separate reports of unidentified submarine sightings off the Atlantic seaboard have come in so far. The first was three weeks ago. But neither air-sea military search nor checks by intelligence officers have been able to confirm any of them.

The spokesman conceded however, that it is quite possible that a foreign sub may be in East Coast waters. And it is thought that Russia is the only foreign power that would send such a craft.

The navy is taking no chances. It sent two frigates to comb coastal areas with the aid of an RCAF anti-submarine squadron and some anti-sub planes from Dartmouth, N.S.

The frigates have swept the whole bay of Funday area in zig-zag lines. Nothing has shown on the radar screens or the asdic sub-locating equipment except a few whales.

Naval intelligence officers have gone to the East Coast to check these reports and are expected back in Ottawa soon. The naval spokesman said the fisherman's story had discrepancies but could be true since it had been established that there were no British or American submarines in that area.

As for the Newfoundland report, the spokesman said it might have involved the British submarine Astute, which on July 10 would have been within 80 miles of the area where unidentified sub was seen by the trawler.

As for other reports the navy placed little credence in them, the spokesman said.

Fossilized Animals Found in Excavating

Toronto, July 25. (CP)—Workmen excavating for the Toronto subway have uncovered several species of fossilized animal that lived in this area millions of years ago. The specimens have been handed over to Dr. Madeline Fritz, professor of Geology at the University of Toronto.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma noticed my hair this afternoon, saying, Benny, I thawt you were suppose to have your hair cut today?

I'm still going to, ma, I said, and she said, Well I sincerely hope so. I'm tired of heering your fatehr remind you, and I'd like to see him injoy his meal this evening without having your hair at the beginning of it, she said.

Well jimminy rozalem, ma, it seems a shame for me to sit and suffer getting my hair cut when it grows back so quick again, I said. Hay, ma, I tell you what. How about if I tell the barber to cut it off close with his clippers like the pictures of boys in Germany? How's that for an idea ma? I said, and she said, Perfectly gassly. Do you think I want your head looking like a stained egg? she said.

But jimminies, ma, it would take a heck of a long while for it to grow long again, I said. Pop wouldn't have to remind me to have it cut again for munths, and in the meanwhile the air would have a chance to circulate around my scalp in the hot weather, I said, and ma said, And also in the meanwhile I'd have to look at you.

No you wouldn't, ma, I said. I'd wear my cap in the house, especially at meal times, while we're waiting for it to grow out a little, I said, and ma said, Now that's a really brilliant suggestion. I'm going over to the barber shop with you myself and oversee the operation, she said.

Aw heck, ma, I meen gosh, only sissies mothers go to the barber shop with them, I said. Anyways ma, I dont really think I was serious, I said, and she said, Well believe me

RCAF Transport Squadron Leaves For West Coast

Montreal, July 25 (CP)—Personnel of the RCAF 426 transport squadron today received last minute briefing before leaving for their United Nations assignment to ferry men and supplies across the Pacific in connection with the Korean war.

Flight orders, expected hourly since the squadron was assigned to the job last week, were announced yesterday by Wing. Cmdr. C. H. Mussells, the squadron's commanding officer.

A total of 250 air and ground crew are to take off in six North Stars at 7 p.m. EDT tonight from the squadron's base at nearby Dorval airport.

This morning a parade and inspection were to be held. Wing. Cmdr. Mussells was expected to speak to next-of-kin and friends of personnel.

The six aircraft, which will fly in formation, are the first of 10 manned by RCAF crews ordered to the trans-Pacific airlift. Their personnel include 11 flight crews. Each aircraft will carry 44 men.

On the way to their Tacoma, Wash., West Coast base, the six planes will fly in formation over Ottawa and Toronto. The unit will land at Winnipeg at 12.30 a.m. EDT tomorrow, then continue to the coast. It is expected to reach McChord Field, near Tacoma, about 10 a.m. PDT.

Ground crews yesterday gave the planes a last check-up and, shortly after departure orders were received, stenciled the United Nations' crest on both sides of the horizontal tail planes of the aircraft, just above the red-white-and-blue RCAF markings and serial numbers.

The crest is a world superimposed on a round grid, with olive branches on each side. The design has a pale-blue rectangular background, 15 by 23 inches.

Doubts Any Nation Able to Drop Many A-Bombs

London, July 25—(AP)—Home Secretary Chuter Ede said in the House of Commons last night that he doubts whether any country is able to drop a large number of atomic bombs anywhere.

He added that he does not believe that atomic weapons necessarily would be decisive in any conflict.

Ede spoke in a debate on civil defence. Earlier, the Labor government disclosed it will publish tomorrow a booklet to steel Britons against the threat of atomic warfare.

"I do not share the view that the atomic weapon need be decisive in a conflict, provided that we know what we have to meet and we have made reasonable precautions toward meeting it," Ede said.

"Fortunately, we know enough of this weapon to be able to take steps toward meeting what it can do. We can take steps that will minimize the effect of this weapon, and I do not believe, on the information we or anyone else has at the moment, that a large number of atomic bombs can be dropped by any country. We must make our preparation with that in mind."

Ede called for a strengthening of Britain's civil defence organization. There were sufficient instructors in civilian defence to warrant recruitment of a force at once. Fifty hours' training would make a recruit fairly proficient.

"There is the greatest urgency now that recruitment should be stepped up. But I do not want civil defence to be the softer option for people who ought to take a greater share in the defence of our country."

See Sharp Rise in Sale Of New, Used Cars

Ottawa, July 25 (CP) — A sharp upswing in the sales of new and used motor vehicles during May was reported Monday by the Bureau of Statistics.

New vehicles sold during the month totalled 40,582, compared with 28,385 in May, 1949. Retail value for the month advanced almost 37 percent from 59,576,563 to $81,578,306.

The high May sales raised new vehicle sales in the first five months of this year to 168,092 units from 109,892 in the first five months of 1949.

It Pays to Pasteurize Fruits, Vegetables for Picnics, Suppers

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

New Brunswick, N.J., July 24 (AP) — Pasteurizing fruits and vegetables for picnics or church suppers is health insurance, says Dr. Willem Rudolfs of Rutgers University.

The pasteurizing is something new, and easy to do. It develops from tests showing that raw vegetables and fruits often carry disease germs.

The germs can get aboard vegetables when they are harvested or handled by persons with intestinal infections, or when crops are fertilized with animal manure or sewage.

They also may come when food is prepared by outwardly healthy people who are carriers of typhoid or other diseases.

Cooking vegetables kills all germs. But raw tomatoes, lettuce, carrots or fruits may still harbor the germs even after they have been washed.

The pasteurizing kills the germs on raw vegetables. You put vegetables in 140-degree water for 10 to 15 minutes. Water at this temperature doesn't change the taste, color or crispness of tomatoes, lettuce, spinach, carrots or apples, Dr. Rudolfs said.

Housewives could do it, but the risk of getting contaminated vegetables doesn't make it worth while as a daily practice.

Pasteurizing might be a smart idea when there are outbreaks of so-called Summer diarrhoea or other ailments, or when many different people contribute food for a picnic or supper.

Some outbreaks of typhoid fever have been traced to such gatherings, with contaminated raw foods suspected as the cause, Dr. Rudolfs said.

North Korean Tank Operators Believed Veterans of Last War

(Editor's note: The following dispatch from Tokyo speculating on the possibility that North Korean tank crews may have fought at Stalingrad in 1943, was written by Philip Potter, Baltimore Sun-Paper's war correspondent, and was made available to the Associated Press in Baltimore.)

By PHILIP POTTER

(Baltimore Sun-Papers War Correspondent)

Tokyo, July 25 — (AP) — Those who felt the United States was taking a bush league foe out here have learned different.

The professional competence of the crown-clad Orientals leads one to suspect that their military straining long ante-dated the establishment of the People's Democratic Republic of Korea, under whose flag they fight.

Their familiarity with tank warfare indicates that some might have been around in Russian uniforms at the battle of Stalingrad.

In any case, the green American infantry who were thrown in against the communist invaders have had a bloody and sweaty time of it.

The North Koreans have had too heavy a punch for the lightweight battalions which the U.S. has committed one at a time in an operation which one soldier described as "throwing in flyweights against a Joe Louis—one at a time."

The gaunt and bearded faces of the men who have faced North Korean tanks and infantry for three crucial weeks are those of men who have been in a war.

The shock of defeat is registered in their faces.

Expressions of optimism heard here don't jibe with the picture one sees in the battle area and along the supply lines.

One of the major weaknesses of the American position from the start has been the lack of flank protection for the battalions facing the main communist forces.

This has made possible the communist tactics of infiltration which have turned one position after another and forced continued retreat.

Some observers see withdrawal to a beachhead, where a continuous line of American troops in some depth could be formed, as the best to be hoped for now.

There is confidence that an impenetrable perimeter could be established which would gain the time needed for American industrial might to produce the needed war material and to train the men to use it.

One is reluctant to guess how much it might take. There are too many imponderables in the situation, the main one being the extent to which the North Koreans can draw on Russia for war weapons.

It Was Not Woman But Dragline

Seattle, July 25. (AP)—James T. Swanson was asked in divorce court yesterday: "Who was your sweetheart while you were in Alaska?"

"No one," he replied.

His wife's counsel then produced a letter written by Swanson when he was mining in Alaska last year. It said in part:

"Wait until next time, I'll tell you all about my new honey. Is she streamlined"

Swanson guffawed.

"That was no woman," he said. "It was my new dragline, $50,000 worth, and was I proud of her."

He got the divorce.

'Death Sand', Radio-Active Dust, Developed by U.S., Thinks Professor

Chicago, July 25—(AP)—Is the United States working to develop "death sand?" A University of Illinois physicist thinks it's likely.

This slow-acting poison, an invisible form of radio-active dust, could be the most insidious—or most humane — type of atomic weapon known.

Dr. Louis N. Ridenour said the substance would be "the lightest and most transportable of all the weapons of mass production."

The United States Atomic Energy Commission's plutonium production plant in Hanford, Wash., could produce enough of this dust every month to contaminate 14 square miles, he added.

Inhale and Die

Radio-active sand, he believes, could be made by dipping tiny sand particles or metal powder in a water solution of radio-active salts. These salts, when dried, would cling to the outside of each particle.

Unless warned in advance, residents of an area sprayed with this dust would not know they were in danger until symptoms of radio-active poisoning appeared two weeks or a month later. Then it would be too late. They would have inhaled it and had their clothing covered with it. A few days later they would die.

But if warning were given, Ridenour said, each member of the target population would have a choice whether to live or die.

Persons who remained in the area certainly would die, "while giving an excellent chance of survival to a person who flees at once, with a folded or dampened handkerchief over his nose and mouth."

Says Wounded Shot By North Koreans

U.S. Eighth Army Headquarters in Korea, July 25 — (AP)— A 26-year-old Korean doctor told a press conference today that North Korean troops shot and killed hundreds of wounded South Korean soldiers in two Seoul hospitals after the reds entered the Republic's capital.

The doctor, whose name was withheld for security reasons, said he left Seoul July 14.

He said many South Koreans told him they had seen the bodies. The doctor reached this headquarters Saturday. He said about 50 foreigners in American uniforms were exhibited in Seoul as prisoners while he was there.

An apartment sized electric stove. With all the features of the larger stove, but made smaller in size for the kitchen where space is limited. Large size cooking oven, and four super-fast cooking elements. Priced $209

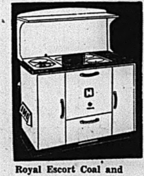
Model 25-48 DeLuxe
Our finest electric stove. Combining real beauty, economy and practicability. Large size oven and warming closet. Two large storage bins. Five heat switches and all the newest in modern electric stoves. Priced. $329

Model 26-48 Standard
A lower priced better stove. Floor space 36" x 23½". Large sized oven. Porcelain enamelled broiler pan with smokeless grid. One piece cooking top and backguard. Automatic timer and selector switch $259

Rangette
The famous McClary Rangette, noted for long wear. Finish of gleaming white porcelain finish. Oven with automatic oven control. Two large cooking elements. Priced at only $59

GAS AND COAL RANGES

Model 26-48 Gas
The switch today is in many cases to gas. Lower priced, better heat, and we can arrange for your supply of gas. The stove above has a large table top, with good sized oven and warming oven. If you're interested in gas, see this stove $172



Royal Escort Coal and Wood
A superb stove — delightful to the eye, and easy to clean. Completely finished in glossy white porcelain finish with large cooking oven and water reservoir with ample capacity. Fully porcelain enamelled oven interior $144

Model 316-47
Made specially for the smaller family. Floor space 29¾" wide by 18¼" deep. Three standard Red-Hed cooking elements on top and large cooking oven. Good sized storage compartment. Gleaming white porcelain finish $99

COMBINATION RANGES

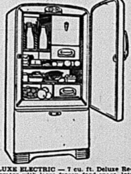
MODEL 126-48—COAL and ELECTRIC Specially constructed to bake with electricity and heat with coal. A dual purpose stove. Four super-fast electric elements on top, and large oven. One piece cooking top. Storage drawer. Priced $289

MODEL 126-48—COAL & GAS Another big value in a combination stove. You can use either coal or wood or gas. Gas section has 1 giant and 3 standard burners, while coal section has two 8" covers. Large sized oven and storage bin. One piece top and backguard makes cleaning easy $199

COAL RANGE

ESCORT Another one of the beautiful McClary coal burning stoves. Streamlined effect with clear cooking front. Porcelain enamelled finish. Wide spacious cooking surface. In all a truly fine addition to your kitchen, and a splendid cooker $124

AND REFRIGERATORS TOO!



DELUXE ELECTRIC — 7 cu. ft. Deluxe Refrigerator with large frozen food space, lots of ice cubes, vegetable crisper, storage bins, etc. Gleaming white, one piece porcelain finish. Priced right and made for long, practical use. Priced $329

The Gentle Heart

By Kay Hamilton

She paused expectantly, and Diane frowned a little. "But this house is one-third mine," she protested.

Nat laughed shortly. "Sure it is, and don't forget that as long as you're here we won't be paying you rent for your share. I should think, though, you'd want to contribute something toward the household expenses."

Diane's frown deepened. "But I haven't a cent, Nat. Really, I haven't. I spent so much on my trousseau, you know, that I - - - And there has been so little since. It just went."

Natalie's lips compressed slightly. "Didn't Fred give you an allowance?"

"Y-yes. But it wasn't much. And things are so high. Food. Why sometimes I dipped into my own money for the food." She sounded indignant.

Jenny said slowly, "Delicatessen food always costs a lot," and when the other two girls glanced at her, she added, "Fred was here this morning."

Diane burst into sudden tears. "And you're already on his side, aren't you? You're convinced that I'm in the wrong. Oh, I did think that when things got too terrible there I could at least come home!"

Jenny's resolve to discipline her sister melted into nothingness before those tears. She went to her, gathered her close. "Di, you know that's not true. You know you're always welcome here. We were just trying to be practical about things."

"I know," Diane admitted dashing at her tears with an angry hand. "But I'm so unhappy. So upset. I think everybody's out to hurt me."

She went from the room, climbing the stairs slowly to the upper floor. Jenny and Natalie stared at each other in consternation, and did not speak until they heard her door close.

"What's it all about?" Natalie asked then. "I suppose Fred told you." She sat down, patted the couch beside her, and Jenny sank onto the sofa cushions with a sigh.

"It's more serious than we had thought," she told her sister. "It's so serious that I wonder if they will ever get together again."

"You're just feeling down in the mouth," Natalie reassured her. "And I don't wonder, if you had her and Fred to wrestle with this morning. I thought I was having a hard time in there," she waved a hand, smudged with India ink, toward the studio, "but I guess I was really lucky, at that."

Jenny said, "Nat, you'll have to help me. It's up to us, I guess, to save their mariage if we can."

"If we can!" Natalie echoed. "I wouldn't dream of interfering. I think people who poke into other people's marriages are the limit!"

"It wouldn't be that. It's something much more dificult. You see, Nat, their trouble is really our fault. That's why I feel we'll have to do our share to correct it."

"You're talking in circles," Natalie said calmly. "Try and give it to me straight."

So Jenny sat in her corner of the couch, very erect and still, her small capable hands tightly locked together, and told about Fred's visit. "Now do you understand?" she asked when she had finished.

Natalie was grave. "You're right," she admitted. "It is partly our fault. Everyone has always admired her so much. Even Mother, although she made a real effort to make Di toe the mark. But Dad, and her friends, and even perfect stranges. And ourselves, of course. Beauty can be a real menace to happiness," she added thoughtfully.

"We'll have to start on her right away," Jenny said sorrowfully. "We'll make her do her part, take her share of the responsibilities. She could get a job."

"At what? Looking beautiful? She has the brain but she won't use it," Natalie said bluntly. Suddenly she reached over, kissed Jenny with one of her rare demonstrations of affection. "And listen to who is talking about being stern. Why, you melted as soon as she shed a tear, Jen,"

"I won't the next time," Jenny declared with resolution.

Natalie laughed. "Oh, yes, you will. You've a heart as soft as butter. And frankly, I like you that way. We all do."

She got up. "Time for lunch, isn't it? What have we got?"

Jenny was horrified. "I haven't started a thing!" She raced to the kitchen, peered into the refrigerator. Natalie followed at a more liesurely pace, her brown eyes twinkling at her little sister's dismay.

She stood up in the doorway, watched the first hurried preparations for the meal, and then suddenly she said, with a grin at her self as well as at Jenny, "Come to think of it, we never did get the money question settled with Di, did we?"

It was settled for them before they had expected it to be. Diane came from her room looking chastened and pale, and ate her luncheon quietly. She even offered to wipe the dishes, but before they had left the table, Brent walked in.

"Any coffee left?" he asked, pulling out the fourth chair and seating himself at the table with them. "I'm like my English friend who swore he had tried all the coffee gadgets on the market, but couldn't make a decent brew. "Tastes like Thames water," he would say in disgust, and asked me how I made it. Me, who can't make a halfway potable cup of the stuff."

"What did you tell him?" Jenny asked.

"I didn't tell him—I asked him. I said, 'How much coffee do you use?' and he said, 'A good teaspoon.' 'Not enough,' I told him. And then I had a hunch. I said, 'A teaspoon to a cup?' 'Oh No,' he replied with horor, 'a teaspoon to the pot, of course!'"

Even Diane laughed. "He thought you made it like tea!" she cried.

"A beverage was a beverage to him," Brent admitted. "I've often wondered if he ever got up his courage to waste all that coffee to get a good cup." He turned to Natalie. "I'm not here to rush you or anything, but I've been gathering up my background sketches this morning, and I thought if you could give me a definite date when I can get in the studio that I'll start lining up the models this afternoon."

Natalie groaned. "At the rate I was going this morning it will be months. You never saw such a mess as I made of that design. Come and look at it! Maybe a fresh eye—"

"Hey, take that back!" he protested, following her, his coffee cup in his hand. "Always respectful, that's me. Even to my contemporaries!"

Natalie and Brent disappeared into the studio together, and Jenny began to clear the table. The depression which had lain upon her spirit ever since Fred's visit his morning had miraculously vanished with Brent's arrival. He could always make her feel this way—happy and excited—and she hummed a little as she scraped the plates and laid out the soap dish.

In no time at all, Natalie and Brent had joined them in the kitchen. "He's done it!" Natalie cried happily. "He's done it."

"Don't tell me that fresh eye did the trick?" Jenny said.

"It certainly did. I knew I was stale on the thing, and if I'd had the sense of a fruit-fly I'd have known Mr. Lightfoot didn't mean what he said literally."

"If she breaks the line twice," Brent explained, "at two unevenly spaced places, it will be 'carried through' without dominating the design as it does now."

"Just for that," Natalie said with sudden magnanimity, "you can start moving in day after tomorrow. I ought to be ready by then."

"Swell! I'll hold you to that." He turned to Diane, silently wiping dishes. "Have you ever thought of helping out a hard-working hack artist and making some money at the same time?" he asked her.

She looked up, startled. "Are you talking to me?"

"Who else, Beautiful? I've got two romantic pulp magazine covers promised with the sketches approved, and I'm not fool enough to drop my regular income on the chance that this advertising job will go through. Will you pose for them? I'd pay you regular rates."

Diane was pleased. "I'd love to, Brent. When do we start?" She turned to her sisters triumphantly. "You see, I'll be making money right away!"

Brent, with his unusual quick perception, sensed the meaning behind this and added, "When I get going on those adds, I'll need a pretty girl now and again. I can't have nothing but wrinkled farmers and gnarled fishermen, can I? Not if I want to appeal to the American public. So you're hired for those, too."

"Oh, Brent, you darling!" Diane flung her arms around his neck, hugged him. "There's nothing I'd like better. It will be like the old days when I used to pose for Dad sometimes."

Jenny, pulling the plug out of the percolator, so that she could wash it, suddenly remembered something. "Oh, Natalie, I am a nitwit. I forgot to tell you that Gary telephoned this morning."

"Gary!" There was only the one word but Natalie's face was lit from within as if a flame burned there. "Is he back? What did he want?"

"What do you think?" Jenny retorted, laughing. "But I told him the studio door was closed and he understood."

The flame wavered, sank. "I said he should come over this evening and have a real visit," she added and watched the flame flare up to renewed brilliance.

"That's good," Natalie said softly. "It will be wonderful to see him again." She turned away, carrying the dishes into the pantry, as if she realized how her face gave her away.

Brent said, "That's Gary Underhill?" But it was not really a question. "He's an electrical engineer, isn't he?"

"Yes, and I don't imagine he'd be flattered to know that I was reminded of him when I took out the percolato plug," Jenny chuckled. "He's an awfully nice person, and we—we saw quite a lot of him this summer. He took his vacation late and is just back."

"I've met him here a couple of times," Brent said thoughtfully. "He struck me as being a very bright lad."

"He is," Natalie said behind him. She had come back into the kitchen quietly. "He's very bright, and he'll go far one of these days. You wait and see."

"Who's he with?" Brent asked.

"The Connecticut branch of Amalgamated Electric. He's in the research end." She said it proudly.

Jenny wrung out the dishcloth, shook it vehemently, and asked, "Why don't you run over too this evening, Brent? You haven't told us anything about your summer as yet, and I'm dying to hear about Citolo. He used to be a dear."

Canadian Miners Arrive Home From S. Korea

Windsor, Ont., July 25. (CP)—Six Canadian miners who escaped from South Korea one jump ahead of the invading communists are on their way home to Northern Ontario and Quebec today. Four others in the group of 10 Canadian miners who escaped are following a day behind.

All praised the Red Cross and United States army who helped their evacuation from coal mines on Korea's east coast.

But their greatest praise was for the Korean people—and for five Korean drivers who stayed at the wheels of trucks for 26 hours to get them to safety.

The six arrived in Windsor last night after reaching Detroit by plane—Foreman Joseph Malette, 47, Napoleon Cousineau, 49, and Sam E. Welcher, 44, all of Timmins, Ont. John Forget, 26, and his brother Roger, 23, of Haileybury, Ont.; and Dyilio Sartoretto, 35, of West Rouyn, Que.

The four expected to arrive today are Ernest Genest and Carl Osterberg, of Cobalt, Ont.; Dorien Roy of Kirkland Lake, Ont.; and Leon Landry, of Rouyn.

All are diamond drillers who left mines in Ontario and Quebec last April to work in Korea for a United States Mining Company.

"We were given only nine hours' warning of the invasion before we had to move out at 3 a.m. June 26," Sartoretto said.

"Five Korean drivers drove our trucks for 26 hours through South Korea to Pusan. We would never have got through the roads and trails if it hadn't been for them."

After the group, with eight United States diamond drillers, reached Pusan and boats for Japan, the Red Cross and the U.S. Army took over.

The Canadians said they saw many United States citizens and missionaries being evacuated ahead of the communists but said they saw no fighting and heard only one rifle shot in the trip through the mountains.

Sartoretto's party statement last night was: "Where can I get a steak? I want to see half a cow."

TWO DIE IN COLLISION

Levis, Que., July 25 (CP) — Two persons were killed and another was seriously injured last night in an auto-truck collision a few miles from this south-shore St. Lawrence River town.

One of the victims was identified as Mrs. Emery Chapleau, about 35 of Quebec. The second a man about 40, was not identified. Mr. Chapleau was hurt.

AMERICANS REPULSE HEAVY ARMOR ATTACKS

One or More Subs Probably Off Coast In Past Month

Report Based on Accounts As Related by Fishermen

Ottawa, July 26. (CP)— The Navy announced today that "one or more submarines of an unknown nation have probably been in the waters off the east coast of Canada during the past month."

Russia, Navy officials said earlier, is the only power which could have sent them there.

The Navy issued this statement:

"A preliminary assessment of a series of reports of submarine sightings ranging from the Grand Banks of Newfoundland to the Bay of Fundy indicate that one or more submarines of an unknown nationality had probably been in the waters off the east coast of Canada during the past month.

Seen by Fishermen

"Reports, most of them received from fishermen, of submarines sighted in the Bay of Fundy between the 5th and 19th of July have been investigated and examined and it is considered likely that a single strange sub was in the Bay.

"Up until Monday there had been five separate reports of sightings in the Bay of Fundy. Since then there have been several more, the latest being from the Chignecto Bay area at the head of the bay. They are under investigation but it is considered unlikely that a submarine would venture into this area where the extreme tides and tricky currents make pilotage a risky undertaking for a submarine captain unfamiliar with the waters.

"Navy headquarters is still awaiting word from the (British) Admiralty which is expected to clear up whether a submarine reported sighted on the Grand Banks by a Spanish fishing vessel was H.M.S. Astute. The Astute was on passage from Halifax to Plymouth and was in the same general area as the fishing vessel at that time."
